Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement in "Cage Birds," as I was not able to answer them all.—A. E. Gardner (Potter's Bar).

The result of my advertisements in "Cage Birds" was that I sold the whole of my surplus stock of Borders. I consider "Cage Birds" a valuable advertising medium, and wish it long success. (Mrs.) Cargill (Keady).

Hints Wanted on the Making of Birdlime.

SIR,—Will some good-natured catcher give me a hint on making bird-lime? I have tried many times but cannot succeed. I put half a pint of linseed oil into a saucepan and stand t over a stove for six or eight hours to boil; then I pour it into cold water, when it either goes into a hard lump or becomes very soft and of no use for anything; there is no stickiness in it. And I should like to know the best way for keeping it.

A New Cage Bird Society for Bromsgrove and District.

SIR,—I am pleased to inform you that a meeting was held on March 12th at the Red Lion Hotel, High Street, Bromsgrove, to form a Cage Bird Society, to be called the Bromsgrove and District Cage Bird Society. Also that our next meeting will be held on Monday next, March 21st, when all intended members are cordially invited to attend at the above address at 8 p.m.

Is Early Breeding Disastrous?

SIR,—My intention in replying to Mr. Bennett on the above subject is not to argue for or against early breeding, but simply to give that gentleman some of the information required. I wrote to CAGE BIRDS a short time ago stating that one pair of my Norwich were busy, the hen sitting on three eggs. I am pleased to say two hatched. The young are doing great, and have been seen by Messrs. Quinton, Bedwell and Rackham. This pair of birds are in the same room as we live in; fire all day, which, of course, is let out at night. I might say that this hen was building a nest in the bird room before I brought her downstairs. In addition I have 24 pairs, all in cold room at the top of the house, six pairs of which are sitting (with one exception the hens are all 1909 bred). I have made no special effort to get my birds into forward condition, simply feeding them on good Spanish Canary seed, with a little hemp about twice a week; sometimes, giving each bird half a Thin Social biscuit to nibble at, which I find they do freely. The birds I have at present are good class, comprising Norwich Plainheads, Norwich Cinnamons, and one pair of Lancashires; so I do not see why good class birds should not breed as early as "commoners."

GEORGE F. FRANCIS.

A Successful Exhibitor's First Canary.

SIR,—I venture to recount the following experience, which I trust will prove interesting to your numerous readers. "Come in and hear them sing." Such was the invitation that was shouted out by a man at the door of a shop in our town on a Christmas Eve some years ago. I stopped and looked in, thinking that some minstrel troupe had paid us a visit, but instead the room was packed with cages, those small wicker ones, you know; and in the cages were Canaries. But, my eye! what beautiful singing! It captivated me, enchanted me, and with a few dollars "burning a hole" in my pocket, I accepted the invitation, and made up my mind that one of those feathered minstrels was to become my property. I wended by way to the front of the shop where stood a platform, and on the platform a lady, an auctioneer, and his assistant. Now, I had an hour to spare, and I made up my mind that I would wait and procure the bird that was doing this wonderful singing. Ah! there it is again. What beautiful changes! What rolls and sweet bubbling, now rising, then lowering! Then far away, as if the sweet songster were soaring heavonward! Here he is, says the auctioneer, and, asking his assistant to hand him the cage, he held it up. I touched my pocket; the coins I had were hot. Now, he says, this bird is only suitable for a public bar or music-hall, somewhere where there is a noise. You see the cage is marked with three XXX's. I thought to myself—what's good for a public-house is good for me in this transaction. How much?—2s. 6d. to start; 3s., 4s. (my bid), and eventually, to my delight, the wonder was knocked down to me, and home I went with my treasure to show to my beloved wife, and charm her with its song. I procured a nice new cage, and put the darling in the kitchen and waited for him to sing. I waited long and wondered often. He sang alright in that little wicker cage. Why would not he sing in a nice large cage? Ah, what was that he said, I asked—"Sweet?" He is beginning. But with a merry twinkle in her eye she said, "He is no singer." So we covered him up and went to bed. I awoke next morning and went down and uncovered the wonder, thinking that perhap's a night's rest might have inspired him to give us a ditty. He simply looked up at me and said "Sweet." My wife started to get the breakfast, and put the frying pan on with the usual bit of "stubborn"; it started to fizz, when all of once I became conscious of a low, sweet song as of angels in the distance. I looked up. Why, it was the wonder! Ah, now it was my turn. I said to my wife, "He is started now, and he will charm us; but alas! he didn't. He finished with the rasher of bacon, and long days and nights I waited for the song I had heard in the shop. Many a time I had bacon for breakfast on purpose to hear something for my money. And he did give me something. He looked into the pan one morning when it was on the fire, and, seeing the bacon, took pity on me and gave me an egg. My beloved said, "Do cocks lay eggs?" I said, "Perhaps Hartz cocks do; this one has." All this is years ago now, but how can you expect a novice to tell the difference between that beautiful singing machine I heard in the shop and the real thing? But one thing it did for me; it gave me the fever. And now as I look at the cups, medals, etc., that I have won on the show bench, my thoughts go back to that Christmas Eve, when I bought my first Canary. I have had a very pleasant time in the Fancy. I have met men of sterling qualities, fanciers whose sole interest is to elevate and instruct one another, and I trust that I may be spared long years yet to enjoy their company and read and enjoy our good old CAGE BIRDS.

The Standard of Points for Dutch Frills.

SIR,—I see in "Brevities" of the Canary Queries of CAGE BIRDS' issue of March 5, that someone is enquiring for the standard of Dutch Frills. As this bird is not well-known in England, I made inquiries, and enclose the standard as judged in France. This translation has been submitted to, by myself, and approved of by the most prominent exhibitor in France. I hope it may prove useful to your enquirer. Any information re Dutch Frills I shall be pleased to give.

C. I. YOUNG.

POINTS FOR JUDGING DUTCH FRILL CANARIES.

	Points.
SIZE.—As large as possible	10
ATTITUDE.—Elegant, slightly curved (above all, without a humpy appearance), firmly clamped and well elevated on legs ...	10
FEATHERS.—Long, fine, and silky.
1st.—These should be parted down the back, falling symmetrically down the back, called le manteau (the mantle) ...	8
2nd.—Those on the chest, undulating (or wavylike), converging to the centre in the shape of a shell (called the 'craw'—le jabot)	10
3rd.—Those to the right and left, forming two very fine bunches of feathers in the region of the thighbone, well formed and frilled up. These are called fins or nageoires or oriflammes	12
If these last frills exist on one side only, or if the feathers are flowing down, and not, as it were, affording a support for the wings, the bird is not a show bird.
TAIL.—The tail should be long, with a few fine feathers drooping each side of the rump, accompanying the large feathers of the tail; these are called cock-feathers (plumes de coq)	5
WINGS.—Only to cross slightly. Some clubs prefer them to meet like those of a Yorkshire Canary	5
HEAD.—Size in proportion to the body, without any crest, but if the back of head is slightly hooded, as in the case of a Jacobin pigeon, additional points are allowed, but this is not essential	10
LEGS.—Long and supple, without stiffness ...	5
COLOUR.—Usual Canary colours—yellow, buff, or variegated—with bright plumage; not patchy in colour	10
CONDITION.—Vigorous, showing nerve and action	10

How to Cure "Soft" Fresh-caught Linnets.

SIR,—As a constant reader of your most helpful paper, CAGE BIRDS, and as a lover of the Linnet (which I have been for years), I should like to give your readers my method of curing a fresh-caught bird that has fallen soft. It is as follows: One part glycerine and one part honey—half a tea spoonful every second day. Keep the bird in a warm corner. My method of feeding is: Canary, rape and teazle; also once a week I give a few hemp seeds.

Mice and Cats in the Bird-room.

SIR,—Seeing in this week's CAGE BIRDS a method of getting rid of mice in a bird-room, I may say I have proved Mr. Long's statement to be correct. I used to have mice by the score in my bird room. I used to put poison down, but that would not stop their game, so I asked a friend to give me a kitten. It was about seven weeks old then. I took it into my room, found it a small box, and fed it regularly. It will now follow me anywhere. I can put it in the aviary and leave it there as long as I like, and it will not touch a bird. Many a time I have been cleaning them out and have had one get out; the cat would jump, but as he saw it was a bird he would run away. Now he can catch mice as fast as they come. I can safely say that if all fanciers would have a kitten and train it as I have trained mine, it would save them a lot of trouble.

A. SENCH, JUN.

SIR,—Having read during this last week or so in our most useful and up-to-date paper, CAGE BIRDS, the letters appearing under the above heading, and more especially that in last week's issue signed by Mr. A. E. Long, I may say this fancier is a long way from being correct in his statement. I hope he wont be offended by this remark. I have done just as he has said The cat I had was also a tortoiseshell. My wife had her from a kitten. Wife, daughter and myself trained her from the first day we had her to follow us into the bird room. We rubbed her nose along the wires of the cage at first, and when she got as we could leave her in the room, she would lie down on the board which I have for catching any seed that may fall from the cages, and there she would wait for her prey, the mice. She was well fed and well cared for, and was brought up to what I exactly wanted her for—to shift the mice, for at that time I was overrun with them. But after 12 months' thorough training she fairly did me in. I had just bought a first-class Buff Yorkshire hen, paying Mr. Ambler, of Morecambe, £3 for her. I had cause to run over to Birmingham one afternoon, and on my return my wife informed me she heard a scuffle in the bird room shortly after I had gone out, naturally thinking the cat was running some mice; but I am very sorry to say that this cat which had been trusted in the bird room for months past had got the above-mentioned bird through the wires by the tail and had pulled the whole inside out. The reader must now "read between the lines," for I can assure you that cat will not touch another bird or anything else. I may say, in conclusion, don't trust the cats; they appear alright for a time, get the birds into their confidence, as you may call it, and then will watch their opportunity for a rattling tasty bit, which, in my case, was her last. Since then I have tinned all around the skirting board and filled all holes up. Success to CAGE BIRDS.

Proposed New Open Cage Bird Association for Glasgow.

SIR,—A general meeting of the Fancy was held on March 12th in the Good Templars Hall, 122, Ingram Street, Glasgow, to consider the above proposal. About 60 fanciers were present, including Messrs. J. McLay, R. B. Jarvie, A. MacFarlane, M. Craig, R. B. Gibb, A. Malcolmson, A. Sloan, G. Marlin, and J. Smeaton (Musselburgh). Several letters were received from prominent fanciers offering their support. The meeting elected Mr. J. L. Burnett to the chair. A good deal of discussion was entered into, after which Mr. E. Barron moved, and Mr. J. McLeod seconded, that we form an association to carry on the open show lately held by the Glasgow and West of Scotland Bird Club, annual subscription to be 2s. 6d. each person. As there was no amendment the Chairman decided to take a vote, and no vote being recorded against the motion, he declared the association duly formed. The meeting then decided to appoint Mr. E. Bowman secretary pro tem., and instructed him to call a meeting of all fanciers interested for Saturday, March 26th, in the Good Templars Hall, 122, Ingram Street, at 6 p.m. Business: Election of office bearers, fixing date of show, rules, etc. It is earnestly hoped the fanciers of Glasgow and district will band together and support the new association, which in no way will be detrimental to the City of Glasgow O.A. The City Show is recognised as the opening show of the season; therefore it is easily possible for Glasgow to have another show on a date that could be recognised as the closing show of the season. I am sure that should this be done, by altering the classification, and introducing selling stock classes the show would be a source of profit to champions and a great benefit to novice fanciers. I would thank all fanciers, unable to attend this meeting, who are willing to give their support, to let me know before that date, so that I may have a full list of prospective members to put before the meeting when electing office bearers. I would also ask those fanciers who have written offering their support to accept my thanks.

Why do Hens Refuse to Feed their Offspring?

SIR,—Of the many useful tips I have had from CAGE BIRDS in the past, I think H. Williams' answer to his own question will prove fit to rank among the best, and if he will be so kind as to give it, I for one will be very thankful.

J. M. M.

Concerning Mule Breeding.

SIR,—Mules can be bred from Canary hens if paired with Goldfinches, Linnets, Greenfinches or Siskins, and in some cases foreign Finches have been known to breed also with good results. The great majority of these birds will breed with Bullfinch hens, but it is a very rare occurrence for a Bullfinch cock to breed with a hen of any other species; in fact, mostly all Bullfinch hybrids that have been bred have come from hen Bullies. There is a general impression amongst amateur bird fanciers that all mules that are bred from a yellow hen, no matter what the cock is, are yellow mules; but it is more frequently the other way about—either buff or very dark. It is a great deal easier to produce variegated mules from mealy hen Canaries than from yellows; and, of course, light or evenly-marked birds being very scarce, they are much more highly prized than dark ones, as nearly all mules produced are very dark in colour. Light or marked mules are somewhat of a mystery, as a hen Canary has been known to throw clear mules when paired to a Goldie or a Linnet; but when paired again to the same bird not one of the young has proved light. No doubt such cases as these are only too well known to most fanciers. Any hen that can breed a mule, even with variegated feathers, can easily be sold at a good price, but most hybrid breeders are very loth to part with them. Some fanciers are inclined to think that by pairing a Canary cock with a Goldfinch hen they will get light mules, but generally the result is, as usual, dark ones. The best and most useful cages are those fitted with sliding partitions, so that if the birds should be at all quarrelsome they can easily be separated. High perches should always be avoided, especially in the cases of Bullfinch hens, as the birds are very ready to drop their eggs on the bottom of the cage. Mules have been bred from Bullfinch hens paired with Goldfinches, Linnets, and Canaries, but those from the first-named are by far the most thought of, as they are scarce, and are the most beautiful. Nearly all house-moulted Goldfinches or Linnets will pair with Canary hens, but they are sometimes very quarrelsome, but, as I said before, the double breeding cage helps to remedy that, as they don't require to be constantly together. It is advisable in the case of Canary hens paired to any of these Finches to remove the male bird after the hen has laid her eggs, as most Canary hens can bring up their young themselves. Generally, young mules grow much quicker than Canaries. Even at sixteen days old they have been known to leave their nest and they are very quick looking out for feeding for themselves once they have left the nest. Finches are sometimes very slow at bringing up young ones, and it is considered much better to give the eggs to a Canary you can depend on. When selecting muling hens and Finches look out for as large ones as possible, as the big mules are of very much more value than small ones, no matter how beautiful their plumage and markings.

Birds Barred by the Bradford Corporation.

Good News.

SIR,—Respecting the Bradford Corporation and "Bird Breeding Barred," I hear on good authority (per a City Councillor) that the objection is to be removed; therefore, breeders are all right in the houses affected by the notice.

S. DEAN.

SIR,—In my opinion, the Corporation of Bradford have been harsh in issuing the edict they did to their tenants, who have used the attics for keeping cage birds for the purpose of sweetening their lives. I understand that the plea is that neighbours have complained. Well, neighbours, as we all know, complain on the most flimsy pretext. Some folks would complain if their next-door neighbour happened to have an ordinary house fly on the premises. It is said that the birds bring pests to the property. Now, that, in a well-regulated room, is not the case, it being in the interests of the stock to have no vermin, as they make sad havoc among the birds. I have visited bird rooms for thirty years, and have no hesitation in saying that the fancier who has a delight in his feathered family takes exceptional care of the property in every way. The walls I have always found have been protected, and that has saved the cost of re-papering. Care is specially taken to keep out vermin, so that the only thing anyone might complain of is the sweet song of the birds in the early morning, which is much to be preferred to the noise of a harmonium or a piano late in the evening. Let us hope that those hard-working people who have had to remove for an innocent pastime will find more suitable accommodation elsewhere. Generally speaking, empty houses are plentiful. We have seen the day when factors and landlords sat at their ease and waited on tenants; now factors and landlords have to do everything to secure tenants, and are very glad to get those whose rent they can depend upon. The landlord, with all his favoured clauses, has his losses, and these are likely to increase as they become harsh, and unreasonable, as instance the outcome of the officious treatment of the Bradford Corporation.

A FANCIER.

SIR,—I think that I can call myself a novice as I gave up pigeon-keeping last year and started Canary breeding, but with poor results. I had one cock and two hens, but only had the luck to rear four. With three of these I am trying this season, and I have gone as far as my pocket will allow, having got four cocks and six hens, and I have good faith in having a better season. But it is not Canaries altogether that induced me to write; it's the blow they have got in Bradford. I think that it's coming to something when a working fellow is barred from an innocent hobby such as Canary breeding. I myself think it is time for us to ask permission if we can have a walk of a week-end, and to wait for a reply. It puts me in mind of a landlord I used to live under. It's true that he asked our neighbour to go with him to buy some young pigs at a farm. It so happened that the landlord bought four and there were two left, so he tried to persuade our neighbour to buy the other two. The latter remarked that he had nowhere to keep them, so the landlord says: "Put them in your spare room." The tenant replied: "If I do, you will be giving me notice." The landlord then remarked that he could have the privilege to keep anything whatever so long as he didn't keep the rent! If we could only get the same sort of landlords to live under, we could expect an aviary being built for us free of charge, with a pair of Canaries thrown in to make a start with. Before I conclude I must not forget to thank CAGE BIRDS, out of which I keep getting a little more knowledge week by week.

W. HINDLEY.

SIR,—It was May, and I was in the great city of Bradford, with its population of 279,800 people. What a strange place is Bradford! It is unlike other towns, even other towns in the county in which it is situated. What brought me into its midst? It was the breeding season, and hopes were beating high in the breasts of the bird fanciers. Even the little children had smiles on their faces. And why not? Was summer not near at hand, when they would be able to go into the parks and look at the pretty flowers and listen to the songs of birds? I gazed upon this hilly city, with its many stone houses. Why did men live in this place? Was it because they could not get away from it? They had to live, even if their labour enriched the pockets of those who, like red mite, lived upon the living. The latter live in big houses surrounded by beautiful gardens, where birds sing. What of those mortals less favoured by fortune, who live in blocks, and rows of streets of houses, always with the same bare walls to look out upon? And houses in Bradford are very much alike; they are not as you see them in Edinburgh, another city built of stone, but are much of a "muchness." I gazed upon beautiful birds in Bradford. The Canaries were lovely to look upon. In my mind's eye, I can see them now. And now the decree has gone forth that these yellow gems must not be bred in certain parts of Bradford. All I can say is that if the breeding of Canaries is prevented in one part of Bradford, it will only increase it in another part of the city, and I do not speak without knowing what Yorkshiremen are, for in some of their large towns I have been and lived and worked among them. I have lived and slept among birds for years, and have not yet seen anything unhealthy or that is any wise against it if the birds are kept well cleaned out and attended; and all true fanciers see to this. And you can guess that this side of the question will be seen to by a Yorkshireman's better half. Why should men who work hard, very hard, all day be prevented from enjoying such a delightful hobby as the breeding and keeping of cage birds? For are not birds, of all things, the most beautiful of creations? And I know that these men's wives would rather that their husbands followed a hobby like this that keeps them at home and makes them happy, for no one knows what pleasure birds give until they keep them. Many fanciers' wives help them, and do all possible to assist in this pleasant pastime of keeping birds; and this causes their husbands to love them all the more for it. Bradford is connected with another large town, which has twice the population of Bradford, and for miles and miles round very few birds are found except of very common kinds. Then why should these toilers not be allowed to enjoy these pretty feathered creations of Him who made the sun? Will not the song of a pet bird often have the effect of drawing a man nearer to his Maker than the preaching and prating of parsons and parsons' wives—of the latter beware. Don't for anything even take one of these mortals into your bird-room unless you first know that she is a fancier. Strange thoughts come to me as I walk about the streets of Bradford. Surely, man who was compelled to reside in this centre of industry needed something to elevate his mind. I was going to stay in Bradford, but I longed for the open country. I turned my face to the west, and going through Thornton I came to Oxenhope, but noticed not a single bird of importance until I was crossing Stanbury Moor, when I saw the most beautiful and magnificent yellow Wagtail I have yet ever seen. May the birds in Bradford, like its pretty girls, still increase in number, is the wish of

WILLIAM P. BELL.

Does the Roller Canary Need Smartening in Appearance?

SIR,—I have been very interested lately in the suggested new types of Canaries as depicted in CAGE BIRDS, and should like to make a suggestion myself, that is: Cannot the Roller Canary be improved in appearance without spoiling the song? Or will English fanciers always be content to let the Roller be called "washed out" looking in colour? Surely not. As the Border Fancy is given the credit of being the sweetest songster amongst English Canaries, it is the bird to use (to my way of thinking) to improve colour and smartness as well. Some yellow-green Border hens crossed with Roller cocks, and the young paired back to Rollers again, would possibly improve the appearance, and, personally, I don't think it would alter the song. I know the Roller is credited with possessing a different song apparatus to other birds, but I fail to see how any person can by any system of breeding, breed different internal organs into a bird, however he may select his stock birds. If any fancier has bred from a Roller and Border, and then trained the young either by Schoolmaster or organ, would he let us know the result in CAGE BIRDS? That is, did the youngsters equal a pure Roller in song? I should also like the opinion of Roller fanciers in general as to whether my suggestion might be successfully carried out.

The Reconstruction of the Great Harwood and Dis. C.B.S

SIR,—At a special meeting held at Mr. Cottier's, Town Gate, Great Harwood, on Monday, Feb. 8th, a good number of fanciers being present, it was decided to reconstruct the society which, somehow or other, during the last year had almost died away. Mr. J. Wilson presided. After a short discussion the following officers were elected:—President, Dr. J. Cran; vice-presidents, Messrs. T. Noble, J. Bentley, D. Bentley; chairman, Mr. J. Wilson; treasurer, Mr. R. Melling; secretary, Mr. J. Fielding, 14, Church Street, Great Harwood; auditors, Messrs. R. E. Worthington and A. Bentley. The committee is to be composed of the members of the society. We are arranging a very attractive programme for the year, which will include lectures, table shows, washing demonstrations, etc. I should esteem it a pleasure to hear from fanciers wishing to become members, subscriptions 5s. per year.

The Making of Egg-food.

SIR,—In reply to the query of Mr. P. Rafferty, my remarks referred to the hard-boiled egg. As regards Mr. T. Monger, he apparently feels slighted at the contents of my letter, and seems to think it unfair to criticise in the Press. Surely, if one cannot be present that is the only place to do so. As to posing as the champion egg food maker, I cannot very well do that, as the championship has already been won by Mr. T. Monger, who has my hearty congratulations. I cannot even claim to be the originator of this simple but effective method; that honour belonged, I believe, to that sterling fancier, the late Mr. George Barnesly, of Derby, which method appeared in a book of his over twenty years ago, and which I have used ever since. The egg and bread can be incorporated in remarkably quick time, without waste, and without unduly exposing the egg to the air, the only appliances to be kept clean being a fork and glazed pot. Those fanciers who are not too old to learn should try it, and they, too, like myself, would be amused at the so-called modern methods. I do not want to waste space in replying to Mr. Monger's funny remarks and sarcasms, but should Mr. M. be in Oxford at any time I shall be pleased to try and convince him that the simplest method is very often the best. I can forgive his little pleasantries; perhaps I deserve them. Wishing Mr. Monger, and all fanciers in fact, a successful breeding season.

W. J. CLARKE.

The Type of the Lancashire Canary.

SIR,—I quite agree with some of the remarks of your correspondent in last week's CAGE BIRDS re Mr. Adams' Crest-cum-Lancashire. I say it never should have been put in a show cage. He did not breed it, as he told me at Rochdale he bought it for a stock bird, and asked me to go and have a look at it. I told him what I thought about it. He said fanciers told him that Mr. House would put it down, but as he did not, he said he should show it again, for as it had been put up by that gentleman, it would be put up by others. Mr. Garner put it first at Manchester, and I told him it was a great mistake; what he was thinking about beats me, as he knows better. Mr. Compston was there, and kept smiling at me "ramping" about it. "Horse-shoe" says it should not count for points for the L.C. medals. What about others who have been showing for years, before Mr. Adams started to show? He was only doing what others had done for years. He has been very open about it, and he also stated at the last L. and L.A. meeting that he had two sorts of Lancashires to please both sorts of judges; and in one sense I don't blame him. I blame the L. and L.A. and L.C.A. for allowing it to go on for so long. Both societies have the same standard, worked out by Mr. Compston and passed at Oldham years ago by the L. and L.A., but they have not enforced it yet. I hope the L.C.A. will now keep moving. Re "Horse-shoe's" remarks as to my breeding Crests, allow me to tell him they are green, and I don't want any advice in breeding either Crests or Lancashires. If I wanted to put Crest into my Lancashires, I should buy a ready made stock bird or two that had been bred from Crests. There are plenty about. Oh, no, I should not start at the bottom of the ladder, I should start at the top. I must say Lancashires are on the improve, but they want a lot of fining down. Old fanciers used to say a good bird should not show a frill on its breast. I don't know what they would say if they saw some of the show birds of to-day. A Lancashire should be well "wrapped up," no feathers hanging about him as we see them to-day. Let us have the Coppy well packed, all in the front, not spreading straight out, and the body feather nice and soft and plenty of it, laying close to the body. Then we shall very soon have some of the best show birds ever seen. I have learned since writing my last letter that Mr. J. Robson put Mr. Adams down at London. I say, well done, Mr. R.; I give him credit for it. I wish I could say the same of Messrs. House and Garner. As to Mr. Whitehead's letter, I think it would be as well if all Lancashire breeders were to join the L.C.A. and make it the only Lancashire Society, and make the subscription 5s. a year. If they can work so well on 2s. 6d. per year as they have done in the past, with the extra 2s. 6d. per year they would be able to pay part or all of their own judges' fee. Any fanciers who can afford to buy Lancashires can afford to pay the extra 2s. 6d. We pay 5s. per year to the L. and L.F.A., and scarcely ever hear the Lancashires mentioned. It is all Lizards, and nice mess they make of it, for they give patronage to shows like Nottingham and London. At Notts they are officiated upon by a Norwich judge, and are judged any way. I don't say the judges are altogether to blame, but they don't understand Lizards. Take Mr. Dewsnap's birds; for this last few years at Notts Show all put out of the cards, where as at shows in Lancashire they almost always stand in a premier position. I see this year at Notts they are having a new Norwich judge, and I expect he will have to judge Lizards. But he will not judge mine. I shall pair up 12 pairs and shall not show under him. At London the classes are very bad, and do not fill. I see the north country fanciers want a Lizard Society; why don't the L. and L.F.A. give some of their patronage to them and give them a chance? Judging by the numbers of Lizards that have left Glossop, the last few years, there must be a lot of breeders about. I think there is a great future for the Lizard, as the French fanciers seem to be taking them up, as one of our fanciers has just sent a consignment out, and is getting ready to send another lot. All breeders tell me they have had enquiries from France, thanks to CAGE BIRDS. In conclusion, I don't think there is any encouragement to give patronage to London or Notts, for the L. and L.F.A. or L.C.A. Perhaps some breeders or exhibitors will have something to say as to how their patronage should be given to shows with committees that take no interest in the Lancashire and Lizard.

Should Blind Mules Win at Shows?

SIR,—As Mr. J. C. Barnes says he did not detect the mule was blind in one eye, I will say no more about the matter, as it is certainly a good mule, and we know mistakes are sometimes easily made. When visiting shows you will sometimes see the bird disqualified, and perhaps the next show you visit it may be standing 1st or 3rd, as the case may be. Judges' opinions must differ greatly. As for the noms de plume he detests, I shall perhaps meet him if he happens to be judging some of our Northern shows this coming season, and then he shall see and know who I am. He also says I am a disappointed or jealous exhibitor. I wish Mr. Barnes to know that I am neither a disappointed nor yet a jealous exhibitor. I may say that I have exhibited at all our leading shows this season, and can honestly say that I never grumble when the birds lose, although I am more pleased when they win, and I wish to see fair play.

READER.

SIR,—Mr. Barnes apparently has not read my letter in CAGE BIRDS of January 22 re Yarm Show. How could Mr. Houlton give his views to "Tyro" at Stockton Show, which was held two months previous to Yarm Show, when he awarded first prize to the Mule that is deficient in one eye, which was pointed out to him by the Yarm stewards before judging it? As regards Guisborough Show (which I attended), I thought it was a mistake, which is easy to make, as no one is infallible, and the bird is a bit smart keeping the blind optic well to the cage back when you move him. I wish to inform Mr. B. that there is no jealousy about his awards at Guisborough with me, nor am I a disappointed exhibitor, but I do like to see the best birds win, whoever owns them.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

Proposed New Cage Bird Society for Chesterfield & Dis.

SIR,—There will be a meeting on Saturday, March 26th, at 7.30 p.m., Queen's Head Hotel, Gluman Gate, Chesterfield, to consider the starting of a Cage Bird Fanciers' Society for Chesterfield and District. All cage bird fanciers in the district are heartily invited to attend. There is every facility for holding shows and meetings, etc., with the best possible accommodation, as the town has the most important railway connections direct. Let us have a good muster and give it a good start.

SIR,—Having left Mr. Mitchell's answer over till now, I am very pleased to see someone else has taken it in hand. The two letters which are sent by Messrs. W. N. Booth and G. S. Leese are absolutely the truth, and the one signed "One Present" is wrong. "One Present" writes that I, "Nom de Plume," was not present. I can prove that I have never missed a meeting since the society has been formed, and that I, "Nom de Plume," read the letter that was sent by Mr. Mitchell before the meeting started on January 8th. I thank "One Present" for saying that "Nom de Plume" was not present, but I am pleased to say that I was at the meeting and heard all that was said, and was disgusted about it.

How Should Eggs be Kept?

SIR,—In reply to the enquiry of "W. F." as to whether the first three eggs taken from hens should be placed on their small ends or sides, I may state that the plan which I have adopted for many years, and which has always proved successful, is to remove the eggs as laid and place them thin end down on some bran placed in a box that is partitioned into squares, each square being numbered to correspond with the numeral on the breeding cage. The eggs are turned each morning until the hen is set on the evening of the third day.

JOHN B. WATERMAN.

SIR,—A fancier friend, I see, wants to know how best to keep the eggs when taken away from the hen. All my cages are numbered (1 to 15). My egg box has consequently 15 divisions, numbered the same. Fill the box with sawdust to within a half-inch from the top. When egg No. 1 is laid, place it on its side in the division corresponding with the cage number. When egg No. 2 is laid, place it alongside No. 1, but whilst doing so turn No. 1 over on the other side. Thus the eggs only lie a full day on one side. This I find keeps up a movement inside the egg, and does not allow its contents to settle. Once I was unfortunate enough to lose a hen after she had laid two eggs, and by moving them around every day I kept them 11 days before putting them under another hen, and they hatched out the same day as the fresh eggs. May I just add that I am very often in Newcastle, and if Mr. George will leave a message at Bart Hall, I shall at any time be most happy to help him.

The New Society for Choppington and District.

SIR,—When I announced a meeting to be held to form a new society for Choppington and district, I was taken to task for doing so by "Admirer," and my reply was to "Admirer." And I am willing to do so again, providing he discloses his identity. As to Mr. Atkinson's two questions, the proper place for a treasurer is to be at the meetings to collect members' contributions; then perhaps he would have been enlightened on the subject. Now, as to the books; who had the most right to them, when the club was abandoned—the eighteen members (whom I am representing) or the six who decided to form a new club at the old headquarters? I wish Mr. Atkinson to understand that I do not wish to have any more controversy through the Press. If he wants any more information, perhaps the party who has formed the club at the Railway Hotel will give it.

THE CRISIS IN THE AFFAIRS OF THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

SIR,—Since the annual meeting of the Cage Bird Union I have been following very closely the arguments put forth in the many letters which have appeared in your valuable paper, some in its favour and some against. But I would like to point out that valuable time is quickly passing away, and so far as I can learn the C.B.U. is doing nothing, and at the year's end we may only expect a similar state of affairs as at present. Mr. Hadwin's letter in your issue of Feb. 26th, and "Reason's" letter in your issue of March 5th, are alright; but why is something not being done to bring about the state of things advocated before our show arrangements are made? I may say that the Wigan Society think that a Union of Lancashire Societies would work well, and the members would like to support such a scheme. But it would have to be a Union, as I agree that a Union like the C.B.U., whose districts never meet at all in the whole year, and which only requires its representatives to meet at its annual meeting, is no Union at all. W. RIDGE.
Hon. Sec. Wigan and Dis. C.B.S.

SIR,—As one who is keenly interested in the welfare of our hobby, which anyone can see has grown these last few years enormously, I say with every confidence that the very life of the Fancy depends upon a premier organisation controlling the whole of Great Britain. Many thought the Cage Bird Union was likely to be competent to do all this, but alas! for its accident and its present serious conditions. But don't kick it, lads, because it is bad and in bed. Let us first give it a good purgative, feel its pulse, then give it a good strong tonic. Then watch it carefully, and nurse it tenderly until it grows strong. Then you will find out, and be compelled to say that it was good that our organisation was sick unto death, and that we did not kick it out of existence, no, not even with velvet on the toes of our boots to prevent further bruising. We should put our shoulders and hearts in the struggle to keep it alive, and find out the cause of its sickness and banish it for ever. Its uncle, the Yorkshire Union, its other uncles, including the London Federation, and all its other kin, have done thus with an arrangement of wise rules governing the whole family from North to South and from East to West, and it has made us strong, I can tell you, to effect reforms, and it helps to stimulate and educate us. Go on, Mr. Hadwin; you are on the right tack. Branch shops for each county will do very well, but they must be controlled by a headquarters' staff, to prevent each branch being a law unto itself, and ignorant of the other branches' doings. Evil doers would go scot free and flourish like a green bay leaf, for when found out in one county and suspended, for the good of their health they would simply skip over into the next county for a change of air, and go on in the same old sweet way. So let us try our hand at re-construction, and if Manchester air is not food for the headquarters, then move them elsewhere. It is not the town that matters, but the men to manage. And go ahead, without fear or favour, dealing out simple justice and wisdom with success.

W. DOWNING.
Manchester.

SIR,—I was pleased when I opened CAGE BIRDS and found Mr. Hadwin taking Mr. Robinson and myself to task on our opinions of C.B.U. matters. Of course, it is only "difference of opinion," but Mr. Hadwin says his must prevail. He congratulated No. 7 district on its loyalty. But that is only one section; what of all those withdrawals which weaken the Union? Now, we cannot ignore the fact that there is a big split in the ranks which must be healed, or the C.B.U. will soon die a natural death. The position can only be ascertained by moving at meetings of societies the withdrawal from the Union. That was my reason for moving same at Stockport, but a vote was not taken; the feeling seemed to be, "waiting for a lead." I have not moved it at Manchester yet, as I was rather late, and did not wish to curtail an important lecture; however, shall test it at the next meeting, as we must know the position. I thought when I was elected delegate I was in for some work, as at that meeting I received an instruction to bring forward a matter which had been dealt with by the Union, and which should have been settled by them, but they wanted the member to tackle a wealthy railway company. However, after a meeting with the secretary the thing was settled. Then I heard no more of the Union till Pendleton and Salford Show, when I was asked to attend as delegate. I don't know whether there has been a district meeting or not. I have not been notified. Now I contend there is no life in the Cage Bird Union. Witness the delegates' meeting at the Palace. What of the delegates' time and money? Look at the robust, healthy Yorkshire Union. Could not Lancashire do likewise? I see at the great Yorkshire meeting an offer of assistance from the President. Shall we accept? If so, we could have an Executive Council as a court of appeal. I am aware the birth of the Union was Manchester, and know men who gave time and trouble to bring about its success. I wish they had more "fruit" as the result of their labour. I was in at the commencement, but did no actual work. Mr. Hadwin asks whether it would not be better to improve the bad points. Well, I should think it needs rebuilding. Then Mr. Hadwin says he is sure my energy would be better employed rearing the chicken already hatched. Well, it has always been very delicate, and has "gone light," to use a birdy term. However, I wish success to you, Mr. H., in your endeavour to put it on a sound basis; I wish you to understand I have no feeling against the C.B.U., or officers, and I respect Mr. Hadwin's opinion and honesty of purpose.

Cutting Out Round Cage Doors.

SIR,—I notice in CAGE BIRDS of February 26th one of your readers, signing himself "Novice," enquires where he can obtain a cutter for doors of cages (show). If "Novice" will kindly send me 4s. 6d. (the Editor has my address) I can obtain him one to suit his requirements.

D. J. THOMAS.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—I see in your issue of February 26th "Amateur Catcher" asks one of your correspondents, signing himself "Netter," how much netting can be done in one hour by a netter of ordinary ability, ¾in. mesh? I see, too, in the issue of March 12th, two of your correspondents attempt to answer the above. One signing himself A.B., says 70 meshes ¾in. mesh. He can make 1 yard in 3 hours, which represents 3,360 knots, an average of 672 per hour, which is very good work. But your correspondent signing himself "Netter" says it depends at what rate you can tie the knot. Well, we should all know that, but "Netter" says he can tie 1,500 knots per hour. That makes your other correspondent appear very slow, but I think "Netter" will, when giving the matter a second thought, admit he has made a mistake, for if he is a netter he must know that it is impossible for anyone to tie 1,500 knots ¾in. mesh per hour by hand. Knowing that a bit of net at times is very useful in the bird-room or places of ventilation to prevent the escape of birds, if a little information be of any use, I would be pleased to give it for a fancier's own use, either square or diamond mesh.

Proposed New Cage Bird Club for Horwich.

SIR,—A word in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS on behalf of a club for Horwich, as there are many people in that district of Bolton who take a great interest in the hobby, I feel sure would encourage them to aim at something further than simply feeding and breeding young birds, knowing nothing of either the quality or value of same. There are several who have joined the Bolton clubs, and these, I feel sure, would join hands to make it a success.

A Twenty-three-year-old Parrot Lays Eggs.

SIR,—In regard to the above, it may interest Mr. Geo. Clark if I state that I knew a gamekeeper who had a Grey Parrot that was nearly 70 years old, I believe, when it laid an egg. I saw this bird some time before it died, when it was in splendid condition. I was sitting by its cage trying to get a few words from it, but my being a stranger she would not talk. A half-grown cat happened to be on the floor. This I picked up, when the Parrot shouted out, "Oh, that's only the old cat." The cat while making a fuss of me got too near the Parrot's cage, when in a tick the Parrot had fastened pussy in a very tender part by her bill, and those who, like myself, have handled a Parrot against its wish, know only too well what it can do with its beak.

THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

The following is the voting on the nomination papers for the post of president and secretary:—President: Messrs. S. Hadwin, 7 votes; W. A. Bladon, 6; R. Rhodes, 3; and seven others one each. Secretary: Messrs. J. Raynes, 13 votes; D. A. S. Longden, 6; and five others one each. Twenty-three papers were returned.—E. COMYNS-LEWER.

BARRINGTON, &c. (Soc. Club) C.B.S

A very large number of the members met at headquarters on Mar. 13, when we had Mr. Alfred Grey, of Morpeth, a successful exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead, amongst us. He has kindly consented to be one of our vice-presidents, and also a member, and has also generously promised to give us a lecture on his favourite variety; date later. A general discussion followed, when all present expressed their views on the new society just formed.—The Fancy is booming at Choppington, as we have now upwards of sixty members, and they are still coming in. We have engaged Mr. A. Brown (Gateshead) to judge our annual show on the 24th December, and this will be his fourth year in succession at Choppington, which speaks well of the confidence placed in him. We have engaged Mr. Wilson (Bedlington) to judge our next feather show on June 25th. Will anyone in the district wishing to join please communicate with me? Our next meeting will be on March 26th, at 7 p.m.—W. WOOLLETT, sec., Office Row, Barrington, Choppington.

TONG AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

A "smoker" was held at headquarters on March 8th, Mr. L. Hodgson in the chair. The following artistes kindly volunteered their services, and they gave us a capital entertainment: Mr. F. Wilson (lady impersonator), Mr. O. Atkinson (tenor), Mr. Haley (bass), and Mr. Siddle (tenor), while Mr. C. H. Haley proved a very capable accompanist. During the evening Mr. Hodgson called on Mr. Towers to present medals and specials to the successful exhibitors who had gained most points for 1909 and 1910. The successful members were:—Mr. A. Gledhill, 1st, medal (gold); Mr. L. Hodgson, 2nd; Mr. F. Worsman 3rd. Messrs. H. H Clarke, H. Shaw, O. Atkinson, and W. Walker won specials for runners up. Mr. L. Hodgson won Mr. Ramsden's cruet for best bird fed on his colour food. Mr. F. Worsman won special for most 4th prize birds, and Mr. J. E. Hudson silver medal for gaining most members. I was re-elected secretary for the third year in succession, and shall be pleased to hear from fanciers wishing to join. Subscription, 3s. per annum.—J. SMITH, sec.

EALING AND HANWELL F.A.

Despite the inclement weather a very good number turned up at the Hanwell Public Library on Mar. 9th, to hear Mr. Allen Silver, a well-known naturalist and authority, lecture upon wild and cage birds. This was the 3rd of the series of lectures arranged to be given by experts during the commencement of this season, and the society have every reason to be gratified with the quality of the lectures given, each one seeming to outdo the other in interest and in the appreciation shown by members. From the manner in which the lecturer treated his subject, it was evident he was a lover of nature for its own sake, as well as a student of wild birds, and his vivid description of their habits and customs, their notes, their calls, their colour and markings, etc., would have been highly appreciated by nature lovers quite outside the ranks of the Fancy. The beautiful singing of birds had a beneficial effect on man, and the bird lover had the same and as much experience of pleasure in the possession of a good bird, as, say, the gardener in the possession of a beautiful plant. Referring to the keeping of birds as pets, and in cages, the chief thing, he said, was to pay proper attention to their food. Nowadays there was no excuse for ignorance in this respect, as there were plenty of books and publications from which to get information. The fads of feeding (which were very numerous) were the cause of more ailments and deaths than people were aware of. There was nothing like the proper natural food, and given plenty of room in the cage, proper feeding, with cleanliness, birds could be kept in cages for years with their plumage as good as ever. The lecturer described in detail the various kinds of British and Foreign birds, with their distinctive markings and characteristics. He was inclined to decry colour feeding, but said that no definite experiments had yet been carried out, in order to prove whether it had a detrimental effect upon the constitution of a bird. The chair was very ably filled by Mr. Robson, and a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded the lecturer.—J. F. KENDALL, hon. asst. sec. and treas.

DOUGLAS & ISLE-OF-MAN C.B.S

At a meeting held Mar. 7, it was proposed, seconded, and carried that notice be sent to the Fancy Press, CAGE BIRDS, stating that Mr. E. Gale, whose exhibit was disqualified at the recent Crystal Palace show, is not a member of this society.—J. TURNER, hon. sec.

BROXBURN AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held on March 10th, Mr. J. McNamee presiding. In the absence of the secretary, Mr. Sharp took charge of the books. It was unanimously agreed to appoint the following judges for our show on December 17th:—Mr. Menzies (Edinburgh) for Scotch Fancies; Mr. Hamilton (Eskbank) for Borders; and Messrs. Bald (Bathgate) and Arrighi (Edinburgh) for British birds. It was agreed to leave over the election of a Norwich judge until next meeting on Mar. 24th.—T. SHARP.

ORMSKIRK AND DIS. C.B.S.

Third annual meeting held March 7th at headquarters, Buck I'th' Vine Hotel, Mr. E. A. Walker presiding over a good muster of fanciers. Office-bearers for coming year were elected as follows:—President, the Hon. A. Stanley, M.P.; chairman, Mr. E. A. Walker; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Lewis; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Moss; hon. secretary, Mr. T. H. Tilleu; hon. auditors, Messrs. P. Mawdsley and P. Wilkinson; General Committee, whole of the members. A balance of nearly £7 to the credit of the Society was considered very satisfactory. Saturdays, July 9th and November 26th, were decided upon for the first feather and old bird shows respectively, the Chairman kindly promising a silver medal for each show for competition amongst members who have not previously won two first prizes. The idea of providing cups (as championship prizes) for the Canary and British sections was deferred for further consideration. Rules were revised and slight alterations made governing competitions. Mr. R. Hunter was accorded a vote of thanks for his services as judge at the pair show. Nomination of judges and votes of thanks closed a rather prolonged meetiug.—T. H. TIPPEN, Hon. Sec.

STRATFORD & EAST LONDON F.S.

At a meeting held at the Workman's Hall, Romford Road Stratford, E., on March 10th, several alterations of show rules were made. The fixtures and lecture dates for 1910 were fixed. An evening show of cage birds and pigeons will be held on July 11th, entrance fee 3d., same to go towards expenses of show; no prize-money, but illuminated prize cards provided. Admission will be free from 8 to 10 p.m., and visitors are cordially invited; 23rd annual young stock show for all sections, October 29th; 23rd annual show, all sections, Dec. 10th, to be held in conjunction with the Ilford F. and F.S., as per agreement. Lectures are fixed for September 8th and December 8th, to which visitors are cordially invited. During the evening Mr. A. Sears kindly offered a rose bowl for competition at the annual show. The hon. secretary will be pleased to hear from any who would like to become members of this society, which was founded in 1888. The society owns its own pens and staging, eleven handsome challenge cups, and a die from which its points, etc., medals are struck. Membership is open to the United Kingdom, subscription 2s. 6d. per year, with 1s. entrance fee.—W. MAXEY and C. A. PEACOCK, Secs.

GRAVESEND AND DIS. F.S.

Annual meeting held at the Anglo-Saxon Hall on March 1st, Mr. A. H. Terry occupying the chair, supported by a large number of the members. A review of the past year's work was given by the secretary, and the society are hoping to make the forthcoming season a more successful one still. A report of the open show was given, and though this fixture did not prove quite so gratifying as an open show should do, still, when taking into consideration the number of shows being held and the keen competition in the Fancy, the Society are to be congratulated that the result was no worse. With the addition of a few more members, and the energy which is being shown, it is hoped the forthcoming season will prove somewhat more pleasing. The election of officers and committee took place, these being as follows:—Mr. Gates, chairman; Mr. Boorman, vice-chairman; Mr. Lambert, treasurer; Mr. Lewis, financial secretary; Mr. Fox, secretary; committee, Messrs. Holland, A. H. Terry, R. Terry, G. H. Penterick, Willis, Caine, Deare, Johnson, Ibbotson, Simmonds, and Houlton. Several new ideas for the society's benefit were discussed. With votes of thanks to the retiring offices the meeting closed.—E. R. Fox, hon. sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

Annual dinner, social, and presentation of prizes, held on March 9th, at the Royal Court Hotel, Queen Square, Liverpool. The president, J. Walker, Esq., presided over a good gathering of nearly seventy fanciers, their friends and wives. After full justice had been done to a well served repast, and the tables cleared, a start was made with the business. The pianist, Miss Isabel Guilbert, opened with pianoforte solo, and afterwards took us to the sunny land of Italy with "Il Baccio." Mr. O'Brien anticipated the moulting season when he sang "The Harvest Moon is Shining," and Teddy Ashton set the pulses beating with "The Galloping Major." Messrs. Brown and Bennet told the "tale" very humourously of "Rachel from Brownlow Hill" and "The Lodger that paid the Rent." Dick Turpin and Jack Sheppard were easily called to mind when Mr. Clark Davies sang "The Jolly Old Coaching Days." Mr. H. A. Nimmo was "all there" in sentiment and song when he reminded us of the "Happy Moments we were having." Mr. Jake Graham sang with good effect that pathetic song "I loved her ever since she was a baby," and Miss Guilbert seemed quite heartless when she scornfully sang the refrain that she would not marry him at any price. She did not seem to be the same girl who sang at a previous social "Love me and the world is mine." Mr. F. Sutton was extra good in "All 'Day and Martin's," and he could not accept even an invitation to Heaven on account of his "trousers." The toast list included the "King," by the President; "Green Canary Association," Mr. J. H. Isaac; "Kindred Societies," Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, reply Mr. W. Hales; the "Visitors," Mr. Geo. Green, reply Mr. H. McMurtry; "The President," Mr. V. H. Deacon. The secretary gave a brief sketch of the past season's working, and the prospects of the society for the coming year. During the evening the presentation of the season's specials were made. The President made a few neatly worded remarks to each winner, and Mrs. Walker graciously handed out the prizes, and by doing so very much enhanced their value. The prizes were won as follows:—Yorkshire Green champion cup, T. Rowlands; gold medal, P. Clayton; cash specials: T. Rowlands 15s., P. Clayton 12s. 6d., R. Atherton 8s. 6d., J. Gore 6s., T. Wardale 4s.; novices' cup: W. C. Robinson; gold medal, J. Abbot; cash specials: W. C. Robinson 15s., J. Abbot 12s. 6d., W. Simpson 8s. 6d., S. Dean 6s., G. Western 4s. Norwich Green champion cup, V. H. Deacon; gold medal, T. Harrison; cash specials: V. H. Deacon 15s., T. Harrison 12s. 6d., J. Walker 8s. 6d., F. J. Hawkes 5s., J. Lawson 4s.; novice cup, W. Murray; gold medal, Dr. Martin; cash specials: W. Murray 15s., Dr. Martin 12s. 6d., R. Brotherton 8s. 6d., A. McMillan 5s., J. Peake 4s. Novice showing at most shows, W. C. Robinson, 20s., who did not miss a show during the whole season. Amongst those present we noticed Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Deacon, Mr. and Mrs. Nimmo, Mr. and Mrs. Handley, Mr. and Mrs. Slater, Mr. and Mrs. Amos, Mr. and Mrs. Rowlands, Mr. and Mrs. McMurtry, Miss Harding, and Mrs. Mapplin, Messrs. GRANTHAM C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held at headquarters March 9th, Mr. W. Ratcliffe presiding over a good attendance. It was decided to hold the First Feather Show in June, actual date to be fixed later. Mr. Parsons gave a few words on how he dealt with mice in his bird-room, which were thoroughly enjoyed and received with roars of laughter. Mr. Fred Lockton gave a paper on the "Preparation of Breeding Stock." His remarks contained many items of great interest. Great activity prevailed among members, many questions being asked and answered. An important suggestion will be brought forward at the next meeting, when it is hoped all members will make a special effort to attend. A hearty vote of thanks brought a very enjoyable meeting to a close. —W. E. ALLEN, hon. sec.

YORKSHIRE CANARY, ETC., SOCIETY OF IRELAND.

Committee meeting held on March 10th, Mr. J. P. Rooney in the chair. Present, Messrs. Sheridan, Callaghan, J. Lynch, Jas. Lynch, Birse, Stewart, Halley, Fry, and the hon. sec. Correspondence having been read, the election of chairman for the season 1910-11 took place, Mr. F. R. Fry being unanimously elected chairman; he thanked the Council in a pretty little speech for doing him the honour of electing him the second year. Mr. C. Halley was elected vice-chairman. The propositions of Messrs. Mulligan and Devins, held over from general meeting, were then gone into, and it was proposed and carried that "any club having society patronage to charge only 1s. 6d. per cage for Yorkshire classes." The second proposition then came forward for discussion, re full prize money on eight birds and over, same being carried with a slight amendment, viz., half prize money on four and upwards; less than four one prize, at the discretion of the judge. With reference to the third proposition, re nominating six birds per cup. After careful consideration of the matter, the Council agreed that the rule governing cups could not be altered. Fourteen new members' names were brought forward for election, and passed, viz., Messrs. P. Cahill, F. Harrop, J. Ill. Morris, N. Drury, English, Parsons, F. Stitzel, Palmer, M'Kenzie, Keeley, Nevin, Thomas, Patterson, and Kohler. It was decided to have a lecture the second Monday after Easter.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

On March 7th the annual meeting—adjourned from last month—was held at 6, The Broadway. The chairman, Mr. W. H. Stoakley, presided over a very fine attendance, including a good proportion of the fair sex. After the usual routine business, two new members were elected and one nomination made. Report and balance-sheet were read. Referring to the membership, the report stated that owing to various reasons—in many cases to removal—the society had lost 14 members, but there had been 32 fresh members, making a net gain of 18 for the year. The report concluded with the hope that the membership of the society would shortly reach 100. The general account showed a balance of £12 16s. 1d. The balance-sheet showed a profit of £2 11s. 7d. on the three shows held during year. In moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, the Chairman said they might search the London district round—and indeed the country—and hardly find another society in such a splendid position, both as regarded its finances and membership. The rules were revised. Such rules of the London Federation as were necessary were embodied, but very little other alteration was made. The election of officers was the next business, all the old officers and committee being re-elected, with the exception of Councillor C. How, who was elected a vice-president for the first time. President, Mr. F. Piper; vice-presidents, Councillor C. How, Dr. G. Walker, Messrs. E. J. Lamb and G. J. Warley; chairman, Mr. W. H. Stoakley; committee, Messrs. J. Carson, E. W. Dell, A. H. Dyke, F. P. Found, G. Griffiths, P. Rorke, and E. J. Whittome; secretary, Mr. H. Smith. In moving the re-election of the secretary, the Chairman said Mr. Smith seemed to devote himself so entirely to the interests of the society that he was at a loss to know how he managed to attend to his other business. Mr. Smith was re-elected by acclamation, as was also Mr. Piper, the president, and Mr. Stoakley, the chairman. A long discussion with reference to the Cage Bird Union took place, and several knotty points were debated. In the end it was decided that the matter be adjourned for the present. It was decided to hold the annual young bird show on July 4th, and that Messrs. Robson and Mason, if possible, be secured as judges for the annual general show, to be held in November. Arrangements were made to make forthcoming meetings as attractive as possible to the members by means of lectures and competitions. A discussion took place as to the provision of challenge trophies either in the shape of a cup or a shield, but the meeting rejected the proposals summarily. A vote of thanks to the chairman for his services during the past year closed the meeting.

BOURNEMOUTH AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting held at the Quadrant, March 10th, 18 members being present. Mr. G. Gerrey occupied the chair. The Hon. Secretary read from "Cage Birds" the report relating to the fund being raised to defend the British Bird Fancy, explaining that Mr. Crabb, the treasurer, was their president during the five years he held office as hon. sec. to the London and Provincial O.S., so that he could personally assure them that the amount collected would be utilised to the best advantage. He appealed to those present to voluntarily contribute their mites, with the result that 6s. was subscribed. The Chairman then asked the hon. sec. to introduce the subject for which they had met for discussion, viz., "British Birds." The Secretary had extracted some useful matter from "Cage Birds" on the Bullfinch, which started the ball rolling. Mr. Arnold next gave his experience of 25 years on the Goldfinch, some very useful facts being disclosed. Mr. Cook, who had brought a Greenfinch in a show cage, asked the members to give their opinion on the bird, which led to some very humorous exchanges. A very pleasant and profitable evening closed with a voto of thanks to the chairman.—W. O. BROOKE, Hon. Sec.

WOOD GREEN AND DIS. F. & F.A

First annual meeting held in the adult school hall, Brook Road, Wood Green, on March 8th. The muster of members present, and their keen interest in the affairs of the Association, were very gratifying. The Hon. Secretary (Mr. Callegari) gave a very full report of the year's work, which showed good progress. The balance-sheet submitted with a credit balance of £6 4s. 5d., was adopted, with hearty applause. A few slight alterations of the rules, proposed by the committee, were adopted. It was agreed that as our headquarters had become too small for our meetings, same be transferred to the adult school hall, Brook Road. Officers for the coming year were elected, viz.:—Mr. C. T. Wilson, chairman; Mr. T. Hudson, vice-chairman; Mr. Wm. G. Bruce, hon. secretary; Mr. T. Benyon, assistant hon. secretary; and Messrs. Penney, Callegari, Hudson, Betts, Simmons, Heinze, Ayling, Gibson, Harris, Bygrave, Pledger, A. Wilson, Ward, Grimwood, Brodie, Plumb, Hurrill and Churchman as committee. Hearty votes of thanks to the retiring hon. secretary, chairman, and committee brought a very successful meeting to a close. The membership now numbers close on 80, and if any fanciers in this district would care to join, will they kindly communicate with the undersigned?—WM. BRUCE, Hon. Sec., 10, Waterville Road, Lordship Lane, Tottenham, N.

HARROGATE C.B.S.

Annual meeting held at King's Cafe on March 8th. Prior to the meeting the members had tea, and afterwards Mr. H. Milling, J.P., presided. Letters of regret at inability to be present were received from the Hon. E. Wood, M.P., the Mayor (Captain Boyd-Carpenter), and Mr. T. Ogden. Mr. G. H. Barnwell (hon. secretary) presented the report. The balance-sheet, presented by Mr. Barnwell, showed cash and stock in hand to the value of over £10. The reports were adopted. Mr. H. Milling, J.P., was re-elected president; the vice-presidents were re-elected with the addition of the Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Case; Mr. G. H. Barnwell was re-elected hon. secretary and treasurer, and the committee were also re-elected. Mr. D. Duncan and Mr. J. Lealman were elected auditors. Mr. Barnwell was heartily thanked for his services, on the motion of Mr. D. Duncan, seconded by Mr. C. Foster. The President promised a special prize for the next open show if their membership was increased to 50. The following special prizes were awarded by the club: Most points in Yorkshire Canary section during the season, 1, salad bowl, Mr. T. Head; 2, egg and toast rack, Mr. G. Gill; 3, butter cooler, Mr. G. Ireland; and novice Yorkshire section, biscuit-barrel, Mr. C. Foster; Norwich section, biscuit-barrel, Mr. G. H. Barnwell. The proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the President.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.S.

A lecture was delivered by Mr. J. W. Bruce, of Coldstream, on the Bullfinch, the Corn Bunting, and the Thrush, on March 5th, before a large attendance of members. Mr. Stenhouse (president) introduced the speaker. In opening his lecture, Mr. Bruce said this was his first attempt on this subject. He also referred to the prosperity of the society, and to the society's last open show. He congratulated the members upon having such a grand show, and also upon the way everything was conducted. The Bullfinch, said the lecturer, was a most difficult bird to put on seed when first caught. Also it was not easy to obtain a good specimen. A wild-caught Corn Bunting was not advisable to put on the bench. He was of the opinion it was best to hand-rear them if possible, but they very often got too steady. He then referred to the Thrush as being one of the easiest to keep, and also to study; but a good one was hard to get. His Thrush, he said, got four eggs a week and a dog cake to keep it in condition. A large number of good birds were neglected in the summer season, he said; this was a mistake, as birds should be kept the same as in the show season. A number of questions were asked of Mr. Bruce, which he answered to everyone's satisfaction. The meeting closed with songs from various members. Mr. Bruce, the Chairman, and Mr. J. Chamers responded, which brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.—JOHN FORD, secretary.

DUNFERMLINE & W. OF FIFE O.S.

A few members, along with some friends, met in in a social capacity on March 12th. The supper, which was provided in the City Arms Hotel, was an excellent spread. Lord Bruce, of Broomhall, occupied the chair, supported by Mr. J. Templeman and Mr. J. Hutton. During the evening the following gentlemen kindly took part in the programme:—Lord Bruce, Messrs. E. Pryde, W. Brown, and A. Thomson (of Thomson and Dudgeon). A most interesting part of the programme was where Mr. John Templeman, who has for two years acted as hon. secretary to the society, was made the recipient of a handsome marble clock. The presentation was made by Lord Bruce. Mr. Templeman suitably replied. The following toasts were afterwards proposed:—"The King and Queen," by Lord Bruce; "Army and Navy and Reserve Forces," by Mr. W. Brown; "The Success of the Society," by Mr. J. Young. It is about 50 years since the society held their first show. At that time the prize-money was 10d., 5d., and a card; also when a judge came from a distance he was allowed 9d. for his breakfast, and two of the committee went to see he got no more. "The Health of the Patrons" (among whom the Carnegie Trust figures prominently) was proposed by Mr. J. Hutton. Lord Bruce, chairman of the society, is a member of the Carnegie Trust. "The Provost and Magistrates" was proposed by Mr. P. Dudgeon. Mr. Dickson kindly presided at the piano, and phonograph selections were rendered by Mr. Buchanan. A short speech by Lord Bruce and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought a very happy gathering to a close.—JOHN BUCHANAN.

LONGTON C.B.S.

During the holding of the show held on March 1st, a well-attended meeting of members was held, Mr. J. Davies presiding. Decided, to hold annual show, subject to sanction of the Cage Bird Union, on October 8th. Mr. Roe, it was stated, had consented to judge. Six new members were elected.—E. TAMS.

DYSART C.B.S.

Meeting held in Victoria Bar rooms on March 12th. The following judges were appointed to judge our annual show on Oct. 29th, viz.:—For Scotch Fancy, Mr. C. Berwick (St. Andrews); for Border Fancy, Mr. J. Thompson (Newton Grange); for Norwich and Crests, Mr. J. Ferguson (Glasgow); and for British and Foreign birds, Mr. A. W. Watson (Edinburgh). It was also decided to hold a First Feather show on 2nd July, confined to members.—JOHN S. HARRIS, hon. sec.

SHETTLESTON & DISTRICT C.B.S.

Second annual meeting held on 12th March in Houston's Restaurant. The secretary read the balance sheet for 1909, which was passed. The office-bearers were elected:—Mr. A. Marr, president; Mr. R. Summer, vice-president; A. Berry, 36, Balgair Terrace, Shettleston, secretary and treasurer; committee, Messrs Devlyn, Hendrie, Mackay, Simple, Duncan, Lambert, Stewart, Rennie, and Page. It was agreed that we get three silver cups to be competed for at our next show, for the best young birds bred by members; gold and silver medals for the runners up. Our next meeting is to be held on April 9th. Fanciers in the district wishing to compete must join at an early date; full particulars can be had from me.—ANDREW BERRY, Sec.

HAMILTON (Cadzow Oaks) O.S.

Meeting held in the Lesser Town Hall, on 5th March, Mr. W. Hamilton, president, in the chair. The balance sheet, which showed a balance of over £4, was read and adopted unanimously. This was considered very satisfactory in face of the disastrous result of our open members' show last Christmas Day. The open show date was fixed for Nov. 12th, if the Glasgow and West of Scotland Club are not holding an open show on that date. On the recommendation of the committee it was agreed to hold four monthly table shows (First Feather) for members in May, June, July, and August. Mr. Cant's medals were allotted to these, and will be given as follows:—To the member gaining most points over the whole four shows, gold medal, second most points, silver medal with gold centre; third most points, silver medal; fourth most points, silver medal. It is hoped a few more specials will be obtained, in which case they will be allotted up to the seventh most points, and if in sufficient numbers to each individual show. If any party member, or otherwise, feels disposed to help the society along, the secretary will be very pleased to hear from him. The classification and rules for these shows were next drawn up, and the secretary intimated that he would furnish each of our fifty members with a copy of same. Any fanciers who desires one will be supplied on application, and it is hoped that as many as possible will apply, and also join the society; our membership is open to the United Kingdom. Mr. W. Shearer, sen., proposed and Mr. H. Forrest seconded, the tabling of a motion for next meeting as follows:—"Appoint two neutral judges from outside Hamilton to judge these young bird shows; judges' railway expenses to be paid from club funds." The President intimated that in future our monthly meetings would commence at 7.30 p.m. prompt, and hoped members would remember this and endeavour to be present in time.—A. CANT, Hon. Sec.

The Shows.

LEICESTER (Hand-in-Hand) C.B.S.

Successful table show of British, held at White Swan, Market Place, Mar. 1st. Judge, Mr. T. Ride. This show was highly satisfactory, considering that of late years members have sadly neglected this section.

BULLFINCH, ETC. (10): 1, 3, Orme; 2, Pole; vhc, hc, Whelband and Tomlinson; c, Kilsby. BRIT. HEN (9): 1, Gamble; 2, Sarson; 3, hc, Kilshy; vhc, Chambers and Son; c, Sherriff, junr.—J. E. WOOD, sec.

POPLAR C.B.S.

The annual pair show was held at the Club House on February 25th. The quality and entries both were in excess of last year. The Yorkshires and Norwich were exceedingly good, birds of good type and quality being shown in each, whilst the Muling pairs were very interesting. Mr. C. A. House judged.

NOR.: 1, Cowles; 2, vhc, Francis; 3, Barber. 2:1, Bristow; 2, Cowles; 3, Thomasson; vhc, hc, Francis. YORKS.: 1, Wyatt; 2, 3, hc, Plumb; vhc, Stockwell; c, Spink. 5: 1, Wyntt; 2, 3, Spink. MULING, GOLDIE-CANARY: 1, Braithwaite; 2, Heavens; 3, Thomasson; vhc, Pine; hc, Boyson. BULLIE-CAN.: 1, Barber. LINNET-CAN.: 1, Boyson. GREENIE-CAN.: 1, Barber.

BARTON C. AND B.B.A.

A very successful table show of pairs was held at headquarters' large club room, Red Lion Hotel, on March 2nd. Competition was keen in Yorkshires, several good pairs being staged, but slow in Norwich. Mr. G. T. Beach judged, and gave every satisfaction. Five new members were elected, some being successful at the table show. At next meeting, April 6th, there will be a table show of pairs for Mule and Hybrid breeding. Mr. Hutchinson has kindly replaced the medal for most points gained by a member throughout the year (which was won last year by Mr. G. T. Beach). We have fixed our first feather show for June 11th, and we hope to have Mr. Calam (Hull) to judge.

NOR.: 1, Dunn, nice and evenly matched, easy win; 2, Small, fine birds. YORKS.: 1, hc, Cox, pair very fine, typical birds; 2, Dent, also very nice; 3, c, Small; vhc, Dunn.—E. C. DUNN, Sec.

COVENTRY O.S.

Table show, held at last meeting at headquarters, and was a successful one. The class for Plainhead Norwich was very strong, some very good birds being exhibited. Mr. Corrall took 1st; Mr. Judd 2nd and c; Messrs. Butler and Waring 3; Mr. G. Lawrence vhc; and Mr. A. J. Lucas hc. The class for A.O.V. Canary was weak, there being only two entries, Mr. G. Peters taking 1st with a nice pair of Cinnamons. Mr. T. Gilhert officiated as judge to the entire satisfaction of the members. He afterwards explained how and why the points of the winners were obtained; which was greatly appreciated by all present. We have decided to have some attractive feature on each of our club nights during the season, besides the ordinary business. Next meeting March 16th: table show for pairs, for mule and hybrid breeding; Mr. Gilhert having kindly promised to again act as judge. On April 6th we hope to have an egg-food making competition.—J. SHADDOCK, hon. sec.

GLASGOW (West End) C.B.C.

Usual monthly meeting and show of British birds held in Clarendon Hall, St. George's Cross, on 11th March, Mr. A. Miller presiding over a good attendance. The following gentlemen were proposed for membership, viz.:—Messrs. G. Stewart, G. Dunlop, D. Graham, D. Taylor, P. Hughes, T. Sheridan, J. C. Andrews, R. Cormack, J. Bryans, and A. Pryde. The show of British birds is the first table show this new club has had since its formation, and office-bearers and members are to be congratulated on this their first turn-out. There was a total of 34 entries. All the birds were of grand quality, good specimens being staged. Mr. J. Muir judged, and gave entire satisfaction.

CITY & SUBURBAN A.C.B.

At the annual spring show of British and Foreign birds, held March 12th, the City and Suburban Society had a very good entry of 137 exhibits—two under last year's total—and these were splendidly staged at headquarters (the "Church Institute," Marylebone, W.), under the supervision of Mr. V. Wynn, the hard-working and deservedly popular secretary, who received excellent assistance from Messrs. E. C. Offord, W. Shepherd, and R. Stevens, these good fanciers carrying out the duties of stewards, etc., in most workmanlike style. Mrs. Wyse and Miss R. Shephard had charge of the "refreshment tent," and scored a great success. Unfortunately the elements were unpropitious, and kept the attendance down, though a fair number of visitors defied the rain. For the "Marley" cup, most points (63) were scored by Mrs. G. E. Weston, while Mr. C. Botting headed the list for the cup given by Mrs. Weston. The special for best bird shown by a first-year member went to Mr. W. Clark; that for best foreign to Mr. W. Shepherd. The display of birds was really first-class, many outstanding specimens being benched by various members. The judge was Mr. C. Prior.

GOLDFINCH (10): 1, two spls, spl best lady's bird, Mrs. G. E. Weston; 2, F. Curry, fine type of bird, lovely quality, good blaze of nice colour, well tanned and marked, splendidly staged; 3, C. Botting, very large blaze, clean cut, not quite solid in colour at top, fine tan and buttons, very shapely and stylish; vhc, spl, W. Francis, good, smart Finch; hc, G. T. Pile; c, P. Taviner. DITTO (non-cage-moulted) (5): 1, spl, Mrs. Weston, a Siberian; 2, G. R. Elgar, really promising Finch, in forward condition, good colour and polish, nice blaze; 3, H. S. Grahame, loses a trifle in blaze, good bird at other points; vhc, spl, W. Vale; hc, W. W. Elgar. BULLFINCH (6): 1, Taviner, bonny house-moulted bird, very thick-set, grand head and chest, fine, even colour, wins, needs legs scaling; 2, Francis, also a grand h.m. bird, fine shape and style, lovely colour, lacks the weight of winner; 3, Mrs. Weston, field-moulted; vhc, hc, Thrower, two nice ones; c, Vale. LINNET (7): 1, vhc, Pile, two good ones, leader very sound, nutty colour, well laced all over, stands grandly, nice, big, showy bird; 2, Botting, another smart Linnet, close on winner's heels, good size and style, sound as a bell in colour, excellent pencilling; 3, Francis, good bodied, stylish bird, nice tone of colour, very well mkd.; hc, Wyse; c, Offord. DITTO (non-cage-moulted) (13): 1, spl, Mrs. Weston; 2, Newley, nice sized, very shapely bird, grand head and chest, remarkably steady and showy, which, maybe, got it its place, we rather preferred, 3, Miss R. Shephard, grand big, cone-shaped Linnet, beautifully rich and sound in colour, carries a fine polish and plenty of pencilling, should moult a good one; vhc, Pile, another splendid Linnet; hc, Botting, very large, well mkd. and coloured; c, Grahame; a hot class. GREENFINCH (8): 1, spl, Mrs. Weston; 2, vhc, Botting leader a bird of tremendous size, lovely shape, nice, sound col., bit lacking in polish; 3, Pile, well-built, grand shaped Greenie, fine col. and bloom; hc, W. Elgar; c, Clark. DITTO (non-cage-moulted) (6): 1, Grahame, beautiful tone of col., good size and style, will be a grand one if it fills up in neck; 2, Francis, trifle smaller, rare rich, sound col., very good shape; 3, c, Botting, bonny bird, very thick-set and bold, fine col., few feathers broken in tail, unfortunately; vhc, Pile; hc, Offord. SISKIN (6): 1, spl, Mrs. Weston, field-plumage; 2, Grahame, also field-plumage, extra large and rich in col., fine bib, and cap, nicely laced, unsteady, should moult well; 3, Mrs. Clark, the winner at the annual show, very big, cobby bird, fed a nice col., grand bib, trifle out in feather; vhc, Botting; hc, Francis; c, W. Elgar. REDPOLL (6): 1, spl, Taviner, hot one, grand size and shape, wonderful bib and pencilling, lovely col., we heard changed owners at a good price; 2, Francis, cage-moulted, loses in intensity of col., good size, shape and polish; 3, Grahame, very good specimen, finely mkd., nice shape and style; vhc, Offord; hc, Curry; c, Mrs. Maher. TWITE (7): 1, spl, Mrs. Weston, house-moulted; 2, Grahame, field-moulted, and surely a coming champion, enormous size, very thick-set, mass of pencilling all over, steady as a top, we liked much; 3, hc, Botting, leader the noted winner, great size, beautiful shape and style, rich col., full of work, heauty; vhc, Curry. CHAFF. OR BRAMBLEFINCH (9): 1, spl, vhc, spl, Botting, leader a charming house-moulted Bramble, fine size and dense col., grandly spangled and mkd., vhc the biggest Bramble we ever saw (like a Snow Bunting), and good at all points, when house-moulted ought to take a world of beating; 2, Mrs. Weston, Chaffinch; 3, Page, Bramble, h.m., good size and markings, very shapely and stylish, grand col. and polish; hc, Francis; c, Curry. A.O.S. FINCH (3): 1, Francis; 2, Botting, two fine Hawfinches, the latter will turn the tables another year; 3, Mrs. Maher, House Sparrow, little beauty, grand col. and markings, clean as a new pin. YELLOWHAMMER (7): 1, Grahame, real fine bird, very steady, lovely shape and dense markings, bright, clear col., should moult a hard nut to crack; 2, Francis, nice, rich col. HULL CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.

The March meeting was given over to a members' show of British birds and Mules, the good entry of 64 being obtained in six classes. Some very fine exhibits were staged. Mr. F. Medley was the elected judge, but unfortunately he is at present under the doctor's care, so Mr. T. Perkins kindly officiated, his awards seeming to give every satisfaction. Four new members were elected.

LEYTON AND DIS. C.B.S.

The British bird show was held at the Leyton Constitutional Club on March 5th. There was a very good entry, and some very fine birds were staged. The field-moulted classes were a new feature, and were well supported, and many of the exhibits in these classes are sure to make their mark later on. We had our usual good attendance, and Mr. J. S. Clarke seemed to have placed the cards to the satisfaction of all.

PARTICK AND DIS. C.B.S.

Usual monthly muling pair show and meeting, held in the Trades Hall, Anderson Street, on 4th March, Mr. Anderson presiding over a large attendance. Mr. Whitelaw moved that we keep classification for our next monthly show of British same as last year, but omit the "A.V. Bunting," and "A.V. Finch not classed," which was agreed to. Mr. Maxwell moved that we have a lecture along with the show, which was agreed to. One new member was enrolled. The chairman then asked for specials for our muling pairs. The following members gave notice of same: Messrs. Maxwell, Whitelaw, Brown, and Priest, which were allocated as follows:—Best 1st classes 1 and 2, best 1st classes 3 and 5, best 1st classes 6 and 7, and best 1st classes 4 and 8. During the meeting Mr. S. Ward judged, and the members adjourned to the large hall to see the exhibits. They had an interesting discussion on the birds. The judge's awards gave every satisfaction.

A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Ward for judging brought a most interesting show to a close.—WM. PRIEST, sec.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

First meeting and pairs show held at the new headquarters the Duke of York Hotel, on March 10th, and the members are to be congratulated on securing such a convenient house, being close to the station and very central, which should be a boon to outlying members. The business part of the evening was of a very successful character. Mr. Weaver's explanation regarding the meeting of delegates at Leicester in connection with the Cage Bird Union was interesting and highly satisfactory. It was also decided to raise the subscription for membership to 5s. per annum, as it was thought, by so doing, it would be the means of placing the society on a sound financial basis, as the benefits received quite outweigh the amount paid. The birds on view were of splendid quality, and invariably well matched, numbering about 30, divided into four classes, and if the members have a successful season, competition should be keen in the near future. Mr. Crundell judged the Canaries and Mr. Willoughby the Mules and Hybrids, judging them in a very efficient manner. Mr. J. Gibbons carried out his secretarial duties in his usual painstaking way.

NOR.: 1, sp, 4, Willoughby, grand large buff and yell. mkd. hen, useful pair, 4th yell. mkd. ck. and buff hen; 2, 3, Garfield, leader yell. ck., buff mkd. hen, 3rd cl. buff ck, and yellow hen; vhc, Gibbons; hc, c, Weaver. YORKS.: 1, sp, 2, Millercamp, these need no comment, grand yell, ck, and buff hen leading, followed by a buff mkd. cock and yell. hen; 3, Walton, another very nice pair, buff ck. and yell. hen; 4, Hall, very typical buff ck. and yell. hen. MULING PAIRS: 1, sp, 3, 4, Tonks, splendid team, leader grand Siberian Goldie, one of the best and large cl. yell. A. TONKS (for J. Gibbons, Sec.).

STOCKTON-ON-TEES & DIS. C.B.S

One of the best members' shows ever held by the society took place on March 3rd at the Leeds Hotel, the judge being Mr. Marwood (Thornaby-on-Tees). Forty pairs were staged, and the birds were greatly admired.

CALOW (Chesterfield).

The ninth annual show of the Calow (Chesterfield) F.A. was held on February 26, in the Market Hall, where the exhibits (a large number of them all told) were comfortably and nicely staged. The cage bird section contained some really excellent birds, type and quality being "all there" in several instances. The secretary, Mr. S. Rhodes, is to be complimented upon the success of this annual event; he is in every way suited to the position, and knows how to carry out a show to a nicety. He was ably backed up by a capable committee, and a willing number of workers. Mr. W. Vardy (Huthwaite) judged, and his placings appeared to give every satisfaction.

NOR. (2): 1, vhc, hc, Levi; 2, 3, Smith. YORKS (6): 1, vhc, Levi; 2, Bennett; 3, Thorpe; hc, Stringer; c, Turner. UNFLIG. (8): 1, 2, Bennett; 3, c, Levi; vhc, Stringer; hc, Thorpe. A.O.V. CAN. BRIGHTON C.B.A.

Third monthly meeting, held at King and Queen Hotel, Marlborough Place, on March 9th, when we had a large meeting, which augurs well for the new society. We held a table show, there being 12 birds staged; also a judging competition, which all members present engaged in with the utmost enthusiasm. The final judge was Mr. J. Roast, who gave general satisfaction in his placings. After this we elected eight new members, bringing our total up to 45. We shall be holding a First Feather Show in July, also an annual open show at the end of the year, when we hope to receive good support from brother fanciers. The number of points gained at the judging competition are: A. Goble, 36; W. H. Gibb, 19; J. E. Gravett, 16; G. B. Absalom, 16; F. Dandridge, 15; G. France, 15; H. James, 15; A. Flook, 10; C. Pearson, 10; and H. T. Gibb, 8. The judges awards were:—

CAN. A.V. (3): 1, Dandridge, Yorkie; 2, Gibb, Nor.; 3, Bicknell, Nor. BRIT. (7): 1, Absalom, Bullie; 2, Pearson, Goldie; 3, James, Goldie. MULES (2): 1, Sharpe; 2, Gibb.—A. T. RIDDLES, Hon. Sec.

KENT COUNTY C.B.A.

Successful evening show, held in the Barton Road Boys' School, Dover, on 23rd of February, in aid of the Association's funds. 16 realised 13s. British birds were a grand class, Mr. L. A. Brett putting down an excellent team. Yorkshires showed up well, and were of remarkable quality all through. Mr. Abbott (Dover) judged, and his awards were favourably received. Crests, Borders and Lizards were conspicuous by their absence. A silver medal (presented by the chairman, Mr. Rayner) for most points in classes other than British, was won by Mr. Lockett with 29 points; silver medal (presented by Mr. Leaver) for most entries, Mr. Austen, with ten entries; and silver medal (presented by Mr. E. Heritage) for most points in British birds, to Mr. L. A. Brett, with 18 points. Members would materially assist the executive in carrying out their programme for the year by sending in their subscriptions at their earliest convenience, and Kentish societies desiring the patronage of the Association should make application before June 30th. Monthly general meetings are held on the second Wednesday in each month, in Barton Road Boys' School, at 7.30 p.m., at which fanciers intending to become members will be made welcome; annual subscription 2/6.

YORKS. (8): 1, Lockett; 2, 4, Austen; 3, Rayner. UNFLIG. (1): 1, Lockett; 2, Austen; 3, 4, Rayner. HENS (8): 1, Austen; 2, Lockett; 3, Eade; 4, Hendry. PAIRS (8): 1, 4, Hendry; 2, Lockett; 3, Austen. BRIT. (12): 1, 2, 3, L. A. Brett; 4, Austen. NOR. AND MULES: Two birds only in each class.—GEO. SANDERSON, hon. sec.

WARRINGTON C.B.S.

Table show held on March 10th. Fifty-one birds were staged, which, considering the time of year, proves that fanciers in this district are taking a greater interest than formerly. All birds were staged by seven o'clock, and judging commenced by 7.15. All prize labels were on the cages shortly after eight o'clock, when the show was visited by a fair number of visitors. Novice classes were provided, owing to the cup competition, which commenced with this show. Competition was keen throughout. The novice Yorkshire classes contained some good birds, and the novices are to be congratulated upon the manner in which they staged their exhibits. In the champion Norwich classes Mr. J. Emmett won with two very smart exhibits. The Norwich classes, although not so keen as the other sections, contained some nice birds. Mr. A. Longworth stnged both winners. In the British section were to be found birds that could hold their own in any competition. In the class provided for Softbills, Mr. T. Mort staged the best Thrush seen in this district for a long time. Points gained for the cups were as follows:—Champion Yorks.: C. Dukes 15, A. Langley 9, E. Johnson 6; Champion Norwich: J. Emmett 16, T. W. Walters 11, W. W. Morrison 6; British and Mule Section: E. Houghton 17, T. Mort 15, J. Leech 14, T. Moss 4; Novice Yorks.: E. Harper 17, J. Bretherton 9, T. Moss 4; Novice Norwich: J. Leech 10, W. Weston 8. Mr. W. R. Knowles judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. Prize money will be paid at next meeting, March 31st, at which we are to have Mr. J. Leech's paper on the Linnet, which, owing to unforeseen circumstances, could not be given at the last meeting. Mr. W. R. Knowles will also give a paper on the rearing of young Canaries. The meeting will commence at 7.30 prompt. Members will assist the committee by turning up early.—C. DUKES, hon. sec.

Under the White Rose.

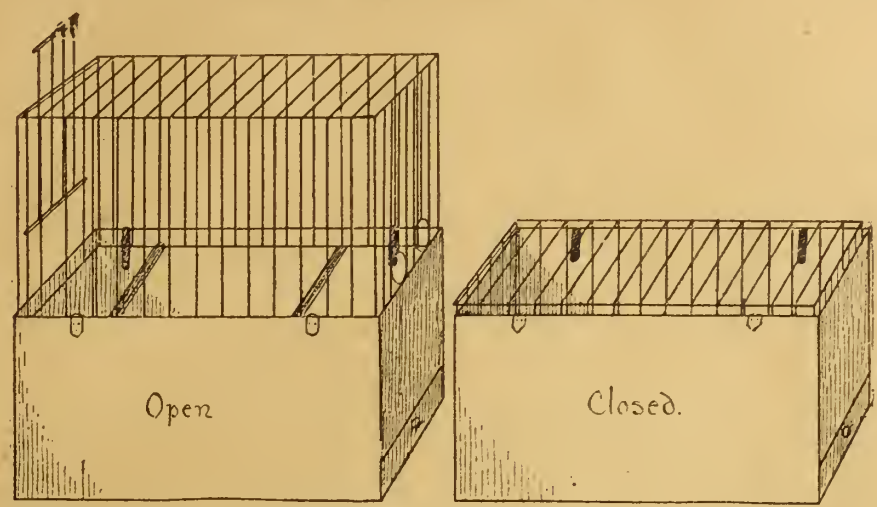
THE result of the ballot of the Yorkshire Union officials is as follows:—Vice Presidents, nine competitors, Messrs. H. H. Towers 105, F. Armstrong 81, W. Cruise 56, H. W. Walsh 46, E. W. Johnson 35, A. Livesey 18, W. Walker 16, O. Mitchell 14, W. T. Pickering 7. Mr. Towers is therefore returned with a majority of 24. Secretary, Mr. H. Hill, unopposed. Trustees, two required, Messrs W. H. Shackleton 285, O. Mitchell 273, J. Clark 120. Auditors, two required, Messrs. F. Armstrong 233, R. Halliday 151, S. Dean 109, W. Holroyd 99, H. H. Towers 96, H. Simonett 66. Messrs. Armstrong and Halliday elected. In the revision of rules the following are the most important: Representation on the Council of the Y.U., the old rule is easily carried by 219 to 148, no change. Next, the proposed alteration that the Union select the date of the "First Feather Show," gets in by a 90 majority. Novices will now have a larger classification, the proposed amendment that there be "eight Yorkshire and two Norwich novice classes" at each Y.U. show is carried by 33 votes; in regard to members' shows, by a majority of 57 votes the rule debarring a society from holding a members' show during the hours a Y.U. open show is running is abolished.

REPORTERS (and I am one of them) are henceforth and for ever not to be allowed admission to any Y.U. show until the show is declared open. How, at single-day shows, reporters are expected to be able to get through their work, when maybe the show will not be open to the public before 3 o'clock, is beyond comprehension. But I expect it will have to be done, and we shall still keep smiling.

ASSISTANT judges' names must now appear in schedules, and all judges must be nominated in September for the following year's shows.

SOCIETIES who possess a date for an open show and who do not wish to hold one, can now, by paying their quota of judges' fees, retain that date until such time as they wish to hold a show. New Rules. "That if a bird is claimed out of novice classes, it shall not compete in novice classes again the same year," is lost by 194 to 166. The rule enabling each society holding an open show to print its schedule in the Y.U. Year Book, is carried by a stupendous majority of 243, and that in the event of a tie for any Y.U. trophy, the highest in money awards to be declared the winner, gets in by 314 votes; 325 of a majority is awarded the one-man-one-vote rule.

NOVICES evidently do not wish the limit to be abolished. The proposal "no limit in novice classes," is lost by 151 votes, and it is quite evident the majority of fanciers are satisfied with the Yorkshire judges. The proposal for all outsiders is squashed by 239 votes against 124, but the rule "That no reporter is allowed to judge a Union show" just gets carried by 10 votes. Little do many fanciers know the number of real ablo fanciers this will remove. It takes away absolutely the top half-dozen in this year's selection. What are the Y.U. to do? Now we are to have six First Feather shows for all Union trophies, but the proposers have overlooked one thing; they should also have stated how they were to be got! Equalisation of delegates' travelling expenses is now voted in by 230 majority, this being a good thing for outside societies.



LAST, but not least, must he mentioned the miserable return of ballot papers; 33 per cent. is a very meagre number, and it is hardly worth the trouble and expense entailed.

KEIGHLEY Society have removed their headquarters to more central premises, The Black Horse Hotel, Market Place, where the officers will be pleased to see any fancier or intending member. They have a grand room upstairs for meetings, and a very large room where they can hold members' shows, or even an open show, it being quite large enough to hold 400 birds; and there is plenty of light and air. At the first meeting there on the 8th inst. they held a pair show and had Mr. Samuel Dean, of Gt. Horton, to place the cards and give a little lecture on the birds staged; a very good number of members turned up, and they accorded the lecturer a hearty vote of thanks for his lecture and the answers to questions asked.

THE Green Canary Association of Liverpool held their annual dinner and prize distribution on March 9 at the Royal Court Hotel, and I have been favoured with a copy of the programme by one of the officers, and a very amusing and well got up affair it is. Mr. J. Walker presented the prizes, etc., toasts being given by Messrs. J. Walker (President), J. H. Isaacs, J. W. Metcalfe, W. Hales, and Geo. Green. Perhaps our Red Rose friends will think I am infringing on their colour, but I do it on account of the prizes won by residents of the county of the White Rose, amongst whom I must mention Mr. P. Clayton, who was only one point behind in the big race, not to mention a few others who were among the "also ran"; you'll have to watch the colour of that red rose, or it'll be turning white—there are a few white petals in already.

A Useful Call or Singing Cage.

SIR,—Here are two sketches representing the call or singing cage which I have had in use for several years, the one showing it open and the other closed. It is a most useful thing for calling purposes, as you can carry two of them (closed), and they will occupy no more space than if you were only carrying one (open). I hope others will find the idea equally useful. The sketches will, I think, explain themselves. It will be seen that the wire part is made to slide up and down inside the wooden part, being held tightly in a clasp, which is fitted on the outside of the cage and bent over the inside.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Another Suspension.

A meeting of the Council was held on March 12th at the Market Tavern, Bradford, Mr. R. Halliday, president, in the chair. The following business was duly transacted:—The minutes of previous meeting read and passed after an addition had been made to the minute in which H. Kaye was expelled from the Union; this addition debars any society in the Union from taking entries from an expelled member. The business transacted by the sub-committee on March 3rd was endorsed by the Council, and a vote of condolence was passed to the widow and family of the late Mr. J. E. Brotherton, who held office as trustee for the Union. The Council expressed sincere regret at the sudden loss of so prominent a figure to the Fancy, and its high appreciation of the valuable services he had rendered at various times, and the monetary help he had always been willing to afford the hobby, in which he took so keen a delight. Another objection was laid before the Council, in which Mr. F. Firth accused Mr. A. Radley of borrowing and lending birds for exhibition purposes. A lengthy hearing was given to the case, and after several witnesses had given evidence, the Council decided to suspend Mr. A. Radley, of Skelmanthorpe sine die, and expel him from the Union, from this date. The secretary was instructed to refund the 5s. deposit to Mr. Firth, the objection being proved. Batley and Dis. F.O.S. were admitted as members of the Union from April 1st next, this now making 29 societies affiliated. The case dealing with the Bradford Health Committee's action in "noticing" bird-breeders from the Corporation houses was thoroughly thrashed out by the Council, and Messrs. F. Hammond and H. Hill were selected as a deputation to wait upon the Health Committee with a view to getting them to remove this drastic step, which means so much to the Fancy in general. The Council feel that the committee's action was uncalled for altogether. Several suggestions were brought before the Council, dealing with a Cinderella Club show, and the best method to adopt in order to make the affair successful financially. Opinions were expressed freely, and it seems that Mr. D. Sunderland's remarks anent running a show for this deserving fund, which were made at the annual prize distribution, had fallen on good ground. In fact, it was quite evident that much thought had been expended in devising some of the schemes brought forward, and after a lengthy discussion it was decided to refer these suggestions back to the societies by the delegates, to be brought up at the next meeting.—H. HILL, secretary.

Result of Ballot.

Vice-president (1 required): Mr. H. H. Towers 105 votes, Mr. F. Armstrong 81, Mr. W. Cruise 56, Mr. H. W. Walsh 46, Mr. E. W. Johnson 35, Mr. A. Livesey 18, Mr. W. Walker 16, Mr. O. Mitchell 14, and Mr. W. T. Pickering 7. Trustees (2 required): Mr. W. H. Shackleton 285 votes, Mr. O. Mitchell 273, and Mr. J. Clark 120. Auditors (2 required): Mr. F. Armstrong 233 votes, Mr. R. Halliday 151, Mr. S. Dean 109, Mr. W. Holroyd 99, Mr. H. H. Towers 96, and Mr. H. Simonett 66. Secretary: Mr. H. Hill (unopposed), 15, Settle Terrace, Thornton Lane, Little Horton, Bradford.

Revision of Rules: The following proposed alterations are carried: Rule 11, "That the date of the first summer show, under the rules of the Union, shall be left to the discretion of the Council," 219 votes for and 129 against; Rule 41, "That all affiliated societies holding an open winter show, incorporate in their schedules not less than 10 novice classes (eight Yorkshire and two Norwich classes)," 194 for and 161 against; Rule 45, "That the rule relating to members' shows be abolished." 200 for and 143 against; Show Rule No. 12, "That the words 'reporter or otherwise' be inserted to read as follows. 'No person, reporter, or otherwise, will be admitted under any pretence whatever, etc.,'" 203 for and 155 against. Husks, galvanised wire round each end and middle, impossible to break, top hole, 6d. each; Ring-neck Parrakeets, 9/-; Cockatiels, 10/6; nest, end opens, 1/6; Cutthroats, St. Helena Waxbills, 3/-; cocks, Madagascar Weaver, 4/6; Cutthroats, 1/3; hens, Silverbill, Avadavat, Bishop, 1/6; Grass Finch, 5/6; Saffron, 3/-: H. Lewis, 154, Hutton-rd., Handsworth.

COKERNUT BREEDING HUSKS.

To breed Budgerigars successfully you must have the "Improved Secure" husks. All bird fancying papers have advised their readers to prefer them, because other kinds come to pieces and the young birds fall to the floor and die, and this is just why the "Improved Secure" husks have been "celebrated" for the last 18 years. They remain unequalled, competition and comparison always increase their popularity; the principal Zoo's, Parks, and breeders employ them, and "Cage Birds" has said:—"They are far superior to the old husks," so beware of worthless substitutes. Price 5s. dozen, smaller quantities 6d. each. Superior box nests for Cockatiels, etc., 1/6 each: Harper, Husk Importer, Wolverhampton.

A REAL EYE-OPENER

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL FOR 1910.

Many Special Features this Year.

CONSIDER THIS WONDERFUL LIST.

THE DISINFECTION OF BIRD ROOMS AND CAGES. By G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S.

How disinfection should be carried out, either to prevent disease or to overcome disease when present.

HOW TO BECOME A SUCCESSFUL KEEPER OF BRITISH BIRDS. By G. G. Henderson.

Tells you all about the room, the cages, the appliances, the seeds, and other foods, and gives many hints which will bring you to the front rank as a successful British bird keeper.

AN EASY METHOD OF BREEDING CANARIES. By Cornelius Hoyle.

Explains how the author has very successfully and profitably bred Canaries at a minimum cost of trouble and time to himself.

LANDMARKS OF THE FANCIERS' YEAR. By Claude St. John.

"To be forewarned is to be forearmed"; that is the keynote of this splendid article, which shows how, by judicious treatment beforehand, many of the troubles and ills which are the commonest cause of the failure of bird-breeders and keepers may be averted.

MULE BREEDING FROM CANARY HENS. By C. E. Truscott.

The easiest and most profitable form of Mule (or Hybrid) breeding is with the Canary hen and cock Finch. This contribution explains the best and simplest procedure to attain success in this fascinating branch of the Hybrid-breeder's art.

THE FEEDING OF FOREIGN BIRDS. By F.Z.S.

A contribution which points out how a more varied diet than is usually offered may be given to foreign birds to their undoubted benefit.

THE TREATMENT OF, AND MEDICINES FOR, AILING CAGE BIRDS.

Departures from health in the bird-room are common sources of anxiety to fanciers, and cause much racking of brains to find the best remedial agents. This unique article fully explains the properties and uses of the medicinal agents which have been proved by bird-keepers to bring successful results in combating the ailments of their pets. Broken limbs, egg-binding, fits, constipation, inflammation, moulting, bird-lice, red-mite, the care of the claws, etc., etc., are also fully dealt with.

In addition "Cage Birds Annual" for 1910 contains:

A Monthly Calendar, with Tables when Eggs are due to hatch; Hints on the Formation of a Cage Bird Society; A Year with the Wild Birds; Standards and Scales of Points of Exhibition Birds; Alphabetical Directory to the Cage Bird Societies; Dictionary of Fanciers' Terms; Directory to the Bird Trade; Review of the Exhibition Year; Directory to the Judges of Cage Birds; List of Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors; Useful Postal and other information; Cash Account Columns, etc. Also

A lovely coloured plate and many art, etc., illustrations of Canaries, Hybrids, British and Foreign Birds.

ALL FOR SIXPENCE: Of all Newsagents or Bookstalls; OR POST FREE, 8d.

Secretaries of Societies, Bird Dealers, and others engaged in communication with Birdkeepers, should take up an Agency for retailing our Publications.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

A. Newley, 24, Stockwell Green, London, S.W.

A Fact - - - About Blood.

Blood is not everything, but it counts, as we all know; but, take it from me, never pay a silly price for bad ones, because you are told "The Tale" about blood for seven or more generations.

I have one large stock, purchased from a well-known exhibitor, of Norwich Plainheads, and some bred from a bird (well-known) that £12 was refused for. Editor holds proof, that is better than a lot of unnecessary comment. I also have got in other valuable blood, stocks, of which particulars can be given.

All are more than good value, but neither talk nor this advertisement will prove it. The merit must be seen and compared according to price.

Cocks.—Clear Yellow, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards. Clear Buff, 5/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Ticked or Variegated, 5/-, 5/6, 8/-, 6/6, 7/8, 10/6, 12/6 15/-, 20/- upwards.

Hens.—Clear Yellow, 3/6, 4/-, 4/8, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads, Matched for Breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards.

Just compare the above prices with others, to say nothing of quality, but there is no guesswork here; it is not a game of chance, as with some.

On approval; travelling cages 3d. extra.

SANDIFORD, Bird Specialist and Judge,
PRESTON, LANCS.

I SAY NO!

I say no, and you well know that I know when to say no; so I say to you, No, do not trouble to read this announcement if you want to pay fancy prices, for I do not believe in them, therefore have nothing whatever to do with them. I have yearly during the past fifteen years, and honestly believe that I always shall sell as many or more birds than any opponent, for, you know, I have the confidence of the public. My sending you birds carriage paid to your door on seven days' approval, at my sole risk, and guaranteeing every customer satisfaction, allows you time to make sure the birds give you every satisfaction before deciding to keep them. Then, again, the high quality of my birds is unsurpassable, every bird being sound, astounding value for money, without any fancy prices, bounce, or brag. My matched pairs for breeders and amateurs are a marvel of cheapness. Yorkshires, Norwich, and Rollers at 10/6, 12/6, 15/- per pair are birds that will satisfy the most sceptical. The shrewder the buyers the more I like them, for they fully realise the high quality I give for the money. I yearly receive thousands of unsolicited testimonials from delighted customers, and could fill the whole of this paper with letters of praise, but you will be better satisfied, and can judge better, if you let me send you your requirements, carriage paid, on seven days' approval; you can then fully test the quality before deciding to keep the birds. My whole study is to give every satisfaction, and fullest possible value for money, that you may tell your friends of the high quality of my birds. If by chance you are not satisfied send the bird back, and tell me its faults. I shall only be too delighted to send you another in its place, for I take all the risk during time of approval. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 2/6, 4/0, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 0/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage. All Canaries forwarded to your address carriage paid on 7 days' approval, at my sole risk or deposit.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

"THAT ALWAYS GIVE SATISFACTION."

Just two testimonials I give out of scores similar received this last few days. From—20, George Street, Whiteinch. March 19th, 1910. Dear Sir—I received the birds and am very well pleased with them. I think you have matched them beautifully. Am writing Cage Birds to forward you deposit and wishing you every success. H. McKerlie, to L. Dykes. Another from 31, Therapia Road, Honor Oak, London, March 18th, 1910. Bird received safely and gives every satisfaction. Shall know where to get more when wanting, also to recommend my friends. A.R. Whitley to L. Dykes.

My Yorkshires need no recommending, as they recommend themselves wherever they go, and my winning this season of over 200 cash prizes, three Challenge Cups, gold, silver and bronze medals, and numerous other specials, prove the quality of the reliable strain.

Champion long, slim, Yellow Yorkshire cocks at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Buff cocks at 5/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each, all on full song, and 7 inches long. LOOK HERE!

It is all right you paying fancy prices for ordinary, or even third-class birds, if your desire is to be rid of your money, but should you desire good value, 20/-, or even 30/- to the £1, you must use discretion in where you order your birds. I always have been, and still am, the leading trading fancier of high-class birds at most reasonable prices. My prices may be copied, but the quality I give cannot be equalled at anything like the prices. When you send me your order you get birds from the fountain head of high-class, typical clean, healthy birds. My stock may be (but I doubt it) outnumbered in count, but the quality stands supreme. Yet the prices are low. Just you have one of my matched pairs at 10/6, 12/6, or 15/-, on approval, and compare them with birds costing double the price. You will then be convinced that for style and quality, at reasonable prices, I stand alone. This is only explained by my breeding from the best any buying only first-class stocks, that are bred from, including, and related to winners at all the leading shows. I do not exhibit myself, therefore my customers get birds from me that other breeders would retain for their own exhibition. The prices and quality of my birds utterly defy competition, and I guarantee every customer satisfaction. Let me send you the birds you require, carriage paid to your door, at my own risk, for seven clear days, that you may be thoroughly satisfied before deciding to keep them. I am assured your trial order will enlist both you and your friends as my regular customers, for you will join with my thousands of customers in acknowledging that for style and quality my birds are unsurpassable. Border Fancy cocks, 6/-, 6/6, 7/- each, hens, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, matched pairs, 8/-, 8/6, 9/-, 9/6. Yorkshire cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each, hens 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each, matched pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, matched pairs 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Hartz Rollers, champion songsters, cocks 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs 8/-, 9/-; St. Andreasburg Rollers, the king of all singers, cocks 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, hens 3/-, 4/-, 5/-; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; illustrated list, 1d. All Canaries carriage paid, on approval.

Special Whip to New & Old Readers —OF— "Cage Birds."

Many of you will have a little extra time during the next few days to look over your stock. Now if you want anything to mate up to a certain Bird, or require any addition to stock already got together, drop me a line—it matters not what the variety may be—I believe I can suit you; at any rate I will try; and if you will have the goodness to enclose a stamp I will tell you plainly if I have not exactly what you require; but the thousands stocked should supply the want.

The following great Bargains are still on offer, and still defy all competition, whether by professional Copyists or others:—

Special Amateur Pairs

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

The Beginner's Pairs and Outfit.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only

5/- (Five Shillings).

Powerful Songsters.

These cannot be Touched Elsewhere by "streets" for quality and value. Sing anywhere. Great attraction. Very handsome, hardy, pure bred Yorkshires or Norwich, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6. Thousands to select from.

that give Universal Satisfaction. Both Seifert and Trute pure strains. Cocks, 6/6, 7/6; hens 1/9, 2/-; Trained Seiferts, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; hens, same strain, 3/6, 5/-.

TO MULE BREEDERS AND EXHIBITORS.

Pink-eyed and other Muling hens, as follows:—2/-, 3/-, 3/6, 5/-, 6/6 each; Yellow hens, for light Mule breeding, 4/-, 5/6, 7/6; hens for dark Mule breeding, 3/-, 3/6, and 5/- each. A grand lot of light and dark exhibition Mules from 15/- each; also Hybrids that have, and can win every time out, under good judges.

Travelling Cages in all cases 3d. extra, and Birds on approval to any part of Great Britain on receipt of cash, or deposit with Editor.

For Scotch Fancies, Lancashires, Lizards, Cinnamons, Dutch Frills, etc., send for Free Illustrated List. Easy Payments by joining my Original Bird Club.

FEEDING HENS,

2/-, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6, 4/- each.

FOR ALL OTHERS—

CAGE BIRDS, 154, FLEET STREET, LONDON.

Mrs. Macgregor won the tea service for most points gained through the year by a lady member of the Metropolitan C.B.A. Also Mr. H. Norman has been secured to judge our first young bird show and first annual show, and Mr. George Gardner the second shows, young birds and annual respectively, writes Mr. G. Harwood, the hon. secretary.

We have received a copy of the report and balance-sheet for the year ended March, 1910, of the Green Canary Association. A gratifying feature of these is that a debit balance of 18s. 5d. brought into the accounts from the previous year is changed into a credit balance of 12s. 6d., upon which the secretary (Mr. S. Hadwin) and the other officials are to be congratulated.

I was very much surprised on purchasing my CAGE BIRDS last week to see the picture of my yellow cinnamon marked hen reproduced on the front page, for which I most heartily thank you. I may say that I have this season won over 200 prizes with Yorkshires. I take a very great interest in reading your reports of the various shows, and am pleased to say that your reporters give credit where credit is due. I wish your paper, which is the best without a doubt, a continued run of success.—W. RICHMOND (Harrogate).

A HOLIDAY REMINDER

Owing to the Easter Holidays, CAGE BIRDS has had to go to press one day earlier than usual this week; thus any notices, advertisements, etc., which reached us after Tuesday mid-day have had to be held over until our next number.

Messrs. J. C. Barnes (Walkley, Sheffield), and J. Bailey (Bradford) are elected, we hear, as judges for Leeds Show on October 15th.

We have appointed Mr. Roe to judge at our annual show on October 26th, writes Mr. C. Parnell, hon. secretary of the Torbay (Paignton) O.S.

Kindly allow me to thank Messrs. Waterman and Floyd for kindly answering my question re "How should eggs be kept?" writes Mr. W. Foxen (Bromley, Kent).

All fanciers having draw books, etc., will please return same not later than March 29th, writes Mr. Jas. R. Crossley, hon. secretary of the Blackpool and Fylde C.B.F.S.

May I draw the attention of our members, fanciers, and friends, to the fact that we are having a lecture on March 31st at our headquarters, Spencer Hall, Dartmouth Park Hill, by Mr. G. E. Weston on "Mule Breeding," writes Mr. C. W. Law, secretary of the Highgate, Hampstead and Dis. C.B.S.? A hearty welcome is given to all. Commence 8.30 p.m.

Mr. A. Sutcliffe, of Grimsby, has just returned from a three months' visit to the West Indies, in the course of which, we hear, he has been able to add to his collection of birds seven species of Tanagers (Euphonia), most of which are probably new to British aviculture. He has also brought over a black and yellow Tree-Creeper (Certhiola flaviola), which, it is said, is the first that has been imported alive into this country.

The 1910 annual balance-sheet of the Scottish National Cage Bird Society shows the very handsome sum of £79 17s. 10d. (cash) to the credit of this famous north-country institution, which must be accounted highly satisfactory, even though it represents a decrease on the figures of last year. The total income amounts to no less than £426 17s. 5d., which evidences the hard work the secretary, Mr. J. Winter, and his fellow officials have had to get through.

We have appointed the following gentlemen to act as judges at our show on December 21st, writes Mr. A. W. Douglas, secretary and treasurer of the Elgin C.B.A.:—Mr. G. Scaife (Fauldhouse) is to judge the Norwich, etc., sections, and Mr. F. A. Watt (Banff) the British and Foreign sections. We have been fortunate in being presented with a silver bowl by Mr. H. Christie (Elgin), and a silver flower stand by Mr. G. Mackie (Insch), for competition. Altogether our association is getting on splendidly for one so young.

TWO SUPERB STANDARD WORKS.

"Our Canaries."

"Cage Bird Hybrids."

READY ON OR ABOUT APRIL 9th.

I have for some considerable time past had under preparation on a scale of unprecedented beauty and completeness the two works named as above. Nothing to equal them can be or will be given to the public at the same price. To instance the thoroughness with which these books have been designed, there will be no less than 16 separate and distinct plates of Mules and Hybrids, and 36 separate and distinct plates of Canaries. No pains or expense will be spared to secure the maximum of result at the minimum of expense to the purchaser.

F. CARL,

154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

The committee of the Crook Original C.B.F. and F.S. have elected as judge for their open show on November 19th, Mr. W. Vardy (Hucknall Huthwaite), and the society is looking forward to a record show this time, writes Mr. F. Brown, the hon. secretary.

Will fanciers please note that I have removed from 209, Crystal Palace Road, to 39, Frien Road, East Dulwich, S.E., where all communications in connection with the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. should be addressed, writes Mr. W. Hodson, the hon. secretary.

The Dewsbury and Dis. C.B.S. intends holding a dinner, writes Mr. W. Hinchliffe, the secretary, at the Saville Hotel (headquarters); tickets 1s. 6d. each, dinner at 8 o'clock prompt. Will all members who intend being present give in their names to me not later than March 28th?

A list of Lincolnshire grown seed potatoes for the garden has been issued by Mr. A. Lighton, jun. (Kirton, Lincs.), and those of our readers who have not yet bought their seed should consult this list at once. Mr. Lighton is also a well-known grower of rock plants, roses, pansies, begonias, etc.

Will you please notify readers of CAGE BIRDS of my change of address from 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, to 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, writes Mr. Geo. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., CAGE BIRDS post-mortem examination expert. In future all birds intended for him must be sent to the new address.

Our show date is fixed for October 8th, writes Mr. W. B. Smart, secretary of the Loanhead and Dis. C.B.S., and two well-known fanciers in Messrs. A. Thomson (Edinburgh) and G. Brown (Leith) have consented to judge. Mr. Thomson will take the Scotch Fancies, Norwich, Mules, and British birds, and Mr. Brown the Border Fancies.

The newly-formed Codnor Park and Dis. C.B.S. has arranged to hold an open First Feather show on July 2nd, at which we hope to give a good classification for Norwich, Yorkshires, and Crests, writes Mr. J. H. Mitchell, the hon. secretary.

The date of our 12th annual show is fixed for November 11th and 12th. Mr. A. Wellings, of Prescot, will judge the Canaries, and Mr. Geo. Wilson (Frizington) the Mules, British, and foreign birds.—W. J. DOUGLAS, secretary of the Whitehaven C.B. and H.S.

The current issue of "Bird Notes"—the journal of the Foreign Bird Club—is prefaced by a beautiful coloured plate (from the brush of Mr. H. Goodchild), of Stella Lories, which is accompanied by some notes by Mr. Wesley T. Page, who also commences in this issue a series of articles on Foreign Birdkeeping. Mr. T. H. Newman writes on Hybrid Doves, and Dr. Maurice Amsler on "The Breeding of Green Cardinals and other Notes." Mr. J. Frostick contributes some particulars about the Dartford Warbler, and there are besides many other interesting notes.

The Blackburn Lark F.A. wish it to be known that they have moved their headquarters from the "Good Samaritan Inn," Grimshaw Park, to "The Maysons' Arms," Audley Lane, Blackburn, where there is a very genial and enthusiastic host, a splendid room, and every convenience for trams from station and outlying districts; it is altogether a much superior place for the accommodation of our association. I am glad to state that our society is in a very good and sound position, financially and otherwise, and I am surprised we are not joined by more fanciers in the outlying districts, for now is the time to join, and the subscriptions are very "easy" indeed.—ROBT. ATHEY, secretary.

THINGS THAT MAKE US SMILE.

In the columns of a contemporary there appeared last week, under the crushing headline, "TRIBUTES TO OUR SUPERIORITY," two testimonials, of which the following was one:

A Dozen Enquiries for One Bird.

MR. E. WILSON (Stratford, E.) writes:—

"I am glad to inform you that the White Linnet which I advertised in your valuable paper was sold by 7 o'clock Friday night, besides having a dozen enquiries about it. I wish your paper all the success it deserves."

So far so good. That was indeed smart work.

But we learn from Mr. Wilson that this particular White Linnet was advertised SOLELY in CAGE BIRDS (issue March 12), and that to CAGE BIRDS ALONE belongs the credit of the sale. Mr. Wilson writes that he could not understand it when he heard that his expression of satisfaction had been printed elsewhere, the contemporary in question being quite unknown to him.

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

During the Easter Holidays the offices of "Cage Birds" will be closed from Friday to Monday next, inclusive.

Will Advertisers, and Correspondents generally, kindly note that all matter intended for next week's issue should be posted early, to reach us on Tuesday, March 29th, certain.

That most enterprising bird specialist, of world-wide fame, Mr. W. Rudd, of Norwich, sends us an original letter written by one of our most noted present-day breeders and exhibitors of the Norwich Plainhead Canary, which shows that Mr. Rudd has just completed the purchase of his stock of birds. The whole of this superfine collection (it comprises many winners and every bird is related to winners), is now being offered for sale by Mr. Rudd at exceptionally favourable prices, and the opportunity is one readers should not miss.

We last week closed the correspondence which has been going on over the heading of the "New Society for Codnor Park." We have no intention of reopening the matter, but Mr. J. H. Mitchell informs us that owing to his son's severe illness he had no chance of writing in time for last week's issue, and that he desires to say: "I consider myself justified in stating that seven made members of the Selston Society did resign at the same time as myself. If the minutes of the meeting Mr. Maltby speaks of have not reached him, he must inquire from the post office authorities, as I posted them myself. My letter, with my resignation and list of members' names, was sent to your chairman with accounts, and I have receipt for same. I deny emphatically taking the Portland Arms for the Selston Society. Before making inquiries from the proprietor I called on six committeemen, asking their opinion of same after having the schoolroom (at Selston) refused to us."

The Yorkshire Union of C.B.S.

Meeting of the Council at the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford, on Saturday, March 26th, at 5.30 o'clock prompt. Business: Annual general meeting; ballot for judges; other important business.—H. HILL, hon. secretary.

National Green Marked Yorkshire C.C.

The nomination of officers for 1910-11, and any suggested alteration of any rules or regulations, close on March 31st. Voting paper will be found in the centre of the handbook of the N.G.M.Y.C.C.—F. ARMSTRONG, hon. secretary.

H.M.S. "Implacable" and a Norwich Canary.

Margate, March 15th, 1910.

DEAR SIR,—I am pleased to inform you I received the Norwich Canary in the best of health. He has got quite used to all the noise of the ship, and when we fired 12-inch guns yesterday, he simply took no notice. I am quite satisfied with my purchase.—GEO. J. HALL to W. RUDD, the bird specialist, Norwich.—(ADVT.)

CAGE BIRDS 1910 ANNUAL.

Almost Out of Print.

The current (1910) edition of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL has met with such a flattering reception and so phenomenal a sale that even thus early in the season we are compelled to announce that it is on the verge of being "out of print," only some hundred copies at present remaining unsold out of the huge order we this year placed with our printers. This is highly gratifying to us; but we shall be sorry if any would-be readers delay ordering their copies longer, for they will meet the disappointing (to them) answer: "Sold out." Therefore we repeat that only about 100 "Annuals" now remain, and that immediate application must be made to ensure securing one. No further advertisement of the ANNUAL will appear in our columns, and there is, unfortunately, no possibility of any extra copies being printed.

Experiences Amongst My Canaries.

By W. SNELLING (Thirsk).

When I went in for Canaries the Yorkshire variety took my fancy. My cages are arranged in tiers, with movable wire fronts. These can be made very cheaply, and are so convenient that when I am cleaning them out I just have to run the bird into a show cage and remove the wire front, and then with a large paint brush whitewash the cage, or if enamelled, wash it out; and in a few minutes it is all ready for the bird to return to it. I always take care to go well into the corners with a feather dipped into paraffin oil; if this is done, say, once every two weeks, you will never be troubled with the red mite.

Feeding Often and Little.

In feeding, which is a very important item, as it is so easy to have a bird go wrong and die before you are aware that it ails anything, I have followed the lines on which I was so successful previously with poultry; that is, to feed often and little at a time. I have a two-compartment box standing within easy reach of my cages. One compartment I use for seeds, etc., the other for utensils, which are never put away without being washed out.

Their chief diet is Spanish Canary seed with a little linseed given fresh every morning. Every one who has kept birds should know about how much will serve for one day. This is very important and plays a very serious part in the keeping of birds in health. I have heard nine out of every ten say, "I like to give them plenty to go at." This no doubt is said and done out of kindness for our little friends. Just let me illustrate this. Supposing you were set down to a table with, say, three days' necessaries of life; then after you had had enough it was left for you to "go at" it as you thought fit; I am sure you would be pleased when the three days were up and you saw a fresh supply, or better still, a change of system. When you fill the seed trough the bird will literally "fill" itself, and then for the want of something better to do will turn the seed over, particularly if it is mixed seed, to see what tasty bits are to be found. And in their doing so you perhaps do not notice what seeds are turned out on to the cage bottom to be trampled amongst the dirt and then picked up sometime when the bird is hungry.

Egg Food.

About once a week I give a little egg-food, say, on the Wednesday; then one day a week, say, about Saturday, they get mixed seed just for the day. In the breeding season just before I put the birds together I give a little extra egg-food. I make my own egg-food, consisting of hard-boiled fresh eggs and bread, which I just pass through water, being careful to squeeze as much of the water as I can out again before mixing it with the egg. Then when the birds are fit, having previously made up my mind how I am going to mate them, I put them together and increase the egg-food. I also now put them a nest in and a little moss, thread ends, and small pieces of cotton wool.

When the hen lays her first egg I take it away and replace it by a china one. On the night of the third day I remove the old nest, giving them a fresh one lined with surgeon's lint, the edges being glued down, and I replace the eggs.

If the cock bird is a very quiet one, I let him remain, but if in any way mischievous, out he comes as soon as the hen has laid her first egg.

During Incubation.

The day before the eggs are due to hatch I change the nest again, and at intervals also until the young ones leave the nest for good. By having a spare nest or two this can be done so quickly as not to disturb the old bird or excite it in the least. After the hen commences to sit I withdraw the egg-food, only giving Canary seed, until the day before the eggs are due to hatch. Then I commence with the egg-food. Here I change my method of mixing the egg; for the first week I give pure hard-boiled egg—the white and yolk chopped up together without the bread, as I maintain that as the egg is the support of the young one during incubation, it follows the young will thrive on egg better than on any other food during the first few days of its existence in the nest. I begin mixing it with bread, gradually using more, until the food is about half bread and half egg. I never change this until the birds are ready to go into the moult; only they get less egg-food and more seed as they get older. I have never lost one bird at the moulting stage, as they seem so strong in constitution that they hardly notice the casting of the old feathers for the new.

Colour-feeding Youngsters.

By the time they are ready for the moult I have made up my mind which of them to colour-feed. Those I don't intend to colour-feed I put into a flight cage. I like to keep the birds singly that are to be colour-fed, as there is a tendency for them to fight over their food, and perhaps one is likely to get more seed than you want it to, and no colour-food. By having them separate you can observe how they are eating the food. I remove the seed trough until the colour-food is eaten, and replace it by just a few seeds. By doing this you can get a level colour, and it can be left to your discretion how deep you will colour.

I am quite certain there is no harm done to our little friends by colour feeding. I have birds that I can put on to egg-food both coloured and non-coloured, and they will go for the coloured first. But, my opponents will say, this does not prove that it is not harmful to them. Granted; but it proves they like it best. I have birds colour-fed and non-colour-fed; the coloured ones live as long, are as healthy, and breed as well, so why should they not have which food they like best?

As regards green-food, I like to give apples and dandelion leaves, with a piece of onion occasionally, giving the dandelion leaves during the summer and the apples in winter. I never allow green-food until the young are a week old, and in early spring when frosts are about, I always gather the dandelion leaves the day before I use them, standing them in a jar of water.

Assisting the Moult.

For getting birds quickly through the moult I have found marigolds of great assistance in helping the birds to cast their feathers. Not only does it assist Canaries to cast their feathers, but the flowers help to improve the colour of the plumage.

I give my birds fresh spring water every day, but do not let it remain with the young ones for more than about two hours at a time, as they sometimes drink more than is good for them.

My Method of Mating.

I will now show how I decide to mate my birds. I hold no strong opinion about one cock and one hen, or one cock and two hens, but just make the best of the circumstances. If I am short of male birds, well, I run them with two or more hens. I have found both ways suit very well. First of all, I arrange my birds—all the hens in separate cages, numbering them from one upwards. The first hen I examine for defects, having first set my eye on the stamp of bird I wish to breed. Having now noted the defects, I look over the cocks for one that does not fail in the same place as the hen, and having found him, I hold him and her up and compare them; then if they are suitable, he is numbered to go with No. 1 hen. Then I examine the second hen; it might follow that she fails in the same places as the first, so the consequence will be that if I have not another cock suitable, she will have to share with No. 1 hen. I then have two hens to one cock.

No. 3 hen may fail in some different places, and so will require a different mate. After going through them all in the same way, any surplus stock I have is either put away for another year or sold. I am an advocate for keeping a few old birds back for stock purposes in years to come, or in case of accidents.

In Favour of In-breeding.

As to inbreeding, I am very much in favour of it, if it is not carried too far, as it gives you a chance to breed a good bird if you follow the lines I have suggested. I have already shown you how I mate my birds, but I have a pedigree of every one; which plays a very important part when I hold the cock up in front of the hen for my final decision. Perhaps the hen will be too flat in head for my fancy; naturally in that case I shall have chosen a cock bird with a good round head. Then the question is: has he been bred of birds with good round heads? If not, the chances are I shall get more flat-headed birds than I require. If the hen is perfect in my eye, except a little short, I am careful not to choose a cock of short stature, but for such a hen I would require a male not only of good length but one bred off long birds.

Perhaps I have more than one fault to meet; say, the hen is slack in feather and too pale in colour. For such a hen, if a buff, I would choose a green bird, extra tight in feather. Although condition has a lot to do with tightness of feather, it is better to try and breed tight-feathered birds. You may not have a green bird suitable; then perhaps you will have one with green blood in its veins, or if not, you will choose your deepest coloured bird. If the hen is a yellow, of course you will want a buff cock bred from highly coloured birds. Here again is a secret of success, and this brings me to explain how far I believe in inbreeding. Always be on the look-out for a bird suitable for your best hen or cock; it does not matter which way you do it; but I will explain through the hen.

A Speculation.

We will suppose I have a hen that just needs a little improvement in shape; the body hardly tapers sufficient, say, to make the bird of good wedge shape, and the shoulders not quite round enough for my liking. I should be on the look-out for a cock to improve these points; of course, such a cock may have a failing or two in other ways. I trust to the hen to do her part here. Having found the cock, I mate him to the hen, and the following year I inbreed, putting the cock with the most suitable young hen, and the hen with the most suitable young cock. The next year I cross them with my other stock, if the speculation has proved to be a good one; if not, I keep them out of my strain, and am not always to be heard saying, "I have got a bird of so and so, and it has ruined my strain; I cannot breed it out." By getting a bird about every four years I can keep my strain pure and healthy, and not over-do inbreeding.

Someone may say, "Oh, but my birds are perfect; I can't get wrong in the mating." But don't be misled. You may have good birds, you may be winning, but you don't know what seed you are sowing that will grow when you least expect it; and you will have to bring new blood in sometime. You cannot go on for ever without a cross, so always be preparing. This neglect has sent more than one out of the Fancy. They have bred with some success for a year or two, after which they begin to fall off in their success at the shows. Some older exhibitor comes along and says you want a cross. So off some run and purchase the best bird they can find, with a record in the shows, it having won no end of prizes; and yet in every way unsuitable to pair with the stock that they have. It is not the bird that wins the most that always breeds the most winners.

Preparing Birds for Exhibition.

In preparing birds for the shows the first thing is to have them as tame as possible. It is impossible for a judge to note the good points of a bird that is flying all over the cage. If you commence to train them to run in and out of the show cages as soon as they leave the nest, half the battle is won. Always have a show cage or two hanging in front of your stock cages.

Whenever I am having half an hour's reading or writing I just run a bird or two into a show cage, place them in front of me, and now and again turn them round and speak to them. It is wonderful how they throw themselves into position. A judge likes, as soon as he goes to a cage, to see the bird throw its head up and stand as if all the show belonged to it; it catches his eye, which means a lot when he is awarding the cards.

Books for Bird Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1.—By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

My Mules and How I Bred Them.

By G. STEVENS (Cheltenham).

If anything in bird breeding tests the patience of a true fancier more than anything else, it is the trying for Mules and Hybrids, especially the endeavour to breed something fit for the show bench. As it is the most popular Mule bred, I will deal first with the Goldfinch-Canary cross, giving my own experiences, etc.

In the First Instance.

In the first instance I like to get my Goldies in August or September as Greypates, and moult them out myself in flights with a few hen Canaries for companions, as I find they settle down to cage life quicker, and by being in a good sized flight with the perches far enough apart, it compels them to use their wings. It is also good for the hen Canaries. I allow them free access to the bath by keeping one hung on the front outside, up till, say, one o'clock, when I remove same. I find it a good plan to let the birds have the bath as soon as it is light, as they feed first and generally go straight and bathe. Never under any circumstances let the bath stop on after 1 o'clock, or very likely you will find the birds washing in the afternoon, when they have not time to dry themselves; the result is a chill, and they join the great majority, and it is generally the best that go.

In buying your Goldies pick out the largest and brightest looking birds, as you want plenty of size and colour in your Finches as well as your hen Canaries.

I prefer to breed my own hens. I do so by using the Lancashire cock (yellow preferred) and a nice short, thick-bodied Norwich hen buff, bred from clears; this should be as wide across the skull as possible. By pairing these you will get length and shape. Pick out the widest skulled youngsters with plenty of body, and as short and tight in feather as possible (yellows preferred). You will be more likely to breed something choice from this cross in the shape of a light Mule, and you will also get plenty of colour in the dark Mules. Do not get rid of any smaller hen Canaries from this strain, as they will come in well for putting up with Siskins and Redpolls.

The reason I advise the use of this class of hen Canary is that you get a better and wider front on your Mules, which tends to show the blazo up better, and gives the birds a much bolder and finished appearance; the more so if you colour-feed them as you can get moro colour on to them, and in a good one you can hardly tell where the blaze finishes. Also this is an excellent foundation to work on for a light muling strain.

Feeding the Birds.

We will now take it for granted that you have got your Finches and Canaries nicely through the moult, and the time is, say, January. Tho Finches ought to be coming into full song by then. We now come to the important item of feeding, etc. Wo will begin at the time of catching. I treat my birds as follows: I allow them to have free access to niger, teazle, hemp, and Spanish Canary seeds, by placing theso in separate tins hung on to the bottom rail of the front of flight. I hang water-tins ou the outside of flights, tins to be, say, 4 or 5 inches long. When you have got your Finches used to tho feeding you can remove the tins outside one at a time, and then gradually reduce the hemp, niger and teazle, till you get them on to the Canary seed; pay a little more for this seed, and insist on having the best Spanish Canary you can get; it will pay you. Let that be their staple food with, say, a half-teaspoonful of hemp to each Finch. Every other day make the same allowance of maw seed. Continue with this diet until January, and then commence the following treatment, still continning to use the Spanish as a staple food; half a pint each linseed, teazle, niger, hemp, and groats; mix these well together. Soak a piece of stale bread (the size of a tennis ball) in cold water for an hour; afterwards squeeze out the water, rub in a thimbleful of cod liver oil, and well mix. Boil one or two fresh eggs (according to the number of birds you are feeding) for about ten or fifteen minutes after coming to the boil. I prefer thin Social biscuits, at 4d. per pound, to mix with the egg. I use four biscuits to one egg. I crush tho biscuits and then chop up the eggs and well mix together.

The Weekly Fare.

Now we come to giving the foods, etc. Suppose we start on Sunday by giving the seed mixture. Allow a teaspoonful of this to each Finch; you will find the hen Canaries will eat the mixed seed, especially the niger; but this will not hurt them: it will keep them free from egg-binding later on. On Monday I give the bread and cod liver oil diet, allowing a piece the size of a small "crack" nut to each bird (Finches and Canaries). On Tuesday I give the seed diet again; on Wednesday the egg-food, mixing a little maw seed with it. I allow a teaspoonful to each bird. On Thursday I give the seed diet; Friday the cod liver oil diet; on Saturday the seed diet, and on Sunday the egg-food.

You may continue this treatment right on through the breeding season. Give young dandelion as soon as you can get it, but take care it is not frosted at all. I give the leaves, seeds, heads, roots and all; in fact, just as I pull it out of the ground. Let them have it fresh overy day. If you follow this treatment you will never havo any difficulty in getting your Finches to breed.

But there is one thing you must not overlook: do not put your Finches up too soon. You will find that the beginning of May is plenty soon enough. I run one nest of Canaries off before putting the Finch back with the hens. By following this plan, when the hens are ready to go to nest again directly you introduce the Finch they start calling, and the Finch being in such high condition it is very rarely he does not respond, and you get a full clutch of eggs. Do not leave the Finch in with the hen when she starts to lay, no matter how attentive ho may be, or you will afterwards regret it. Let the hen bring up the youngsters herself. I take the Finch away at night, remove the egg in the morning, and run the Finch back again. When the hen has laid her third egg I take him away altogether, and run him with another hen.

Two Wives.

I always work one Finch to two hens. It does not hurt him, as I can instance one case where, having a Finch too many, and also five hen Canaries more than I had room for, I turned them into an outside aviary, and he at once commenced to pair up with some of them. So I put some nest boxes in, and plenty of moss and cow hair, and the hens started building straight away. I had three rounds of eggs from them, and in only one case were there clear eggs, and the hen in question was a very spiteful one.

If you should happen to breed a light Mule you will have some of that particular hen's young (by adopting the plan of taking a nest of Canaries first) to fall back on. I should have mentioned that I part the hen Canaries and the Finches at the end of February.

The Linnet-Canary Cross.

We will now turn our attention to the Linnet-Canary cross. I advise following the same treatment from the time of catching as for the Goldies; the only difference I make is in the seed diet. I always give the following mixture, allowing Spanish Canary as a staple diet:—Half a pint of teazle, a quarter of pint each German rape and English rape, about half a pint of hemp, niger, linseed, and maw, mixed in equal parts; and I mix all together. Give as much shepherd's purse and chickweed, in addition, as they will eat.

You need not separate the Linnet and Canary at all, as they nest rather earlier than the Goldies, and the Linnets make the best of fathers, and will take their turn at feeding the youngsters. They will not as a rule interfere with the eggs, but in some cases they will turn on the youngsters when they are a day or so old, in which case I remove them till theso are about eight or nine days old, when the Linnets can be generally trusted with them.

These are the best songsters of any Mules, and command a ready sale as such. Light Mules of this strain are in great demand as show birds, being few and far between.

Other Crosses.

For the Siskin-Canary cross I advise exactly the same treatment as the one for the Goldie-Canary. The Mules bred from this cross are very small, but they are not in very great demand. There is one thing in their favour: they are very sweet songsters, if they are not very loud. They mostly take after the Siskin in plumage, but if you should happen to breed a light one, good in body and feather, hold tight to him, for you have a valuable show bird, especially if you give him a good moult, and do not colour-feed him too hot.

The Redpoll-Canary treat the same as the above-named cross, but remove the Redpoll in the same way as you would the Goldie; he is not to be trusted with the eggs or nest, being very mischievous. And he takes a great delight in pulling the nest to pieces. Give plenty of chickweed.

The Greenfinch-Canary is about the commonest cross. Follow the same diet as advised for the Goldie. Give for green-food as much groundsel seed heads as he will eat. You may also give him a mixture of the following seeds as well:—Equal parts of sunflower, wheat, dari, and oats; in fact, nothing seems to come amiss to him. The Mules are rather bulky in form, following much after the Greenfinch. They are not much in demand as show birds, but if you breed a good one, and don't colour-feed him too much, you will get in the money sometimes.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL

A White Bullfinch Caught at Kilgerran.

SIR,—I should be pleased to know through CAGE BIRDS if any fancier or catcher has heard of or caught a white Bullfinch. One was caught here at Kilgerran, Pembrokeshire, this past winter, but I am sorry to say it fell into inexperienced hands, and it killed itself by knocking against the wire of cage.

An Early Nest of Happy Young Thrushes.

SIR,—As showing how exceptionally mild has been the weather since Christmas, I noticed on Wednesday, March 16th, in Horniman Gardens, Forest Hill, London, S.E., a nest of Thrushes. The youngsters are big and plump, and upon taking another peep at them on the following Friday, they appeared to be perfectly happy and contented, despite the fact that snow was falling heavily at the time. The nest, I may add, is in a hedge quite close to the public footway; but the Chief Ranger of the grounds is keeping a fatherly eye on the nestlings, lest they are interfered with. Needless to say, some of his "mates" do not envy him in his self-imposed task, especially as many schoolboys frequent the place.

J. B. WATERMAN.

Wake Up, Fanciers!

SIR,—I think it is time fanciers and the bird-keeping public generally, not forgetting the trade also, got together for the purpose of guarding their interests. The present bird laws are absolutely no good for anyone or even for the birds themselves. These laws are made, in the majority of cases, by the big landowners, and are not made to protect the birds, but solely in the interests of game preservation. The majority of our County Counells are governed by these gentlemen, who will tell you it is cruel to keep a bird, but that Pheasant slaughter and fox-hunting are sport. Now, fanciers, where are you going to get your British birds from, say, five or ten years hence? Oxfordshire is now added to the list of closed counties for the Goldfinch, our best bird. Wako up; join hands, and let us thrash the matter out before it is too late. At the present time you are in the hands of these upper-class people who are too selfish to allow a poor man even to breathe the word "sport." The only way fishing was preserved to the lower classes was by their joining hands. Come along; don't be caught napping. Let us have a few suggestions from some of you with the longest heads. You cannot get away from the fact that British bird-keeping is being slowly but surely stifled; but it is only by a few landowners and sentimentalists—a very small minority of the British nation, who have too much of this world's goods, which makes these people selfish. I see the ball is started rolling by the Preston and Flowers case; so keep it going. Are you going to have all your hobbies, amusements, and, in many cases, your daily bread taken away from you? What we want is protection for our immense hobby and industry, as well as sensible protection for our native birds. Now, fanciers, don't fall asleep again.

C. ELKERTON.

Some Spring Notes for Fanciers.

SIR,—Spring cleaning in the bird room should be proceeded with at once. Every nook and corner should be cleansed; the stock should be removed to another apartment and the bird room fumigated with brimstone burned in a shovel, taking care to have all the air holes previously stopped, so as to destroy the vermin and microbes which may be about. This having been done, the windows should be opened for an hour or two, and everything on the walls removed. The walls should be thoroughly overhauled, the shelves and other woodwork washed with soft soap. The wood will be improved by being given a coat of paint or varnish. In putting the birds back they should be put into clean cages after being allowed to take a bath in lukewarm water containing quassia chips to destroy red mites, etc. Every breeding cage should be well washed with Izal, or Jeyes, or carbolic fluid added to the water. Apply "elbow grease" to every part to ensure the removal of all insects and dirt. It is an excellent plan to have the cages, etc., rinsed with pure cold water to remove the soapy feeling, and to hasten the drying. Clear wires should be sandpapered to remove rust. The woodwork should get a coat of spirit varnish, and all the utensils be thoroughly cleansed. The perches should be firmly fixed to prevent birds wobbling backwards and forwards; avoid loose perches. Nest boards should be cleansed and varnished. Nests, if painted with disinfectant at the start of the season, will be free from red mites and lice for the breeding season. The first week in April is a suitable time to put Canaries of all varieties into the breeding cages, and the beginning or middle of May is soon enough for wild birds in confinement, such as Canary with Bullfinch, Greenfinch-Bullfinch, Goldfinch-Bullfinch, Redpoll-Bullfinch, Linnet-Bullfinch, and other crosses, and British birds. The Bullfinch is a prolific layer when she starts, and it is difficult to keep pace with her. A large stock of common Canaries to act as foster parents should be kept in perfect condition if you are to be successful in hybrid-breeding. Winter the foster parents, and when compelled to buy get birds from a healthy room. An incomer should be kept away from the general stock for a time. An infected bird introduced into a room will affect the whole stock. Insert a piece of cuttlefish bone in the wires. Give egg mixture every second or third day, and when they are clear of frost dandelion roots. Supply material for building as soon as the birds are put into the breeding compartment, to obviate the plucking of the feathers. A pair which develop that habit usually attack the feathers of the young as soon as the young appear on the perch. Preferably, the birds should be trained to good habits. The winter weather has been severe, and naturally it will take one's stock a little longer than usual to get into condition Patience should be exercised; Nature will assert herself. The most successful pairs have been known not to commence laying till May. "False moult" is common at this period of the year, particularly with hens. A victim should be isolated and allowed to pass through the moult to be ready when finished moulting. Where possible it is wise to supply another mate for the period. In the aviary spring days are full of hope. If the golden opportunities presented in the start were taken advantage of success would be more general than it is. Avoid waste of every kind, and rear every bird that is hatched. I believe that many of the best that are hatched are lost to the Fancy owing to some oversight on the part of the owner. Early rising is necessary; an hour devoted to the birds in the morning is worth three hours in the afternoon.

THOMAS SMITH.

Is Early Breeding Disastrous?

SIR,—I see in your paper of March 19th that Mr. Francis has answered my letter re early breeding. I notice he mentions now that the young were bred in the living-room. Why did he not say this in his first letter, and save my writing? When novices see accounts of early breeding, of course they think they can do the same, and it proves disastrous nine cases out of ten. My experience is that good-class birds do not get into condition as soon as commoners.

A Chaffinch which Prefers to Live in Captivity.

SIR,—The following may be of interest to readers of CAGE BIRDS. Mr. Lackey, of Bothal (Morpeth), caught a cock Chaffinch three years ago, and gave it to my brother. This spring he grew tired of it and decided to give it its liberty. In three days it was back to its old haunts at Bothal, and walked straight into a trap cage, which Mr. Lackey put outside for it. Now it seems quite satisfied in the aviary. Where it was set at liberty is a good two miles from Bothal. My brother and I have seen the bird, and are quite sure of its identity. Its white legs betray it, too, as a house-moulted specimen.

How to Determine the Sex of Linnets.

SIR.—Can any of your many readers say how I can determine the sex of a Linnet? Just before Christmas my son brought one home caught only a few days before. It was very tame; in fact, it took so quietly to its new surroundings that I thought it must be an "old stager." As it was not the time for the singing of birds, and I was anxious to discover the sex, I turned to a certain work, where I found a page on British birds, with special reference to the Linnet. I was there told that the male bird was distinguishable from the hen by a red cap, and breast feathers yellow. Down came the cage bird, and there were the marks, red feathers on crown of head, the breast feathers yellow. Here I reeted, until a few days ago when talking with a friend on the subject. He said the marks—red cap and yellow breast—were the features of both cock and hen Linnet when free, and that both lost these points when they were house-moulted. Can any one say whether the book or the friend is correct? LINNET.

Should Blind Mules Win at Shows?

SIR,—In reply to "Reader," I am pleased to think that he admits the Mule which stood 3rd at Guisborough is a good one; and so it is without doubt. But he contends that the same is somewhat deficient in vision. May be, and may be not—a matter of opinion. Yes; I detest noms-de-plume; if a man is a man, let him not be ashamed of his name. Again I say, that my honest opinion is that "Reader" was a disappointed or jealous exhibitor at the time. As to "Tyro, Darlington," I have it on very good authority that the Yarm stewards did not point out a blind bird to Mr. Houlton previous to judging, and as far as I am concerned, I consider the suggestion a reflection on the stewards. As regards Guisborough Show (which I judged), I must thank "Tyro" for his information, as to there being no "jealousy" on his part as to my awards. Also (I have pleasure in saying) my friends at Guisborough wrote me some time ago re judging again for them on December 31st next, but unfortunately I could not entertain this, having already booked another engagement. Surely this is proof of satisfaction given on January 1st last, at the said show? To sum up, both "Reader" and "Tyro" are mischief makers; of that I am fully convinced; the former a disappointed exhibitor, the latter a would-be judge.

The Breeding of Goldfinches in Cages.

SIR,—The question is very often asked, can Goldfinches and Bullfinches be bred in cages? I am able to affirm that Goldfinches can, and I have had a long experience of these birds (they were one of the first birds I ever kept when attending school, and for over 30 years now I have hardly ever been without one or many). I had two nests of eggs, which I placed under hen Canaries to hatch and bring up, but as the "Fatal Disease" took all my Canaries off, the eggs were not hatched, much to my great regret. The first time I tried to breed Goldfinches was by chance. I had a pair saved from a nest which I had reared the previous year. I made, boy-like, a box cage from an old biscuit box and put them together, or rather let them stay together, for I had not parted them since they were raised from the nest. I saw the hen carrying something about in her beak, so I got a nest of the Green Linnet and put in a little box in one corner of the cage, which she took to at once. She laid three eggs in it and sat most of the time, when the cock managed (I expect it was he) to peck all the eggs. I cleared out that nest and gave her another, when she laid four eggs, only two of these being good. These were left alone, and she seemed to sit much closer than she did the first time. She hatched out two young ones, which she with the help of the cock managed to bring up. This was my first success in bird breeding between British birds. I was then only a schoolboy, and was quite the envy of all my mates, whom I used to take to see them. The birds never had any egg food of any kind—nothing but black and white seeds as we used to call them in those days—Canary and cole seeds. They had plenty of groundsel, chickweed and plantain. After this success it was some years before I tried to breed them again in cages, as after this experience I began to use the birds in various ways for hybrid breeding, but principally to cross with the Canary, as that was supposed to be the most valuable mule then. My next venture would be some 15 years ago, again breeding five young ones in a cage from two nests—from birds which were hand-reared. The young were all very small indeed. It might have been because they were brother and sister, and did not get sufficient nourishing food when they were young. I have also heard of, and seen reported several times in years gone by, cases where the birds have been bred in cages and in rooms. I have never been able to try them in an outdoor aviary. No donbt they would breed freely there with other birds. If any one has any of these birds, I should advise them to give them a trial in a cage; they might prove successful, as both of these birds will breed freely with other species in cages. But they would prove more valuable if mated with other birds, so as to produce Hybrids. Still, every one is not so sweet on Hybrid breeding as I am.

SIR,—We have sent out close on five hundred copies of our membership tickets for 1910 to Scotch Fancy and Belgian breeders, and I would ask these latter gentlemen to look at Rule No. 2, in which there is unfortunately an error. After the word birds, delete the words, "maximum four in one class," and insert in place thereof the following: "Namely, one in each class one to ten, but not more than two in any of the classes one to eight; maximum four in each class nine and ten." We hope that fanciers will join and enable us to establish a record. With your permission, sir, we will publish a full list of members' names in your issue of June 18th.

J. R. MEIKLE, Secretary.

Two Recipes Wanted.

SIR,—I am enclosing recipes for a spirit varnish, and for a cheap distemper that will, if it is made right, stand almost if not quite as much washing as some of the washable distempers on the market. I use the distemper myself and find it can be washed several times with warm, soapy water, after which it looks almost as good as it did when first put on; and it is a job to get off after it is put on. To each pint or so of freshly burnt lime add a good heaping handful of salt, stir well together dry; then slack to a cream with boiling water. Let it stand one hour and apply one coat; then let the cages stand for an hour or so till the first coat has set a bit, and apply another. Avoid coarse brush marks. Always apply the wash the thickness of good cream. It can, of course, be tinted with colours if desired, and always use freshly-burnt lime, as lime that has become moist by keeping never gives such good results. Dozens of cages can be done for 2d. Recipe for spirit varnish 1: White shellac, 1½ozs.; methylated spirits, 5ozs.; if too thick, thin with the spirits. Spirit varnish 2: Gum benzoin, 1½ozs., methylated spirits, 1 pint; stand in a warm place till gum is dissolved, shake frequently and apply with a camel hair brush. I favour oil varnish myself, as it wears better.

LONDON FEDERATION OF C.B.S

A meeting of the Council of the London Federation was held on March 18th, at the Feathers Hotel, Great Chapel Street, Westminster, Mr. H. E. Tringham (chairman) presiding. There were sixteen gentlemen present. Arising out of the correspondence, it was decided to put the rule relating to defaulting members into force in respect of three members of the London and Counties O.S.; to ask the Leyton and Dist. C.B.A. to reconsider (at a full meeting of its members) its decision to resign membership of the Federation; and to uphold the recent disqualifications of the Yorkshire Union.

Election of Officers.

Messrs. Penton and Tomsett were appointed scrutineers of the voting papers for the election of officers. Mr. R. L. Crisp moved automatically from the vice-chairmanship to the chairmanship. Mr. R. P. Harper, who received the highest number of votes for the vice-chairmanship, declined (per letter and Mr. Penton) to accept office; and as Messrs. Boxall and Pawley tied next, it was decided to submit their names to the vote again. Messrs. Burn and Dewhurst were elected trustees, Messrs. Cook and Mugford auditors, and Mr. Adamthwaite secretary. A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Adamthwaite for the services he had rendered as secretary during the past year, several of the delegates expressing their appreciation of his work.

A financial statement of accounts was submitted, but as it bore the signature of only one of the auditors, it was considered best to put the document in order by having the signatures of both, and it was referred back for that purpose.

The Council's Report.

The secretary read his report for the year, which was received with applause. It reads as follows:—

"In presenting the report for the year 1909, the Council would place on record its appreciation of the services rendered by its officers, and especially those of Mr. H. E. Tringham, for the able and courteous manner in which he has discharged the duties of the chair.

"Attendance of Delegates: One of the most pleasing features of the sittings of Council and committee has been the splendid record of attendances put in by the delegates. During the year some eight council meetings were held. Four members of the council attended on every occasion; five attended seven meetings, six attended six meetings, and five attended five, and throughout the year, out of thirty-three officers and delegates there was an average of twenty-three present at each meeting. It is believed that these are record attendances at meetings of executive bodies.

"Insurance Matters: In reviewing the work of the year, there is every reason to believe that the Federation has filled a long-felt want, and that the various undertakings have met with the approval of the societies at present affiliated to it. The work, in some instances, has been of a protracted and onerous nature, but in most cases the objects attained have been satisfactory. It will be remembered that in February last the council had before it the case of Simpson v. London and North-Western Railway, relative to the loss of a bird in transit. Unfortunately, as the member had not complied with the rules of the railway in the matter of insurance, the council, after having, by the courtesy of a member, obtained the opinion of an eminent counsel, were reluctantly compelled to dismiss the case. Chief among the work of the past year has been the inauguration of the scheme of insurance. After many months of work, and a great deal of time and labour, a scheme was eventually successfully evolved, but the council regrets that the response from members of the Federation has not been all that could be desired, and confidently hopes that in the near future the scheme will be taken up more heartily. It is without doubt by far the most comprehensive scheme of insurance yet put before fanciers, and it behoves each member to participate in the benefits, and so help the council to make the venture the success it deserves.

"The Question of Defaulting Members: Another item of importance has been the working of Rules 6 and 7 of those relating to the conduct of societies. Lists of defaulting members were submitted to the council for consideration by the London and Counties O.A., the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., and the Lewisham and Dist. C.B.S. In the case of the London and Counties O.A., the council, after hearing the evidence of both sides, determined that it had no jurisdiction in the matter, and had to dismiss the cases on the ground that the offences complained of were enacted prior to the idea of a Federation becoming an established fact. In the case of the defaulting members submitted by the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., these cases the council found were within the rules of the Federation. After collecting a great deal of evidence, the council reluctantly had to suspend from all privileges of membership some twenty-three members of that society, but it is satisfactory to know that in some half-dozen instances, on the recommendation of the council, the claims of the Dulwich and Peckham Society were met. The cases of the Lewisham and District C.B.S. are still under the consideration of the council.

"Railway Matters: It was hoped that last year the council would have been able to take up the question of the charges of railway companies in regard to the carriage of birds to and from shows, and passenger fares, but the more pressing work of the council made this impossible. It is pleasing to note, however, that this question is likely to come on almost immediately, and the council confidently looks forward to some concessions being made. In this connection, the affiliated societies will be glad to know that the council have obtained a promise of the whole-hearted support of the Cage Bird Union and the Yorkshire Union, also that those Unions have agreed to uphold any disqualifications made by the council of the Federation. It is a matter for congratulation that the three bodies are on friendly terms—which fact should greatly strengthen the work of each.

"Financial Statement: In presenting the financial statement for the past year, it is a matter of regret that the expenditure should have exceeded the income, but when the enormous amount of work consequent upon the first year's working and the inauguration of the Federation is taken into consideration, the results attained are in every way satisfactory, and it is a matter for congratulation that the balance on the wrong side for the year's working is only some 32 -. The heaviest items have been those of postages and printings, but now that the Federation has been successfully floated, the former item should greatly diminish in the coming year. Two of the chief causes of the expenditure have been the canvassing of non-affiliated societies, and the number of council and committee meetings it was necessary to hold in order that the work could be dealt with.

"In conclusion, the council appeals to all affiliated societies to continue to render the same unstinted support they have done in the past, and to help, if possible, in getting those societies in London at present outside the Federation to join. By this means not only will the hands of the council be strengthened, but the work will be carried on more effectually. It is to be hoped that in the not far distant future all societies will join hands, so that the benefits which the Federation is seeking on behalf of London fanciers will be enjoyed by one united body. Much good will result if all the societies in London will unite, always remembering that unity is strength. On the proposition of Mr. Cook, seconded by Mr. Dewhurst, it was agreed to adopt the report as read.

The Railway Question.

Mr. Birch moved "That the council take an early opportunity of approaching the railway companies with a view to obtaining reductions in the charges of the conveyance of birds, etc." In doing so, he said his society (Queen's Park and Dist. C.B.A.) felt sure if they could come to some terms with the railway companies, it would have a beneficial effect on the Fancy in general, and on the open shows. Mr. A. W. Curtis seconded.

Mr. Tyson asked if it would be altogether advisable for the Federation to take up this matter alone; would it not be better to combine with the Yorkshire Union and the Cage Bird Union? If anything was to be done it could only be done by combination—(hear, hear)—and it would need not only the decision of these bodies but a petition of the whole of the Fancy.

Mr. Thorpe said he endorsed what had been said, and recommended the adoption of a whole-hearted policy. It was of no use, he said, their "going at" the railway companies half-heartedly, they would only be laughed at; they must be determined to see this thing through. Then, if the companies saw that they were in earnest, very probably something would be done. Mr. Curtis stated that at the meeting of the C.B.U. held at Manchester, it was pointed out that the Union secretary's letter to the companies on the question of concessions to fanciers had been practically ignored. He thought they should get as many signatures as possible to a petition.

Mr. Adamthwaite said that already the Cage Bird and the Yorkshire Unions had agreed to work in conjunction with the Federation in this respect.

It was decided to appoint a sub-committee to consider what action the Federation shall take, and Messrs. Tyson, Birch, Tomsett, and Thorpe were elected to form the committee.

Mr. Penton moved, on behalf of Mr. Harper, "That members of societies exhibiting in open competition should notify their respective secretaries of any wins." After some discussion the motion was lost, five voting for and seven against.

Mr. J. C. Birch was appointed assistant hon. secretary to the Federation, and Mr. Tringham was, on the motion of Mr. Thorpe, seconded by Mr. Curtis, co-opted a member of the Executive Council in recognition of his services as the Federation's first chairman. Several of the delegates spoke in eulogistic terms of the capable and careful manner in which he had discharged his duties. A vote of thanks to him was also passed, on the motion of Mr. Curtis, seconded by Mr. Cook.

It was decided, on the motion of Mr. Curtis, that the meetings of the council of the Federation be held quarterly in future. The meeting then closed.

KEIGHLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held March 8th at the Black Horse Hotel, when 30 members were present. We had a table show and lecture on the birds present, also a fine lecture on washing birds for exhibition, which was very ably given by Mr. S. Dean (Bradford). After the lecture questions were asked, which were satisfactorily answered by the lecturer. A vote of thanks brought a pleasant evening to a close. Result of table show:—1, Miles; 2, Sawley; 3, C. Jeffery; 4, Sharp and Jeffery.—J. Binns, Sec.

SOWERBY BRIDGE & DIS. C.B.S.

On March 16th, at the Bull's Head Hotel, the members held their annual supper, which was served in excellent style by Mr. F. Walker. Everyone having done ample justice to the festive board, a capital programme was gone through, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The following artistes contributed:—Messrs. T. Wilson, J. Carrington, McAndrews, E. Crossley, and H. Crossley, while Mr. J. E. Priestley proved an efficient accompanist. During the evening the Secretary (Mr. A. E. Morton) presented the prizes to the successful competitors at the monthly shows. The following were the winners:—Section 1; 1, challenge cup (to be held for the ensuing year) and lady's gold bangle for most points gained throughout the shows, also silver cruet for most entries throughout, Mr. F. Townsend; 2, money prize, Mr. Haigh; 3, set of table knives and carved oak case, Mr. J. Robertshaw; 4, set of carvers, Crossley Bros. Section 2: 1, for most points gained throughout, and gold medal, Mr. A. Sutcliffe; 2, lady's gold necklace, Mr. E. Stobart; 3, flower vase, Lumb and Horsfall; 4, tea sifter and silver spoon, Mr. P. Saunderland; extra prize, silver-plated cake knife, Mr. Wilby. During the evening the cup was filled by the winner, whose health, coupled with "The Society," was drunk. Prizes like these are worth winning, and we would like fanciers in the district to rally round and help us have a still more prosperous society and a more successful year. Mr. S. H. Jeffries kindly promised a rose bowl for competition next year, for which he was heartily thanked. Votes of thanks to the artistes, and to the host and hostess, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," brought to a close a pleasant and enjoyable evening.—A. E. Morton, Hon. Sec.

W. H. CLARKE, Seed Merchant,
30, Nurseries, Hampton, Middlesex.

Nests of birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

GOLDEN DOG (Norwich) B.B.S.

Annual smoking concert held on March 14th. During the evening Mr. S. Roberts, the judge, was presented with a splendid clock as an appreciation of his services to the society. A good programme was indulged in. We were honoured by the presence of the secretary and chairman of the "All England"—Messrs. R. Roll and W. W. Freestone—and the secretary of the Norwich Amateurs C.B.A. Mr. R. Vines was chairman.—F. Burrows, Secretary. [Will Mr. Burrows kindly communicate his address to us?—Editor.]

EAST BOWLING AND DIS. B.F.A.

Special meeting held on March 19th in St. John's School, when, to a capital attendance of members and friends, Mr. J. Hartley (Bingley) gave his lecture on "Breeding." From a large and varied experience Mr. Hartley proved himself to have a thorough grasp of the subject, and he enlightened the audience on many points, particularly addressing some well-chosen remarks to the novices. If only the splendid advice were taken seriously in each individual case splendid achievements would result. Discussion followed, several members asking the lecturer questions, which were satisfactorily answered. The meeting terminated with a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer, proposed by the chairman (Mr. Firth), seconded by Mr. A. Bottomley, and carried unanimously. Mr. Hartley suitably responded, expressing his delight at being present.—L. Booth, Secretary.

SOUTH MANCHESTER C.B.S.

A washing competition for novices was held on March 7th, when the following were the prize-winners: 1st, Mr. Wilson, pipe and case; 2nd, Mr. Knight, 2s. 6d.; 3rd, Mr. Berry, 1s. Messrs. Myers and Washbourne placed the awards. Meeting held at headquarters on February 28th, when the prizes won at the series of table shows were presented by Mr. A. G. Davis. After a few remarks he presented the gold medal to Mr. Lester, who gained 77 points; Mr. Myers won silver medal, 63 points; Mr. Fairhurst, pipe and case, 37 points. After a few acknowledgments a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Davis was carried. The rest of the evening was taken up with a washing competition between Mr. Parker (Ardwick) and Mr. F. Washbourne (South Manchester) for a handsome set of glass shades presented by Mr. Garbutt. After a close contest Mr. Parker was declared the winner; Mr. Davis judged.—Fred. Washbourne.

ARDWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held March 15th, at the Onward Hall, Ardwick, Manchester. Mr. Downing (C.-on-M.) gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on "The Breeding and Management of the Yorkshire Canary." The lecturer had brought several pairs of birds for illustration, especially for the benefit of the novices—to show them how to match them for breeding, also showing them the Yorkshire's different points. He dealt with the introduction of Belgian blood, inbreeding, pedigree breeding, double buffing, double yellowing, etc. The lecture was interesting and much appreciated. At the close many questions were asked, and Mr. Downing proved equal to the task, answering some to the satisfaction of all. A hearty vote of thanks was given him, which brought a very pleasant evening to a close. At next meeting, April 5th, we are to have a lecture by Mr. R. B. Fryer on British birds. A hearty welcome will be given to fanciers and friends.—J. Spencer, Hon. Sec.

BINGLEY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Members and friends listened to a lecture on March 16th by Mrs. C. M. Sunderland (Bradford), entitled, "How I Manage My Bird-room." The chairman on this interesting occasion was Mr. Sunderland. The lecturer commenced by giving a brief outline of the aspect of the room and cages, and said how essential it was to see that everything was scrupulously clean. Another virtue which the speaker made special mention of was patience, showing how necessary it was to cultivate this in order to achieve the best results. Mr. Sunderland then gave us a detailed account of her birds—how she paired them, and what she had proved, after years of experience, to be the best methods, whereby anyone might probably be successful in breeding one or two winners. A good discussion followed, and Mrs. Sunderland proved quite equal to the occasion, answering the different questions in a masterly manner. I am sure we ought to feel proud that we have connected with the Fancy ladies of the type of Mrs. Sunderland, who are capable of managing birds, and go out into the Fancy giving their experiences for the common good. There was a fine sprinkling of lady friends, and some of our Bradford friends put in an appearance. I am sure both these elements have a tendency to cultivate and develop a fraternity in the Fancy which will make us better and stronger in our principles. A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Sunderland was carried. Mr. Sunderland responded on behalf of his wife, thus bringing to a close a profitably spent evening.—A. Livesey, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN CREST CLUB.

Annual Meeting.

Annual meeting held at Newcastle-on-Tyne on March 9th; Mr. Thos. Robson presided. The Secretary read his report upon the previous year's workings, which proved that there had been a slight decrease in the membership, although the quality of the birds exhibited by members was superior to anything that had ever graced the show bench previously. Mr. Robson said the club was established for the purpose of encouraging the breeding of good Crests, which there was no doubt had been achieved. It was decided to withdraw the silver medals from the old bird classes at all shows receiving our patronage. But we intend giving both gold and silver medals to young bird class as heretofore. The balance-sheets were presented and passed. The following gentlemen were made members: Messrs. Dobson and Son (Blaydon-on-Tyne), E. Gray (Blackhill), and J. Hesketh (St. Helens). It was decided to reduce the subscription to 2s. 6d., with 1s. entrance fee. We hope the adoption of this popular subscription fee will induce more to join our ranks, with a view to trying to obtain a better entry in Crest classes than during the past season. If something is not done to stimulate the Crest Fancy I am afraid show authorities will tire of providing classes for Crests. It was agreed to hold our club show in conjunction with the annual show of one of the undermentioned societies, viz., Blaydon-on-Tyne, Nov. 4th and 5th; Sunderland, Nov. 18th and 19th; and Gateshead, Dec. 9th and 10th. As the allotting of our patronage has caused some unpleasantness in past years, it was decided to vote by ballot, so as to give all members the privilege of voting. I will be obliged if all members will forward to me before the end of this month the names of the society they are in favour of, so that the society chosen can be informed in time to provide the necessary classification. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Sunderland on June 1st, when I hope to see a good attendance. By the way, I would like to remind members that subscriptions are due.—J. G. Hutchinson, Hon. Sec.

HYDE AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

At a well-attended meeting held on March 14th, a lecture was given on the Norwich Plainhead, by Mr. F. Barraclough, and a very warm discussion followed on the introduction of green blood. The lecture turned out to be very interesting, numerous questions being asked, especially by our young members, who seemed to be intent on knowing what they were to do before the breeding season commenced. At ten o'clock we had to adjourn one of the best discussions ever held by the society.—F. Barraclough, sec.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Special meeting held on March 17th, to consider our position as regards the Cage Bird Union, and whether we retain or resign our membership. Mr. Currah was in the chair. Mr. G. Taylor proposed and Mr. W. Scott seconded "That this society leave the C.B.U." Various members spoke on both sides, including Messrs. Storey, W. Curry, G. Taylor, J. MacDonald, C. G. Petterson, G. W. MacPartling, J. G. Hutchinson, T. Robson, J. Curry, W. Scott, and T. C. Crawhall. After a two hours' discussion, the chairman put the motion to the vote, when 28 voted for it and 9 against, and the secretary was instructed to forward the necessary notice to leave. The following new members were admitted:—Miss Kate Haggie (Benton), and Messrs. R. Howard, W. Innes, Jos. Blackburn, T. Usher (all of Newcastle), and A. Grey (Morpeth). The next meeting will be held Thursday, April 7th, when Mr. J. Shepherd will give us a cage-making demonstration. Members' subscriptions are now due, and those wishing to join the Society should do so at once, as the May meeting is the last at which members may join in order to obtain the benefits as members at the show.—T. C. Crawhall, hon. sec.

WIBSEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Third successful annual tea and concert, held at the Slackside School, on March 19th. About 160 fanciers and friends sat down to tea, which was provided by the lady fanciers of the society, who spared neither time, money, nor trouble, to see that everybody was satisfied. After three sittings down the tables were cleared, and everybody settled down to be entertained by songs, quartettes, and club swinging. Mr. R. Halliday (president of the Yorkshire Union) took the chair, and in the course of a few remarks, said he was always pleased to come to Wibsey, because they always had the best of feeds and entertainment. Songs were afterwards rendered by Miss Murgatroyd (soprano), Miss Priestley (contralto), and Messrs. Coglan, Watson, Knowles, and Bannan; the "Bradford Lyric Quartette Party," composed of Messrs. Knowles, Watson, Goglan, and Bannan, also sang several quartettes, two of which were humorous, entitled "A Catastrophe," and "Simple Simon." Miss L. Jagger gave a good display of club swinging, which was deservedly encored, and she gave a recitation as a reply, by way of a change, as it would have been taxing her strength too much to have asked her to "swing" again straight off. Mr. H. Lucksmith made a very efficient accompanist. During the interval Mr. Halliday presented the prizes for the season 1909 to the successful competitors, Mr. J. Swailes winning the first gold medal, value 25s.; Mr. G. W. Hudson being second for a gold medal value 20s. Mr. J. Lawson won Mr. Henderson's gold medal. Messrs. Taylor Bros. won gold centre medal presented by Messrs. J. Haigh and Sons. Mr. F. Hanson won Ramsden's medal for best fed bird at Boxing-day show. Mr. D. Thornton won the electro teapot presented for most points in selling classes, and Messrs. Lister and Woodhead the silver medal for most points in extra novice classes. Mr. Taylor (one of the residents in the Corporation property, over which the Health Committee of the Corporation have been objecting) said that all the other chaps had been tongue-tied, but there had been a lot of trouble in their Canary island at Bankfort. But he was glad to say that all was settled, and that they could go on breeding Canaries in the Corporation property. Mr. Johnson proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman, entertainers, and ladies, which was seconded by the president. Mr. D. Thornton. Mr. Halliday suitably responded, and a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by all present.—E. W. Johnson, hon. sec.

SHIPLEY O.S.

A Lecture on Yorkshire Breeding.

An interesting lecture was given on Mar. 8th, upon the breeding, etc., of the Yorkshire, by Mr. H. J. Chittenden (Bolton Woods). He commenced by pointing out that the novice of to-day was in a much better position to get together a good breeding stock than was the case about twenty years ago, when the Fancy was in its infancy. He started about 25 years ago with a self-green Belgian cock, presented to him by his father, and a hen which he purchased from a friend for sixpence, and to obtain this meant a journey of six miles there and six miles back. He soon started to make headway, and was the lucky possessor of a few birds which won for him. At that day 30s. was, he said, considered a very good price indeed for a Yorkshire, but of course things were quite different to-day. His mode of commencing the breeding season is first to thoroughly overhaul all cages by scalding out, but he pointed out that he was no believer in either colour-washing or enamelling his cages, and recommended just the plain clean boards, contending that any wash, etc., tended to harbour red mite. He gave a recipe for painting all cages outside as follows:—Obtain 1lb. of tallow, two pennyworth of camphor, and melt into a jam jar, pouring into it parallin until full. Before pairing up he always looks to the claws of all the breeding stock, and trims them if necessary; many eggs get pierced in the nest through the birds having too sharp claws. As to egg-food, he finds nothing beats the old-fashioned method of mixing good home-made bread, and plenty of it, with hard-boiled egg, cannot be beaten; to this he also adds a little maw seed. Whilst the hens are feeding he supplies as much hemp and rape as they will eat. Three weeks old is the best possible time to wean the young. At about five weeks old he adds to their drinking water a pinch of alum. This he finds keeps down inflammation. The recipe was given to him by a very old game-keeper, who had used it with much success in the rearing of young pheasants. For the weaned young he makes the egg-food a little more moist by adding to it a little milk. He, however, pointed out that any fancier who had a system of his own, which had answered with good results, should keep to it, and on no account change. On the cock side he liked a good big bird, 7ins. long, or above if possible, with all other necessary good points; and as regards the hens, he prefers good quality medium sized birds. Big hens, according to his experience, are often somewhat lazy. He next went on to the subject of the breeding of marked birds, upon which a very interesting discussion followed between the lecturer and our friend Mr. Philip Mason. Mr. Chittenden also kindly gave us a brief outline of his scheme for the printing of all schedules in the Yorkshire Union hand-book, upon which also several questions were asked. A very pleasant evening came to a close with the usual thanks to the lecturer.—H. Martin, hon. sec.

I am very well satisfied with the result of my advertising in "Cage Birds."—MR. GAME (Wandsworth, S.W.).

Kindly thank all who replied to my small advertisement in "Cage Birds," re Yorkshire cocks. I had so many replies, and answered those who sent stamp. I am now suited with regard to same.—H. PRIEST (Henley-on-Thames).

In reply to my last advertisement in "Cage Birds" re songsters, I had more applications than I had birds, which speaks well for "C.B." I wish "Cage Birds," and its staff a long life, health and happiness.—H. HUBBARN (Loughborough).

Kindly thank the numerous applicants who wrote re my advertisement in "Cage Birds." I had 20 enquirers after the birds, which in itself proves that your paper must have a large circulation. I wish "C.B." every success.—ROBT. WILLIAMSON, Jun. (Anstruther).

You will be interested to know that I had thirty replies to my small advertisement (which cost 6d.) inserted in a recent issue of "Cage Birds." I have disposed of my birds, having sent them to a gentleman in Preston, Lancs. I could not answer all enquiries, not one containing a stamp for a reply. I wish "Cage Birds" every success.—C. H. DENTON (Tunbridge Wells).

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*Natural Protection.

Going through a quiet road I saw a newly-fledged Blackbird. It was unable to fly, so to put it out of harm's way, I picked it up, intending to put it through the hedge. In its fear the young bird made a terrible noise, which brought the old birds to the rescue. The hen at once took charge of her youngster which I had set free, and the cock bird guarded their retreat. He perched and showed fight within three feet of my head, and vowed vengeance if I advanced another step.—Sent by Dorothy Baker (age 14), 44, Bowthorpo Road, Norwich.

Baby Fell A-thinking.

A baby watched a ford, whereto
A Wagtail came for drinking;
A blaring bull went wading through,
The Wagtail showed no shrinking.

A stallion splashed his way across,
The birdy nearly sinking;
He gave his plumes a switch and toss,
And held his own unblinking.

Next saw the baby round the spot
A mongrel slowly slinking:
The Wagtail gazed, but faltered not,
On dip, and sip, and prinking.

A perfect gentleman then neared;
The Wagtail in a winking,
With terror rose and disappeared;
The baby fell a-thinking.

The Cheeky Greenfinch.

My grand-dad keeps a lot of birds in cages in his back yard, not very far from a park, and Greenfinches and Redpolls come picking the seeds off the floor and drinking out of the glasses. One day there was a sunflower seed in the bottom of a glass which contained water, and a Greenfinch kept knocking the water out with his beak till he could reach the seed.—Sent by Joseph Pollitt (age 8), 95, Halliwell Street, Salford.

*Bobbie and His Breakfast.

One morning as I was looking through the window I saw a beautiful Robin that was waiting for its breakfast. I soaked some bread and put it by the door. Robin picked up a piece and flew off to his young ones. He came back for the other pieces, but a Sparrow was there feeding, so he came up boldly and the Sparrow flew away. Robin comes every morning for his breakfast and waits for me to feed him.—Sent by Maud Stocle (age 12), 9, Tithe Barn Road, Stafford.

Wild Bird Life.

The Yellow Bunting.

At this season of the year there is no open-air pleasure to equal a ramble over one of the commons, which are fairly numerous in the South of England. The wide open expanse of country enables one to get a good view of both sky and upland. Wild birds are at all times fairly plentiful, so that the lover of feathered life will always find something to interest him. Pigeons, Rooks and other large birds can be watched with good glasses right across the downs, and many times I have seen the bold Sparrow Hawk, wheeling and darting round a flock of frightened Finches or Starlings. The land adjoining these open spaces is generally under cultivation, so that many Finches and Buntings are easily located. Of these the handsome Yellow Bunting is just now the most conspicuous. His rich yellow plumage contrasts vividly with the mellow brown earth.

All through the winter he has been in close company with different members of the Finch family. The Greenbird is perhaps the one he associates with mostly, for they both haunt the open fields, and seek food under the shelter of the hedgerows, where the weeds grow luxuriantly during the summer months, and the seed pods ripen in the sun. These are sown broadcast by the wind, and become food for the smaller birds during the hard winter, or, in turn, germinate and form flourishing plants to continue the supply. The Yellowhammer is a handsome bird, his gold and brown plumage making him a conspicuous object in all positions. In the open he appears somewhat sluggish and lazy, but as a singer is one of the most continuous. He sings in the early spring, his monotonous notes striking the ear, as we gather wild flowers by the hedgerow. All through the hot summer months he perches within hearing of his mate, and from daylight to sundown trills his little lay; and when the last sheaves of corn are being carted from the wheat field his song is still to be heard.

The nest of the Yellow Bunting is to be found among the brambles and coarse herbage, nettles, or low-growing shrubs. It is generally constructed of roots and grass stalks, nicely rounded and neatly lined with horsehair and finer roots. The eggs are streaked and spotted with purplish markings on a whitish ground colour.

An Early Sparrow.

A young fully-fledged Sparrow was seen in a Surrey village in the first week in March. He seemed happy and contented picking about among the poultry, and could fly well. He was quite alone and was possibly the sole survival of an early brood.

The Hated Crow.

The Rook is a common object of the fields, and is tolerated and even cherished by owners of Rookeries, but the Crow is persecuted and destroyed when possible. He is hated by all—gamekeepers and sportsmen, by farmers, and by everyone who has anything to do with country life. Cruel tyrant as he is to every creature smaller than himself, not a voice is raised in his favour. Yet Crows still exist in considerable numbers.

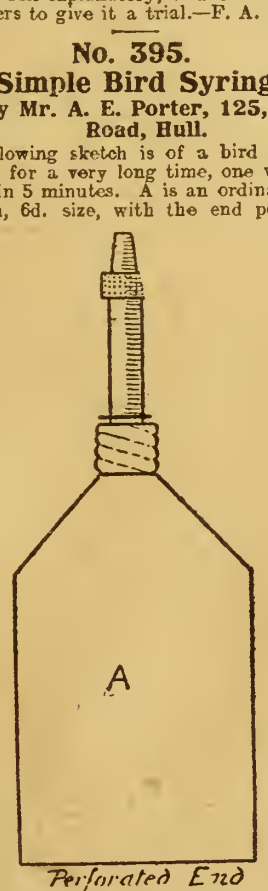
No. 394.
To Fasten Circular Cage Doors.
Sent by Mr. F. A. Saxe, 16, Amelia Street, Silvertown, London, E.



I send you sketch of an idea for fastening circular doors to the cage side, one which I have found very convenient. In the ordinary cages, where the door is attached with the usual wire arrangement, some difficulty will be found in getting the cage close up to another one when transferring a particular bird, and I have had several escape in this way, especially small birds. The door shown in the sketch, however, does not allow of any such place, and therefore there is no risk. The idea is really so simple that it is self-explanatory, and I think it will pay fanciers to give it a trial.—F. A. SAXE.

No. 395.
A Simple Bird Syringe.
Sent by Mr. A. E. Porter, 125, Hedon Road, Hull.

The following sketch is of a bird syringe I have used for a very long time, one which can be made in 5 minutes. A is an ordinary metal polish tin, 6d. size, with the end perforated.

The cap at the end is unscrewed and a hole to fit an ordinary bicycle valve bored. The valve is then screwed down tight, and the syringe is complete. Attach bicycle pump to valve, and it will send out a fine spray, which will travel about 12 feet.—A. E. PORTER.

In the Courts.

A Prejudiced Magistrate.

At Birmingham Police Court on March 16th, William Trigger (Saltley) was summoned for cruelty to a Lark by fastening it to a certain instrument so that it could be used as a decoy.

Police-constable Deakin said he found the defendant in a field adjoining St. Margaret's Road. He was using a net for the purpose of catching birds, and had a Lark which he used as a decoy. It was attached to an instrument which was worked by a string, causing the bird to jump in the air. The bird was in an exhausted condition, and there were marks of the string on the breast, whilst one of its legs appeared to be injured.

Defendant denied tying the Lark to the instrument; "another fellow did that." — The Chairman: You cannot shelter yourself behind that. Catching birds, apart from cruelty, is an abomination. You will be fined 20s. and costs, or go to prison for a month. I daresay you call it sport, but you had better leave it alone. You will be more seriously dealt with next time.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Four Points.

Wolf.—(1) Yes, it is too early to mate up yet save in certain exceptional circumstances. The last week in March or first week in April is best. (2) It is always advisable to mate a yearling bird—a 1909 bred—with one over a year old, or not younger than 1908 bred, though not absolutely essential. Two 1909 birds mated together will breed quite successfully, so you need not trouble to separate the pair on that account. The fact of the cock not singing so much since being mated is of no material importance. A good many cocks act in this way. (3) The advantage of moving the first three eggs from the nest and returning them on the evening of the day the third egg is laid is that all the young hatch out simultaneously, or very nearly so, and thus all get an equal chance in life at the start. When one youngster is hatched two or three days before the youngest, the latter never gets a fair chance, and often goes under in the struggle for existence. (4) Certainly. You must not withhold the seed supply at any time. All egg-food and green-stuff given for rearing the young must be in addition to the usual seed supply, which is not withheld at all. Give egg-food in small quantities for the first day or two after hatching, and begin to give green after the third day.

What is it?

A Novice, W.P.—It is undoubtedly chronic bronchitis, and you will probably make no material improvement in it after going on so long. Has it been kept in a kitchen where there are extreme variations of temperature, or exposed to draughts. These are by far the commonest of all causes, so see that your bird is not so exposed. Keep it in a box cage, quite free from draughts, and well away from any fire or burning lights, so that the air breathed may be as pure and fresh as possible, and the temperature fairly equable. Feed on plain Canary as staple, and give half a teaspoonful of the seed mixture separately every second day. On the alternating days give a similar quantity of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it. Give a spray of green-food three or four times a week. Only allow the bath occasionally on quite mild bright days until better. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts daily for three days, and afterwards twenty drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, and ipecacuanha wine, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week after. Separate him from the hen if she shows no sign of immediately nesting whilst undergoing treatment. It is useless trying to breed with such a bird.

Unsatisfactory Hens.

Dalstonite.—Am inclined to think all your hens are out of condition, and those you have mated were not by any means ready for this ceremony. The third hen, which you say has not a feather for some space around the vent, as you discovered when you caught and examined her, is probably in quite a normal condition as regards feathering. Surely you must know the feathers do not grow evenly all over the skin (if we except a few genera of birds, of which Canaries are not one), and in a normal condition neither the space around the vent, nor all down the centre of the breast and belly has any feathers growing on. If the hens you have paired are still taking no notice of the cocks, separate them and treat all three hens as follows, for two or three weeks keeping them in separate cages, of course. As a staple diet give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry, and two of cod liver oil emulsion, well mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure and sesame. On the alternate days give the same quantity of a mixture of two parts hemp, one part each of inga and teazle, and a half part each of black rape and linseed. See all your seeds, especially the summer rape and hemp, are sound and good. Give a small flower-head of groundsel and a dandelion leaf each day. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts daily for three days, and afterwards give six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week, and the next week give twenty drops of Chemical Food every second day. See birds are quite free from draughts, extremes of heat and cold, and not pestered with red mites.

Treatment for Breeding.

R. Messinger.—You omit to say how you feed the bird, or whether it is apparently in good health or otherwise. He has, I gather, not sung since his cage was knocked down. This might have caused a severe shock, but should not have prevented his beginning to sing again after a short interval of silence. Now you have put him in the same cage with two hens, which is a totally wrong procedure, even if he had been in full vigorous song. Remove him to a cage by himself at once, and hang it in such a position that he has one or both the hens in view. Feed him on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry, and two of cod liver oil emulsion, well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed, and on the alternate days give the same quantity of a mixture of two parts hemp, one part each inga and teazle, and a half-part each linseed, sesame, black rape, and yellow mustard. Give a leaf of dandelion daily. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for one day only, and afterwards 6 drops of tincture of gentian and three of aromatic sulphuric acid for three or four days. Continue this treatment, except the drugs in water, until you see the cock calling and singing to the hens; then write again and refer to this reply and I will tell you how to proceed further.

Premature Mating, etc.

H.M.H.—You have evidently read the article in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. Then why did not you take to heart the warning given in these words: "Let neither the weather nor the birds' desires tempt you to believe that summer has come before the ides of March," etc. Your hen was not ready for mating, and would have been better kept separate until the end of the month. If both the birds are in good high condition, and anxious to begin when put together the hen will in most cases be starting on incubation in a fortnight after mating. Still, it is not unlikely the hen has set to work in more earnest by now, and in that case you must leave matters to follow the natural course. If she is still dallying, about and making no sound beginning, separate the pair until the end of the month, by which time she will doubtless be in better trim. Give half a teaspoonful of egg-food every second day, and add a sprinkling of sesame seed to it, and on the alternate days give the same quantity of the seed mixture. Give two leaves of dandelion daily. As regards the query about egg-food, see reply to "Mab," under heading "A Substitute," in last issue, which applies to the same article. Glad to hear you find the paper so helpful.

Brevities.

Very Good (H.L.).—Thanks for report. Glad to hear the bird has improved so much. Do not be in any hurry to mate her. Wait until the end of this month.

Biscuits (R., Broughty Ferry). — The No. 2 sample Abernethy biscuit is the best of those sent, but even this contains rather more fat than I care about; a quite plain, unsweetened biscuit, with the least possible amount of fat, or grease in it I consider the best.

Result (J.A.C.).—The result of the mating you describe will depend upon whether the buff cock or its parents were pink-eyed. If it is pink-eyed itself and its male parent was pink-eyed, the result will be clears, and cinnamon-ticked, but if this cock and its parents were all black-eyed birds, the progeny will be clears and green-ticked. In both cases you will probably have a majority of clear birds.

Fruit for Seed Mixture (Pretty Bird).—None at all. That is what I consider the best kind of fruit to add to seed and minced egg in a dried condition for feeding Canaries. Give seed, whether mixed or separately, alone always. When egg-food is given, offer it quite separately in a different vessel, and always in a perfectly clean condition; and when you want to give fruit, give this also fresh and separately, and any kind of sweet ripe fruit that is in season will do. Apples and bananas are usually the most easily obtained.

The Best Songster (W.S.).—A trained Roller will give far the most satisfaction, and I think you will like a Seifert Roller best, on account of its having a greater variety in its repertoire than a more highly trained pure rolling bird. The names you mention were particular breeders' strains once upon a time, but nowadays they are trade terms more than anything else. You should get a nice singer for 15/-, but the ordinary prices for well-trained birds go up to about 40/-. You can also get them at 10/6, or even less, the price to a certain extent varying with the supply in the market, and the present is not the cheapest season to buy. Very sorry I cannot mention particular dealers here. Consult our advertisement columns and have bird on approval, depositing money with our Editor.

Breeding Troubles (Unruly Hen).—You mated them fully a month too early, and will be fortunate if you get no worse difficulty. Separate the Yorkshire pair for a fortnight. Give a staple diet of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, with a small pinch of gold of pleasure mixed in it, and on the alternate days a few grains only of inga and linseed. Give a small spray of chickweed, groundsel, or watercress, but no dandelion, every second day. Keep cage strewn with gritty shell sand, and have a piece of cuttlefish in it regularly. In the drinking water give 20-drop doses of chemical food two days in every three for a week, and every second day afterwards until re-mated. Do not mate her again until the last week in March or first week in April. She will probably do better next time. Let the other hen go on sitting in the ordinary course.

Backward Cock (Inquirer).—You do not say how long the Sib. cock has been with the hen, but I gather it must have been a week at least. His complete silence is not very auspicious of good results; but still, although you have only seen him feeding, I would advise you to let the hen go on sitting on the bare chance of events happening in the early morning which have escaped your observations. Whilst the hen is sitting, separate the cock and feed him rather generously, and twice a week add six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of steel to his drinking water. Give a mealworm each day for three weeks if he will eat them.

Not Wedded Bliss (Novice, Dublin).—The Border hen was probably not sufficiently forward for mating, and you would have done better to keep them apart until she, as well as the cock, showed some readiness for mating. Things may have righted themselves by the time this reply appears, but if they have not, and the pair are still "on fighting terms," separate them for a few days and hang them side by side, so that they can see each other, and let them remain in this position until you see the hen responding to the calls of the cock, and the latter feeding her through the wires if he can reach her, or trying to do so if he cannot reach.

Eating Enamel (G.Y.).—It is certainly a dangerous habit for the bird to be eating enamel to the extent you describe. If it has not yet produced any harmful result, it would probably do so in time if allowed to continue. Distemper would be far less objectionable, but must be free from white lead. Much better put nothing at all on the wires, but if you want to have something to cover them, use a good hard drying lacquer similar to Brunswick Black; put it on thinly and evenly, and see that the wires are well cleaned with strong soda and water before applying, in order to avoid blistering. Give a bit of cuttlefish to divert his attention.

China Canary (G.R.A.).—Am sorry, but I cannot tell you what breed the bird is without seeing it. It is most likely to be a German Roller, and, judging from your description, I should expect this is what it is. The best mate for it would depend upon what you want to breed. If you merely wish to perpetuate its singing abilities you cannot do better than mate it with a ticked yellow Roller hen, but if you want to retain as much as possible of the bird's song, and also get more size and a better-looking bird, mate it with a smart Yellow Yorkshire hen, lightly variegated in plumage, and bred from an even-marked strain. Let the hen in either case be an early 1909 bird. Glad to hear you have made so much improvement in the bird through reading these replies.

Backward Norwich Cock (J.H.C.).—You must, first of all, see that all your seeds are sweet and sound, and of good quality. Also see that the bird is in no draught, nor where the air is vitiated and impure, and that cage is quite free from red mites. Keep cage floor always strewn with clean gritty sand. Continue your present staple diet; give half a teaspoonful of egg-food with a pinch of gold of pleasure mixed in it every second day, and on the alternate days give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga. Give two good-sized young dandelion leaves daily. In the drinking water give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn for one day only, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid for a few days. The sample of seed sent is totally unfit for feeding Canaries. If you value your birds, throw this present of seed in the dustbin.

Ailing Hen (The White Hen).—The hen is probably exposed to more extremes of heat and cold, if not to actual draughts, than you are aware of. See that the temperature is as equable as possible, and just comfortable—neither very warm nor cold. Do not hang cage high up where air is vitiated. Give a diet of plain Canary only as staple; every second day a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, lightly sprinkled with soft sugar and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed, and on the alternate days a half teaspoonful of summer rape, and a morsel of banana, or two small young dandelion leaves. Limit diet strictly to this for a fortnight. In drinking water give 6 drops syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts, every second day for a week, as will cover a sixpence, and on the alternate days 20 drops of whiskey, 6 of oxymel of squills, and 1 of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together. In the second week give 6 drops tincture of gentian and 4 of aromatic sulphuric acid in the water.

Two Hens (F.J.S.C.).—There is probably something wrong with your feeding, but you say nothing on the point, so I cannot say. Give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Every second day for a month give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with 3 drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure. Twice each week also slightly dust it with a mixture of 2 parts flowers of sulphur to one part chlorate of potash. Give a spray of watercress on the alternate days. Keep cage and perches clean. Add a pinch of Epsom salts and 10 drops of lemon juice to the water every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give 6 drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of tincture of steel. Dust bare skin where moist with boracic acid 3 times a week. Feed second hen on the same staple, and every second day for a week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and linseed, and on the alternate days a spray of green-food. In the drinking water give 10 drops of syrup of buckthorn daily for 3 days, and afterwards 6 drops tincture of gentian and 4 of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. Put one drop of warm olive oil in the vent once.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Is a Quarrel Essential?

J. Atchley.—You seem to think that unless mating couples have a fight when first paired, that no good can be expected to come of the alliance. But such is not by any means the case. It is true some British birds embark on the sea of matrimony by showing their affection after the manner of the proverbial coster—proceeding to maul their donah "abart a bit" (a game, too, in which the donah often takes a hand). As a rule, too, these breezes soon blow over, especially if both birds are "fit," and so anxious to start housekeeping. Goldfinches are very fond of asserting their authority. And I always like to see the male bird "boss the show," not because I am an "anti-suffragettist," but because I know that it is an unfavourable sign when one sees the reverse happening (the poor male being hen-pecked). Your bird is a Linnet, however, and many Linnets are gentle and amiable to a fault, and would no more think of trouncing their wives than I (also gentle and amiable) would think of trouncing mine. (N.B.—I have only one.) To be serious: I have myself paired two Linnets up just lately; they have not had a "scrap" so far, yet I'll wager they fill the eggs. Verb sap.

Goldfinch Muling.

Mrs. Underwood.—I have several times this season dealt at length with the breeding of Goldfinch Mules, and particularly with the feeding of the muling couples, while many articles on the subject have recently appeared in our pages from successful breeders, and there is another in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. I think these give (or rather, have given) just the information you now seek. Have you by any possible chance overlooked them? I certainly do not like the cock Goldfinch to be "very much smaller" than the hen Canary. It is quite possible for the disparity in size to be responsible for clear eggs. They want to be somewhere about (within reason) the same size. This is where the Siberian Goldie comes in so useful when one has an exceptionally large hen. Still, one can allow a very fair margin without fear of failure. Three years is a nice age for a muling Goldie. It will be of no use to pair him up until he is in trim, viz., in full song, and swinging his tail from side to side as he sings, while his beak will also go quite clear (free from the black streak at the tip of the upper mandible), as he gets into real "high condition."

In an Aviary.

Crusader.—It will do no harm to have the extension with wired roof for the covered space is ample, in comparison. Personally I should prefer to have it partly covered (that part nearest the wall—the back part), and the rest open; say, half and half. Leave the wire plain (get it of good quality). I certainly advise you not to paint it with Brunswick black. 2.—I do not know that any of the shrubs and trees you mention are harmful to birds. The "Japanese hop" is a stranger to me; but if any relation to the English hop plant, then I should say that it is quite safe. Providing the birds with plenty of green-food is the best means of keeping them from stripping shrubs. Sow patches of rape, Canary, sunflower, millet, etc., seeds, and the young shoots will prove a feast for the inmates. 3.—There is grave risk of the eggs or young getting "flooded out" should a severe storm set in; the latter will often cause a hen to desert her home. Have never tried pansy seed; should say quite harmless.

Newly Imported Goldfinches.

G. B. T.—If the birds are a little upset and out of sorts, owing to the strange diet they have been put upon, treat them as advised "A. B." in this issue. You must cage them separately; not keep healthy and ailing together. Crack their hemp seed, give niger liberally, and, above all, give plenty of cracked sunflower seed. If the birds are beginning to ail owing to the seeds of pneumonia having been implanted during the journey to England, then no treatment is likely to avail them; this disease carries off many on their first arrival and shortly afterwards. Only the strongest birds survive the journey; any weaklings inevitably "go to the wall." A great deal depends upon the conditions of importation, which are not the same in every case, by any means, some lots coming under much better conditions than others. It used to be said that bird-fever was the scourge that stunned out ill-fated consignments; and I used to think so myself. But I now know it is that equally deadly, though not so fearsome, disease, pneumonia.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

Lark and Linnet.

Puzzled S. S.—If your Lark is a cock (are you sure of this?) he ought to be singing now. Its excessive wildness is a bad sign; these intractable birds are seldom a success. The food (No. 2) is good of its kind; personally I should get some of a first-class insectile mixture (about 1/6 per lb), and mix half-and-half. This would make a much more generous diet, and one more conducive to singing on the part of the bird. You should try as a change (or give as a "tit-bit") one of the foods mentioned by Lark-keepers in the letters which have recently appeared in the correspondence columns. No. 1 is a fairly suitable seed mixture for a Linnet. But why not try the mixtures I have been frequently advising of late for use with Linnets intended for Mule breeding? There will be no need then to try and improve upon the one you send. A chubby-built hen (Norwich type) would be the best mate for your cock Linnet—a variegated yellow for choice, though a good coloured buff is not by any means to be despised.

A Warning.

Ginger.—You say you had a pair of Bullfinches in an outdoor aviary all winter. They were in good condition. You then started giving a large quantity of dandelion, root and leaf. Both birds went very sick; the cock is dead, the hen recovering. You ask me if "eating a large quantity of dandelion would be likely to poison Bullfinches?" The answer is: No. It certainly would not poison them; at the same time it quite likely was the innocent cause of the trouble which has resulted so disastrously for Mr. Bullie. To put it bluntly: I think that you yourself are chiefly to blame. In the first place, a large (unlimited) quantity of green-food (no matter what the kind) should never be suddenly placed before birds—birds, that is, which previously have been having none at all, or only a very limited quantity. The result is a glorious "gorge" on the part of the birds, with oft-times attendant stomach troubles, followed by diarrhœa, and a period of sorrow for the owner. It is most unwise to more-or-less suddenly commence to give birds green-food ad libitum; get them on to it gradually. In the second place, at this time of the year, night frosts are the common thing, and the "green-food" gets into a frosted condition, and if given to the birds in this state it is a very deadly thing; at least, that is what experienced fanciers say; personally, I have always taken good care never to test that point. Green-food gathered during frosty weather should be kept in a warm room for some hours before being used, or be washed in warm water and afterwards dabbed dry in a towel.

Brevities.

A Linnet (A. M.).—There is a chance of this bird breeding if the cage is put in a quiet spot, say a room into which people rarely enter.

With a Mule (Wallace Wilcock).—I do not suppose it will be of any use to pair up the Linnet Mule to a hen Canary. Try the experiment if you like; but it is a hundred pounds to a halfpenny the eggs are not fertile.

A Goldfinch Trouble (G.C.).—Into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water stir six drops of tincture of benzoin (friar's balsam). Give fresh daily for four or five days, and see what effect it has. Write and let me know.

The Case of a Chaffinch (Blitey).—You chose a curious season of the year to turn the birds outdoors. I presume they were used to being in a cold room. Give a fair trial to the remedy advised "G.C." in this issue. It is no use (as no doubt you know) giving one dose and then leaving it off for a week; no medicine can be effective if used in this way.

One Bird Only (V.A.G.).—A Linnet-Canary Mule, if it sings the Linnet song (or a fair proportion) is one of the most delightful of songsters, and your friend will find it quite hardy and easy to keep in health and song. Next to this, in "pure" birds, so to speak, I should plump for the Linnet itself; then the Goldfinch. It happens, however, that some Linnets (and some Goldfinches, too) are poorer songsters than others; individuals vary.

Into Moult ("Kiss Me Dear").—I'm married; sorry can't oblige. The cause of the Chaffinch going into moult is probably the changeable weather. The latter has sent a Hawfinch of mine, and several Canaries, into moult. I know of many other cases, too, in other rooms. You can do nothing except keep the bird snug and out of draughts. You are feeding it very well. It is one of those accidents of circumstance which all birds and bird-keepers are ever liable to run up against.

Two Matters (Bermon).—(1). There should be room for 25 birds; but not if you want breeding results. I presume your measurement covers both flight and covered portion. The best plan would be to try three or four Bullfie and Greenie hens, with the rest Canary hens. You might include a hen Bramble and cock Chaffinch, or vice-versa. I prefer two "out-lets," at least. Give the Thrush the remedy advised "G. C." this week, not in any larger doses.

Linnet Ailing (A.B.).—Get the following mixture from a chemist: Six drachms tincture of rhubarb and two drachms tincture of gentian. Stir 6 to 10 drops in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, beginning with the smaller dose and increasing it if it seems necessary. This medicine may pull the Linnet together in five or six days' time (give it fresh daily). You really ought to have given some medicine before; it is no good waiting seven days (while the trouble gets a firm hold of the bird).

A Pied Hedge Sparrow (Lover of Birds).—We get very good and rare Albinos on the show-bench nowadays, as a rule, and it is not easy to estimate the chances of a pied (almost white) Hedge Sparrow, though your bird would be sure to command

Owing to the necessity of going to press one day earlier this week, many answers to questions cannot be given until our next issue.—EDITOR.

"honourable mention," as it appears from your description to be a nice specimen. It would hardly be likely to win. The Hedge Accentor is really an insectivorous bird, and should have soft food daily (a good insectile mixture), with a little seed and some live food, according to the season and the supply. Have seen and heard of several similar birds.

In an Aviary (E.E.).—Unfortunately you omit the most important and helpful item of information, viz., the size of the aviary. The place reads like a suitable one for Hybrid breeding. The great point is not to overcrowd. Even then, results amongst a mixed lot of birds are uncertain, as you have found. I do not see how it would be practicable to remove the cocks when the hens commence to sit. They don't all commence at once. And the racket you would kick up would inevitably disturb those hens which had already gone to nest. Put in a Siskin and Redpoll in addition to the cock Bramble. Budgerigars are apt to be spiteful towards weaker companions.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Silverbills and Java Sparrows.

Nimrod.—You must only keep one pair in each cage for breeding purposes, and though they may use the half cokernut shells as a base for their nest, which is usually a spherical one, with an entrance on one side, I have found most of the Ornamental Finches appreciate a Hartz travelling cage as well as anything—hay and grass will be sufficient for nesting material. Supply spray millet and green food in addition to the other items of your birdy menu. Practically the same applies to the Java Sparrows, though they will accommodate themselves to the cokernut husk well enough. Diet: same as above, with the addition of a few oats and paddy rice. Both species will require a little soft food daily when they are feeding young. When they commence incubation I should only interfere with them for feeding and cleaning purposes. "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (see advert. in this column) would be of great assistance to you.

Breeding Cutthroats.

Novice.—You do not say whether you are attempting to breed them in a cage or aviary, but in either case the modus operandi is very simple. In a cage, let this be of the box type, and as roomy as your convenience will allow; put a nest-box at each end. The Hartz travelling cages answer excellently for many foreign species, merely taking out the fittings, pulling out one of the bars, to allow them free egress and ingress; supply them with long grass, hay, and a little moss, then leave them to themselves, and in due time you should have some young Cutthroats. When they are feeding young they will require some soft food—ants' eggs and crumbled sponge cake, make crumbly moist, would be sufficient, with plenty of green food and a little fruit as in season. They will also appreciate any small beetle, smooth caterpillar, or spider you can capture for them. Canary, white and spray millet should form the staple diet. You do not say whether the eggs are merely deformed or broken. I take it it is the former, but in either case the next clutch should prove all right.

Grey Parrot Unwell.

T C.—It would have made matters easier for me if you had told me how long it had been in your possession; but I am assuming that it is a new purchase, and that the primary cause of the trouble is the conditions of importation. You must continue the boiled maize (this only keeps fresh one day). After draining away as much moisture as possible soak into about half a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food. Do not leave water in the cage at present, but let it satisfy its thirst three or four times a day.—Every third day, so long as the voidings are not watery-loose, give the following as drinking water: One part Dinneford's Magnesia and three parts water. Well cleanse the nostrils twice daily with diluted glycodymoline. Diet: In addition to the maize, keep a tin of seed mixture—three parts each canary and white millet seed and one part each oats, hemp, and sunflower seeds, to be well mixed—in the cage; also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, and a few nuts. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish hanging in the cage. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. You had better report progress about a fortnight hence.

Grey Parrot Sick.

E.W.B.—Give several doses of Dinneford's magnesia with three days between each dose—one part magnesia, three parts water. Boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and probably a little of this has been allowed to become stale, and hence the trouble. When not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Diet: Seed mixture, ripe fruit ad lib., nuts in variety, plain biscuit with an occasional crust of dry toast or household bread if the bird cares for same; the biscuit and crusts may be moistened (not saturated) in the chemical food water if the bird prefers it so. The boiled maize may be well left off entirely if the bird is eating heartily of the seed mixture. The latter should consist of three parts each canary and white millet seed and one part each hemp, oats, dari, "paddy" rice, small maize, and sunflower seeds; well mix and always keep a supply in the cage. Cuttlefish, grit, etc., must always be supplied. Do not leave the water in the cage, but let it satisfy its thirst three or four times a day. The trouble should yield to the above treatment unless it is merely the precursor to something more serious. This it is impossible to tell at this stage (at any rate by correspondence), but if there should be further developments repeat query at once.

Brevities.

A Talking Budgerigar (Anxious to Know).—If it enunciates the phrases clearly, it should be worth three guineas, possibly you would get more; it all depends on your advert. catching the eye of the suitable person; the real value is what you can get. Why not insert an advert. in our columns inviting offers?

The American Thrush (C. Burrows). — The birds referred to in the cutting you send are American Robins, a number of which were set free in this country last year. The bird is smaller than the English Thrush, but is very similar, with the exception that the breast and upper abdomen are of a chestnut colour. The bird is handsome, hardy, and fearless, with the typical large, clear eye of a Robin. If they escape the gunner (I had almost said sportsman!) they will undoubtedly become naturalised in this country, and should form a welcome addition to our native avifauna.

A Crop-bound Parrot ("Steward").—If the bird is really crop-bound, I doubt if it is alive when you see this in print; if so, let a vet. see it at once, as with your bird the case will have been of a week's duration, and only cutting open the crop, removing the obstruction, and then stitching up again, will give relief. If the bird is still fairly vigorous when you see this, you might—try the effects of a dose of tasteless castor oil. We have a book dealing with Parrots and Parrakeets in the press, which you will find will give you all the information you require. When ready will be duly announced in our columns.

Canary-winged Parrakeet (W.W.W.).—I know from experience that there are very few species of Parrakeets that cannot talk, though the present species is numbered among the non-talkers, but from the demeanour of your bird I should say there is every probability of yours ultimately uttering a word or two. All the genus Protogenys make excellent pets, and become very tame and chummy. Canary and white millet seed should form the staple diet, with ripe fruit, green food, and plain biscuit. If it cares for them, as extras. I should only give hemp in small quantities, during the winter months.

Purchasing a Grey Parrot (E.T.B.).—I should say May or June would be about the best time to purchase a young Grey; they can mostly be procured at all seasons of the year. A young Grey needs much care for the first few months, and losses are rather numerous among newly-imported birds. Read these query columns, and you will get much help, as to treating it. Ascertain how it has been fed from the vendor.

Length of Period of Quarantine (Dad).—I should keep this bird separate till the head plumage is in fair condition again. As regards period of quarantine for acquisitions of newly-imported Waxbills, etc., this should not be less than three weeks. At the same time, if a bird was rather thick, even after that period, I should still isolate it, till such times as it was regularly alert and lively—the demeanour of a bird is the best test of its condition. A bird in good health does not mope and sit huddled up most of its time, but is alert, vivacious, continually trilling its little lay.

Waxbills for Crystal Palace Aviary (Carrie).—Put in pairs of the following as you are able to obtain them: Zebra, Orange-cheek, St. Helena, and Grey Waxbills; common and Green Avadavats. Hang up three or four cokernut shell nests, first pushing in a little hay, etc. They will use these as retiring places. Feed them on canary and white millet seed in equal parts—also keep up a continuous supply of millet sprays, a little of such kinds of ripe fruit as they fancy, and also green food—lettuce and seeding grass are about the best. You would find "Foreign Birds for Beginners" of great assistance (see advt. in this column).

Amazon Parrot not Talking (A.B.C.).—The bird should certainly have added to its vocabulary by this, but Amazons are not so teachable as Greys, though most of them talk fairly well, whistle, and mimic various sounds, such as laughing, crying, etc., in a very realistic way. There is nothing you can do other than keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation; talk to it, and fuss about with it generally, and as it already utters the universal Polly it will most certainly yet surprise you with other utterances. I should most certainly not give up hope of its turning out a good talker yet. Greys certainly make the best talkers, but they are very difficult to acclimatise, and even among these there are individuals which have not the "gift of the gab." I should advise giving the bird a few months' longer trial.

Treatment for Moustache Parrakeets (W.W.W.).—They are rather difficult to tame, and till such is accomplished they are dull, and also easily scared; though I have come across very handsome birds of this species, tame, and good talkers. Diet: Three parts each canary and white millet seeds, and 1 part each oats, maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds, well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts, with grit, cuttlefish, and water. I should give 3 or 4 doses of Dinneford's Magnesia (1 part magnesia to 3 parts water), with three or more days between each dose, according to its action. When not giving the magnesia well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food for a month or more. The birds will much improve in demeanour as they become thoroughly accustomed to you and their surroundings.

Aviary for Budgerigars (H. E. S.).—(1) Three breeding pairs at most—the aviary is suitable, but for such hardy birds as Budgerigars the partition C is not essential. (2) I would suggest two pairs Budgerigars (say one pair each Yellow and Green), and one pair of Black-cheeked Lovebirds. (3) No, the protection should be ample, but birds are easily scared at night, so that if the pests are troublesome you could have a cover of some sort for night use only. Sand if you can get it, or peat moss litter would be the better floor covering for covered-in parts.

How Many Birds? (A Beginner).—About a score, or, at the most, twenty-five. I should suggest Goldfinch, Bullfinch, Siskin, Linnet, Twite, and Redpoll. Choose Foreigners from Zebra Waxbills, Green Avadavats, Long-tailed Grassfinches, Java Sparrows (White and Grey), St. Helena Waxbills, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins, Cape Canaries (Grey-necked Serins), Grey and Green Singing Finches, Rufous-tailed Greenfinches, and a pair each of the minute Diamond Dove and Chinese Painted Quails. Repeat query if kinds named are unsuitable, but you do not indicate what you require, hard or soft bills.

Keeping Avadavats (T. M.).—The Common Avadavat or Tiger Finch only retains its red colouring during the breeding season, and yours will don its brilliant nuptial garment again in due course. Try them with a little ripe apple. As soon as you can procure it free from frost, seeding grass (grass in flower) is the best green; they are very fond of picking over blighty foliage, and a spray from any non-poisonous tree or plant will tend to their general well-being. No, the cage is not large enough; it ought not to be smaller than an ordinary Canary breeding cage to give them proper exercise. Supply also millet sprays.

Sick Budgerigar (Thankful).—All you can do is to give it several doses of Dinneford's magnesia (1 part magnesia to 2 parts water), with three or more days between each dose, according to the action of the aperient. On other days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Also give it a few oats, a piece of ripe apple to nibble at, and as soon as you can procure it free from frost, unlimited seeding grass (grass in flower). The cage should allow room for exercise, or you will aggravate the trouble. Java Sparrows, like either a closed box with a round or oval hole for entrance, or they will use a cocoanut husk. Canary, millet, spray millet, few oats, green food, and when they have young to feed a little soft food daily. Java Sparrows can generally look after themselves in any company, and unless the aviary is very confined I don't think the Parakeets will interfere with them. Practically all the year round, but during the spring and summer months mostly.

A Photograph (Jas. Thomas).—We shall be glad to have the promised photograph.

An Address (W. Moreland).—Write to Mr. D. J. Thomas, Plumber, Cardigan, Wales.

Tasteless Pepper (G. Gillett).—You will find your question answered in the booklet, which has been duly posted.

Insuring Birds Against Fire (S. F.).—We feel sure that your present company would include your birds in the fire risk if you were to approach them on the point. If they decline, write us again.

Goldfinches Mating (F. Morgan).—There is a possibility that a fresh-caught cock or hen Goldfinch would breed; but if you are housing them in a cage, then we are afraid the possibility is a slender one.

Scottish Metropolitan O.A. (J. R. Meikle).—We quite appreciate the circumstance that yours is a show confined to members. But whether your society's show (or the show of any other society) appears in our list of guaranteed fixtures, or whether it does not, will not affect in the slightest our readiness to publish your club reports and other items concerning the association. It would not make the least difference so far as this is concerned, even were your society's show an open event and not included in the guaranteed list. Our "free columns," as you term them, are always open to secretaries who have legitimate items of information they wish to bring before the notice of their members.

ASHINGTON AND DISTRICT C.B.S

Meeting, held at Mr. Rowley's, Station Road, on March 12th. There was a good muster of members. Show date was fixed for Nov. 12th. Judge, Mr. T. Dixon (Bedlington Station). Four new members were accepted. Any fancier in the district wishing to join can do so by communicating with the secretary, when all information regarding this society will be gladly given.—J. MILES.

GLASGOW & W. OF SCOTLAND B.C.

Usual monthly meeting and show of British birds, held in the Good Templars' Hall, 122, Ingram-street, Glasgow, on March 15th, the President, Mr. J. L. Burnett, in the chair. After the business, the show was proceeded with, the winners being Messrs. W. Gronbeck, R. Watson, J. Black, F. Taylor, and W. Rankin. Mr. H. Jamieson judged, to the satisfaction of all. Mr. J. Dobbin was elected a member. A vote of thanks to judge and chairman concluded the meeting.—ROBT. WATSON, Sec.

HETTON-LE-HOLE & DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting, held March 12th, at headquarters, Mr. Hy. Wilson in the chair. It was decided not to have any open show this year owing to the heavy loss sustained on the last two. Also we elected Mr. J. Stanger to judge our first feather show on July 9th; 10 classes for same, to be made at next meeting. After business we had a nice pair show of Norwich, for breeding purposes. There were not so many entries as we anticipated, but what was short in numbers was amply made up for in quality. Mr. A. J. Notley was elected to judge, and his awards gave entire satisfaction. Result: 1, Mr. Wilson; 2, Lawson; 3, Allen; vhc, Lawson. The members afterwards went over the birds, and Mr. R. Allen judged the nearest, having the right numbers, with just two out of place. There was a fair attendance of visitors. Next meeting April 9th, when we shall be glad to welcome any fancier wishing to join.—A. J. NOTLEY, Sec.

THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

Executive Council Meets.

A meeting of the Executive Council of the C.B.U. was held at Nottingham on March 19th, Mr. Bladon in the chair. The minutes of the previous delegates' meeting were read and passed, after which a communication from the scrutineer was read, giving the nominations for offices of president and secretary, as decided at the Palace meeting. It was agreed the secretary should write the gentlemen nominated to ascertain their willingness to stand, and then send out voting papers for the election, same to be returned to secretary. Several of the Council present nominated for the position of president withdrew their names. All the members present urged Mr. Bladon to again allow his name to be put up for re-election as president, to which he agreed. The secretary was instructed to write the railway company respecting the claim by a member of the Union for birds sent to a show, one bird arriving dead, and the case and cages broken. The secretary was asked to write the secretary of each district committee requesting him to call an early meeting of all delegates in his district, for the appointment of chairman and secretary, and of delegates to attend the various shows, to fix up show dates, and for the transaction of any other business, including recommendations to the Executive Council to be discussed at a special general meeting of delegates which it was suggested might be held later. A case was brought forward of a society which had not paid its prize money, and it was decided affiliation or license should be refused them if applied for. On account of the resignation of the auditors, two others were appointed. All delegates and members are urged to promptly report to the representatives on the Executive Council of his district, any offences of which they may hear, by societies or of individual members of the Union infringing the rules, with a view to such offences being promptly dealt with strictly in accordance with the Union rules.—J. RAYNES, secretary.

Under the White Rose.

THE BINGLEY and District O.S. had the pleasure of listening to a lady fancier at their meeting on the 15th inst., i.e., Mrs. C. M. Sunderland, who gave a most interesting and instructive paper on "How I Manage my Bird-room," and right well did the members turn up, all except about half a dozen being present, many of them accompanied by their wives or lady friends. Mr. Sunderland occupied the chair by special invitation, and Messrs. Hammond and Simonett also were present from Bradford. The audience were delighted with the paper, many valuable hints being given, and as I have several times visited this lady's rooms, I can vouch she would know what she was talking about. For cleanliness and sanitation her room is hard to beat.

BANKFOOT C.B.S. on the 15th inst. had Mr. Samuel Dean to give a lecture on "The Effect of Condition on the Progeny of a Pair," interspersed with a little talk on inbreeding and the keeping of a stud register. A fair number of fanciers attended, and many questions were asked and answered, various subjects being thoroughly discussed. A vote of thanks to the lecturer brought the meeting to a close at 10 p.m. This is the district where the trouble exists with the Corporation of Bradford, and the subject was well talked over before the commencement of the meeting. A good number of the members of this society live in the Corporation houses, and much unrest has prevailed, the nearness of the breeding season making things much worse. However, things are likely to be amicably settled, and breeding operations will be proceeding apace ere these lines appear.

BRADFORD WEST and Wibsey Societies each were having their annual socials, tea-fights, and prize distributions on Saturday last. The Westers held theirs at headquarters, Red Lion Hotel, Four Lane Ends, when a large number of fanciers with their wives and friends sat down to tea, after which a very successful and sociable evening was spent. Plenty of good talent was forthcoming, the comical side being specially well catered for. Mr. W. A. Cowgill, the president, presented the prizes to the successful exhibitors, and caused much merriment by his "Yorkshire tawk," and by calling upon the better halves to say a few words.

WIBSEY held their tea and entertainment in the Wesleyan Schools, Slaekside, the chair being occupied by Mr. R. Halliday, president of the Yorkshire Union, and a very large array of talent had been specially engaged. The tea, well! they do know how to make teas at Wibsey. I was only sorry I could not attend. I know I should have been "all reight there."

DURING my week-end walks I notice that the outside birds seem to be fully two to three weeks later than usual in the breeding operations. Nests are few and far between. Eggs, as yet, I have seen none; many birds, though, are now building, and during this week-end's holiday I hope to get a few hours in the country amongst the bird life, and perchance may come across something good.

MANY breeders have paired up their stock; some have a few sittings, but the majority are afraid the nights are yet too cold. The thermometer goes down with a thump every night yet in the Yorkshire attics.

Hints Wanted on the Making of Birdlime.

SIR,—The easiest and cheapest way to make birdlime is to get 4ozs. of boiled linseed oil (cost 1d), from any oil shop, and 1lb. of resin; put the oil in an iron saucepan, add the resin and let it stand on the stove until the resin commences to dissolve. Stir occasionally. By this means you have enough to catch 2,000 birds. If stood on the fire, great care must be exercised, for if it boils over you may lose the lot. Also, your chimney won't want sweeping for another six months; the catastrophe takes all before it. This lime will hold any British bird; when once the wing touches the twig your bird is there waiting for you to take him home and feed him. Water (rain) does not stop it from catching your birds. Keep same in covered tins. It keeps good this way for years.

GEORGE TURNEY.

An Inexpensive Lark Food.

SIR,—I was delighted to find such sound and good advice as that given lately by so many Lark fanciers. I can assure you that for one, I have learnt a lot, as well as receiving benefit for my bird, the Lark. I am quite a young fancier. On November 20th last a fancier wrote in CAGE BIRDS stating that his bird was seven years old, and that he only used pea meal, oat meal, and dripping. On December 4th his recipe appeared—"How to make the food." He tells us the truth. If this food does not make a Skylark sing, the Lark has not got much song in him. I advise anyone in difficulty to look up those two issues of CAGE BIRDS, and test for yourself. Having tested the food, and being highly satisfied it is good, I would like to ask the correspondent, who signs himself "Redpoll," if he will state how he obtains his maggots from old fat, as I have tried all ways—with fat, cooked and raw—but have not got any satisfactory results. Being a young fancier, there is another thing I want to know; he states he gives his birds a bath every week. I am unable to get my Lark to take a bath. But I have sprayed him lightly every week since I read this statement. Also, I do not understand the meaning of "occasional dew bath for an hour or so on summer evenings." Being young, I am anxious to learn from those who are willing to open out the little secrets to help the rising fancier. Again, our friend "Redpoll" states that his Lark cage is an ingenious one, designed and made by himself. It was with pleasure he gave the recipe for food when asked; now, I, for one, would be pleased if he would tell us the dimensions of his Lark cage. If he will, I will follow out his advice.

Scandal at Skelmanthorpe.

The Recent Y.U. Suspensions.

SIR,—I hope when I leave this part of the globe for a glorious and everlasting home, I shall have more justice meted out to me than the Yorkshire Union Council will give, for I firmly believe that the Council would rather people would lend and borrow and say nothing. If not, why did they not condemn all the six persons who lent Mr. Fred Firth birds to show, instead of choosing two out of the lot, who admitted the truth? Then after a lot more trouble and expense, they choose another; and still there are three left to tell the tale. Now if these three would only admit their folly, we who are suffering for their sins, and our own, would be very pleased with them. I know for a fact that other persons have lent Mr. Fred Firth birds to show. I should just like to take them in rotation. Mr. A lent Mr. Fred Firth a bird to show at the City of Bradford Show, October 16th, 1909. Then comes Mr. B, who lent Mr. Firth one bird to show at Laisterdyke, October 30th 1909. Then the third, Mr. C lent Mr. Firth one bird to show at Manningham, November 20th, 1909. Now, I should like to ask Mr. B if he would be good enough to do as he offered when the trouble first commenced. Did he not offer to take all the responsibility upon his own shoulders and shield the society? Now he is trying to clear himself. Very nice man indeed. Did he not even write a letter stating that he had lent Mr. F. Firth a bird, and was he not going to post it the following day to Mr. H. Hill, the secretary? But the letter never got posted, and so Mr. Hill never received it. If a man who hides a crime is worse than a criminal, woe unto Skelmanthorpe C.B.S., for they are hiding a multitude, and we who wish to speak the truth and go in peace are called "liars." Why were Messrs. D and E afraid of having to appear again before the Council if they were innocent? What did they say in the backyard, which was overheard by one of the Council? ("Oh, we shall not have to come again, now"). It seems that there was some hidden mystery. I know for a fact that both of them have lent birds for show purposes this last season. I could give instances where nearly all who were brought into the case have shown non-bona-fide property; and what instances I cannot give, some other person in the society could. Sir, I do not make these assertions without some proof, and if the Council will give us another hearing and bring the accused all up again, we will fight the case and win. I do not think that it is a right and proper thing for Skelmanthorpe C.B.S. to send men to sit upon the Council whilst this case is going on—even men who are included in the case. I think it most absurd, and I am rather surprised with the Council for allowing such a thing.

HENRY KAYE.

To Prevent Red-mite.

SIR,—I have been surprised to see the frequency with which the subject of red mite crops up in our paper, and also the necessity which your experts find in constantly warning fanciers against this evil. It would appear that this is one of the greatest difficulties fanciers have to contend with. My own experience, however, has been entirely different, for I find that with proper care and attention it is an easy matter to keep free from these unwelcome lodgers. My belief is that the two causes of red mite are—improperly made cages and neglect in keeping them clean. Large numbers of cages, both for breeding and stock purposes, are simply nailed together without any attempt to cement the joints, the result being that every joint is a cosy home for red mite, and it is practically impossible to clear them. A fancier told me that he dipped a postcard in paraffin oil and pushed it through the joints of his cage to keep it clean. My opinion is that the sooner such a cage is burnt the better, for as long as fanciers will continue to use cages that are full of cracks and crevices it is useless their trying to keep them free from mite. With reference to cleaning, there are numbers of fanciers who seem to think that the only thing necessary is to remove sand tray, scrape it, and provide fresh sand; and beyond this no attempt is made to clean the cage right through the season. I think that every fancier should keep spare cages, and as often as possible the birds should be transferred, and the cage thoroughly washed. I do not think that any breeder should allow his birds to rear two nests in the same cage, unless it is thoroughly cleaned and washed first. If fanciers were to give more attention to these points they would find red mite no trouble.

"That Pernicious Seed Inga."

SIR.—I should be pleased if any of the many readers of CAGE BIRDS could throw a little light on the above-named subject. I am an amateur—beginning in 1909 to keep Canaries for breeding. For information re seed for feeding I turned to the pages of CAGE BIRDS, and read that breeders and others gave their birds inga seed. I purchased some, and gave the birds a limited quantity of it with other seeds—gold of pleasure, rape, millet, maw, and linseed—every two or three days. The chief diet has been Canary seed. This method of feeding has continued, through the moult and through the winter, till about two weeks ago, when I saw somewhere the following advice: "Avoid mixtures, as these nearly all contain more or less of that most pernicious seed, inga, which upsets the liver and gives rise to various ailments in consequence." I have not seen any "upsetting." What is the experience of others?

The Type of the Lancashire Canary.

SIR,—As one who has for many years taken a keen interest in the Lancashire Canary, and who also considers that it should be judged for type above all else, I have been interested in the discussion on the subject in recent issues of CAGE BIRDS. This is not the first nor the second time Mr. Fuller has raised the question. On all other occasions he has upheld my decisions; on this occasion he is attacking the same. Mr. Fuller mentions that this bird shown by Mr. Adams won at Rochdale under myself and under Mr. John Garner at Manchester. Of my own capability as a judge I will say nothing beyond the fact that the L.L.F.A. and L.C.A. have both done me the honour of repeatedly electing me as one of their judges, and that the Rochdale O.C. have invited me to judge the Lancashires at Rochdale more often than any other judge. Mr. Fuller will admit that our Rochdale friends know what constitutes a Lancashire, and I take it they would not elect any judge year after year if he did not judge according to the standard. Mr. Garner is one of the oldest, most experienced, and most skilful of Lancashire breeders. Few men have bred and shown so many winning Lancashires as the Hazel Grove enthusiast. His opinion of a Lancashire would, I am convinced, be considered of far more value than that of Mr. Fuller, and if, instead of every now and then raising this question of "bad judging" of the Lancashire bird, Mr. Fuller would show us a few good winners his opinion on other men's decisions would be entitled to greater respect. What Mr. Garner does not know about Lancashires, their breeding and judging, I feel sure Mr. Fuller cannot teach him; rather would I say that did Mr. Fuller sit at the feet of Mr. Garner for twelve months he might learn something which would enable him to do as Mr. Garner has done—breed high-class exhibition Lancashires for something like three decades. It reminds me of the saying about "teaching one's grandmother to suck eggs." Mr. Fuller teaching Mr. Garner how to judge Lancashires is somewhat analogous. From what I can gather, Mr. Fuller is writing about this bird which won at Rochdale and Manchester, not from what it really is as an exhibition specimen, but from what he has been told as to its breeding. I would not like to suggest that it is a case of sour grapes with Mr. Fuller, or that the green-eyed monster has taken possession of his breast, but I would remind him that when a judge is casting his eye over a class he has not to consider any question of ownership or breeding, but to select and place at the top of the list the birds which, in his opinion, come nearest to the acknowledged standard of the breed. This is what I did at Rochdale, and from my notes made whilst I was judging it is evident to me that Mr. Adams's bird came nearer to the standard than any other. I know not what caused Mr Garner to place it first at Manchester, but surmise that he, like myself, considered it the best all-round bird in the class. Mr. Fuller speaks of Mr. Robson putting the bird down at a London show. Did he put it down because it was not a Lancashire, or because he considered it was not the best bird in the class? If the latter it proves nothing. If he did throw it out as not answering to the standard of the L.L.F.A. and L.C.A., then it does nothing more than prove that in his (Mr. Robson's) opinion it is not a Lancashire; and opposed to that we have the opinions of Mr. Garner, myself, and the judge of the third show, whose name is not mentioned. Three judges out of four in favour of the bird Mr. Fuller so scathingly denounces. Mr. Fuller knows, as well as I know, that I have repeatedly passed birds as "wrong class," and so marked my judging slips, because they, in my opinion, gave signs of having knocked hard against the Norwich door. Has Mr. Fuller forgotten these facts? Has he forgotten that one of Lancashire's oldest and most respected breeders refused to enter under myself at Rochdale for some years because I on one occasion marked two of his exhibits "wrong class"? When Mr. Fuller has produced and exhibited a few birds capable of holding their own at Rochdale, Manchester, and Oldham, then his opinions of other men's judgment will carry more weight than they do to-day. At present his frequent incursions into the columns of CAGE BIRDS only cause the men who can and do breed Lancashires to smile and say, "Teddy on the warpath again." Mr. Fuller speaks of the framing of the standard of the L.L.F.A. I would remind him that Mr. Compston is not wholly responsible for that; the two men who judged so badly at Rochdale and Manchester each had a say in the same, as did others. From then till now I have always striven to judge to that standard, and shall continue to do so. The breeding season of 1910 is not over yet; there is still time left to Mr. Fuller to breed two or three birds of the standard type. Should he succeed in doing so, and, further, succeed in putting them down in fit condition to win in the Young Bird classes at Rochdale, I shall be the first to congratulate him. I would, however, remind him that the task is not an easy one. It is rather more difficult than pulling to pieces the awards of men who have for years succeeded where he has failed.

C. A. HOUSE.

SIR,—Kindly allow me space in regard to Mr. Fuller's letter. Our friend, Teddy, has made one or two inaccurate statements in his vigorous remarks. He states that both the Lancashire and Lizard F.A. and Lancashire C.A. have the same standard worked out by Mr. S. Compston, and passed at Oldham, some years ago. I cannot say whether Mr. Compston was solely responsible for that standard, but he certainly had nothing to do with the standard now in use, as this standard was altered to its present state, on April 21st, 1906, at the White Lion Hotel, Manchester, the committee present being Messrs. J. Garner, J. Vickers, and B. Buckley. He also tells us that at our meetings the Lancashire is scarcely ever mentioned. This certainly does not apply to the meetings where Teddy is present, there is no room for anything else but Lancashires. Mr. Robson ought to be proud to know that he has earned Mr. Fuller's approbation in passing Mr. Adams's bird, especially as well-known Lancashire experts and breeders have put the same bird well up. I hold no brief for anyone, but when such men, as Messrs. Garner, Barrass, and Hardy fail to give satisfaction as judges, what are we to do? Here we have our oldest and best authorities on the Lancashire failing to give satisfaction. Where is the remedy to come from? In regard to Mr. Robson, I have heard more than one Lancashire breeder say he is as good as any judge we have, and as far as the Lizard is concerned, I would as soon he judged mine as any judge I have shown under; and I have not always been successful under him. Mr. Fuller goes on to say that there is no encouragement to give patronage to London or Notts. For goodness' sake, why? Certainly it would be better if we could get specialist judges at these shows, but it is only by sending our birds out to such shows as these that we get them known. I quite agree with Teddy that it would be well to give the Northern Shows our patronage; but they only cater for the Lizard, they never entertain the Lancashire at all; whilst both Notts and L.C.B.A. have given us classes for each section. I trust the question will be given proper consideration, and hope to hear a remedy from friend Teddy.

Bird Breeders Barred by the Bradford Corporation.

SIR,—I have read with great interest the correspondence ro the above, but there is ono thing that I take exception to, and that is the misleading statement concerning parsons and their wives in the letter written by Mr. William P. Bell. He has spoilt what I consider to be a splendid letter by the inclusion of these few sentences. I have no doubt ho has met with an isolated case such as he mentions, but he must not make that general, and it is in defence of our "brethren of the cloth" that I object to that part of his letter. I could tell him of great lights in the Fancy that are ministers of the gospel, and I take off my hat when I hear tho name of our friend, the Rev. C. D. Farrar, of Leeds. His words have been worth a very great deal to fanciers seeking information in CAGE BIRDS, and I expect he has a wife as good a fancier as himself. And what woman is not a fancier? It is in the very nature of the weaker sex to love and cherish the dumb creation, and I could tell of scores that do so. When I read the splendid article last week by our friend, the Rev. Bernard Wilton, an article whose purport was to stop others making the same mistakes as he did, I felt bound to admire the spirit of it which is in entire keeping with his profession as a minister of the gospel, to help others; and I owe my little success in the Fancy to the advice and exhortation of a true fancier who, I am glad to say, is a lay preacher, and has a wife that is as good a fancier as himself. I trust our friend Mr. Bell will not be so hasty in his judgment the next time he writes; his letter throws a slur on our parsons and their wives, which they don't by any means deserve.

JOHN HOCKING.

SIR,—You will be pleased to hear that Mr. F. Hammond and myself have been granted an interview with the Bradford Health Committee, for Wednesday afternoon next, at 3.15, when we hope to "clear the air" with regard to the fanciers who are living in the Corporation property and keeping birds for breeding purposes, who, as you are aware, received notices from the agent to quit.

H. HILL.

The Douglas C.B.S. and Mr. Gale

SIR,—I see by CAGE BIRDS of March 19th that the Douglas Cage Bird Society's secretary, Mr. Turner has written you stating that Mr. E. Gale, whose exhibit was disqualified at the Palace Show, is not a member of his society. What a lot of tommy rot. I have never said I was, nor do I want to be. I could have been a member if I had wanted to be. No thanks. The whole matter is one of "disappointed exhibitor." This kind of thing has been going on for many years. I am the only one who has ever bred a Bullfinch Mule in the island in my time. I have heard others say that they have bred the Bullfinch cross, but no one has seen tho birds but themselves. That's where tho boot pinches. Then they call themselves "fanciers." I am sorry for Mr. Turner, the secretary, that he does not understand their little game of "mud throwing." Some of the society's members are very decent chaps, and good fanciers, and some of them I am sorry to say are not fanciers. I call them "pot hunters," and to them I say, kindly mind your own business in future, and when you live in very tender glasshouses, stop throwing stones. Instead, learn how to keep, breed, and show birds as they should be. If a few of us non-members went out of the Fancy, what a "ball" they would have—all first prizes and no blanks in the open-shows!

Why do Hens Refuse to Feed their Offspring?

SIR,—I should like to know why hens refuse to feed? In my 20 years' experience I have invariably found that if you breed with a variegated hen, either buff or yellow, and the cock is a clear, and the offspring, say, some clear or ticked, and others green marked, the hen will bring up the clears or ticked or lightly marked youngsters, but refuse to feed if the youngsters are dark. Why it is I do not know, but last season I had a nest of fine youngsters, and the hen refused to feed the dark ones. What did I do? I put a variegated cock in a cage hanging to the breeding cage, and all at once she started feeding right and left—in fact, the birds came on fine—and brought the nest of youngsters up till fully fledged. I took the variegated cock away when the youngsters were ready to put in a flight and I gave the hen a rest and tried her again, but met with the same result. I could not put the variegated cock there again, as he was paired up, and I lost the young birds. I am going to try another dodge this year, and will let readers know the result. You can feed the hen which way you like, but it all comes to the same thing. I have a friend, Dr. Rogerson, of Dundee, very clever both in doctoring birds and bringing youngsters up. If I can only get him to give his view, I am sure fanciers will appreciate his skill. I remember once that I sent a bird to him with a broken leg, and after two months he sent it back cured and in full song. It is fanciers like the doctor we want to "open" and give the secrets away. I hope to hear of other fanciers' views.

GEO. WILSON.

The Making of Egg-food.

SIR,—I am rather amused at the letters of Mr. Clarke and Mr. Monger on the making of egg food. I have travelled all over the country and the best method I ever saw, and the quickest (30 seconds), is to put the whole egg (shell also), and half a round of bread in a mincing machine, and there you have the egg food incorporated in the time given. I saw the above made by one of the best Scottish exhibitors, who has won no end of cups, etc. I use the above method myself and find that it is far better than by the sievo method. Lastly, I am open to compete for the least time against any who uses the sieve method (with my mincing machine).

GEO. WILSON.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Clarke's letter of last week, I can assure him that I was not in any way slighted by his remarks. In fact, I think it is quite the reverse. I cannot accept his congratulations re the "championship," as our competition was only a minor event, and I hope when such an honour is at stake, I shall have the pleasure of reading that it was won by a much older fancier than myself, using a less "contaminating appliance." I am pleased to say I am not one of those fanciers who are too old to learn (as I am quite young in the Fancy), for I gladly accept any advice from an old or young fancier, but do not like it given with too much self-opinionation. There are splendid opportunities of giving one's methods in the Press without waiting to condemn the methods of other fanciers. Perhaps Mr. C. will excuse my sarcasm, but I had to choose between a sarcastic and a personal reply, and I chose the former. It gives me great pleasure to return Mr. C.'s compliment in a friendly spirit, and wish him and all other fanciers, whatever method they may adopt, a successful breeding season.

G. MONGER.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—In your issue of March 19th Mr. W. Connell disputes my statement, viz., that it is impossible to tie 1,500 knots per hour. Well, had I not done so I should not have made the statement. Perhaps it will interest Mr. Connell to know that my brother can tie 1,600 per hour, and has been timed by an old netter and bird-catcher. This was done round the bottom of a cast net. There are 800 meshes round it, and he can go round in half-hour. I have done 1,500 on the same net in an hour; it is ½in. mesh. The net is still in our possession. So before you dispute a statement, Mr. C., you must not judge others by your own work. I have answered the correspondents and have given them advice, which I know they will find practical. Also I have started and finished 3 rabbit nets in an hour, 2in. mesh, 22in by 20in. Perhaps Mr. Connell will give an account of some of his net work.

Cats and Mice in the Bird-room

SIR,—While the subject of cats and mice in bird-rooms is before your readers, I should like to give a little of my own experience which covers over 46 years. When I was 14 my father kept several Skylarks. The bottom of the frame in which they were was about 4ft. from the floor, and having occasionally to wash them, he put them on the hearth in their cage until dry, never considering anything about the cat (which was a tabby barred one). The bird has been left there for two and three hours together in safety, and anyone coming in would find the cat asleep within a foot of the birds. Since then I have kept a lot of birds (fresh-caught British and others), but I never lost one through the cat getting at it, although I was absent for as long as three or four hours. I always get the medium Tabby barred cats, and my way was to keep a small pot of fresh mustard, and when I saw the cat looking at any bird I just put my finger in the mustard and in the pretence of going to stroke the cat, I popped a little on its nose. Of course, when keeping birds I always had kittens to bring up, but I could never depend upon any with black, yellow or white about them. I have just lost a handsome young Roller cock through a black cat getting in the house. But after all my experience I would say never trust a cat, as however tame or domesticated it may be, it will betray you some time.

YORK C.B.S.

At headquarters, All Saints' Schoolroom, North-street, a members' show was held recently. Twenty classes were provided, and amongst the 125 birds staged some exceptionally good Norwich and Yorkshires were on view. British birds were the most numerous, including some very fine Hawfinches, Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, Twites, Bramblefinches, etc. The Foreign birds included some belonging to Messrs. Sissons and Zimmerman, who staged some fine Cardinals, Nonpareils, Budgerigars, etc., which proved a great attraction. The novices took several of the prizes. The judging was ably carried out by Mr. Axe (Doncaster).

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A.

General meeting, held at Manchester on March 5th, a fair number of members attending. Owing to the death of the landlady at the Old Boar's Head, we had to hunt about for a new place, which necessitated starting the meeting after the usual time. A fair amount of business was done. A discussion on the purchase of the cups, etc., was entered into, and it was finally decided that the Secretary summon a special meeting for April 9th, all members to be invited to attend. It was decided to leave the balance sheet over till next meeting. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the chairman and secretary for their services during the past season. Mr. Fuller was once again in his element, the air being thick with Lancashire chat, nobody else being able to get a word in edgeways. Mr. Thompson (Glossop) was made a member, and Messrs. E. T. Turner (Rochdale), C. Bosworth (Rushden), and J. Laycock (Colne) were nominated for membership. It was unanimously passed that the secretary send a vote of condolence to the landlord, on the loss of his wife, expressing our sympathy. We have still room for new members, and I shall be glad to propose anyone on hearing from same.—JOHN RUKIN, Hon. Sec.

SCOTTISH NATIONAL C.B.S.

The annual general meeting, held in rooms, 142, High Street, Edinburgh, on 5th March; Mr. A. C. Dandie (president), in the chair, before a pretty fair muster of members. The sec. read the minutes of last general meeting, also the minutes of all the various committee meetings, and same were passed as correct, excepting a slight alteration in one or two instances. One was Mr. Livingstone having been at a committee meeting and seconded a motion, he not being a member of the society, some of the members then present having thought he was on the provincial committee, hence permission. Balance sheet was then gone over, and after very severe "heckling" by most present, was accepted. Votes of thanks to the various willing helpers at late show were unanimously accorded, also to all the retiring office-bearers. The president, Mr. A. C. Dandie, intimated that owing to ill-health he could not continue as president, although severely pressed to do so; his resignation was accepted with great regret. Election of office-bearers resulted as follows:—Hon. vice-presidents were left over until next meeting. It was agreed to have a show manager, Mr. R. Craig being unanimously appointed same. President, Mr. Winter; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. F. Dewar and L. J. Arrighi; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. W. Watson, 68, Colinton Road, Edinburgh. Mr. Watson agreed to do without assistant secretary, a small remuneration extra being allowed for help during show time; also assistance from other members in regard to show business. Motion to restrict committee to twenty was defeated on a vote, the number being left open as necessity arises. Committee: Messrs. Buglass, Rodger, Gourlay, Easter, Finnie, May, Todd, Sykes, Hoyle, Morris, Jack, Mackie, Spence, Cockrane, and Bowie. Provincial committee: Messrs. Bald (Bathgate), Dr. Galloway (Aberdeen), T. Auchterlonie (St. Andrews), Cormack (Duns), Jamieson (Hawick), Young (Rutherglen), Perret (Kelso), Law (Dundee), G. Hyslop (Stirling), T. Erskine (Glasgow), and G. Alston (Darvel). Auditors: Messrs. Brotherston and Green. No more time being available, meeting adjourned until Saturday, 26th March, same rooms, at 7 p.m. A full muster is requested. —A. W. WATSON, sec.

GLASGOW (Confined) SOUTHERN ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

Members and friends met in the Bank Restaurant, Queen-street, on March 18th, when the gathering took the form of a "Smoker and Presentation." Mr. P. McLellan (president) occupied the chair. He was supported by Vice-president Renwick, Secretary Fleming, Messrs. W. McClure, A. Porteous, Thomson, J. Knox, A. Jardine, D. Black, J. Fulton, J. Muir, A. Clark, J. Semple, W. Gray, McLachlan, L. McDonald, Turnbull, A. McDonald secretary of G.C.O.A, ex-Parish Councillor Fleming, and many others whose names we could not obtain. The proceedings were opened by the chairman giving the first toast, "The King," which was duly honoured. The musical part of the programme was contributed to by the following artistes, their efforts meeting with loud applause, and frequent encores: Messrs. J. Fleming, Milligan, Dingwall, Austin George, Sandon, Furness, and our old friend, Mr. J. Knox. Mr. Dale rendered some violin solos, which met with much acceptance. This part of the programme was well sustained, and highly appreciated. The chairman, at this stage, remarked that they had now come to an interesting part of the programme, namely, the presentation to Mr. James Fleming, their worthy secretary, who had been their secretary for many years; the members being desirous of showing their esteem and appreciation of his services in some tangible way, the duty of handing over the gift had devolved upon him. He was glad to have this opportunity of stating how pleased he was to see such a large and representative meeting of fanciers. He was also pleased to say that he had been closely connected with their worthy secretary, Mr. Fleming, for many years, and the high position which the Association had now attained was largely due to his untiring efforts. The Association was well-known in club circles as the premier club of Scotland, and for that honour much was due to their secretary, Mr. Fleming. He had now much pleasure in handing over to Mr. Fleming this gold albert and appendage, which bore the following inscription: "Presented to J. Fleming, by the members of the G.C.S.O.A., 1910." In making the presentation, he said, "the members wish you long life, and much happiness, and may you be long spared to go in and out amongst us." Mr. Fleming, in accepting it, said he was deeply grateful for this very handsome gift. He felt how little he was worthy of all the kind words the chairman had said of him. He could assure his many friends it was a labour of love, and was deeply sensible of the fact that he owed much to the members of the Association for their kindness and assistance in many ways during the fourteen years he had been secretary of the club. Many members had passed away during that period, but their memory was still green in their hearts. In conclusion he said that as in the past, so in the future, as their secretary, it would be his constant effort and aim to make the club even greater than in the past. Mr. D. Black (President G.C.O.A.) proposed the toast "Kindred Societies," coupled with the name of Mr. A. McDonald, secretary of the G.C.O.A., whose brief but racy remarks were well received. Mr. H. Porteous also spoke of the many qualifications possessed by Mr. Fleming, and how the G.C.S.O.A. was in the happy position of being the nursery of all that was possible to obtain of the ideal in a Scotch Fancy. Mr. R. G. Jolliffe (representing CAGE BIRDS) proposed a vote of thanks to the artistes, and to the promoters, President McLellan, and Mr. Turnbull, and their committee for the evening's entertainment, which had proved a huge success, and for the splendid programme that had been submitted. He hoped the society would have many more evenings of a similar nature. A vote of thanks being accorded the chairman (which met with loud applause) the company sang "Auld Lang Syne," the meeting then dispersing.—SCOTS FANCY.

SCOTTISH NORWICH P.C.

Annual general meeting, held in Good Templars Hall, Glasgow, on March 12th, Mr. R. B. Jarvie (vice-president) presiding over a large meeting. The balance sheet for 1909, which showed the club to be in a sound condition, was considered and unanimously passed. President's and novice prizes and medals won during the year were then handed over to the winners, who are as follows:—President's prize, J. Smeaton, 228 points; novice prizes: James Hutchison 42 points, William Simpson 37 points, David Johnstone 7 points; gold medals for best unflighted cock and best unflighted hen at club show: G. Mitchell and R. Martin; silver medals at eight shows: A. Watson, R. Martin, A. Sloan, W. Bishop, J. Smeaton, J. Hutchison (Kilmarnock), J. Hutchison (Inverness), G. Davidson, W. Dunn, W. Grewar, L. Mill, G. Mitchell, A. G. Cameron, W. Simpson, J. A. Ferguson. Result of voting for office-bearers for 1910:—Committee: J. Smeaton 44, J. Winter 43, W. Aitchison 42, A. G. Cameron 40, J. McLay 39, J. A. Ferguson 37, J. Hector 35, A Chalmers 35, J. Young 33, G. Scaife 32, G. Mitchell 31, W. Clubb 29, A. Sloan 27, W. Grewar 26, R. B. Jarvie 25, A. G. Forrest 25, G. Davidson 24, J. F. Dewar 20. Judges: A. G. Cameron 39, J. A. Ferguson 34, J. McLay 29, A. Chalmers 28, J. Smeaton 26, W. Watson 21. Auditors: D. S. Gowans 33, J. Peters 28. Scrutineers: C. Campbell 12, G. G. Henderson 6. Secretary and treasurer: J. Brown 65. Mr. Nisbet moved and Mr. Maxwell seconded that the club's patronage be granted to club shows with not less than a ten miles radius, provided eight members are members of the Plainhead Club, that not less than five classes are provided for Plainheads, and that a club member be selected as judge, and this became the finding of the meeting. The following gentlemen were admitted to membership:—A. Fleming (Musselburgh), T. Taylor (Prestonpans), T. Godber and F. Paling (Paisley), G. Gentles and J. Hardy (Glasgow), and J. Powell (Busby).—J. BROWN, sec., 97, Petershill-rd., Glasgow.

Crest-bred, ditto. Classification consisting of 8 classes. Class 1: Buff Crested ck, A.V. 2: Buff Crested hen, A.V. 3: Buff Crest-bred ck., A.V. 4: Buff Crest-bred hen, A.V. 5: Yell. Crest, A.V. 6: Yell. Crest-bred, A.V. 7: Current year Crest, AV. 8: Current year Crest-bred, A.V.

(a) The support of the C.C.C. will be given to one selected show whereat 14 classes are given as per C.C.C. specification. This show will be known as the "Crested Canary Club Show," and in addition to other specials the silver challenge bowls will be offered for competition. (b) The support of the C.C.C. will also be given to 8 selected shows where at 8 or more classes are given in the Crest and Crest-bred section as per the C.C.C. specification. Conditions of support.—1: The C.C.C. will guarantee payment of prize money in full (except in the two novice classes) and indemnify the society holding the show against loss on entries, providing such societies that may be selected for C.C.C. support pay to the Hon. Treasurer of the C.C.C. an insurance fee at the rate of 2s. 6d. per class on all classes in the Crest and Crest-bred section. These conditions do not apply to novice or selling classes. Any society that wishes to take their own risk may do so, and in that case need not pay the 2s. 6d. per class to the C.C.C.; but it must be distinctly understood that all other conditions must be adhered to, and they must guarantee full payment of prize money at time of making application for support. 2: All societies receiving C.C.C. support shall provide at their own risk not less than 2 classes for novices, viz., 1, A.V. Crest; 2, A.V. Crest-bred. In the event of short entry, prize money may be given on the sliding scale, or on the general conditions laid down by the society holding the show, and in conformity with the conditions applying to the other varieties at such show. 3: Prize money to be not less than 20s. per class for an entry fee of 1s. 6d., and not less than 30s. for an entry fee of 2s. 4: The classification must be according to the schedule drawn up by the C.C.C. 5: C.C.C. specials are to be competed for by members of the C.C.C. only.

In classes marked thus * I have given alternative classification as there is a slight diversity of opinion existing between members of the Sub-Committee. It must be understood that this is simply Mr. Ley's scheme as drafted by the Sub-Committee and needs submitting to the General Committee for approval and adoption. Most important to members of the C.C.C. is the fact that Messrs. Rhodes and Ley are generously guaranteeing the club against loss on the scheme for season 1910 and 1911, ending with Palace show. In addition to the usual array of cash, 21s., specials, and various silver cups, challenge bowls, etc., there will be on offer to be won outright in one season a handsome solid silver bowl, value £8 8s., for most points secured at the 9 shows by birds outside the prize money, this as the result of the enthusiasm and generosity of five or six well-known fanciers. Societies are requested to apply at once stating clearly which classification they are prepared to give.—J. S. CLARKE, Sec., Sunnyside, Prospect-rd., Woodford, Essex.

MATCHED PAIRS AND THEIR PROGENY.

A Lecture given by Mr. S. Dean before the Bankfoot and Dis. C.B.S. on March 15

When your secretary wrote me some time ago for a lecture, I was practically at a loss as to what to take for a subject seeing I have given so many lately, and I thought a change of subject necessary, as no doubt some of you will have heard me before. It is 17 years ago since I first started in the Fancy. I have books at home in which I can trace the breeding of any bird back to 13 years ago. In this book I enter all the good and bad points of my birds, so that should a bird turn up with a bad fault that I did not expect, I can soon see where the fault came from.

I will give you an example of how I make out my books. I draw a line across the centre of each page and place the numbers of all my cock birds on the top, and those of all the hens on the bottom, in such a way that all the cocks have odd number and all the hens even numbers. Then on the same page I give the numbers of the parents for three or four years back, from which each bird was bred. By this method you will see how simple it is to trace back any bird right up to the time you first started. Last year I bred from a cock for the ninth year in succession, and during the whole of this time he was never down in condition. This will give you an idea what it is worth to keep your birds in condition.

By experience I have proved that the progeny resemble the parent that at the time of mating was in the best condition. (Here Mr. Dean gave several examples of matings which fully bore out his statement.) I have also found that where a bird is inbred and paired up to one that is not inbred, but in high condition (mind you, I mean both birds to be in good condition), the majority of the progeny have resembled the inbred bird. I believe in inbreeding from birds that possess really good points. It does not trouble me how near they are related, so long as they are in sound condition. I should strongly advise you not to breed from birds that have during the moult caught a chill and you have been unable to cure until after the moult.

Mr. J. Nicholl: Does Mr. Dean think inbreeding reduces size?—If you breed from sound, healthy stock your birds will not deteriorate in size. I have seen bigger birds among the progeny than among parents. Mr. H. Taylor: How near would Mr. Dean advise inbreeding?—As I have said before, I do not care how near I go so long as they are of a healthy and sound condition. Inbreeding from sound stock will inbreed health. Mr. C. Hardaker: Could you give us a recipe for nest diarrhœa?—Feed on dry food or anything binding. Also give egg-food dry.

Mr. H. Taylor: How would you cure a sweating hen?—This is not always the fault of the hen, as the young may have a little looseness of the bowels, and the hen sitting on them gives you the impression that she is sweating. Hang on the bath in which has been placed a few drops of vinegar.

As it was now past time, Mr. J. Nicholl proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer for his kindness in giving us such an interesting lecture. Mr. W. North seconded, and Mr. Dean suitably responded, at the same time giving all a hearty invitation to inspect his rooms at any time.—F. GELDER, secretary.

COKERNUT BREEDING HUSKS.

To breed Budgerigars successfully you must have the "Improved Sceure" husks. All bird fancying papers have advised their readers to prefer them, because other kinds come to pieces and the young birds fall to the floor and die, and this is just why the "Improved Sceure" husks have been "celebrated" for the last 18 years. They remain unequalled, competition and comparison always increase their popularity; the principal Zoo's, Parks, and breeders employ them, and "Cage Birds" has said:—"They are far superior to the old husks," so beware of worthless substitutes. Price 5s. dozen, smaller quantities 6d. each. Superior box nests for Cockatiels, etc., 1/6 each: Harper, Husk Importer, Wolverhampton.

RARE HANGNESTS

True pair Black-winged Hangnests, Icterus girandi, very rare and acclimatised, 60/-; would take exchange: S. Watson, Titheburn-st., Preston.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

THERE ARE TIMES

When breeders of Canaries and Hybrids find it inconvenient to cook and mince up egg for their birds. We can help them, for our

which is already cooked and sterilized, only requires damping with cold water to make a reliable, efficient and genuine Egg and Biscuit Food, upon which the breeder may rely implicitly. Do not confound it with any other preparation on the market, for it resembles none of them in the least. Sold in 3d., 6d., and 1/- tins, by us, and all Corn and Bird Shops. Yorkshire—Greens

Palace Winners.

Having acquired the Stocks of the following noted exhibitors—Mr. F. Clayton, Mr. C. Pickup, and Mr. R. E. Helliwell, I am now in a position to make such an offer as was never made before of the Highest Class Pairs, guaranteed unrelated, and every bird bred from winners. Several actual winners amongst them. Prices: Cocks, or hens, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/- to 100/-; matched pairs, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/- upwards. I invite you to come and see this marvellous collection yourself. If that is impossible, your order through the post will receive prompt and personal attention. For the winnings of these birds see the reports of all the leading shows during the past season. I have also a few grand Yorkshire Cinnamons from same strains at same prices. For other varieties see my advert on p. 299 Send for my Free Catalogue.

I SAY NO!
I say no, and you well know that I know when to say no; so I say to you, No, do not trouble to read this announcement if you want to pay fancy prices, for I do not believe in them, therefore have nothing whatever to do with them. I have yearly during the past fifteen years, and honestly believe that I always shall sell as many or more birds than any opponent, for, you know, I have the confidence of the public. My sending you birds carriage paid to your door on seven days' approval, at my sole risk, and guaranteeing every customer satisfaction, allows you time to make sure the birds give you every satisfaction before deciding to keep them. Then, again, the high quality of my birds is unsurpassable, every bird being sound, astounding value for money, without any fancy prices, bounce, or brag. My matched pairs for breeders and amateurs are a marvel of cheapness. Yorkshires, Norwich, and Rollers at 10/6, 12/6, 15/- per pair are birds that will satisfy the most sceptical. The shrewder the buyers the more I like them, for they fully realise the high quality I give for the money. I yearly receive thousands of unsollicited testimonials from delighted customers, and could fill the whole of this paper with letters of praise, but you will be better satisfied, and can judge better, if you let me send you your requirements, carriage paid, on seven days' approval; you can then fully test the quality before deciding to keep the birds. My whole study is to give every satisfaction, and fullest possible value for money, that you may tell your friends of the high quality of my birds. If by chance you are not satisfied send the bird back, and tell me its faults. I shall only be too delighted to send you another in its place, for I take all the risk during time of approval. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage. All Canaries forwarded to your address carriage paid on 7 days' approval, at my sole risk or deposit.

LOOK HERE!

It is all right you paying fancy prices for ordinary, or even third-class birds, if your desire is to be rid of your money, but should you desire good value, 20/-, or even 30/- to the £1, you must use discretion in where you order your birds. I always have been, and still am, the leading trading fancier of high-class birds at most reasonable prices. My prices may be copied, but the quality I give cannot be equalled at anything like the prices. When you send me your order you get birds from the fountain head of high-class, typical clean, healthy birds. My stock may be (but I doubt it) outnumbered in count, but the quality stands supreme. Yet the prices are low. Just you have one of my matched pairs at 10/6, 12/6, or 15/-, on approval, and compare them with birds costing double the price. You will then be convinced that for style and quality, at reasonable prices, I stand alone. This is only explained by my breeding from the best any buying only first-class stocks, that are bred from, including, and related to winners at all the leading shows. I do not exhibit myself, therefore my customers get birds from me that other breeders would retain for their own exhibition. The prices and quality of my birds utterly defy competition, and I guarantee every customer satisfaction. Let me send you the birds you require, carriage paid to your door, at my own risk, for seven clear days, that you may be thoroughly satisfied before deciding to keep them. I am assured your trial order will enlist both you and your friends as my regular customers, for you will join with my thousands of customers in acknowledging that for style and quality my birds are unsurpassable. Border Fancy cocks, 6/-, 6/6, 7/- each, hens, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, matched pairs, 8/-, 8/6, 9/-, 9/6. Yorkshire cocks 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each, hens 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each, matched pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks 6/6, 7/0, 8/0, 10/6, hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/0, matched pairs 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Hartz Rollers, champion songsters, cocks 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs 8/-, 9/-; St. Andreasburg Rollers, the king of all singers, cocks 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, hens 3/-, 4/-, 5/-; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; illustrated list, 1d. All Canaries carriage paid, on approval.

Dykes. 99, Dock Road, Tilbury Dock, Essex. 28/3/10.—Received bird safe on Friday morning, none the worse for journey. He is a very nice bird indeed. You will hear from me again next week. H. J. Smith to L. Dykes.

My Yorkshires need no recommending, as they recommend themselves wherever they go, and my winning this season of over 200 cash prizes, three Challenge Cups, gold, silver, and bronze medals, and numerous other specials, prove the quality of the reliable strain.

Champion long, slim, Yellow Yorkshire cocks at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Buff cocks at 5/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each, all on full song, and 7 inches long. Long, racy hens, either Yellow or Buff, and all in breeding condition and anxious to nest, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each. Pairs, unrelated, and matched to breed winners, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair; also few that can win in good competition, at reasonable prices. Clears, Ticked, Green Marked and Cinn. Marked. All guaranteed cold-rooms bred and kept, and feathered like wax. Travelling Cages 3d. extra. And Remember I send all orders off same day as received, either for cash, deposit with Editor, or on Easy Payments. All on a full week's approval at my risk, and I may also here state I have sent scores on deposit system, and never had one to return all season. Inspection invited at any time. Send for Price List, and hundreds of winning testimonials that I have received.

are well known on the show bench, and need no puff. Grand pairs, properly matched to breed winners, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; single birds from 4/-: Arthur Harris, West Haddon, Rugby.

W. MULLINS, DONCASTER.

I have still a few high-class Yorkshires for sale; if you require birds that will do you some good, all cold-room bred, send stamp, stating wants; I can guarantee entire satisfaction at reasonable prices; approval: Balby-rd, Doncaster.

OGDEN BROS.

As we have selected our breeding stock we find we can spare an ideal pair of dark-eyed Yorkshires, also one pair of cinnamon marks; we will sacrifice either pair for £3; note, these are our big winners, perfectly matched, to breed the best that ever graced the show bench: Dudley Hill, Bradford.

J. C. BARNES,

149, Duncombe-st., Sheffield. Few grand birds to spare; true position, very lengthy, feathered to perfection, and well on leg; correctly matched pairs, 30/ to 60/-; odd cocks, 10/- upwards; hens ditto; approval with pleasure; stamp reply; winners of numerous cups, medals, etc., at leading shows; all my winners guaranteed own breeding.

HENS. HENS. HENS.

These are the kind you require to breed champions, long, slim, upstanding birds, feathered to perfection, and showing that bit of breed so much admired in a true Yorkshire, position and type A1, clear, ticked, or marked, yellow or buff; also a few odd cocks, splendid stock birds, reasonable prices; approval; cash or deposit; stamp particulars: W. H. Shackleton, Melrose-house, Lytton-rd., Bradford.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

"Ready to nest immediately."

Read following testimonials, which are only a sample out of scores I receive weekly:—From 2, Little George Street, Hampstead Road, London. March 27th, 1910.—Received birds in splendid condition. I am fully satisfied with our transaction, and I think they are splendid value for the price. W. R. Pye to J. Taylor. Another from, Drumshangie, Whiterigg, Scotland. March 26th, 1910.—The pair that you sent me are doing very well, and the hen is nesting already. I am above satisfied with them. Geo. Ballie. Another from, 4, Alexandra Road, Consett. March 27th, 1910.—Yorkshire cock safely to hand, and is really a gem. I am more than pleased with him, and will recommend you to all I know. A. Jackson to J. Taylor. If you require high-class stock birds, carefully and accurately matched to breed winners, give me a trial, and I guarantee the best of satisfaction, either for cash or on my "Original" Easy Payment System. for sale this month before you buy them, as there is nothing like seeing what you are having for your money. Large, good coloured yellow and buff Norwich, long, good shape and good coloured Yorkshires, to be seen in their hundreds at Dawson's, Lower Sloane-st., London. Est. 50 years.

REMOVING.

As I am removing to larger and more up-to-date premises during the next few weeks, I am compelled to sell 20 pairs of my own stock birds, all young birds; 6 pairs of Norwich, bred from birds that have cost me £5 pair—I offer 3 pairs at 10/- pair; 2 pairs at £1; 1 pair at 30/-; 6 pairs of very fine Yorkshires at 15/- pair; 1 pair at 12/6; 12 pairs of real Seifert Rollers, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- pair; also a few fine odd hens. Send me word what you want and if I cannot match your birds up there will be no harm. All birds on full week's approval: Enoch Tams Church-st., Longton, Staffs.

Does this in any way interest you ?

If it does; then you can have what you cannot elsewhere obtain, i.e., you cannot get the same value for the sell same prices. This I have demonstrated to thousands' and if you will give me the opportunity, I will prove it to you.

The Beginner's Pairs and Outfit.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, 'Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

5/- (Five Shillings).

Something Like Business.

My advertisement in "Cage Birds" brought me a pile of replies from all parts.—G. P. MORGAN (Llandovery).

I have had more results from your paper in one week than I have had from 50 other papers.—F. UNDERWOOD (Manchester).

I am pleased to be able to tell you that I have sold all the birds I advertised, with one exception.—GERALD RATTIGAN (London, S.W.).

I am pleased to say my advertisement in "Cage Birds," was a great success. I sold all the birds I had to sell.—G. FRANCIS (Lowestoft).

From my last advertisement in "Cage Birds," which cost me only a few coppers, I sold £7 10s. worth of birds.—JOHN LEES (Rochdale).

I have had about 60 letters in answer to my application for cock Goldfinch, and so cannot answer all.—(Rev.) BERNARD WILTON (Middlesbrough).

Kindly thank the many applicants for my stock advertised in last week's "Cage Birds." I have done good trade.—MRS. A. MARTIN (Lancaster).

I have had so many replies to my advertisements in your paper, that I cannot possibly answer them all.—(Rev.) BERNARD WILTON (Middlesbrough).

I must discontinue my Norwich advertisement in "Cage Birds," as I cannot keep pace answering all enquiries in reply to it.—H. SNOWDEN (Morecambe).

I was unable to answer all who wrote me re my advertisement in "Cage Birds" of February 18th, as I have had about 30 offers.—J. HOLKER (Westhoughton).

I had very good results from my last advertisement in "Cage Birds." Of all the birds I sent out I did not have one returned.—CLEMENT HILLMEN (Liverpool).

Please stop my Cinnamon advertisement in "Cage Birds." I have cleared out over forty birds through two "ads." in "Cage Birds."—J. R. INGRAM (St. Ives, Hunts).

I am grumbling because I get too many replies to my advertisements in "Cage Birds," and they are still coming in from my advertisement of three weeks ago.—W. NICHOLLS (Twickenham).

I had 23 answers to my last advertisement a fortnight ago in "Cage Birds," from all parts—the Isle of Man and the Isle of Wight, Southport, and even Ireland.—HENRY SLATER (London, S.W.).

I would like to thank you for the sale of all my birds I advertised in "Cage Birds." Only one returned. They are gone to England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.—DANIEL CORY (Birkenhead).

We are pleased to inform you that we have sold out all our Siberian Goldfinches, 263 in all, so must leave out our advertisement concerning them.—GEO. AND A. BROWN (Sclater Street, Bethnal Green, E.).

Mule Breeding Procedure.

Ginger.—"Ginger for pluck," they say; so you ought to succeed. You tell me you have a double breeding cage. Well, run the wired slide down the centre, leaving the Goldfinch on one side, and the breeding hen Canary on the other. If the Goldie is in breeding condition and vigorous song, they will not take long to strike up an acquaintanceship. Probably he will commence to sing to her through the partition wires; also to feed her. These are the first signs of an "understanding." When you notice these things, put a few coarse pieces of material (moss) out of a nest-bag into the hen's compartment. If she commences to carry these about in her beak, you can hang in the nest pan (or box), giving her at the same time a little more nesting material. Should she carry the latter into the nest-pan, and appear bent on nest building in earnest, hang the nest-bag up against the wires, or put it in the nesting rack, if you use those appliances. First thing next morning (the earlier the better) withdraw the centre partition, letting the Goldie run with the hen. If you retire quickly and discreetly to the other side of the room, you will no doubt see the hen "call" to the Finch, and he, if really in breeding condition, is not likely to lose any time in doing the needful towards ensuring fertile eggs. Keep an eye on the Finch at first, until you learn his disposition. Some pull the nest about, and some will put their beaks through the eggs when laid. Such birds should be run with the hens only for an hour or two each morning and for a short time in the evening, too, being shut off during the day, and entirely (with the solid partition) as soon as the hen commences to sit. This procedure applies equally well to all Finches, besides Goldies. If birds are in breeding condition they do not necessarily want egg food until the evening of the thirteenth day of incubation—when young are expected.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Birds for Aviary.

Surrey Novice.—In an aviary of this size I should advise you to confine it solely for Budgerigars. If you were to introduce Finches, etc., it would not be long before the Budgerigars maimed or killed them off, and in such restricted space I fear other small Parrakeets would only interfere with each other in the building season. In point of fact you have only accommodation for two pairs of Budgerigars, say, one pair each of Green and Yellow, and you will have to make some arrangements for disposing of the young as soon as they can look after themselves, for a brood from each pair would make you very much overcrowded. Again, in so small an aviary I should advise the ends to be either wood or wood and glass. Note.—All glass must be covered with wire netting on the inside and I also advise some kind of a shutter or blind to be fastened over the front each night—your aviary is but narrow, and without some such protection, if you are troubled with cats, the birds would be badly scared during the night, though they would probably take no notice of the cats during daylight.

Sick Green Parrot.

A. T. K.—It would have simplified matters much if you had stated how you were feeding; as it is, I can do little more than guess at the cause of trouble. In the first place, the proper diet is as follows: A seed mixture of Canary, white millet, hemp, maize, oats, and sunflower seeds—three parts each Canary and millet, and one part each of the other kinds—well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage.

Foreign Bird Queries will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuits, and nuts. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish hanging in the cage, and the tray well covered with gritty sand. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. If the bird has been used to soft food of any kind, then you must supply a little boiled maize for a time, till it has become accustomed to the above diet. Give it several doses of Dinneford's magnesia (one part magnesia to two parts water), regulating the doses according to the action of the aperient on the bird—give no other drinking water save the magnesia water on the days you supply same; when not giving the magnesia well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. Report progress in a fortnight, but in the case of any sudden change for the worse, repeat query at once with fullest particulars.

Breeding Cutthroats.

Market Cross.—As they have taken no harm so far from being turned out so early, by all means leave them out, but it is somewhat risky turning newly imported birds out for another month yet. Some pairs are very precocious, and will breed within about a month of being put in the aviary. It appears to me from your sketch that you have the entrance hole at the bottom of box; hang the box up so that the hole forms one of the top corners. In addition, I should hang up a Hartz travelling cage, cutting away a couple of the bars to allow the birds ingress and egress; half fill it with hay, and leave more hay lying about, and the birds will do the rest. You want breeding, and I should not advise more than four pairs in all; these will soon multiply if you have luck, and your accommodation taxed to the full. I should suggest a pair of Zebra Finches, Silverbills, and White Java Sparrows. There is not room for Whydahs, and neither these nor Weavers can be accounted breeders, save under practically natural conditions, and but few succeed with them even under the most favourable conditions. In a small aviary odd cock Weavers often prove very quarrelsome during the breeding season.

Brevities.

Parrot Scratching Itself (H. L. H.).—It has got into a heated condition, and I should keep the bowels moving quite freely with a cooling aperient, say Dinneford's magnesia (one part magnesia, two parts water), given every other day so long as the voidings are not watery; when this occurs you must lengthen the interval between the doses; continue this for a fortnight or three weeks. I should for a time spray it every other day with quassia solution, and if the skin is at all hard, moisten it occasionally with clean vaseline, but do not put on sufficient to run among the plumage and make it greasy. Diet:—A seed mixture of three parts each Canary and white millet, and one part each hemp, oats, and sunflower seeds; well mix, and keep a supply continuously in the cage; also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuits, and nuts in variety. If there should be any further passing of blood, dissolve three drops of tincture of opium in a little syrup and see that the bird takes the whole. After the irritation has passed put the bird on a course of Parrish's chemical food.

What Bird?—(G. C. H.).—It is a Banded or Moustache Parrakeet, an Indian species, somewhat similar in habits, etc., to the Common Ring-necked Parrakeet. Two males of this species have been in my outdoor aviary all through the winter, and are now in exhibition trim, but are of very shy and retiring demeanour.

Rose-Crested Cockatoo (Anxious One).—Do not be misled into giving it a bit of everything that you take yourself. It can have greens and boiled potato without gravy; also nuts, ripe fruit, and plain biscuit. Seed mixture:—Two parts each Canary and white millet, and one part each hemp, oats, paddy rice, maize, and sunflower seeds. Every third day for a month (providing its voidings are not watery) its drinking water should consist of one part Dinneford's magnesia and two parts water; on other days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. Well spray the plumage twice a week with quassia solution.

Amazon Parrot with Growth on Tongue (C. D.).—All you can do, is to keep the bird's bowels moving freely with occasional doses of Dinneford's magnesia (see other replies in this issue), and continue to use the honey and borax, but you ought to let a vet. see it; it is difficult to advise in such cases without knowing the actual character of the growth. Again, if this growth appeared only a few days after purchase, I should approach the dealer on the matter, and insist on an exchange, though if the growth is of such a nature that lends itself to being cut away, there would probably be no further trouble with the bird: only a vet. can decide this.

Cutthroats Ill (G. E. S.).—Supply milk sop, made with boiled milk, and dissolve one drop of laudanum in a teaspoonful of water, and into the ordinary supply of drinking water (say, one ounce) put three drops of brandy. Use only glass or china drinker. Get a few mealworms and give the bird a couple daily while it is weak. You will have no difficulty in procuring another male if you lose this; the most likely bird to mate with it would be a Red-headed Finch. Supply also spray millet and a few crushed oats, and a little hemp while they are thin and weak.

What Other Birds? (Nemo).—I would much prefer you to repeat query after reading this, to giving you a list at present. The fact is you have little more than comfortable accommodation for the Budgerigars once they start breeding. If you wish to vary the birds at all, why not include a pair of Black-cheeked Lovebirds, which are really beautiful and would thrive on the same diet as the Budgies. I will with pleasure give you a list of Finch-like birds likely to be safe with the Budgies; at the same time I will not take the responsibility of advising you to keep them together—the risk must be your own.

Mannikins for C.P. Aviary (Kit).—I am afraid you would find all Mannikins rather dull in a cage, and I should advise the following (any number up to a dozen):—Common and Green Avadavats, Gold-creasted Waxbills, Silverbills, Bengalese, Spice Birds, and a Grey Singing Finch. The above would give you a nice selection of really handsome birds, easy to keep so long as you keep them free from draughts. Three or four cokernut shell nests hung about top of cage, with a little hay in each, would make snug retreats for the birds. You would get vivacity and a little soft song from the above series. Diet:—Canary and white millet in equal parts, millet sprays, a few kibbled oats occasionally, green-food (such as seeding grass, lettuce, and any non-poisonous garden or hedgerow weeds), cuttlefish, grit, and water for drinking and bathing. You would find "Foreign Birds for Beginners" very helpful.

PARK AND LAKE AVICULTURE.

Dove Stuck in the Moult.

R. S.—Although the British wild turtle-dove is not so easy to get as the tame collared one, I personally should not think that your hen, which has failed to moult when the cock did, is worth keeping. But if you want to try, I should advise you to bring her indoors and keep her in a large cage, and when the body feathers begin to grow, pull out her tail feathers, to give the moult a start at that end. Give also some more delicate food, as well as corn; I should recommend crushed dog-biscuit mixed with minced green-food, with Canary seed sprinkled over it.

Weakly Cygnets.

W. Vere.—I never heard before of cygnets living for three weeks and then dying off like yours, and I cannot very well say where your feeding is lacking, as you do not say whether they have access to natural food, such as grass and water-weeds. Corn or bread is enough for old swans; for young ones soaked dog-biscuit would be more nourishing, and they would appreciate lettuce. Try and give these things, and I think you will find the cygnets do better. If you are breeding from a related pair, change one of them; in-breeding accounts for a lot of delicacy, otherwise inexplicable, in young stock.

Hooded Siskin.

Querist.—1. The Hooded Siskin does not come from Brazil, but from Venezuela; it is also found in Trinidad, Cuba, and Porto Rica. 2. I cannot say price, but believe it is high, even in Venezuela. 3. I do not know the local name, but imported birds of the species are called "Cardinal" in Madeira, so this is probably it. 4. Describe them to your friend as Finches, much smaller than a Sparrow, the cock bright red and black, the hen grey, with some red on wings and breast. 5. Transport in box cages, with perches placed on same level, and not crossing, food and water inside; feed on mixed seed. 6. In this country they have, as a rule, proved delicate; feed on mixed seed, and offer all wild green seeds liked by British Finches. Keep indoors in a large cage, but try an outdoor aviary if summer comes this year!

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Curious.—Your nom-de-plume is quite applicable to your case, for although you have not informed me, yet I suspect you have experienced prior losses, and are somewhat in fear of a contagious element. Am I correct in my surmise? Should be very pleased if at your leisure you would give me a few more particulars. It would be considered a great favour, and would furnish me with valuable information in the elucidation of this disease, whose pathology is yet not clearly understood. I refer to the dreaded "septic fever" to which your bird succumbed. The disease was not of very long standing, but sufficiently long enough to show its presence in the spleen, which was rather badly affected, the liver showing only a few lesions. Doubtless this bird would have lived a few months longer but for the fact that the journey, in combination with the recent cold weather, both helped to bring about its early demise. You will doubtless possess many more birds, and I am afraid you have more trouble to follow. Commence at once a system of isolation, and direct your attention to a thorough mode of disinfection to eradicate the disease from your establishment. Probably you have already bought "Cage Birds Annual" for 1910; if not, procure a copy at once, wherein you will find an article dealing with this disinfection.

Bessie.—Pneumonia was the cause of your bird's death, due, undoubtedly, as you remark, to the recent changeable weather experienced. The respiratory system of these small birds is very delicate, and easily susceptible to morbid conditions during such sudden variations of temperature. Although I made a most careful examination I could detect no evidence of other disease, all the organs appearing quite healthy. What you mistake for existing weakness, manifested by apparent lack of tone and energy, is really only a matter of temperament. Birds, and other animals, like human beings, vary very much in the nature of their temperament. There exists what is known as the nervous temperament; no doubt, like myself, you have encountered such. Again, there is the lymphatic or lethargic temperament; this applies particularly to your birds, being, as you describe, "eternally tired," a sort of "Weary Willie" character. These characteristics are not always observable in our feathered friends unless they are well marked, or the owner a naturalist, and a keen observer. Amongst the canine tribe it is a very interesting psychological study. Your menu was correct in every detail, but why all fanciers emphasise the fact of allowing but a microscopical diet of egg food I cannot imagine. It is spoken of in a kind of stage whisper, as though it were to be given only surreptitiously, and in inimical homeopathic proportions. The only precaution necessary in the feeding of egg food is to ensure its perfect freshness, when it will in no way cause harm. Please do not take this in a critical sense, for I only desire to disillusion the fancier as to the imaginary harmful effects of a really good food. Contagious diseases do not arise sporadically, there is always an element of contagion, and if egg food were responsible for contagious avian disease, then, considering the extent to which it is used, and the birds so infected becoming similarly infective to others, then the cage bird would be an unknown quantity, and the bird Fancy would cease to exist.

C. H. Thompson.—I cannot help but think that the cock Canary must have been ailing a short time before you ran it into the breeding cage (but perhaps not so much as to be perceptible), for the lungs were both badly congested, with hoemorrhage from same. No doubt the transit was responsible for the hoemorrhage, readily influenced by the congested state of its blood vessels. I am afraid that in any case you won'd have experienced some trouble with it, and the fact of this occurrence was only a coincidence.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Rotherham C.B.S. (G. Oakes).—Your club notice came too late for our last issue, owing to the holiday arrangements.

The Essay Competition (T. Oliphant).—We hope to have all the sections adjudicated upon in time to announce the result in our next issue, or, at latest, the issue following.

A Visit to Germany (A. Percival).—We are much obliged to you for sending us your interesting notes.

Carrying Cage, Etc. (Novice, Second Year).—Possibly our artist has your sketch; we have so many illustrated ideas sent in that those accepted have to take their turn. The giving of colour-food to a Goldfinch certainly has the effect of deepening the "tanning." Thanks for your kind wishes.

A Booklet (Brid).—Ready in a week or two's time.

The Douglas C.B.S. and Mr. Gale (A Member).—Your letter is of too personal a nature for us to publish over a nom-de-plume.

Correspondence.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—On opening my CAGE BIRDS last week I really expected to see your correspondent signing himself "Netter" admitting he had made a mistake, but instead of that he introduces "a netter" that can beat him by 100 knots per hour. As a rule we look to CAGE BIRDS for information, and I am pleased to say I have found it very useful; but "Netter's" letter and the one I am writing can hardly be called information. It is argument; but as "Netter" has asked me one or two questions I hope I may be allowed to uphold my first statement, that it is impossible for any netter to tie 1,500 knots per hour 2in. mesh. "Netter" says I must not judge others by my own work. I wish "Netter" to understand I am not doing so; I am judging from the ability of hundreds of practical netters, and also from forty years' experience myself, in which time I have had thousands of tons of netting through my hands. I am only giving "Netter" and your readers this information to prevent his making any more blunders like the one he finishes his letter with, for he attempts to uphold his statement by saying that he can also start and finish three rabbit nets, 2in. mesh, 22in. by 20in., in one hour. Surely "Netter" has not taken the trouble to count the knots in the three nets, as they only represent at the most "432" knots, which I think is nearer the mark than the above statement. I consider five rabbit nets of the above measurements a fair hour's work. "Netter" says, "perhaps Mr. Connell will give an account of some of his net work." I would rather not, as I have not learned to fly. I should only look very poor in the eyes of CAGE BIRDS readers, but I will do what I think is the next best thing. I have forwarded to CAGE BIRDS, as a present to "Netter," a small net, which he will find very useful, on conditions that he makes a net similar, or, failing that, give his honest opinion of how long it would take him to make it. I may say that the net contains about 1,261 knots, and I am sure our netters here will be much interested in "Netter's" reply. Wishing fanciers a prosperous breeding season, also success to CAGE BIRDS and its readers.

WALTER CONNELL.

(We have received the net referred to above and shall have pleasure in forwarding same to "Netter" if he will make application for it.—EDITOR.)

The Breeding of Bullfinches in Cages.

SIR,—As one who has kept Bullfinches and Goldfinches now for over 30 years, I think it would no doubt interest many of your young fanciers if I were to give you my experience of these birds as regards trying to breed them in cages. It has always been my great ambition to get Bullfinches to build and breed indoors in a suitable breeding cage. Over 20 years ago now I started with a pair which had been caught in trap cages in the autumn, and were fairly tame. I used a large box cage, home-made, and had a nest-box made from a cocoanut shell, which I lined with felt (glued inside), and fastened on to the back of the cage with a screw. Round the nest I placed small branches of yew. I put in plenty of nesting materials of various kinds, and the hen carried pieces of sticks and roots about, but made no attempt to build in the nest, so I placed a small flower pot inside the case and lined it with moss and sticks. She took to this, and I found her on several occasions sitting on the nest. But in the end she laid her three eggs on the cage bottom, which was, however, well lined with moss, so the eggs did not get broken. I placed the eggs in the flower pot nest, and she took to them, and sat upon them for the full time. But the eggs proved clears. She laid four more eggs—in the flower pot this time—and sat on them. These turned out clears, too, so the fault was the cock's. Another year I again tried them in the same cage, and under similar conditions. The two lots of eggs she had, as before, turned out clear; nothing could be got from the cock, but clear eggs. They had plenty of berries (privet, etc.), with plenty of young shoots of the plum, gooseberry, and other shoots, besides plenty of hemp, canary, and cole seeds (not the summer rape). They had, in addition, the kernel of plum stones from jams; these I cracked. I also gave small nuts, which they were very fond of, besides chickweed and groundsel and dandelion flowers; they are very fond of these, also of the ripe seed of the dandelion. I tried a hand-reared cock with the hen the next year, but the eggs from them were clear, as before. I did not like to be "done," or to give them up, as they have always been one of my greatest favourites. I hand-reared two nests after these failures, and tried them in cages indoors like the first one. I could get plenty of eggs from the hens; in fact, they have generally with me proved good layers in cages, but none could I get "filled" by the cock Bullie, no matter what it was fed upon, or whether fresh-caught or hand-reared. Still, I hope the remarks I have penned will not prevent anyone from trying them in cages or using the cock Bullie in any way as the parent of hybridising. I heard some years ago of a case where they were bred freely for several years in a large out-door aviary with other birds. I should advise anyone who has an aviary outside to give these birds a trial, for a pair of these birds always set off an aviary to the best advantage. It is surprising what can be taught these birds if you wish to make them pets. I had one which used to be let loose daily, and many a game has it had with the cat. It would go up to it and peck his nose, and hop on to his back and round about it. I used to get the cat up on the table and let them play together. The cat never once attempted to hurt it. I had the cat as a kitten, and he was used to all my birds. I could relate many an amusing tale of this cat and my birds. He once saved a bird of mine which a neighbour's cat was trying to get at in a cage. My cat flew at the strange one, and had quite a battle before I could get to them. Another amusing instance of this cat was with a cock Bullie, which I was doctoring for a lady. I had it out on the table showing it to some friends, when the cat came from somewhere unknown to me, and brought a mouse and began to make a noise like calling to a kitten. He jumped up on the table, and laid the mouse down in front of the Bullie. No doubt he thought it ought to eat it, after bringing it such a tempting feed. I hope there will not be so many of these beautiful birds shot this year as last season.

HYBRID.

Suggested Show for Mid-Rhondda.

SIR,—Will you allow me, through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, to bring before the notice of the cage bird fanciers of the Mid-Rhondda district that there could be a very good show held here, making Tonypandy our centre. I am sure there are a lot of cage bird men in the neighbourhood; then, why not a show for Mid-Rhondda and district? I hope some other fanciers will take this matter up.

INTERESTED.

The Crisis in the Affairs of the Cage Bird Union.

SIR,—I note in the last issue of CAGE BIRDS that the C.B.U. is waking up at last, and not before it was time to. However, I hope the secretary will report fully every month through the Fancy Press, what is being done for the benefit of fanciers at large. We cannot expect societies to pay their subscriptions and see nothing for it from year to year. Now is the time to show the societies that are resigning that the C.B.U. is still worth sticking to. I sincerely trust the two large London societies will not regret resigning. Probably they will be glad of a few of the C.B.U. members' entries; that will be the time to remember past favours. Maybe these societies have withdrawn to give their whole help to the London Federation, the report of which I have read. The Federation is a great credit to the London societies and is trying to further the fanciers' interests. Delegates, I see, are to be called together in each C.B.U. district, and their recommendations are to be brought before the Executive Council. Now is the time, fellow-delegates, to put forward anything that is for the betterment of the C.B.U., and let the Council know we are not asleep. Trusting each delegate will do his utmost to attend the meeting when called,

J. W. METCALFE.

The Cage Bird Union and Its Rules.

SIR,—I was rather interested in reading the report of the meeting of the Executive Council of the C.B.U. at Nottingham, signed by J. Raynes, secretary, more so the latter part, where he states members of the Union are urged to report promptly any offence of which they may hear (societies or individual members of the Union infringing the rules), with a view to such offences being promptly dealt with strictly in accordance with the Union rules. Now I would like to ask Mr. Raynes or the Executive Council if they have just framed a stronger rule which will enable them to deal with the offence? I dare say your readers will remember the correspondence in your columns re the Bristol Fanciers' Society holding their show in spite of the Union and accepting the entries of members of the Union, also posing as a Cage Bird Union fixture, and at the same time spoiling (by clashing) what promised to be a good show at Gloucester. Now it was only by getting a promise that this offence should be dealt with by the executive of C.B.U. that I closed the correspondence. I should be glad if the secretary can tell me what decision the Executive Council came to? I read the advertised agenda, also report of the meeting at the Palace Show, but failed to see or hear that the offence had ever been considered. Now if this is how the C.B.U. is going to act in future, I would like to ask what use it will be to report such cases? In fact, such a case ought not to want reporting. I might say with truth that I am voicing the whole of the Gloucester Cage Bird Society, which has been affiliated ever since the formation of the Union.

Belgian Classes and the Judges' Awards.

SIR,—Of the many varieties we have in the Canary world, the Belgian Canary ranks first for size and classical contour, and the parent of the Scotch Fancy variety. The original, as a distinct variety, must remain to me at least an object of ancient history, and I know little of it other than that it is largely bred in Belgium, and was introduced into this country about 50 years ago. In its earlier days it was a large bird, measuring from the point of the bill to the tip of the tail from 6½ to 7½ inches. But few are now to be found measuring more than 6½ or 7 inches, the former being about the present-day standard. A great change in the Belgian Canary of recent years has taken place, one of the causes being the vast amount of crossing, pure blood becoming more rare every year. And what are now left are not to be purchased at any price, their owners being unwilling to part with them. Size is now a great factor, but contour is much more so. Much depends on the season of the year, also on health and condition, for the Belgian Canary to show to advantage, and amongst Scotch fanciers the Belgian is still greatly sought after for crossing purposes; good specimens still command high prices. The breeding of the Belgian, in Scotland at least, has not advanced much of late years, which is partly due to the fact that good specimens are scarce, and what are to be had are only to be had at high prices. Still, there are several breeders of this variety in Scotland and across the border, such as Mr. Fairly (Coatbridge), who still retains some pure blood, Captain Philps (Edinburgh), Mr. Grieg (Aberdeen), and others represented at the principal shows, where there are classes for the Belgian variety. To many of your readers the classes for so-called Belgians must have appeared somewhat misleading, and in appealing to that section of your readers who know the points of the Belgian variety I shall be glad to know what their opinion has been in looking over the awards in this particular section. For my part I make bold to say that if judges of Belgians would exercise their judgment without fear or favour, there would be less speculation as to their awards, as has been really the case in the show season just passed. If classes are arranged for and termed (as we read in our show catalogues) "Belgians, etc., etc.," well, then let it be so; and should the judge or judges find, as is often the case, that first crosses have been classed in error or otherwise, the duty of the judge is perfectly clear—viz., to non-class such, and leave them out of the competition. But they have not done so in the past. And for what reason? The case calls for an explanation, either from the judges of this class or from anyone of your readers who is in a position to explain. But I would prefer an answer from some of our qualified judges of the Belgian variety, and if such is not forthcoming, then I say let the management of our open shows who have classes for Belgians effect some very necessary alterations by making the classes read, "Belgians and First-crosses," for the future, and not "Belgians" only, as in the past. First-crosses have been staged under this heading, and in some cases have been well forward in the tickets, to the exclusion of the real article. I hope to hear more about this subject in the near future. What have Belgian fanciers got to say?

The Making of Egg Food.

SIR,—I have read with great interest the letter of Mr. George Wilson re the making of egg-food in a mincing machine as the quickest of all methods. Will he kindly give a sketch through your paper of his mincing machine or tell mo through the correspondence columns of your valuable paper if I can get one in England? I shall be very much obliged to him

Does the Roller Canary Need Smartening in Appearance?

SIR,—This is a subject which has frequently occupied my mind; the query therefore by F. J. Rook is personally interesting. In my opinion the experiment would always have a pernicious effect on pure stock of good quality. I have bred Rollers for the past eighteen or twenty years periodically, and having now taken up this variety again, I should also like to produce something good, both with regard to size and colour, and if possible to do so without any detriment to song. Visitors, oblivious to the fact that these smart little birds are simply "bred for song" frequently test the sensitiveness of their owners with such remarks as, "There's now't on 'em," or "The're now't to look at." I am thinking of trying to train a few Lancashire Coppies to please the eye of those unsophisticated individuals. My experience in crossing with other varieties has been to produce progeny with "harsh notes;" and irretrievable deterioration in that soft tone so essential in a good Roller has been the result. If, however, F. J. Rook thinks the defect might be obliterated or reduced to a minimum, and is bent on experimenting, Roller fanciers in general will no doubt be pleased to hear the results. Why not try with Norwich and thus also produce larger offspring? Personally I think the result would be equally if not more satisfactory from a vocal point of view, if this type were used in lieu of the Border Fancy. In view of the increasing popularity of the Roller Canary, it is astonishing how little anent this variety is sent to the Fancy Press for one's edification. No doubt the Editor would be pleased to see the columns of CAGE BIRDS opened more on this subject.

FRANK AYSCOUGH.

Wake Up, Fanciers!

SIR,—Just a line in support of Mr. Elkerton's letter in last week's issue. As Mr. Elkerton says, pheasant slaughter and fox hunting are sport. With regard to the former, in my opinion, considering the way in which pheasants are reared nowadays, one might just as well go into a farmyard with his gun and start having a day's shooting at the farmer's poultry. With regard to the latter, I think it more cruel than keeping a British bird in a cage to run down a poor animal and have him worried by a pack consisting of about forty-two dogs. I, like Mr. Elkerton, say that the working man dare not breathe the word "sport." He is "trespassing." And I go one more and say, "Fanciers, rally and charge the obstruction." I propose our two specialist British Bird and Mule Clubs take it up. Also I propose that societies and other fanciers single handed unite, as unionism and protection mean fair play for every Briton. I say let us all join hands and sweep those who are prejudiced against our favourite pastime into the sea. I hope to see more about this, and wish Messrs. Preston and Flowers the best of luck.

ALEXANDER BRYDEN.

SIR,—In my opinion, to pretend that the British bird Fancy is in danger of extinction merely because a petulant official secures a conviction against two bird-dealers having in their possession freshly-taken birds that were protected in the neighbourhood in which the dealers resided, savours of such chicken-hearted pessimism as hardly to be worth comment, especially in the light of the fact that birds have been kept in cages for centuries. But the letter of Mr. C. Elkerton, which appears in your current issue, is so grotesque in its many inaccuracies that I wonder at its receiving publication. Your correspondent ignores the fact that birds are kept by rich and poor alike and assumes that the right to do so should be the absolute monopoly of the "poor man." As a matter of fact, I am strongly of opinion that the whole matter has been engineered for journalistic purposes. After the case is decided in favour of the appellants—as it probably will be—you evidently want it to be said of you that when the iron heel of the hated and bloated aristocrat was raised and threatened to descend with extinguishing force upon the British bird Fancy, yours was the gallant little journal which—at its readers' expense of course—took up the cudgels on behalf of the poor, downtrodden, hardworking man, and saved the Fancy from ruin and disaster. And, as a matter of course, some of your readers, like Mr. E., have seized upon the opportunity so offered, to "Limehouse" in your columns their socialistic nonsense, and their sickly platitudes about "Pheasant slaughter and fox-hunting," which have no connection, direct or remote, with the question raised with reference to the Fancy. I think it would have been far better to have left Messrs. Preston and Flowers to pay their fines and be done with it. The case was absolutely solitary and isolated, and would soon have blown over and been forgotten. Besides, it is a surprising thing to me to see fanciers encouraging the forwardment by rail of birds only just caught. In conclusion, let me say that if danger threatens the Fancy, it can be best looked for from people who have a passion for demogogic language like Mr. E., who, in spite of their professed love of freedom, are ever ready with their Bills to restrict this, Bills to compel that, and Bills to prevent the other, and Bills generally to act in nosey interference with the rights and privileges of grown men and women.

A. R. COE.

[The writer of this letter refers to "nosey interference with the rights and privileges of grown men and women." We have no wish ourselves to put any restraint upon Mr. Coe (or his language), but we seriously suggest to his friends the advisability of considering what had best be done with him.—Editor.]

The Midland Counties Yorkshire C.C.

SIR,—Can any fancier inform me (a would-be Yorkshire Canary fancier) if the Midland Counties Yorkshire Canary Club is still in existence? If so, they are very quiet. I watched their reports up to their final show, which was held in Birmingham either in January or February last. I also saw the report of same in the most reliable paper on birdy matters, CAGE BIRDS. I was told by a member of that club that they thought they could not last long on account of not having enough members, and also on account of not having sufficient money to carry the club on with. This member has set me up with birds to start with, and I was living in hopes of becoming a member of this club; but if they have done as I have heard, I will try and join another one, for I am now anxious. I am a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS, and up to the present have seen all other club reports on their past year's work except the M.C.Y.C.C., and also reports of how they stand financially. I would like to see same published in CAGE BIRDS. I live a few miles from this member, but in striking distance for a fancier; but he cannot inform me how his club stands or what the committee is doing. I am more than surprised at this. Buck up Y.C. Club of the Midlands; let us all know what you are doing.

The Type of the Lancashire Canary.

SIR,—It is quite evident there is a great art in exhibiting the Lancashire. It seems to me, and no doubt it is correct, that if you want to be in the prizes you must be able to know your judge thoroughly. Mr. C. A. House states that he has been elected to judge the Lancashires at the Rochdale Show oftener than any other judge. That may be, but where are they going to get a judge who can handle Lizards, British, Mules and foreign and other species as Mr. House can? I am sure if he were only capable of adjudicating on the Lancs. only, the Rochdale Society would look nearer home for a Lancashire judge. How is it that we do not see Mr. House judging the Lancashires at the Crystal Palace, Manchester, Rochdale Good Intent, Oldham, Middleton, Nottingham, and other shows where the patronage of the Lancashire specialist clubs are given? Probably it may be that the fanciers want a change after the first show of the season; but be that as it may, although it would be interesting to know. I am pleased Mr. House has asked the question whether Mr. Robson put Mr. Adams's bird down for showing Crest properties, or was it not capable of being in the prizes? I for one would like Mr. Robson's opinion on same. Mr. House goes further and states that one of the oldest fanciers refused to enter and exhibit under him because he (Mr. House) wrong-classed two of his exhibits. Why? Had they been knocking up against the Crests? Anyway they evidently found favour with other judges at later shows. I am positive that the exhibitor of these two birds knew what a Lancashire was. Mr. House cannot contradict me on this point, for he knows that what the late respected breeder did not know with regard to Lancashires was of no use to any one, and I am sure there would be no one more grieved to see his exhibits wrong-classed than the exhibitor himself, for the simple reason be only exhibited for the love of same, and not for any profitable purpose. In fact, I cannot help but say that the statement Mr. House makes in his letters (something about sucking eggs) applies in more instances than Mr. Fuller's.

The Making of Birdlime.

How to Determine the Sex of Linnets.

SIR,—Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper to reply to "Linnet." I might say that his friend was near the mark. The male Linnet in his wild state (when adult) has a red breast, which distinguishes him at once from the female, whose breast is a brownish-grey, with a tendency to buff and yellowish-white. The male loses his colour in the house, but can be readily distinguished by the chestnut-brown of his back and wing coverts; the female is much greyer.

An Inexpensive Lark Food.

SIR,—As a constant reader of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, I noticed a letter by one of my fellow-fanciers over the name of "Wilfred," recommending some Lark food, giving a recipe that he saw in CAGE BIRDS on December 4th. I also noticed the recipe of pea-meal, oatmeal and dripping. I should like to ask that gentleman if he will be so kind as to repeat again how this valuable food is made and mixed up, as I am very fond of Skylarks and have got one at present singing, but is very low. I am quite satisfied that it is a cock bird, and not a hen, and am thinking of buying a Roller Canary to teach him to reach the higher notes. But I should like to feed him with the best of food. What I feed him on now is packet Lark mixture, and a fresh turf every other morning. The reason I have not in my possession the copy of December 4th, is that I give my copies to my friends about here.

How to Increase Show Entr'es.

SIR,—This is a matter of no small importance to show committees and to all of the Fancy who have the interests of our shows at heart, and principally the City of Glasgow Show. No doubt it has become quite patent to many fanciers and breeders that the latter hesitate in bringing forward young birds for competition, simply because they are under the impression that their chances of success are remote in competition against older birds. Now I am much impressed with the thought along with others, whose opinions I value, that a remedy is needed to increase our show numbers and also awaken renewed interest amongst the Fancy in general. In the first place, my suggestion is that young and old birds should be in separate classes, and arranged as follows: 1st, Clear Yellows and Foul Yellows; 2nd, Clear Buff and Foul Buff; 3rd, Buff Pied and Buff Green; 4th, Yellow Pied and Yellow Green; the classes to be arranged as above—for 1st old cocks, 2nd young cocks, 3rd old hens, 4th young hens; which would make 16 classes, as holds good at present. Now, an arrangement such as this would, in my opinion, largely increase our show entries. I would be glad to have an expression of opinion on this subject from some of your readers.

SCOTCH FANCY.

"That Pernicious Seed, Inga."

SIR,—I should not call inga a "pernicious seed" by any means, but for all that I think it is possible to give too much of it. My experience may be interesting to your enquiring correspondents and others. When I was breeding largely, I gave all hens as much inga as they cared to take, from January 1 till they were put together, when it was stopped. At the same time they had, of course, a plentiful supply of Canary and rape. I never found any bad effect; on the contrary, inga was supposed to have a lubricating effect, and I never had any hens which suffered from egg-binding. I am not breeding now, but I keep a few birds, and I bought a mule at a show rather more than 12 months ago. Not knowing what it had been fed on, I tried it with Canary, rape, linseed, inga, teazle, and I found the little beggar would eat nothing of any of these but inga. So after a time I gave him nothing but inga, thinking that perhaps he knew as much as I did. However, about the middle of last year, after having only inga for some months, he began to droop, and I believe the inga was having a bad effect. A friend kept him for some time, and to him is due the merit of getting him off the inga. He gave him a mixture of four seeds, one of which is inga, sold by Messrs. Trower and Co., which I believe they call moulting mixture; but of this he only gave ½ to ¾ of a teaspoonful each day, and with that he gave as much Canary as the bird could take. After a tussle he was got round to this diet, and has been on it for months, and is now in splendid form. The only alteration I have made is that instead of linseed, which is one of the seeds in the mixture, and which the Mule, still having a mind of his own, would not eat, I give teazle, and this he eats when his inga is restricted. Maw is one of the seeds in the mixture, and I think this seed can be used much more freely as a diet than I at one time imagined. It used to be considered almost a medicine, and given in pinches from time to time. The mixture is given about 7 in the morning and is finished by 10 or 11 in the forenoon, and the Mule then has Canary for the rest of the day. I find the small long upright graduated glasses used for medicines that have to be taken by so many drops at a time, and obtainable at the chemists for a few pence, very suitable for measuring small quantities of seed accurately. They are narrow at the mouth, but that can easily be got over by the way you hold the glass in the hand.

Early Birds in Ayrshire.

SIR,—The following may prove interesting to readers of CAGE BIRDS. I have been told I am the first in Ayrshire to have young birds. I have a nest of four Border Fancy Canaries (out on Wednesday, March 23rd). The mother of these took 3rd prize at Ayr Show last season, and was reported "teeming with quality." I would like to know if I am the first in the Shire. I have also two other nests which should be out next week. I am following the advice of Mr. Cornelius Hoyle in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, which I must say is a big sixpennyworth, and should be in the hands of every fancier.

A White Bullfinch.

SIR,—In answer to the letter of Mr. W. J. Salmon, there have been several white Bullfinches exhibited at the Crystal Palace Shows. The first one that I saw was at the show of 1899, where it stood third in the class. The next white Bullfinch was seen at the Palace Show held in 1907, which was a cock, and stood first in its class. It might interest Mr. W. J. S. and other readers to know that the following white British birds have been staged at the Crystal Palace Shows in that most interesting class for Pied, Albino, or rare-feathered specimens, viz., White Linnets, White Blackbird, White Thrushes, White Starlings, White Sparrows, also Black Bullfinches. In the show held 1900 there was a real Bullfinch curiosity, a bird half-cock and half-hen. This stood first in its class; it was a most difficult job to get a glance at it for visitors.

Foreign Bird Recruits for Dulwich and Peckham.

SIR,—It is very pleasing to note that some of the members of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. are taking up the fascinating hobby of foreign bird keeping. I had occasion to pass through Bethnal Green Road the other day, and while stopping to admire some Gouldian Finches in the window of the well-known dealers, Messrs. De Von and Co., I was surprised to see inside the shop three prominent members of our society busily engaged in selecting an assortment of foreign Finches. These gentlemen have hitherto confined themselves to the breeding of Canaries. I am sure we wish them every success in their new departure, and shall look for some interesting competition in the foreign bird classes at our next annual show.

The Recent Y.U. Suspensions.

SIR,—Mr. Kaye may know that it says in the good old Book there is no peace for the wicked, and according to his own acknowledgment, wrung from him when before the Y.U. Council, he must have been desperately wicked. The justice demanded for his offence, which was leniently administered on that occasion, would have been amply sufficient for any ordinary man, without its being emphasised again and again, so that all might dwell upon it in future when he is passing through a similar crisis, as another part of his inconsistent conduct, though we hope next time it will not be for borrowing and lending birds for exhibition. Mr. Kaye is guilty of an offence even worse than this. He has several times deliberately shown cock birds in hen classes, and some of these have won prizes. Will he give us his reason for this? Now, Mr. Kaye knows such disgraceful practices we have never stooped to indulge in, and if it be that he has suffered martyrdom, he may find consolation in the fact that even good men with high ideals and noble characters have done this in the past; it might also alleviate the burden of sin he is now bearing for our society (mentioned in his last week's correspondence). Again, if Mr. Kaye thinks it is persistent wrong-doing, either this or any other society delights in shielding, he has not the right conception of things. If he wishes to win the esteem of his fellow-fanciers, and is conscious of the sentence passed on him, it ought to be a revelation to him that this cannot be accomplished by continually acting contrary to the rules and regulations thought out by intelligent men to protect the interests of everyone of a society's members, nor will such conduct enhance his prospects of inheriting the glories hereafter of which he makes mention. Mr. Kaye was always suspected by our society, otherwise we might have considered his generous offer of 10s. to be entrusted as both secretary and treasurer. These are glaring facts which always add colour to a man's character who desires to gain the confidence of his associates, and whatever should issue forth never comes as a surprise. Would he also kindly give us his motive for this offer? Mr. Kaye seems to ignore altogether the fact that our delegates form part of the Y.U. Council. Why does he wish them to be precluded from hearing his evidence, when he emphatically declared before the Council he would rather have his head chopped off than tell a lie? These are the exact words he used. If he is prepared to tell the whole truth, it cannot be gainsaid, and will always stand the test. But acrobatic statements, that are interchanging constantly during one hearing, always end in confusion, and, to sum up, such evidence is an utter impossibility. Surely Mr. Kaye does not think that when the secretary of the Y.U. notifies our delegates to attend the Council, they go purposely to hear what he has got to say, because our society is not so flush with money as to spend it so foolishly. It is because we are interested in the affairs of the Fancy, therefore take it as a duty and a privilege to be always represented when the funds will allow travelling expenses. As regards borrowing and lending, which Mr. Kaye seems to be so bitterly wailing over, this is but one of his illusions. He has had every opportunity of proving these men guilty before the Council, and when their cases were tried separately, instead of going to Bradford to substantiate his evidence (as notified by the secretary of the Y.U.), he sent up a letter conveying the idea that the men whom he had accused were too dangerous to travel with! We suppose he wished them to go in peace. But such cowardly acts as these merit punishment much more severe than our union has power to administer. It has cost them a great deal more than all Mr. Kaye's peace-making can atone for in years to come.

SAM MORLEY,
Secretary, Skelmanthorpe C.B.S.

Is Early Breeding Disastrous?

SIR,—In answer to Messrs. Bennett and Francis, I should be glad if you would allow me to say a few words, being a fairly old hand for a youngster (if I may be Irish). I would like to say I have tried both early and late breeding, and have come to the conclusion it is folly to pair too early good class birds, that is to say, varieties where size counts, such as the Norwich Plainhead. My chief reason is not so much the atmospherical conditions, as I find our climate so variable—in fact, often worse in May than April. For instance, a fancier I am well acquainted with has paired his birds a fortnight later than I once or twice, and just struck a very cold time when his hens had just gone to nest (which means a lot of clear eggs or dead in shell). I must say I like to see promising weather, but as a rule it soon changes at this time of year. My chief reason for not pairing up early is that you cannot get sufficient daylight for the hen to rear good strong, robust youngsters. The last two seasons I have chosen what most people term "All fools day" for the wedding march, and must say I have been fairly successful. I know some fanciers do pair earlier, and are fortunate, but should the novice be tempted, I would say, don't on any account start before the third week in March. I quite agree with all Mr. Bennett says as regard the misleading statements in some of the letters one reads, and which no doubt unintentionally do a lot of harm; the writers forget there are a lot of novices about full of fire, and only waiting one of these epistles. As regards birds coming into condition, I never have any trouble; they are generally ready before I am. If healthy and well cared for during winter months, they will come into good, hard, sound condition; if neglected till the last month or so of winter and then forced into condition, you will find the mistake—they will go back just as quick. I have known fanciers who would not start breeding operations till a fortnight or even three weeks later than I advocate. These I do not agree with. For one reason I like to get the breeding season over as early as possible so as to give the old birds a rest before moult; also I have never yet bred a "flier" in a late nest, as they usually drag in moult.

A Bird Washing Exhibition at Stockport.

At a meeting of the Stockport B.F.A. on March 15 at "The Boar's Head Hotel," Messrs. G. H. Massey and F. W. Nelson gave an exhibition of bird washing. Mr. J. Garner presided, and called upon Mr. Massey to show his method. water. In the first bowl he used soap and lather, and brushed all over the bird, excepting round the bird's eyes, where he applied the soap with a sponge, as he thought there was less danger of hurting the eyes. After using the brush in a downward direction he got as much soap as possible out in the first water. He then immersed the bird up to the neck in the second water, spreading its wings with finger and thumb. He then rinsed the head and neck with a sponge, and transferred the bird to the third bowl for a final rinse. He served it the same way here as in the previous water. After this he stroked the bird downwards with a clean damp sponge to absorb some of the water. The bird was then wrapped in a warm cloth and placed in front of the fire for about ten minutes to allow it a rest. It was afterwards placed in a drying cage, where it was allowed to almost dry. As Mr. Massey placed one bird in a cloth he commenced to wash another, giving many hints. He washed four birds in all. The chairman then called upon Mr. Nelson to show his way.

Mr. Nelson washed four birds on similar lines to Mr. Massey, excepting that he only used a brush whilst soaping the bird and no sponge. He also spread the lather on the palm of his hand before he applied it to the feathers. He rinsed out the soap in the first water and went over the bird a second time with soap and brush to make sure that it was perfectly clean. He afterwards treated them similarly to Mr. Massey's method, using two rinsing waters, and finished off by drawing the bird's tail between his lips to dry and straighten it. After his bird had been wrapped in a cloth for a few minutes he took it out and wrapped it in another dry one, as he thought it gave the bird a better chance to dry. He laid it on its breast with its tail towards the fire. They were afterwards put in the drying cage. He reminded the company that they should catch the birds with a dry hand or they might otherwise pull a few feathers out.

Both fanciers recommended using plenty of soap, and also plenty of rinsing water to get the soap out, or one might spoil a bird. Also be sure to rinse soap off your hands in the first water, before you go in the second water. After taking the birds out of the drying cage they were each placed in a Yorkshire show cage and slightly sprayed to encourage the birds to preen themselves, and when dry they looked ready for the show bench.

Mr. Nelson showed how to hold a bird whilst it was being washed, and advised fanciers never to grab at a bird that was getting out of the hand or one might do some damage; better to let it go and catch it in a proper manner.

Various questions were put to the two gentlemen—viz., Did they believe in a tooth-brush to wash a bird's nostrils?—Answer. No, as they thought a tooth-brush too hard for the purpose. Badger-hair brushes were the best, as these were softer, and they were not so large as ordinary lather brushes. Mr. Massey thought that a spray was sufficient to take the curl out of feathers if the curling were caused by drying, but if caused by leaving soap in, then the bird would have to be washed again before it could be made right. After an interesting discussion on birdy matters a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Messrs. Massey and Nelson for their instructive lesson and carried unanimously.—W. STAFFORD.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*Destructive Jackdaws.

A large number of Jackdaws have for some time past made their home in the tower of Pulborough Church (Sussex), and by pecking at the mortar they have so seriously damaged the roof of the church, that it is estimated that £500 will be required to repair it.—Sent by Winnie Sleep (age 12), 4, Willoughby Terrace, Plymouth.

*An Unfortunate Blackbird.

One day when the snow was on the ground a Blackbird flew in our neighbour's door from the cold. The poor thing had only one foot. The lady of the house was afraid, so I took it gently in my hand and put it in a cage and fed it until the spring came, and then I let the bird fly away.—Albert Terry (age 12), 19, Gladstone Street, Desborough, Northants.

A Morning Walk.

I went a long walk on the cliffs with my sister one fine clear morning. Numerous Jackdaws were flying together in pairs going inland, and crowds of seagulls were hovering about in companies. As we got further on we could see Stonechats on the furze bushes, and numerous other little birds. We were anxious to see the Ravens. At last we were rewarded, for there, right on a precipitous ledge on a high cliff sat an old solitary-looking Raven. He looked at us curiously, and then finally went over the cliff and vanished altogether. Looking further we saw two Sparrow-hawks fly out from a ledge.—J. Craven (13½), Maer Down, Bude, Cornwall.

No. 396.

Sent by Mr. T. Burns, 30, Hammond Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

I am sending a sketch of what I think a simple but good idea, one which I have used this season myself with great success. It is a device for saving eggs, and likewise young birds. Last year I lost several eggs, and also young birds, through their being dragged out of the nest with the old ones. This sling is made with calico, 10ins. by 7ins., with a little tape sewed on each corner to wrap once over the perch. Then put a small tack underneath through the tape into the perch to keep the sling in position, as per sketch. This sling is only used from the time of the hen commencing to sit till the young ones are about from nine to twelve days' old. Then they are taken out, and two fresh perches put in their place, as by that time the young ones put their droppings over. I think other bird fanciers will find this a great advantage during the breeding season, as I have not lost one this season.—T. BURNS.

No. 397.
An Easily-made Duster.

Sent by Mr. F. Jackson, 5, Free Trade Place, Fazeley, near Tamworth, Staffs.

I am sending you a sketch of a useful tin for dusting birds, cages, or aviaries. It can be made out of a small coffee tin. The hole in the bottom is for filling. Then put a cork in and press on top of the tin, when the dust will fly out of the spout anywhere you want it to go.—F. JACKSON.

Experiences Amongst My Canaries.

By A. SNELLING.

In washing a bird you can easily spoil its chances of success if not careful in rinsing all the soap out of the feathers. I only use two lots of water. The first is made into a good lather by a suitable soap. I prefer a nice glycerine. I have seen it stated that any kind of soap will do; this I don't agree with, as many soaps contain chemicals which play havoc among the bird's plumage. I would also strongly advise everyone to keep off soda. I just pass my hand through the basin containing the soap, to take off the "askiness." Then with a shaving brush I give the bird a good wash, laying the wings and tail on the bowl side, and with a soft toothbrush I wash round the head and beak, this part being very difficult to get clean. You must be careful and not lay too much weight on the tail, or you will find it will leave the bird in a deplorable condition.

After the Wash.

When I think I have got the bird clean, into the other basin it goes, and I just keep its head above water. Then with a sponge I nicely rinse it over, and then with a soft towel gently pat it. If it is a quiet bird, and has a few baths, into the cage it goes in front of a clear fire. If it is rather wild I roll it up in a piece of bath towel and lay it in front of a fire for a few minutes; then I unroll it and put it into the cage in front of the fire. I like to give them a bath as soon after as they will take it. I always have a bath hanging in front of the cages, moving it about until all the birds have a go. I never put a bath inside the cage, as they splash so, and wet the sand which clings to their feet, tails and wings, and I have seen them look worse after a bath than before.

The best time to wash a bird is two days before the show as this gives it time to trim its feathers down, etc. Some birds will not trim until they have had a bath. Be sure and see that the wires are perfectly clean.

Birdie Playthings.

I don't like swings for birds that are for show, as it makes them very wild and causes them to stoop. I like, however, to see birds enjoying themselves in an aviary swinging, and where birds are not intended for show purposes by all means let them have a swing. A very good thing for making birds stretch themselves is to tie a few thread ends just so they can reach them by stretching themselves a little. They like something to play with. Or when giving anything for them to pick at just place it so that they can just nicely reach it—not too high, or they will cling on to the wires.

An excellent way to get birds steady is to put them into a show cage, and then into the packing case, and take them for a walk, say, to see a friend; and if he has birds, so much the better. By doing this the birds become used to being "away from home," so that when they are sent away for one or two days they are not so nervous, and are not so liable to pine and die.

Useful Hints.

All cages and show cages should be washed (after being returned from a show) with water containing a little Izal or Condy's fluid. The birds should have a bath with a few drops of the Izal in it. If they do not care to bathe they should be sprayed. This will kill any germs of disease they may have contracted whilst away at the exhibitions.

If the bird shows any sign of having caught cold, say, by sneezing, any of the under-mentioned will soon be found to put it right:—Six drops of chlorodyne, or about half a teaspoonful of glycerine in the drinking water, or a teaspoonful of linseed to a half gill of boiling water, when it is cold strain off and give to the bird to drink. This simple remedy will be found of great benefit to a bird which has lost its voice, or which is troubled with regard to its eggs.

If by chance you catch your bird eating feathers, it is because its blood is heated. In such cases add about as much Epsom salts as will lie on a sixpence to half a gill of boiling water, and give to the bird to drink, when the preparation is cold. Give a liberal supply of green food, but keep away anything that is likely to cause its blood to become heated, such as hemp seeds. In cases of feather-plucking, the bald places on the bird should be rubbed with white ointment or pork lard.

If by chance any disease arises, wash the cages with carbolic acid, not forgetting the Condy's fluid. Use soft wood for perches. Dust the nest with Keeting's powder, and burn all old nests. Make cleanliness your motto, and you will not be troubled with diseases in or among your stock.

Notes from Erin.

NOW that the show season has ended, and on the whole it was a really good year financially for the clubs, as all shows were well supported, our attention and time must be given to the stock, in preparing and selecting them for pairing up. It is pleasing to note that so many new members joined our clubs, and I am sure we will all welcome them to our ranks as fanciers and assist them in their new hobby. The new novice members I would wish to warn against one of the greatest temptations a novice has to contend with, and that is pairing up the birds too early. In cold rooms if the stock are ready about the first week in April, that is early enough to pair up.

THE City of Belfast O.S. held their annual meeting some little time ago, and the following are the office bearers for 1910:—President, Mr. R. Trimble; Vice-President, Mr. A. Russell; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. J. Ronaldson; Committee, Messrs. J. Neill, W. Trimble, R. Tidford, J. McAuley, H. McConnell. Their annual show has been fixed for the first Saturday in November. For a great many years this club held a members' show annually for Belgians and Scotch Fancies, and it is pleasing to find that next season there will be five classes given to chubby Norwich. I hope to see the Yorkshire provided for in their schedule, and trust that the new committee will consider this matter.

YORKSHIRE C.C. of I.—Mr. J. P. Rooney (hon. treas. of Y.C.B.S.) was appointed one of the auditors. It is hoped that this society will be successful with their next show, which is fixed for the 24th and 25th of November next. I trust to see all fanciers rallying around the courteous and energetic secretary (Mr. Hyland) and the band of new office bearers and help to put the old club on a good foundation, and thus encourage its hard-working officials in their arduous duties

ULSTER O.A.—At the annual general meeting the following office bearers were appointed:—President, Mr. Bawford; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. R. Trimble; Committee, Messrs. Neill, Ronaldson, Carson, Coates, Teasey, Gray, Barclay, Connell, Stewart, Cumming, Fleming, and Lavery; Trustees, Messrs. Cummings and Connell; Auditors, Messrs. Coates and Barclay. It was proposed, and unanimously carried, that a specialist judge be appointed for the British bird and Mule classes. The annual show will be held, as usual, in December. A "Raffle" was proposed to be held in order to increase the club's banking account, but the matter is held over for a committee to consider.

YORKSHIRE C.B.S. of I.—This society is progressing by leaps and bounds. For their first year, after defraying all expenses and purchasing several silver cups, they have a nice little balance in hand of close on £12. The following are the office bearers for the season:—Vice-Presidents, Messrs. J. Huggard and W. Hawkins; Chairman, Mr. F. R. Fry; Committee, Messrs Sheridan, Holley, McDonnell, Birse, Stewart, Lynch, Callaghan, Wall, Lee, Tighe, Mulligan, Devins, Keating, and Coyne; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. J. P. Rooney; Hon. Secy., Mr. D. Carroll, 17, Hamilton-st., S.C.Rd., Dublin. Members intending to compete next season for the Closed Ring Cup and the other valuable Specials confined to birds bearing club's ring should apply early to the Secretary for rings and thus avoid disappointment by giving Mr. Carroll ample time to place his order with suppliers. Intending members should communicate with the Hon. Secy. The annual subscription is only 2s. 6d., and for this small fee members are entitled to privileges too numerous to mention. A lecture will be given very soon. This is another step in the right direction.

CHOPPINGTON AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting held on March 26th. Mr. H. Seely presided over a good attendance. Thirteen new members were enrolled. We will accept members till the May meeting. All intending members kindly note.—G. H. SEELY, Sec.

MANCHESTER & N. COUNTIES.

General meeting, held March 21st, Mr. Bladon in the chair. A letter was read from Mr. Bertie expressing regret at being unable, through sickness, to give us a paper on the Norwich. The chief business was a proposition by Mr. McKail that we leave the Cage Bird Union. He found nobody to second same, but to test the feelings of the members present it was put, and decided unanimously that we still remain members of the Union. Two members were elected, and we also elected Mr. Fryer as show manager for our annual show at Belle Vue on October 28th and 29th.—H. BOOTHMAN, Hon. Sec.

LONDON AND COUNTIES O.S.

Monthly meeting held at headquarters, the Sessions House Hotel, Clerkenwell-road, E.C., on March 21st. The president, Mr. F. W. Thorpe, was in the chair. A letter from Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Morrison (from Port Said) showed what a nice journey they were having. The chairman called on Mr. Allen Silver to give his lecture on British Birds. The lecturer dealt with all the species, from the largest to the smallest, and the friends and members were entertained for an hour and a half. Several questions were asked, which Mr. Silver ably replied to. A good discussion followed on the Goldfinch between Britishers and Foreigners. The chairman thanked the lecturer, and also the visitors. He was supported by Messrs. O. Heine and H. J. Pearce. Mr. R. J. Pretty proposed, and Mr. Tatter seconded, a vote of thanks to the chairman, which brought a pleasant evening to a close.—W. GILBERT, Hon. Sec.

BRADFORD WEST C.B.A.

Annual tea and concert, in connection with the distribution of prizes took place at the club rooms' (Red Lion Hotel), on March 19th, when a good number of members and friends sat down to an excellent tea, provided by our host and hostess. The tables were tastefully decorated with flowers and all present did full justice to the fare provided. The chairman was our worthy president (Mr. W. A. Cowgill), and his opening remarks were much appreciated. He had a few chosen words to say to each recipient of prizes. He commented upon the great enthusiasm shown by the members, and complimented them on the excellent good feeling which prevailed. During the evening a capital programme was gone through, and some of the very best talent was procured. Every one of the artistes received well-merited rounds of applause, especially "The Evening Star," with his song, "Wiggle Waggle," and also Mr. Fairclough, with his Irish ditties. The following contributed: Miss Morrell (contralto), Messrs. A. Star and W. Hilton (comics), W. Moore and A. Fisher (tenors), Wilkinson and Robinson (elocutionists), and Wellock (baritone). The prizes were presented to the successful winners during the interval, and the positions were as follows: Champion Section: 1st, T. Wood; 2nd, W. Crabtree; 3rd, F. Wallbank; 4th, C. Ross. Novice Section: 1st, A. Bennett; 2nd, H. Graham; 3rd, W. Helliwell; 4th, F. Western. Then we made things "hum," and the accompanist (Mr. Moore) had hardly time to take breath. Mr. G. Wellock proposed a vote of thanks to our chairman, which was seconded by Mr. W. Crabtree, and carried unanimously. Mr. T. Clegg proposed a vote of thanks, seconded by Mr. J. Clark, to our host and hostess, and Mr. W. A. Cowgill proposed a similar vote to the artistes, which was seconded by Mr. T. Wood. Mr. Farquhar responded, and said they were pleased they had been a success. This was one of the most enjoyable evenings in the history of the club.—F. WESTERN, Sec.

NORTHERN B.B.M. AND F.B.C.

Annual general meeting, held in Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger-st., Newcastle. New members were taken, and it was proposed by Mr. McKeuzie, and seconded by Mr. G. Graham, that Mrs. Bax become a member, which was unanimously carried. Proposed by Mr. Maddison, seconded by Mr. Storey, that the secretary write Blaydon C.B.S. that Mr. J. C. Barnes is to judge our section, and state classification. It was agreed that our vice-president, Mr. Currah present cups to the successful members present. Mr. Currah, in presenting Mr. Maddison with the British Bird and Mule Cups (he being the winner of both), said it gave him great pleasure to have the honour of presenting one of our most successful, upright, and straightforward exhibitors in the North with the club's two handsome cups, and hope Mr. Maddison would be long amongst us to continue to give the members assistance in promoting the Fancy. He had had a long and wide experience in the keeping and selecting of our beautiful British birds, also in the breeding of Mules. Mr. Maddison, in reply, said he was very proud to have won both these cups. He hoped that in the near future he would have the pleasure of seeing some of the younger fanciers in possession of these cups, as some had been making great progress. Mr. Currah proposed that Mr. J. Harris, his colleague, present the successful members with the club's medals, and this was seconded by Mr. Storey. Mr. Harris, in responding, said it was the first time he had been amongst the members of the N.B.B.M. and F.B.C., and hoped it would not be the last. In presenting Messrs. J. McKenzie, G. Graham, J. Maddison, E. Atkinson, and A. Storey with the medals, he hoped they would be equally successful next season. It was proposed by Mr. Storey, and seconded by Mr. McKenzie, that the best thanks be given to Mr. Currah and Mr. J. Harris. The report and balance-sheet were then read. The auditors spoke as to the position of our club. Mr. G. Taylor said the club was on a very sound footing. They had had a deficit to wipe off from last season, to provide medals, and have three cups for competition. Great credit was due to the members for the way they had worked. Mr. W. Curry, in endorsing all Mr. Taylor had said, thought the club was making very good progress. He hoped they would advance a step in carrying a much larger balance forward next year. Mr. Noble proposed the adoption of balance-sheet as read; this was seconded by Mr. Pettersen. Election of officers for season 1910 to 1911 resulted as follows: President, Mr. W. J. Taylor; vice-presidents, Messrs. G. Davidson, J. T. Porteous, T. C. Crawhall, J. Currah, J. Harris, T. Robson, W. Nicholson, and Dr. O'Neal; chairman, Mr. J. Shepherd; vice-chairman, Mr. W. Curry; auditors, Messrs. G. Taylor and W. Curry. Proposed by Mr. McKenzie that we re-elect our present secretary, who had done his work well in the past, and had given every satisfaction. This was seconded by Mr. Pettersen, and supported by Mr. Storey, and unanimously carried. Committee: Messrs. J. Maddison, H. Weddell, A. Storey, G. Allinson, M. C. Potts, G. Graham, A. Hamilton, A. Noble, E. Atkinson, J. McKenzie, J. Irving, C. G. Pettersen, and Mr. Vanner. Table show resulted as follows:

LINNET: 1, Allison; 2, Bertram and Storey; 3, Taylor. GREENFINCH: 1 and 2, Taylor; 3, Graham. A.O.V. BRIT.: 1, Taylor; 2, Weddell; 3, Maddison. Mr. J. Irving judged, giving every satisfaction. A hearty vote of thanks to him brought a most enjoyable meeting to a close.—J. BERTRAM, Sec.

OLDHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The first social was held on March 26th, in the large room at headquarters, Shaw-road, when about 70 members and friends enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. Sharples. Songs were rendered in an efficient manner by Messrs. Hitchen and Highton, also Mrs. Miller and Miss Dalzell. Miss E. Dickenson created amusement with some Lancashire dialect sketches. Mr. Steeple gave selections on the concertina. Mr. Hargreaves (Shaw) was the pianist, and Mr. Yates the M.C. for dancing. Altogether a very pleasant evening was spent.—F. STEEPLE, Sec.

UDDINGSTON O.S.

Meeting held in Reading Room, on 24th March, Mr. J. Kilpatrick, vice-president, in the chair. The following office-bearers were elected:—Mr. T. Prentice, president; Messrs. J. Kilpatrick and G. Munro, vice-presidents; James Dunlop, London Bank, Uddingston, secretary and treasurer; committee, Messrs. Sheppard, Nesbit, Morton, Taylor, and Junor; auditors, Messrs. Donnan and Park. The open show date was fixed for 26th November, provided suitable hall can be arranged for. Judges for Norwich and British were nominated. Our membership is open to the United Kingdom. Next meeting in Reading Room on April 7th, at 7.30 p.m. Fanciers wishing to compete for members' specials must join at an early date; full particulars can be had from me.—JAMES DUNLOP, secretary.

SCOTTISH NATIONAL C.B.S.

Adjourned general meeting, held on 26th March, at 142, High Street, Edinburgh, the president, Mr. Winter, in the chair. The secretary read minutes of committee meeting re testimonial to the late president, Mr. A. C. Dandie, which was unanimously agreed to. The society started the subscription list with a donation of £5. Committee appointed for same:—Messrs. Craig, Cochrane, Rodger, Gourlay, Dewar, J. Brown, secretary and president. Any fanciers willing to subscribe please send same to the secretary, A. W. Watson, 58, Colinton Road, Edinburgh, who will also send subscription sheets to those willing to collect. After various business the classification for coming show was thoroughly gone into, and resulted as follows:—Norwich to remain the same; Crested and Crest-bred one class less, namely: young Crest-bred hens to compete in young cock class; two selling classes, Crested cock or hen and Crest-bred cock or hen, limit £2 10s., instead of two classes £3 3s. and £2 2s. respectively, other class, namely 20s., to remain; Scotch Fancy and Belgians to remain as previously; Borders same, but two extra selling classes added, namely: one class limit 15s. for pairs, also class for hens limit 8s., Messrs. Cochrane and Mackie guaranteeing the latter; Cinnamons to remain the same. [We fancy some "copy" is missing here, though Mr. Watson's sheets are numbered consecutively and follow in due order. —Editor.] Entry fee, 6d. per cage; no prize money, Mr. Jno. Brown kindly granting prize cards. Gift class to be discontinued. Specials to be competed for as formerly. Prize money is to be the same as formerly, after a few motions to the contrary had been fully discussed. Time being up, the meeting adjourned until 9th April, same time, same place. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman brought a very enjoyable meeting to a close.—A. W. WATSON, sec.

The Shows.

MENAI BRIDGE.

This Isle of Anglesey show, open to North Wales only, was held on Easter Monday, and was a most successful little affair. Entries came up well, and the quality was splendid for the time of year. Norwich were only few, but a good string of Yorkshires put in an appearance, and some very typical birds were to be seen. The Borders were a small but good lot. Mules were fairly good, the darks being the best. The two Goldfinch classes were splendid, and the competition very keen indeed. The judging books used did not give the cage numbers, as is usual, and the judge made a most unfortunate blunder, the result of which was that the worst bird secured the second card. Bullies were a very fine lot, and Mr. Nolan staged one of the best hens we have ever seen, and the same gentleman won in the variety hardbills with a lovely Bramble. In this class were some most excellent Greenies. The birds were nicely staged, and their wants well attended to by the committee, who are a most earnest, enthusiastic lot of fanciers, and in Messrs. Bacon and Roberts the society has two splendid secretaries, who did their utmost to make things go with ease and dispatch. Mr. C. A. House judged.

STONEHOUSE C.B. AND F.H.S.

Table show of field-moulted Britishers was held in the Royal Oak Tavern, March 12th. Judge, Mr. W. Johnstone. Competition was very keen, with the exception of the Linnet class, which did not turn out as we expected.

GREENFINCH: 1, sp, McAlpine; 2, he, Whitelaw; 3, 4, Gray; vhc, c, Smith. LINNET: 1st, sp, 2, McAlpine. A.O.V.: 1, sp, 2, sp, Gray; 3, 4, Whitelaw; vhc, he, McAlpine.—W. MELVIN, Assist. Sec.

LEICESTER (Hand-in-Hand) C.B.S.

Successful table show (last of the season) held at White Swan, March 15th. The entry, which averaged eight per class, will no doubt encourage the officers in their endeavours to make the British bird section more popular. Mr. T. Ride judged, and gave every satisfaction.

GREENFINCH (10): 1, Hawthorn; 2, 3, Orme; vhc, Sherriff, jun.; he, c, Chambers and Son. LINNET, ETC. (13): 1, Hawthorn; 2, Mothersole; 3, Whiteband and Tomlinson; vhc, Gibbous; he, Allen; c, Orme. A.O.S. BRIT. (2): 1, Orme; 2, Mothersole.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES B.C

Usual monthly meeting held at 122, Ingram-street, Glasgow, on 26th, Mr. Thomson presiding over a good attendance. Mr. Malcolmson offered a silver medal with gold centre for a judging competition on one class for next meeting. Mr. Pettigrew agreed to get a gentlemen to give a lecture on breeding next month. The next business being our monthly show, three specials were handed in, and Mr. Reid was appointed to judge. When the birds were staged it was seen that there were over fifty birds in four classes, and some of them well-known winners. The Goldfinch, Foreign, and Linnet classes were grand ones; many open shows would have been proud of them—15 in each.

GOLDFINCH BRIT.: 1, Munro; 2, Fulton; 3, Liddell; 4, 5, Small; 6, Connelly; 7, Renfrew. FOR. DITTO: 1, Renfrew; 2, Pettigrew; 3, Liddell; 4, Knox; 5, Roulstone; 6, Drysdale; 7, Brown. LINNET; 1, Malcolmson; 2, Pettigrew; 3, Small; 4, 5, McInnes; 6, Renfrew; 7, Fulton. GREENFINCHES: 1, 3, Small; 2, Malcolmson; 4, Roulstone; 5, Renfrew; 6, Thomson; 7, Knox. Judging competition on Goldfinch Foreign Class: 1, Connelly; 2, Small; 3, Munro.—T. DRYSDALE, Sec.

CITY OF GLASGOW.

Adjourned meeting held, at which the following office-bearers were appointed: President, Mr. A. Muir; vice-president, Mr. J. Moulden; hon. sec., A. McCallum; committee, Messrs. Christie, Ross, Algie, McMillan, Wynn, Moffat, McLaren, and Graham. Linnet show held March 17th, at Mr. Muir's, Salt Market, under the club's auspices. The prizes were generously provided by members, and consisted of: 1st, two gigots of mutton, by Mr. Graham; 2nd, two 5s. specials, by Mr. R. B. Jarvie; 3rd, two pairs shirts, by Mr. A. McFarlane. In all 37 birds were staged, and the quality would have done credit to any open show. Many birds were sold, there being keen competition for some out of the tickets. The judges were Mr. H. Jamieson, for field-moulted; and Mr. M. Craig, for house-moulted, and their awards gave entire satisfaction.

HOUSE-MOULTED (12): 1, 2s. 6d. special for best Linnet, 6, Malcolmson; 2, Jamieson; 3, McFarlane; 4, Paterson; 5, McConnell. FIELD-MOULTED: 1, McCallum; 2, 6, Dunlop; 3, Todd; 4, Cochrane; 5, Summerhill. Show of Goldfinches held March 24th, when two classes were provided. Prizes, six in number, given by the club, and 2s. 6d. special for best Linnet, by Mr. R. B. Jarvie. The judging was most satisfactorily performed by Mr. D. Graham. FOR.: 1, Hutcheson; 2, Malcolmson; 3, Webster; 4, Dunlop; 5, Todd; 6, Thomson. Usual weekly singing contest held on March 26th, when three money prizes were sung for. The singing shows a marked improvement each Saturday. Results: 1, Paterson; 2, Ross; 3, Algie; 4, Cuthill. Next show, April 7th. Linnets, Bullfinch hens, and A.O.V. British Hen Hardbill.—A. MCCALLUM, Sec.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, FLEET STREET, LONDON.

The "Nutshell" Series, 2d. each, are good value for the money. The "Linnet and Goldfinch" are excellent books.—ARTHUR H. C. LEGG (Perth).

The City of Birmingham C.B.S.'s annual balance-sheet shows a balance of £6 11s. 5d., notwithstanding a loss on the last open show of £14 16s. 4½d., which is highly creditable to the Sec., Mr. J. H. de Maillet, and the other officials.

Having seen in CAGE BIRDS an account of a Thrush being found sitting on eggs, I am pleased to tell you I also found one sitting on four eggs on March 20th, in a bush close to our garden edge. The bird was sitting very close.—H. R. HIGGINS (Aylesbury).

Fanciers residing within ten miles of Leyton are cordially invited to join the Leyton and District Cage Bird Association (self-governing and affiliated to nothing), write the secretaries, Messrs. Forte and Son, Thornhill Road, Leyton, N.E. This, we claim, is undoubtedly the most progressive association in suburban London. The membership now exceeds 100. Our rules are strictly adhered to, and this, combined with the fact that the management is conducted by a most capable committee, has no doubt found due appreciation. There are challenge cups and points' specials for each section, and other specials galore, to be competed for at the first feather, young stock, and annual shows, and for judging we have been fortunate enough to secure the services of Messrs. T. Heath and J. Robson. The annual subscription is 2s. 6d., with a nomination fee of 1s.—ADVT.

Twitterings.

Our show date is fixed for December 9th and 10, 1910, writes Mr. J. Netherwood, Sec., Wakefield and Dist. Roller C.C.

Twelve new members were elected at our meeting held on March 22nd, writes Mr. W. Hodson, Hon. Sec. of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.

Kindly note, writes Mr. W. Stevens, sec. of the Derby C.B.C., that I have removed to 58, Olivier Street, Derby, to which address all communications should in future be sent.

I am willing to do anything for CAGE BIRDS, for it is a good paper, and I feel I would be lost without it, writes Mr. A. W. Bessey (Sunnyvale, California, U.S.A.).

We hear that Mr. W. P. Barnes (Grantham) for the second year in succession has been elected to judge the cage bird section at the Consett and Blackhill annual show, to be held on November 12th, 1910.

At a meeting of the members of the Darvel O.S., held on March 26th, it was agreed to hold our open show on November 12th, instead of the previous Saturday, as formerly.—J. ROBERTSON, JUNR., Sec.

Will Mr. G. Atkinson, whose letter respecting a useful call or singing cage was published and illustrated in our issue of March 19th, kindly communicate his address to us, as we have a letter which needs forwarding to him?

Fanciers of British birds should attend our meeting on April 5th next, at the Reindeer Hotel, Ryo Lane, Peckham, when Mr. A. Silver will lecture on the protection of British bird keepers, writes Mr. W. Hodson, Hon. Sec., Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.

One of our most helpful members, Mr. Rostron, is leaving us to go to America, writes Mr. T. Slater, Sec. of the National Quality Linnet S.A. We wish him every success in his new undertaking. We shall miss him, as he was a great help to our society.

A silver medal with gold centre will be given for most points by Mr. W. Thompson, and a British show cage for second most points by Mr. W. Howden, at the table show at our next meeting on April 6th, writes Mr. Jas. Barrass, Sec., South Shields C.B.S.

The London and Counties O.S. are holding their Finch show on April 2nd, with Mr. C. Prior as judge, at the Session's House Hotel, Clerkenwell Road, E.C., writes Mr. W. Gilbert, the hon. sec. Trains, trams, and 'buses pass the door, and the show will open at 2 p.m.

The following gentlemen have kindly agreed to judge at our next annual show on November 5th, writes Mr. W. Melvin, assistant-sec. of the Stonehouse (N.B.) C.B. and F.I.S.:—Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh), for Scotch Fancies, Norwich, Mules, and Hybrids; and Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream) for Borders and British birds.

The 1909 balance sheet of the Border Fancy Canary Club shows cash in bank and in hand of £12 16s. 10½d., and this notwithstanding over £30 was devoted to "special prizes" out of the year's accounts. The credit of this healthy state of affairs rests very largely with the sec., Mr. Jamieson, and his fellow-officials.

In the advertisement pages of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, the address of that well-known metropolitan expert in the washing and preparation of birds for exhibition, Mr. W. Shakespeare, is (owing to an error in the copy) given as 23, instead of 233, Kentish Town Road, London, N.W. Will those interested kindly make a note of this?

Owing to a mistake which occurred in the entries at our table show on March 19th, the points for medals had to be counted over again, and they run as follows, writes Mr. F. Brown, Sec. of the Crook Original C.B.F.F.S.: F. Brown, 81 points; Siddle and Dawson, 54 points; W. Brown, M. Nattrass, and J. Handley, 29 points each; J. Cuthbertson, 8 points.

The full list of judges elected for the show of the Broughty Ferry C.B.S., to be held on Oct. 8th, writes Mr. Robt. Whitton, is as follows:—For Scotch Fancies, Messrs. J. Fotheringham and J. Dalgleish; for Norwich and Crests, Mr. J. Young; for Borders, Mr. Gollan Hislop; and for British birds, etc., Mr. P. Pettigrew.

We are holding two first feather shows this season—on June 4th and July 3rd. A silver medal will be given to the novice gaining most points at the former show, of which Mr. A. G. Davis will be the judge, and some good money specials are already promised.—FRED WASHBOURNE, Sec., South Manchester C.B.S.

We have been fortunate in securing Mr. J. Wilcock (Bradford) to judge the Canaries, and Mr. Hy. Tams (Longton) the British, Hybrid, and Foreign birds, at our open show on October 29th next. At our next feather show on July 9th Mr. Anthony Brown (Gateshead) will place the cards.—E. WOODHEAD, Hon. Sec., Hartlepools C.B.S.

PART ONE of the standard work on Hybrids.

BY

CHARLES HOULTON.

Published in Monthly Parts - - - SIXPENCE EACH.

Two Coloured and Two Art Plates with each part.

This is not a work whose excellence begins and ends with the superficial attractions of good paper and plenty of half-tone illustrations, but is a standard work, written by an acknowledged expert, and prepared for publication by experts. It has been designed not from the standpoint of attracting the pence of the general public, but as a soberly authoritative and carefully practical work, embodying in the simplest and most straightforward language all that there is to be known on this peculiarly difficult and scientific subject. It is not packed with French and Latin quotations, nor abstruse and formidable tables of figures which no one outside a University can understand. The author sets himself the more difficult task of helping every breeder of hybrids and every student of the many problems connected with hybrid breeding, by relating all his own experiences and collating in readable form all that is at present known on this most fascinating subject. There are no less than sixteen coloured plates. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual hybrid—not a pretty group suitable for a children's picture-book, but a plate that shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present-day type and general characteristics of modern hybrids. The successful fancier is nothing if not practical, and to achieve success in hybrid breeding it is necessary, above all things, to be practical. The practical man wants a practical book, not a picture book. It will, we feel sure, be generally conceded that CAGE BIRDS has produced in a dignified book on a difficult subject—a standard work of the highest merit and a fitting monument of the hybrid breeder's art.

Part I. will be on sale at most of the leading bookstalls and newsagents, but we can send it to you post free for 6d. if you are unable to obtain it.

DO NOT MISS MR. NORMAN'S PLATES.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London.

I have removed from No. 100, Haydons Park Road, to 83, Haydons Park Road, Wimbledon, and should be glad if all secretaries would kindly note for reference, writes Mr. A. W. Reade.

We have a letter intended for Mr. William E. Priestley, who wrote us recently on the subject of "Can Canaries be taught the Nightingale's Song?" If he will communicate his address to us, we shall be glad to forward this letter to him.

I was pleased to see on the front page of CAGE BIRDS issue of March 19th the reproduction of the picture of my Hill Mynah. The difficulties in keeping Mynahs in good condition in this country are so great that it is a pleasure to see that CAGE BIRDS appreciates the exhibit which got me the first and special prizes at the City and Suburban A.C.B. show. My best thanks are due to the artist also, who has done the bird full justice. I wish your paper every success.—W. SHEPHERD (London, W.).

Welsh Cage Bird Club.

The annual general meeting will be held at the Ship and Bell Hotel, Merthyr, on April 9th at 3.15 p.m., when the presence of all members will be esteemed. Any proposals kindly forward to me at your earliest convenience. Nominations for officers, etc., will be received, and cups, medals, etc., will be presented. Make every effort to be present, for in unity there is strength.—G. T. JONES, Hon. Sec.

Cage Birds 1910 Annual.

The supply of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL for 1910 is now quite exhausted; our publisher has not a single copy left in stock. The demand has been simply phenomenal, the present issue having received such a warm welcome from birdkeepers that we are under the necessity of putting up the O.P. (out of print) notice many months in advance of the usual time. We take this opportunity of expressing our thanks to readers. We have already under consideration several new features for future ANNUALS, which will, we hope, even add to the great popularity they now enjoy.

Fanciers, Beware!

We have received from Mr. A. E. Barcham (Sible Hedingham, Essex), a "poem" of eight verses, which, under the title "Fanciers, Beware," deals with many things, ranging from birds on ladies' hats to the interference of the rich with the sports of the poor. Owing to the rooted aversion of our printer to having more than four lines of "poetry" fired at him in any one week, we are able only to voice the admirable sentiment conveyed in the following stanza:—

But with all these things, and their vast £ s. d.,
I tell you there's not one as happy as we,
With our birds all a-singing, so gaily and free,
In a cage, just as well as when out on the tree.

On Monday next, April 4th, at 6, The Broadway, Wimbledon, Mr. R. L. Crisp has kindly promised to attend our monthly meeting, writes Mr. H. Smith, Hon. Sec., Wimbledon C.B.S., and give a few remarks on the Yorkshire. As this is the first occasion Mr. Crisp has visited us, I feel sure members and fanciers in this district will embrace the opportunity of coming to hear him, and turn up in good numbers. There will also be a judging competition, with Mr. Crisp as final judge.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. ABBOTT (Jarrow).

It is with the deepest regret, writes Mr. R. Blore, Sec. Jarrow and Dist. C.B.S., that I have to report the death of one of our oldest members, Mr. Jas. Abbott. Mr. Abbott was a British bird fancier, but lately had taken up Canary breeding, winning the novice medal for Yorkshires at our last show. He was buried at Hebburn Cemetery on March 29th, and was followed by the members of the society, who sent a beautiful wreath. Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Abbott and family.

I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for many years, and find it very valuable, especially in regard to the queries, as there is always something popping up which is the very thing you want for the good of your birds. I wish it every success.—T. PARKER.

I must congratulate you on bringing out the useful "Nutshell" series of booklets at the low price of 2d., writes Mr. J. Walsh (Blackburn). They contain a great deal of valuable information, and they must be a treat and very instructive to the new beginners in the cage bird Fancy.

The Norwich Plainhead Club.

At a committee meeting it was decided to have the club show this year at Liverpool, and to have two of the cup competitions at Wellingborough and Nottingham. As there are still two more shows to be selected for cup patronage, I shall be glad if secretaries of societies who desire such patronage would communicate with me, informing me of date (which must be either the third week in October or after Nov. 12th), when I will send full particulars.—JNO. HOPKINS, Hon. Sec.

A Scottish Fancier Honoured.

We hear from the secretary of the Scottish National C.B.S., Mr. A. W. Watson (58, Colinton Road, Edinburgh), that a subscription list is being opened with a view to presenting the retiring President, Mr. A. C. Dandie, with a testimonial in recognition of his great services to the society (which has headed the list with £5), and the Fancy generally. A special committee has been appointed to deal with the matter, and Mr. Watson will be glad to forward subscription lists to those willing to collect.

I advertised a Canary-winged Parrakeet in "Cage Birds" a couple of weeks ago. The bird was claimed by 12.30 on the Friday (publishing date) by one of the largest London naturalists, long before I ever saw the paper, and gave every satisfaction.—HARRY SMITH (Connah's Quay).

We have had splendid results from the last two advertisements in your valuable paper, "Cage Birds," which shows what a wide circulation it has. We had replies from all parts, and still coming in, the applicants wanting yellow hens and cocks, which we regret we cannot supply. Kindly thank those who enquired for birds, as we have answered all who sent stamps for reply.—LOVEGROVE AND LOVEGROVE (Henley-on-Thames).

THE FUND TO DEFEND THE BRITISH BIRD FANCY

The eleventh list of subscriptions received by Mr. Crabb up to Wednesday evening last is as follows: The Birkenhead C.F.A., 4s.; the Hyde and District C.B.S., 2s. 9d.; the Greenwich and Deptford C.B.S., 2s. 6d., making a total of 9s. 3d. The amount credited in March 19 issue to the Partick C.B.C. was wrongly given as 1s. 6d.; the sum collected and duly forwarded was 6s. 7d. This, and the amount acknowledged above, bring the total subscriptions received to date up to £61 13s. 11d.

Sympathisers should send their contributions at once, addressed to Mr. George Crabb, c.o. the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in their letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." Mr. Crabb is the well-known gentleman who for so many years was chairman of the London and Provincial O.S., and has very kindly consented to act as treasurer.

It was with great pleasure that I took up CAGE BIRDS of March 19th, and saw my little Zebra Finch depicted on the front page. And so like him, too. I did not think for one moment when I saw your artist, Mr. Goodchild, drawing him that it was for such a place of honour, and I am sure it will give Mrs. Morrison (our late member) great pleasure when she receives CAGE BIRDS, as I was able to catch the mail for Queensland that evening. The little Finch was her parting gift to me before she sailed for their new home. So the pleasure will be all the greater when they land, and find her little bird there before them. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—ROSE SHEPHARD (London, W.).

An Excellent Record.

Allow me to thank you very much, writes Mr. T. Harrison (Altrincham) for putting the picture of my winning foul yellow green Norwich on the cover of CAGE BIRDS of March 26th. It is a wonderfully good drawing, and my surprise was very great when I was informed on Thursday evening by a friend of its appearance. I consider it is a great honour for any fancier's birds to grace the cover page of your magnificent journal. I may say I have been a subscriber from the first number, and intend still taking it. It perhaps would not be out of place to mention here that the bird won the championship diploma at the 1910 Crystal Palace show for best Norwich green, and amongst its other winnings are: 1st Scottish National, 1909-10; 1st Horticultural Hall show, 1909; 1st Green C.A. show (Liverpool), and 1sts and 2nds at a great many more shows, both in 1908 and 1909. It is the same bird you were kind enough to make a coloured plate of in February, 1909. It was bred by me, and was the offspring of my celebrated winning buff, also bred by myself, and her winnings are about 34 1sts, two 2nds, and other prizes and specials. Truly an excellent record.

An Opinion Upon Egg Food.

In giving a reply to a querist in the post-mortem section of our "Questions and Answers" pages, we note that Mr. Geo. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., the gentleman who has this feature under his control, commits himself to the following noteworthy opinion concerning the use of egg-food: "Why all fanciers emphasise the fact of allowing but a microscopical diet off egg-food I cannot imagine. It is spoken of in a kind of stage whisper, as though it were to be given only surreptitiously and in inimical hœmeopathic proportions. Tho only precaution necessary in the feeding of egg food is to ensure its perfect freshness, when it will in no way cause harm. Please do not take this in a critical sense, for I only desire to disillusion the fancier as to the imaginary harmful effects of a really good food. Contagious diseases do not arise sporadically; there is always an element of contagion, and if egg-food were responsible for contagious avian diseases, then, considering the extent to which it is used, and that the birds so infected would become similarly infective to others, the cage bird would be an unknown quantity, and the bird Fancy would cease to exist."

Seeds, Foods & Wild Plants
FOR
By Various Leading Authorities.
Price 1/2 post free.

A comprehensive and complete manna giving information on the various seeds suitable for all varieties of cage birds, their food values, uses, etc. Descriptions and illustrations of the various wild plants that are indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds are fully given. Postal Orders only to
"CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds." 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

CANARY QUERIES.

A Silent Wooer.

Market Cross.—The cock is probably one of the quiet wooers, who will not sing when in the company of his "fame," and I think it quite likely that matters were showing a favourable development when you put them together, and if you had left them together instead of separating them again, they would doubtless soon have settled down to business. However, feed them both as follows, and put one each side the wire slide again; and remove the slide a day or two after you see the cock begin to feed the hen; or, if weather keeps mild, try them in a week. In addition to your present staple seed diet, give half a teaspoonful of egg-food, with a pinch of a mixture of sesame and gold of pleasure in equal parts every second day, instead of giving egg-food daily. On the alternate days give the same quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and linseed. Give two leaves of dandelion to each bird daily. I should not say the hen was no good, but she may not have been in very good condition when you tried her; or, again, she may be very young. The next trial should show a better result.

After Egg-binding.

W. E. Shaw.—If you had given me some particulars of your present treatment, and when the egg-binding occurred—that is, whether it was with the first egg of a clutch, or a subsequent one, or more than one, or whether the hen laid only that one—I should have been in a better position to help you. Give a staple diet of a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, and for the rest feed as advised to "Market Cross," save that you omit the hemp from the mixture of seeds given alternately with the egg-food, and instead of giving dandelion for green-food, give chickweed, watercress, or groundsel, giving preference to these in the order named, and eschew dandelion altogether. You may also add twenty drops of chemical food to the water daily for a week. See that the has plenty of space for exercise until ready to mate up again, which you may do as soon as she is ready. Keep the cage floor well strewn with gritty shell sand, and also a piece of cuttlefish stuck in the wires or hung in the cage, and you might also smash up a few chips of old mortar to a coarse powder and strew over the cage floor.

Moulting and Moving Yorkshires

Green Horne.—I cannot trace the previous reply in the issue you mention. When referring to a former reply it is always best to cut out the reply and enclose it, or repeat all the particulars. To stop the moulting you must see that the birds are not exposed to any draughts or extremes of heat and cold. Keep them just comfortable. Feed on a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of hemp, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. In the drinking water give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day for a week, and the next week omit this, and give instead twenty drops of chemical food. Repeat this in the same order in the third and fourth weeks. Give two leaves of dandelion each daily. Remove the birds to the fresh quarters any time now, but take advantage of a spell of nice mild weather for the change, and wrap cages up cosily during the actual transit.

Whew!

Ernie.—By mine halidom, thou art a greedy one (no offence meant) to hope to do better this year than you did last year, when you say you succeeded in rearing 12 cocks and 4 hens from a single pair of birds. You must consider yourself very fortunate if you do as well and no better, and, if you take my advice, you will be content with less. This record means an average of four young each from four nests, which is too much for one hen to do repeatedly. (1) If both these birds are clear, you will get a majority of clear Yellows and Buffs from them, and a few ticked ones. But much depends upon what their parents were. The song also will depend very largely upon what kind of tutor the young birds have. If they hear nothing but the Roller's song, and he is a good singing bird, they will make songsters for ordinary singing purposes very little inferior to the Roller. (2) The vital principle must of necessity exist in the germ even before the eggs are laid, and it is a matter of hours rather than days before this is roused to activity once incubation has commenced, though the earliest stages of development are not readily observable in small birds' eggs. (3) This should have been on a separate sheet. Feed the same as you would for young Canaries, but add a little soaked rape to the dietary from the beginning as well as giving egg-food, and give groundsel, chickweed, shepherd's-purse, etc., of a seedy character freely as green-food.

Crest-bred with Fits.

J. Whitelaw.—You can do nothing for this bird, I fear, beyond treating it quietly and methodically, so that it may in course of time come to understand that you meant it no harm. The "fits" you describe are merely the result of fright, or nervous shock. Move its cage about as little as possible; see that it is not alarmed by the presence of cats or dogs at any time. Feed and tend it regularly, and without any fuss or flurry about its cage, and always leave a choice bit of green-food, or something else, behind you, so that it will get to associate your presence with the proffered dainty. Do not allow it to become constipated any time. Add a small pinch of sulphate of soda to the water occasionally, if necessary, to prevent this. For food give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Twice a week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, black rape, inga, teazle, and maw seed, and twice a week for the next month, and once each week afterwards, give a small piece of bread soaked in cold milk, lightly sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure added on top. Give green-food daily. If, as I suspect, you only offer the bath occasionally, gradually increase its frequency until you give it every day, so as to get the bird accustomed to it. For a time place a tempting spray of green-stuff in it to help to win the bird's confidence. I would not advise you to mate him—the excitement of the nesting season would probably be too much for him.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

Ailing Cinnamon.

G.H.T.—The hen is probably in an overfed condition. Keep her in a comfortable part of the room, quite free from draughts and chills, and do not offer the bath until she gets more active except on quite mild bright days. At same time, do not keep her decidedly warm, as you only want to prevent the chance of any sudden chill, which is to be strictly avoided in this condition. Feed her on a staple mixture of plain canary seed. Every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days the same quantity of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Remove each night all that has not been consumed of these extras. Give also on the days the sponge cake is given a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts inga, linseed, and sesame. Give two leaves of dandelion daily. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a small pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. Continue this treatment for a fortnight, except the drugs in the water, which may be stopped at the end of a week.

Various.

S.O.—As you are in the habit of washing the sand trays and perches every week, your birds should be well accustomed to the process, and I see no reason whatever why you should not continue the practice right through the breeding season. I am assuming that you remove the perches as well as the sand trays from the cage to do the washing. If not, you must do so, and take them out quietly one at a time and wash, dry, and return, before removing the next. It would simplify matters if you had a double set of perches, as you could then remove the soiled ones and replace them with the surplus clean set in a moment or two without the least possible disturbance. I would not advise you to mate the hen whilst she has a cold. See that she is kept perfectly free from draughts, and add 20 drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, to the drinking water for a day or two. The sample of seed sent is gold of pleasure, also called golden pleasure. It is never quite so small as maw seed. Yours is a good sample, and of good size.

Is it Singing Too Much?

S. Stephens.—I once heard a Black Country man declare that his pet Lark had "sung all the feathers off 'is yed," but I have yet to come across the bird of any kind whose incessant singing was responsible for bad plumage all over the body. No, you can dispense with this idea at once. Although you say you have searched the cage for red mites, I should advise you to have another thorough good inspection all over, raking out any cracks or open joints, and taking particular note whether you find any of those white dust-like spotted areas which are the hall-mark of red mite infestation. If you discover anything of the kind, see that the pest is annihilated. Do not keep him anywhere near a fire, but choose a place where there is least amount of fluctuation between night and day, and perfectly free from draughts. As a staple diet give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a fortnight give a piece of bread the size of a hazel nut scalded with milk, two drops of cod liver oil emulsion dropped on it, and sprinkled with maw seed. On the alternate days give a pinch of a mixture of hemp, teazle, linseed, and gold of pleasure in equal parts. Give a spray of green-food daily, but vary the watercress, with chickweed, groundsel, and dandelion leaves. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and after this give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a month, and then report progress.

No Results.

Hoofy.—You put up the birds nearly two months too early, and, in all probability, whilst they were totally out of condition. This, as is frequently pointed out here, is an utterly useless and futile proceeding, and "no results" is quite the "usual result" of this course. If they still show no signs of beginning, separate them at once, and keep in separate cages, where they can see each other. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, or egg-food, sprinkled with a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure and sesame seed, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga. Give two leaves of dandelion to each daily. In the drinking water give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn for two days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid for a day or two. Continue the above feeding until the birds have gone to nest, but do not put them together again until you see the cock singing and calling vigorously to the hen, and the hen responding promptly to his calls. When an egg-cake is used, it is, of course, as a substitute for the ordinary egg-food, and not in addition thereto. The usual seed diet, however, must be retained in addition to the egg-cake or ordinary egg-food, whichever may be used.

An Experimental Turn, etc.

J.B.C.L.—(1) The cock requires a little more time to develop, I expect. If things are not running more smoothly by the time this appears, put the cock in a separate cage and hang beside the hen, so that he can both see her and feed her through the wires. Feed him as advised to "J. C. Siddons," and do not put him with the hen again until you see her responding promptly to his call, and allowing him to feed her through the wires. Then she will probably accept his offerings in a better spirit. See that they are quite free from draughts and fluctuations of heat and cold, and give twenty drops of whiskey, six of oxymel of squills, and two eucalyptus oil, well shaken together in the water for a few days until the colds have disappeared. (2) Your treatment of the egg-bound hen was correct, all but giving her castor oil, which was useless. Only time can tell whether she is to be trusted to rear the young or not. It is quite probable she will. If she shirks the task, transfer them to another hen with young of the same age, or rear them by hand. (3) Of course, you may experiment with the foods you mention—there is nothing to prevent you doing so if you wish. But do it as an experiment, and expect nothing but what turns up, by the way. Personally, I would not try to rear young on sponge cake alone. It is very useful, and a valuable adjunct to the larder; but this I should regard as abusing, rather than using, it.

Brevities.

The Difference (Novice).—The difference between a Norwich Cinnamon and a Norwich Plainhead is the same as the difference between a Norwich variegated and a Norwich Plainhead; in other words, there is no difference at all except in the colour, which is the cinnamon colour grafted on the Norwich stock. You might describe it most truly, if not so tersely, as a Norwich Plainhead of a cinnamon colour. See British Bird replies for answer re Greenfinch.

Canary Rings (A.H.L.).—Cannot mention any particular dealer here. If you keep an eye upon our advertisement columns under Appliances, you will find plenty of rings offered at the proper time. You might also have found some advertised last week.

Owing to the Easter Holidays many queries have necessarily had to wait an answer until our next issue.—EDITOR.

Bare Around Eye (A. and B.).—Feed the bird now on a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Continue to give the bread and milk as before twice each week for another month, and on two other days each week give a small pinch of a mixture of hemp, inga, black rape, gold of pleasure and teazle in equal parts. Give a little green-food—groundsel or chickweed preferably—each day, and add twenty drops of chemical food to the drinking water every second day for a month. Continue to supply the bath as frequently as required, and occasionally dissolve a crystal or two of permanganate of potash in the water—just enough to give the water a light pink tinge. If there appears any moisture on the bare skin, dust it every few days with boracic acid.

Egg Eating Hen (Anxious).—I think the only practical cure for this is "capital punishment." A specially prepared egg made by blowing an ordinary Canary's egg and filling with a delicate compound of mustard, salt, and cayenne, made into a thick cream, then stopping the hole, and placing it in the nest for the culprit to investigate, is believed to have a good deterrent effect, so is the rule of placing a china nest egg in the nest for them to work off their energy upon. Personally, I have small faith in these remedies. But try them. If it is a valuable hen, you might save the eggs by making a hole in the bottom of the pan just large enough to allow the eggs to drop through as soon as laid, into a small box attached underneath. Then you could give them to a foster hen to hatch and rear the young.

Rapidly Overgrowing Beak (J.H.J.).—You must keep the mandible cut back as often as it requires it. As it grows so rapidly, in spite of keeping a piece of sugar and cuttlefish in cage, try substituting for the latter a small piece of roughly-broken pumice stone saturated in a very strong solution of common salt, and stuck firmly in the wires. The salt may induce the bird to peck away at the stone for some weeks. You may also bind a strip of sandpaper, about half an inch wide, around the end of perch, next wires, at which it will peck away with good effect. The bird may be an old one. Thanks for remarks anent the helpfulness of these replies.

Cinnamon and Green (Another Anxious).—No, I do not think Cinnamon blood in Greens is beneficial, as whatever you may gain in quality of feather is lost in the purity of the green, which should be the prime consideration in a green always. The result of the mating you suggest, assuming there is no trace of Cinnamon blood in the cock, will be Greens and Green variegated.

Disappearance of Eggs (A. Emery).—You should not take it for granted that the hen ate the eggs simply because they disappeared. They might have been dragged out of the nest, and come to grief on the cage floor, or if there is still any building material about the cage, she may have been adding more to the nest and hidden the eggs. You should keep a sharp eye on the pair and discover whether the birds are really addicted to this habit or not. If they are, see reply to "Anxious," on the subject. Your diet will bear improving. Look up a few replies on this point.

Procrastination (J. C. Siddons).—The hen is only putting off until to-morrow (or later) what you expected her to do to-day. As a matter of fact, she was not quite ready for mating. Leave them alone now, and exercise the estimable virtue of patience, and things will probably develop on the correct lines before long—perhaps by the time this reply appears. If they have not so developed, give a small teaspoonful of egg food, sprinkled with a pinch of a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure and sesame seed, every second day, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of a mixture of hemp and inga. Give two leaves of dandelion daily to each. Continue this treatment until the hen has gone to nest. Your other treatment seems to be correct, so in a short time you will probably see things going as you desire.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

With Bullfinch Hens.

Curio.—Bullfinch hens vary as much in taste, so far as nesting sites, nesting materials, etc., are concerned, as do Canary hens. I have one Canary hen now which has built her nest entirely of cow-hair, with a little white deerhair as lining, ignoring the moss contained in the nest-bag. Her next-door neighbour, however, has used practically all moss. I never interfere; it is best to let the fair sex have their own way. Your cage 2ft. 9ins. long by 2ft. high and 18ins. wide should make a fine one to try to breed either British birds or Hybrids in, the good width affording seclusion. Give the hens an ordinary nest-bag and a supply of charpie, or white "deerhair," for nesting materials. If you get out into the country at all, you can supplement these with dried grasses, bents, and an old Blackbird's or Greenfinch's nest pulled to pieces. My own hen

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

Britishers are often very fond of charpie, and one or two have built a fine, clean-looking, cosy nest practically entirely of it. Some use an earthenware nest pan, but the majority of hen British birds prefer wooden nest-boxes, or Roller travelling cages with the end (or top) and inside fitments removed. Some like an old Blackbird's nest to re-line, and some will lay their eggs in simply a hole made in dried grasses strewn on the cage floor. They are peculiarly variable. They will rear the young (or attempt to do so, I should say, for few succeed, the usual plan being to put the eggs under foster parents) on the ordinary seeds, but must have unlimited seeding shepherd's purse, groundsel, chickweed, and the like. In addition, mine also relished soft foods, and egg food, and live ants' eggs.

The Goldfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid.

Miss Stevens.—The Goldfinch-Bullfinch is, of all Hybrids, my favourite. You can hardly try for any more fascinating cross, though, of course, there are rarer ones. Both Goldfinches and Bullfinches come into breeding condition in due course if correctly fed. Follow the lines laid down in my recent answers, and you ought not to go wrong. Both species should have plenty of young dandelion leaves, likewise the flowering and seeding heads of dandelion and groundsel, shepherd's purse, and chickweed. Give feeds of wild seeds, niger and maw seeds, to both birds daily, and do not stint the Goldie of hemp nor the Bullie of sunflower, while the latter may have a taste of egg food every day if she shows any liking for it. Most fanciers believe in transferring the eggs to hen Canaries; some prefer to give the hen Britishers a chance to hatch them and rear the young. When the couples are in cages, the former invariably proves the most certain method, especially with hen Bullies, whom I have never found any too reliable. In small aviaries they may behave all right. Should you get young offer all of the above-mentioned seeding green foods freely, egg food (or rich insectivorous food, if the hen Bullie likes it), small mealworms, and sprays off rose or fruit bushes which are infested with smother fly (aphides), if you can get them, likewise live ants' eggs in season.

Putting the Claws in Order.

K.P.—You certainly ought to attend to the bird's claws. It is absolutely dangerous to leave them so very much overgrown. Catch the bird and place it on its back in the palm of the left hand, holding it gently but firmly, taking care not to squeeze it. Let the thumb fall over its throat, and the third and little fingers (or middle and third, as most convenient) each side of its legs, the latter projecting between them. It will then be easy to get at the bird's feet and claws. The latter should not be cut too close to the toe, or they will bleed, and likewise hurt the bird. Roughly speaking, a tiny blood vessel runs into the nail from the toe for about a quarter of an inch (in a small bird), and one needs to always cut outside this. If a bird has white nails (like most Canaries) this blood vessel can be plainly discerned on holding the foot to a good light. Use a pair of sharp scissors, cut quickly and firmly, and this necessary operation is easily performed. It is not at all difficult, in fact, and quite painless, when properly done. Any dealer, or experienced fancier, would attend to the matter for you if you doubt your own ability to carry it through; take the bird to them.

"Feeding an Aviary."

Hopeful.—You mean the birds in the aviary, eh? I have had a fair amount of experience of keeping both British and Foreign birds in aviaries, and I have certainly found that it is wasteful, and consequently expensive, to use a seed mixture in a large aviary containing many species of birds. The best method is to give the principal seeds (say canary, teazle, hemp, summer rape, charlock, and sunflower (or, preferably, a mixture of half-sunflower and half safflower) in separate hoppers or dishes, and put a little of the other seeds in occasionally, by way of a change, or as "tit-bits," as fanciers say. This menu, of course, is for British seedeaters; if you put any foreigners in, then millet seed must be added. If you must have your seed-mixture, then for a varied collection of Finches you will find it difficult to beat this: Canary and teazle three pints each, hemp two pints, summer rape and charlock one pint each, linseed half-a-pint, with about a half-pint of mixed sunflower and safflower seeds, increasing or decreasing the quantity of these latter according to whether the birds eat it all up or not—it depends on the composition of the collection, as some birds like these seeds more than others. The other seeds—niger, maw, wild seeds, etc.—you can give now and again, as indicated above. The exact quantity of hemp should vary according to the season (less in summer than in winter). A little more linseed is also useful during the moult.

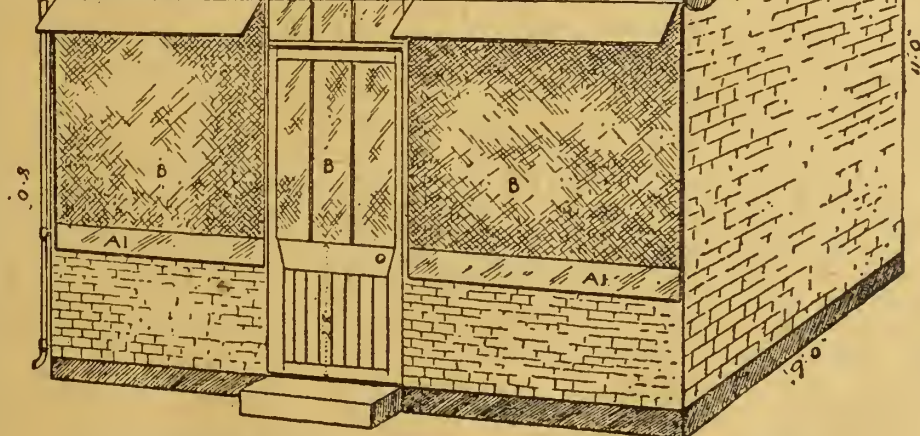
Mule and Hybrid Breeding and How to Go About It.

By J. S. COOPER (Matlock).

I will commence with the aviary intended for Mule or Hybrid Breeding. It should be 12ft. long by 9ft. from back to front, and 11ft. high at back by 8ft. at the eves. The position for this is as near south as can be got. The aviary should be built, if convenient, against a brick wall, or if against an ordinary rough wall the wall must be plastered with good cement, or a composition of two of cement and one of sand mixed well together before adding water. The latter will be a little cheaper and will make a better job, as the sand will make it set harder and tougher. This will keep all the vermin out which are fond of visiting our feathered pets.

The Ends and Front of Aviary.

Now we have made the back safe from vermin, damp and frost, the ends should be either good "seconds" bricks, or if boards, of ¾in. thickness, or 1in. thickness if the pocket will allow, same to be grooved and tongued and planed inside if not outside; you will realise the benefit of the extra cost when you apply your distemper or whitewash. The outside of the woodwork should be dressed with pitch and tar well boiled together and put on while warm, as it fastens to the wood better than if applied when cold. This should be done at least eighteen inches up from the ground. If in a cold position the aviary ends may be covered with felt, or you can have two thicknesses of boards, say, ¾in. grooved and tongued, leaving two inches between to fill in with saw-dust, about eight or nine inches on the bottom being filled in with broken glass or broken stone and cement, which answers for concrete amongst builders.



Now we come to the front, which should be done on the same lines, except the door, of course, which should be wood for 2ft. 8ins. from the ground, and the remainder ⅝in. mesh wire netting. The front wall should be 2ft. high, with 8in. deep of strong obscure glass, which is for the purpose of preventing mice from climbing up and getting through the netting on the front of the aviary which goes up to the eves. Wooden shutters are made to hang from the eves or top edge; these are fixed so that they can be turned up to prevent the sun shining directly upon the inmates.

The roof should be made of grooved and tongued boards, one inch thick, planed inside and covered with felt; they should be well dressed with pitch and tar, prepared and put on warm; then scatter fine sand over it, which will cause it to set sooner. I prefer obscure glass about one third up the roof next to the eves, as it gives good light all over the aviary, and prevents cats from disturbing the birds. All glass must be covered with ½in. netting either inside or out, and if made on frames the netting can be taken down when one is spring cleaning. And this will also prevent the birds escaping in case of accident to the glass. The floor of the aviary on front should be concreted about 2ft. 6ins. from the front wall, and should slope from each end to the hanging side of door to take away any wet that comes in through the netting. I believe in keeping the floor as dry as possible.

A false door or lobby should be arranged, made of ½in. netting and framing. This can be placed inside or outside the aviary. It is to prevent the birds escaping when you are opening the main door. If the door is in a position where rats are inclined to visit, dig a trench about eighteen inches deep and insert ½in. mesh wire-netting, well dressed with pitch and tar, and then fill ground in again, well ramming to make it solid.

The Aviary Decorations.

Now we come to the decoration of the inside. Provide one spruce tree, five or six feet high, one box tree, about four feet high, planted in suitable pots or tubs painted a nice holly green. But let them be free from any smell of paint before putting the birds in the aviary, as it might upset them. You can get some ivy and plant it in long, deep, narrow boxes, and train it to grow up sticks or ladders made for the purpose. Fix these against the back wall. Then fix a branch or two in quiet corners, with plenty of fibre on them, for roosting purposes, etc. I don't like to use any shrubs or bushes with prickles on them; they are very dangerous, especially when eggs are in the nest, as they are very liable to offend you when getting the eggs, and the prickles may drop in amongst the eggs and damage them. You can also get a few wooden nest boxes, and by driving a few small wire staples in you can decorate them with various branches, and put an old Missel Thrush nest in, or a Blackbird's. Or a good dry turf sod is very attractive; if hollowed out in the middle it makes a fine foundation. For perches I prefer a dead Scotch fir or two or three with the smallest twigs trimmed off. I fix these perches where the birds have to use their wings to get from one to the other. You can have too many perches as well as too few. Fix a willow stick in a bush, or a slender stick that will sway about when the birds alight on it now and again; but I don't believe in having too many acrobatic perches where birds are pairing.

Keep all the seed hoppers and water vessels from under perches. Have plenty of hoppers, so that you don't have to mix above two kinds of seeds together; this will prevent waste. You will need two covered-in earthenware drinkers, and two washing bowls or dishes, about 1½ins. deep, and large enough for two or three birds to wash in at once. Don't forget to have a row of the common gauze bushes close to the front wall outside the aviary, to prevent cats climbing up and disturbing the birds.

The Birds and Their Fare.

We now turn our stock in as follows: one real Jonque cock Siberian Goldie, one that has been tested with eggs, and one British cock Goldie (but it is wise to keep your eye on them); two good large mealy Redpolls, and two good unflighted cock Canaries (one yellow and one heavily marked, off clear birds—these must be vigorous birds); one large well-coloured cock Greenie; one hand-reared hen Chaffinch; one cock Siskin; two Siberian hen Bullies, and six British hen Bullies. The drinkers are filled every morning, baths are given every other day (except when the weather is very severe), and as the season gets warmer they have it more liberal, and in hot weather they have as much as they like. Baths are well washed every day, and chemical food is given once a week in the drinking water, making the latter about the same colour as port wine. The seed, etc., should consist of a liberal supply of freshly-cracked white sunflower seed, hemp, Canary, and brown summer rape, with a mixture of the following every other day: teazle, maw, inga, gold of pleasure, charlock, black rape. Supply the following (which should be gathered and stored away for the purpose) in jars or stands: thistle seed, hardheads, docks, kedlock, nettles, and wild sage. Don't forget to give a few mealworms every other day, and the birds appreciate the following berries, when in season: billberries, clusterberries, dewberries, elderberries, ash keys, alder balls. These harbour insects as well as containing seed. Small spiders and insects of various kinds can be thrown in; what suits them the birds will eat, and the others are at liberty to come out; but don't destroy them until you know whether the birds accept them. Privet berries are relished by the Bullies and sweet apple with the pips in, and a little boiled carrot now and again. Always have a supply of rape seedlings when the green foods are scarce, and as soon as other green foods come give a liberal supply of the following: dandelion leaves (but capture the flowering heads as soon as they appear), shepherd's purse, chickweed, groundsel, grass seeds, rat's tail, or plantain seed, and water cress. Give a liberal supply of cuttlefish bone and bird grit. Old mortar is an excellent thing to give for the shelling of eggs. In wet weather I gather the green foods overnight, and put them in jars with water, and give to the birds as soon as I rise the next morning. I watch that all frost is off it before giving to them.

I also like to feed my stock as soon after daybreak as possible, as they are the first in my thoughts. I am out in the country, so I have advantages as regards gathering green foods.

The Birds First.

When all my stock is watered and fed, and the doors and ventilators are alright, I have a litle food myself, and then I take a stroll in some likely place to see if I cannot gain a little more knowledge as regards the habits and feeding of the various pets I am interested in, and also to gather a few sprays or branches of plum trees and hawthorn, wild rose or any loose bark from old trees. I search for insects, carrying a little tin can to put them in, with a few small holes in the lid; and I do not forget to look out for all kinds of small fibrous trees and turf roots for the bird's nesting purposes. These I throw in when the pairs show signs of breeding, together with a litle moss and cow hair, old cocoa-nut matting, horse hair, and sheep's wool. I don't like sheep's wool much though, as it is liable to get entangled with the eggs and the bird's claws, and thus often causes accidents.

Books for Bird Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1.—By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate, and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 8½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

Lessons Learnt from My Canaries.

By FLORENCE OVERTON.

Experience and CAGE BIRDS have taught me more about the management of Canaries than I ever dreamed possible! I have tried many kinds—Norwich, Yorkshire, Border, Crest, and Roller Canaries—and the knowledge I have gained is much and varied. I do not breed them from either an exhibition or a remunerative point of view, but purely from the domestic side, the birds being kept for pleasure only, and the proceeds being devoted to charity.

Where My Birds Live.

My cages are stacked under a west kitchen window, and face a south one; so that the birds get plenty of both light and sun. The cages are twenty inches high, twenty inches broad, and sixty inches long. Each can be divided into three cages by a wooden movable partition (which contains a small wire door) during the breeding season. In spite of assurance from other breeders, I find my birds do very well in such large cages, and are certainly healthier and happier. Of course I have several smaller cages put by for emergencies.

There is a lot for and a lot against keeping birds in the kitchen. For: Well, they are tamer; we can see at once if any are ailing; we learn to know the robustness of their constitutions quicker, and so can avoid many an illness; we can keep the fire in at night (half a shovelful of fine slack will make it last until morning) during the winter; and, last, but not least, you have more enjoyment out of them. Against keeping them in the kitchen: the chief thing is the varying temperature—and the noise!

One of the first things I learnt through keeping them in the kitchen was self-control! No one knows what a hard fight one has with one's self when an insistent little madame will persist in calling "tweet, tweet," every teatime, under the deluded notion that if you are having cake and biscuits she has a perfect right to a share too! Or if you are eating an apple, by the fire, one of the cock birds "sidles" up to the corner of his cage, and putting on his "pity-me-Pete" air, plaintively twitters the fact that he has no apple! Not that I consider apple or biscuit bad for my birds, but, like everything else, they ought to be given in moderation.

Concerning Dainties.

That reminds me of a valuable fact I have learnt from CAGE BIRDS. I sent up to ask the Canary specialist's help for a sick hen of mine, and received the answer that the complaint was more indigestion than asthma, and the advice: not to give them so many dainties. So now, during the winter months, in addition to summer rape and Canary seed, they get one dainty per day—apple, maw, boiled carrot, fresh sand, grape, boiled rape, spray millet, varied with an occasional bit of biscuit, or sponge cake. Hemp I have a horror of, except during the breeding season; and I really do not think birds in a warm room require either it or egg-food.

When I give any dainty I try and coax the birds to take it out of my fingers, for I find this an easy way to tame them. I never bother a timid bird to do this; but with the boldor ones a few minutes' patience will often bring the desired result.

Little Tricksters.

It is wonderful how quickly Canaries learn tricks! A favourite game of our birds is for us to hide a hemp seed between our finger and thumb, and then call one of them to come and "seek" it, which it immediately does; they worry their little beaks into our fingers in exactly the same way a dog will work his nose into your hand for a hidden biscuit. If we call out "Romeo, where's your Juliet?" one of the cocks puts his heads through an unoccupied food-box hole, and looks up to the cages containing the hens. In fact, I consider Canaries as clever as the average baby.

As I said before, having them in the kitchen enables me to see in a moment if anything goes wrong. And I have learnt the valuable lessons that if I give maw at the first signs of diarrhœa there is no need to give the more drastic arrowroot; that a dose of linseed tea at the first sign of cold, cough, or hoarseness, prevents my flying to the aid of some well-known mixture or other; that if I give green-food at the first sign of constipation there is no need to supply Epsom salts; that maw given over-night will often prevent egg-binding in the morning; that cleanliness prevents all insect pests, and much sickness; that riddling the sand every morning, and providing clean twice a week, is a safe-guard against the death of young birds; and, lastly, that sometimes the unexpected cures!

Valuable Lessons.

I have a hen which was greatly troubled with indigestion. I tried every known remedy—known to me, at least. At the end of the breeding season I put her with another hen in one of my long cages who immediately "made for her;" so I hastily ran in one of the partitions. Then they fought hourly through the little wire door, and the exercise made a visible improvement on her ladyship!

I believe in letting the old birds, if possible, spend the winter apart from the young. They moult better by themselves. Being run down by the breeding season they have no peace with the young ones, who hustle them about and snatch all the dainties. Especially do I think this is so in the case of the hens if they are to be healthy enough to start breeding early in the next season. The young hens are better paired later—early breeding with young birds I consider a fruitful cause of egg-binding.

I always cover the birds up at night. For one thing it keeps them snug and warm; for another, it allows them to go to sleep in spite of the lamp-light. So well do our birds appreciate this that if we fail to cover them up when they are tired, a pitiful "tweet, tweet" will remind us of a neglected duty. The bath I leave on all the year round, and if a bird chooses an unsuitable day for its toilet, we keep a sharp eye on it. If it mopes instead of drying itself, we insist on its doing a little exercise to keep up the circulation. It is surprising how the others will go on eating, and playing, taking no notice of us, and just the wet one to whom we keep saying, "dry yourself, sweetheart," will fly from end to end of the cage.

Another thing I have learnt through experience is not to boast! I informed a friend once that we had never lost a single bird. The next week one of our nestlings died. After boasting that I did not know what egg-binding was amongst my birds, I immediately had that dreadful experience. Now I never boast! Sounds superstitious? Well, I have learnt superstition through experience! Can anyone tell me why all my birds that I have ill-luck with are "capped" birds, to which we have given the name of "Punch?" And that the only Punch which we have ever kept—to use an Irishism—is one we gave away! And, lastly, I have learnt in any difficulty to write up at once to CAGE BIRDS for advice; for one always gets a prompt, courteous and valuable reply.

Canary Breeding for Beginners

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.
Post Free 7d.

A practical, up-to-date guide to Canary Breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby.

Contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing, and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, etc.

All the details of bird-breeding explained, while it shows the way out of all difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

A HOLIDAY AMONGST THE ROLLER FANCIERS OF GERMANY.

By ANDREW PERCIVAL.

Accepting a friend's invitation to go over to Germany with him, I send you a few of the impressions the trip left on my memory. The weather appeared to favour us, for we had only one hour's rain in the whole of the thirteen days we were away from home. When we left Grimsby for Hamburg (at 9.30 p.m.), the North Sea was considered very calm, but evidently I am no sailor, for I had to miss two meals the following day.

I cannot say much about the scenery of the country, for what travelling we did was got through during the night, but the cities we visited impressed me very much indeed. Berlin, Hamburg and Leipzig with their tall handsome buildings and broad streets with their miles of beautiful shops (containing magnificent goods), their broad open spaces, some planted with trees and others forming miniature parks, are most beautiful and interesting towns.

Our principal object was to visit some of the Roller Fanciers. Unfortunately for us, many of them had commenced breeding operations, and we did not hear quite as many birds as we should have done had the conditions been otherwise. Breeders have different systems. One will run one cock with one hen; another will have one cock to two, three, or four hens, changing the cock about as required. Again, another breeder will turn three or four hens and one cock into a cage and allow them to do just as they like. The cock, in this case, would pair with one of the hens, and as soon as he had got her to nest, he would pay his attention to another hen, and so on.

One breeder we called upon happened to be away from home, but his wife seemed very pleased to show us the birds. Breeding operations had not commenced in this room. We heard about forty cocks, splendid songsters, in full song, with scarcely a discordant sound among them. This strain has won dozens of medals (gold and silver), diplomas (which were hung on the walls and filled an album as well), and numerous other special prizes of different kinds.

I told this good lady that I thought they ought to retire and give others a chance! The only part of her answer that I could understand was, "Nay, nay, nay!" with a very surprised look that I should suggest such a thing. She told my friend that they were only just beginning! She was more than surprised when she was told that some of their best birds had failed to take prizes in England.

Another breeder we visited had reserved about forty cocks and sixty hens. Breeding operations were in full swing here. Many of the hens had young ones, and nearly all of the remainder were sitting. We had the pleasure of listening to fourteen cocks; these had been in breeding cages and were waiting their turn for the next round. Fancy fourteen full-toned birds, with deep hollow tours and, to use the breeder's own words, "including Koller-like Tour" (but which he called "Gluck"), and, further, free from anything objectionable in their song. These birds had gained 84 points and upwards. To my mind they are the best I ever heard. Five pounds did not tempt their owner to part with any one of them.

We visited several other breeders, whose views are more for quantity than quality. One man's expectations for this season are three thousand young birds! We also called upon dealers in Rollers, but their birds had nothing striking about them, and the prices asked were higher than in England for birds of the same quality.

In every instance we were received most graciously, and of the public generally I can only say that I found them smart, orderly and very polite.

Song in the Breeding Season.

In all birds there is a considerable difference in their notes during the breeding season, even in those that do not sing. As an instance the Curlew has a melancholy whistle during the whole of the year, but in the spring he commences with a low note, which gradually rises, and then slowly falls away in a long drawn-out note of great beauty and sadness. This is quite a lengthy performance compared to his usual wild cry.

Protective Colouration of Eggs.

The eggs of birds which nest upon the ground are most difficult to find in consequence of their protective colouration. The eggs of the Grouse and Ptarmigan resemble in markings the heather and ling among which they are concealed. The eggs of the Ring Plover, Little Tern, and Oyster-catcher are stone colour, to resemble the shingle and pebbles on the beach among which they are laid. Those of the Lapwing resemble ploughed soil or the colour of dried bents in a scrubby pasture field. The same protective resemblance is found also in the young newly-hatched chicks of such birds.

Wild Bird Life.

The First Spring Migrant.

As usual at this time of the year we are having a spell of cold east wind. But this does not appear to influence the forward movement in bird life, for the sun generally shines strongly at midday, and when this is the case birds soon forget and recover from the chill of the early morning. In sheltered shrubberies the mud-lined nests of both the Blackbird and Thrush may be found, for, although the first-named bird does not gladden us with his mellow piping quite so early as the Thrush, he somehow is very little behind him in selecting a partner and commencing to nest. One has built and already lined the structure in a niche in the old park wall, a cosy spot well sheltered from wind and rain. It is just possible that this is the same pair of birds which appropriated this site last spring, although they did not succeed in rearing a brood, for a pair of Jackdaws (which nested in a hole in a tree near by) took a fancy to the mottled eggs, and so the Blackbirds had to seek a safer site for their second effort. Yet, in spite of this, I am inclined to think it is the same pair of birds. In many cases wild birds have short memories, or they would never continue to nest in the same position as they often do after repeated robberies. Allowing, or resenting, interference with a nest and its contents cannot be judged by any given rule, for some birds may be constantly disturbed with impunity, while others will forsake the spot upon the very first occasion.

In the old park adjoining my garden we have seen the first spring migrant. The little Chiff Chaff is once again with us. Although insect life can hardly be more abundant now than it was a month or two back, still this graceful little Warbler has made the perilous journey from the far south to visit once again his English home. In structure, in mode of living, in beauty of plumage, he closely resembles his congeners, the Willow and Wood Warblers; and yet it will possibly be some weeks before either of these dainty birds put in an appearance. By then the slender little Chiff-Chaff will many times have told his name to all who care to listen. He is one of the most interesting of the birds which nest here in the summer, full of energy, and bubbling over with music, and the joy of living.

When Migrating.

It is supposed that birds fly at a great height when migrating and descend only for food and rest.

Unbroken Eggs in Old Nests.

Unfertile eggs may even now be found in old nests. It is quite a marvel how these have escaped destruction, seeing that in many cases a whole brood of young ones has been scrambling over them for a couple of weeks before leaving the nest.

Grouse in Winter.

Some of the Grouse on the Northern moors and hills have a hard life of it during the winter months. At the best they are but timid birds, and only a few shrivelled berries and frozen haws remained and such seeds as were to be gathered from the stalks of the taller weeds. It is a wonder that any survived, for although living in higher latitudes, they are not so abundantly clad as many more Southern species.

Birds' Feet.

The feet of birds are quite a study of themselves—a study in the make-up of feathered creatures often neglected. The Hawks and Owls have strong, powerful claws, adapted to hold their prey. The Ducks have the toes united by a web or skin the whole length of the foot, while the Stone Curlew has the web to the second joint. The Grebes have lobes at the toes. The Coots and Moorhens also have lobes, but of rather a different shape. The Swifts have short claws like toes, with short hairs down the leg to the foot. The Cuckoo and Woodpeckers possess four toes, two short ones and two larger ones. All these peculiarities in the formation of birds' feet are designed by nature to enable the birds to exist in their various habitats. The foot of the perching bird would be useless to a wader, or the strong claws of the Hawk to a Thrush or Blackbird.

The Barring of Bird Breeding in Bradford.

Full report of the Speech made before the Health Committee by the deputation from the Yorkshire Union of C.B.S. The Notices to Quit suspended while the Committee further consider the matter.

Readers will doubtless remember that some few weeks ago we published an account describing the attitude of the Health Committee of the Bradford Corporation, which had caused notices to quit to be served upon certain tenants of the Corporation known to breed Canaries as a hobby, notices which would come into operation unless the birds were at once got rid of. The Yorkshire Union of C.B.S. immediately took the matter up, and appointed a deputation consisting of the President, Mr. Fred. Hammond, and the Secretary, Mr. Horatio Hill, to wait upon the Health Committee and lay before it their views upon the matter. We have pleasure this week in publishing the most thorough and able speech which, we understand, was prepared and read by Mr. Hammond, and which brought about the suspension of the "notices to quit" pending further consideration of the case. Bird-breeders the world over will join us in hoping the issue will be a happy one for the fanciers concerned.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen,—Mr. Hill and myself have been deputed by the Yorkshire Union of Cage Bird Societies to wait upon this committee with regard to a matter of supreme importance to a very large section of the rate-paying community of Bradford. The Yorkshire Union of Cage Bird Societies is an institution which has for its object the encouragement of the breeding of Canaries and other cage birds, and the advancement and protection of the interests of its members in exhibiting the same. The City of Bradford has been its headquarters ever since its foundation, and its membership is open to any accepted cage bird society in Yorkshire. At the present moment there are twenty-nine societies affiliated to the Union, representing, in addition to Bradford, the following places, viz., Halifax, Huddersfield, Brighouse, Bingley, Keighley, Dewsbury, Wakefield, Guiseley and Yeadon, Hoyland, Windhill, Pudsey, Queensbury, Shipley, Skelmanthorpe, Batley, and the Spen Valley, and possessing a membership of 1,200. Of this number over 600 belong to the Bradford societies, and to arrive at a proper estimate of the number of bird breeders in this city I suppose I should be well within bounds if I added 400 non-union fanciers, making, at least, 1,000 persons engaged in this pursuit in our own city, which, by the way, is almost universally acknowledged as the Canary centre of the world. This fact will, to some extent, explain our concern with anything of importance, either beneficial or prejudicial, to Canary and to other cage bird breeders and exhibitors.

We sincerely trust that the action of the Yorkshire Union in appointing this deputation to seek an interview with the City Health Committee may not be misconstrued as an attempt to interfere between the Corporation and its tenants, or to dictate in any way whatever as to what agreements should or should not be entered into between the parties concerned. Our sole duty consists in laying such facts before this committee as are likely to commend themselves to such an extent as to convince the committee that a certain bye-law, which we are given to understand is in existence, and which, we are informed, it is proposed to bring into force, would, so far as the breeding of Canaries is concerned, be more honoured in the breach than the observance. The bye-law referred to prohibits the breeding of live stock in any of the houses belonging to the Corporation.

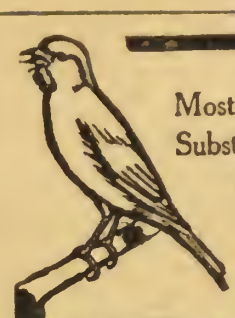
That Essential, Cleanliness.

In regard to certain species of live stock which are, in some places, allowed to be bred in some part of the house, this deputation is in entire sympathy with and acknowledges the necessity for the bye-law referred to, but Canary breeding is a hobby carried on almost exclusively in the attics of houses, and a well-ordered bird room is so far removed from all that pertains to the unhealthy, unsightly, or nauseous as to preclude any possibility of disease or nuisance arising therefrom. No one would take up the culture of birds without intending to make it successful, and it is the A. B. C. of bird breeding, in order to arrive at such a desideratum, that every attention must be given to the most scrupulous cleanliness and the highest form of ventilation that conditions will permit. Neglect of these two vital points is simply courting disaster, and is surely a speedy method of ridding the Fancy of any individual who may fail to comply with these primary essentials. It would be foolishness on our part to insist that such a person can never be found, but the same can be truly said of persons in every walk of life, of which fact no body of men is more cognizant than the members of this committee, whose experience, we feel sure, will contradict any possible suggestion that these undesirable and isolated cases are any proof of the general state of affairs.

It would almost seem unnecessary to ask you, gentlemen, to believe that Canary breeders in general are persons of like passions to yourselves. They are not entirely ignorant of or blind to those things which make for comfort and happiness and add real joy to life. The sanctity of and veneration for their own homes, the love of their dear ones in such homes, and, in fact, the making of home everything that is implied by the word in its highest and most sacred sense, are matters which appeal to Canary breeders in as marked a degree as to any other section of the community, and it would be nothing short of injustice and insult to charge these men and women as a body with subordinating these higher things to the pursuit of their own particular pleasures and desires, irrespective of any detrimental effect such course of action might have on the health, comfort, and happiness of others. We love the better things first, and bring their influence to bear as much as possible in making our hobby at once practicable, profitable, and pleasant.

Some Merits of the Fancy.

To enlarge on the merits of the Fancy from physical, virtuous, and moral standpoints would occupy more of your time than we feel at liberty to monopolise, but the evidence of eminent physicians as to the impossibility of connecting a well-regulated bird-room with any outbreak of disease can readily be placed at your disposal, and the testimony of ministers of the gospel of all shades of religious opinions can be obtained to witness as to the elevating and uplifting influence on thousands of lives which were previously being wasted in various ways. From the virtuous point of view, it can well be claimed that the man who wishes to be a successful bird breeder has absolutely no time, and very often no money, to waste in drunken revels or other forms of riotous living, and if patience and perseverance have a right to be classed amongst the virtues, then, of all men, Canary breeders have unlimited scope and unusual and continuous demand for the exercise of these, without which their attempts are foredoomed to failure.



You will pardon us, I am sure, if we refer as little as possible to the philanthropic side of our hobby, as it would savour too much of blowing our own trumpet, but it would require very little investigation indeed to prove that we bird breeders are ever ready to assist not only the unfortunate amongst our fellow-fanciers, but various deserving agencies outside our own sphere, and the committee from our ranks who held the last show on behalf of the Cinderella Club had the joy of handing over the sum of £15 to the funds of that deserving charity.

I think I have now said enough to prove our contention that, so far as Canary breeding is concerned, the Health Committee would be justified in modifying on our behalf the bye-law under which several of our fellow members are suffering under notice to quit their houses or their birds, or, at any rate, to give instructions that so long as the bird breeding is carried on under conditions which cannot be considered a menace to health or a nuisance in any way, the said bye-law shall not be enforced. I would not minimise in the least the degree of hardship which the enforcement of the bye-law would inflict upon the tenants at any time of the year, but the present is certainly the most inopportune of them all. The birds, if not already paired together for the breeding season, are certainly in readiness for that event, and only awaiting the necessary weather conditions, and to undergo the turmoil and upset of removal to entirely new quarters would undoubtedly spell disaster, with a consequent heavy loss to their owners.

Astounding Figures.

But probably above all the most serious aspect of the whole matter is the effect which the Health Committee's enforcement of this bye-law would have on bird breeding as a hobby in Bradford and possibly throughout the entire country. Should the edict go forth and be publicly proclaimed that the Bradford Health Committee had definitely forbidden the breeding of cage birds in their property, there is no reason to doubt that many well-meaning but mistaken landlords would consider it prudent to do the same, with the possible result that Canary breeding as a hobby would be gradually but none the less effectually destroyed. What the loss to Bradford trade alone would be in that event is not easy of estimation, but a few salient facts can be ascertained by easy calculation. We will suppose each breeder to have on an average all the year round no more than fifty birds. This means that the 1,000 breeders in Bradford will expend no less a sum than £2,500 per annum on white canary seed alone. A considerable sum in addition is spent on such seeds as rape, hemp, maw, linseed, etc. During the breeding and moulting season each breeder will be consuming from six to ten new laid eggs per week, at an estimated cost to the Bradford fanciers of from £500 to £800. For the same period no less than 24,000 loaves of bread would add something like £250 to the total. At the annual prize distribution more than £100 worth of goods purchased from Bradford tradesmen are distributed to the winners thereof, whilst at least another £100 per annum will be paid to the Bradford printers of handbooks, schedules, catalogues, etc., by the various societies. Many hundreds of pounds will be spent annually in Bradford for cages, nest pots, nest linings, and the various other requirements which go to furnish an up-to-date bird breeder's room.

These are the simple but truthful facts, gentlemen, upon which we base our contention that very serious thought should be given the matter before any harassing or unnecessary regulations are brought into force, the ultimate result of which cannot be foreseen, except so far as to make it tolerably certain that no good would be done, but great harm, injustice and loss all round might reasonably be expected to result.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Annual General Meeting.

A Council meeting of the Yorkshire Union was held on March 26th, Mr. R. Halliday (President) in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were passed as read. Mr. F. Hammond, who with the secretary, was appointed to approach the Health Committee with regard to the notices that had been served on fanciers residing in Corporation houses, gave a report of the way the deputation had fared, and in doing so read a special report which he himself had prepared to read before the Health Committee, in order that they should the better understand the nature of the case. I feel sure I can safely say that all fanciers, and the Yorkshire Union as a body, are deeply grateful to Mr. Hammond for the pains he took in preparing this splendid report to place before them, and it is to be hoped the effort will meet with success. As yet the Health Committee have come to no definite conclusion in the matter, although the notices have been removed for the present; but I sincerely trust the efforts that the deputation put forward will have satisfactory results.

The Shows and Judges.

The judges were balloted for the Union shows, with the following results:—

October 1st.—City of Bradford O.S., Mr. J. Rohson.

October 8th.—Shipley O.S., Mr. W. Cruise.

October 15th.—Laisterdyke B.F.A., Mr. A. Hirst.

October 22.—Bradford West C.B.A., Mr. J. N. Harrison.

October 29th.—Huddersfield O.S., Mr. H. W. Walsh

November 5th.—Manningham C.B.A., Mr. J. Broadley.

November 12th.—Eccleshill C.B.A., Mr. J. Wilcock.

November 19th.—Great Horton O.S., Mr. H. W. Battye.

November 26th.—Windhill, Shipley, Mr. P. Mason.

December 3rd.—Brighouse C.B.S., Mr. J. Hartley.

December 10th.—Halifax O.S., Mr. T. Bennett.

December 17th.—Bradford East O.S., Mr. F. Armstrong.

December 31st.—Great Horton "Good Intent," Mr. W. A. Cowgill.

January 7th.—Queensbury C.B.S., Mr. H. Sutcliffe.

January 14th.—Sandy Lane and Dis. C.B.A., Mr. J. C. Barnes.

January 21st.—Skelmanthorpe C.B.A., Mr. C. A. House.

These selections, of course, are subject to the judges appointed accepting the engagements.

The balance-sheet for the past year was submitted, and showed a substantial balance on the year's working. The same was accepted with satisfaction. Messrs. F. Armstrong and W. Holroyd, the auditors, gave their report, as to finding the books in excellent condition, and complimented the officials on the progress made during the past year.

The Secretary gave his report on the business that had been transacted during the year, and alluded to the working agreement that had been arranged between the Yorkshire Union, the Cage Bird Union, and the London Federation, hoping that the step which the Y.U. had taken was one in the right direction and one which would eventually lead the three bodies concerned to recognise each other's efforts, as an essential factor, for the well-being of the Fancy in general.

The membership of the Union is now larger than at any previous time in its existence, and this will no doubt give every satisfaction to its officials, who have had a very trying year's work indeed. I desire to place on record my sincere thanks to these officials for the courtesy and help they have extended to me during my term of office, thereby making the work much lighter, and enabling me to deal with the business of the Union in a satisfactory manner. Mr. H. H. Towers was again re-elected treasurer by the Council, and Messrs. F. Hammond and W. Blakey as scrutineers for the next annual ballot. The Council also decided to make a grant of £10 to the secretary for his work during the past year. A vote of thanks to the retiring officers was proposed by Mr. A. Livesey, and seconded by Mr. G. R. Rushworth, to which the retiring president, Mr. R. Halliday, and the auditor, Mr. W. Holroyd, ably responded.

The following business was left over to the next meeting of the new Council:—Election of sub-committee; members' subscriptions for the next year; and correspondence relating to the holding of Cinderella Club's show. A lengthy discussion took place with regard to railway grievances, and it was finally decided that the secretary should write to the Cage Bird Union and London Federation stating that now was considered a favourable opportunity for a combined effort to be made in this respect. This brought the meeting to a close, the President thanking the delegates for their attendance.—H. HILL, Sec.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona- des of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insistedupon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post. In each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

Rings and Pedigree Books.

60,000 Sold Last Year.

Aluminium, round edges, embossed numbers, size of ring, with year on, or without, all made by myself, and not cheap, foreign rubbish; am maker to the Aberdeen University, supplying them by thousands for the smallest to the largest bird that migrates; being embossed, the numbers cannot fill with dirt, like all other makes of rings, which are sunk. "Cage Birds" says they are beautifully neat, small, and light, and easy to use; in fact, difficult to imagine anything better in marking rings. No closed rings made: 6d. doz., 2/6 half gross. Pedigree Books 6d. each. SAM RAKE, 31, Haley Hill, HALIFAX.

SUPERIOR ALUMINIUM RINGS

IDENTIFY ANY BIRD you may have bred by using these first-grade marking rings. "Cage Birds" says:—"One of the best samples we have seen. Very light and beautifully made, with no rough edges." Highly recommended by leading fanciers. 150 for 4/-, 100 for 2/9, 75 for 2/3, 50 for 1/6, 25 for 10d., post free, carefully packed.

Consecutively numbered with year. Supplied with or without flanges.

to purchasing birds from a distance is that the purchaser cannot see what he is getting before he purchases. This objection cannot arise when you purchase from me, as I send all birds on approval at my risk on the distinct understanding that if you are not in every way fully satisfied with the birds when you have received them, you only have to return them and back comes the whole of your money promptly and cheerfully without question or comment. I am originator of this approval system in connection with wild birds, and was first advertiser in this or any other paper to send all wild birds on approval throughout the year. I have a grand stock of Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, all been caged months, in perfect feather, full song, and steady as rocks, 3/- and 4/- each. Few extra special large square blazed birds for exhibition and muling, 5/- each; warranted genuine cage-moulted cocks, in full song, 5/- each; Siberian cock Goldfinches for muling, in full song, and perfectly steady, 5/- and 6/- each. Grand lot inland country caught cock Linnets, all big, bold birds, in free song, and perfectly steady, 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-, twelve 7/-. Fifty extra special larger cocks, been caged months, in full, free song and perfectly tame, 1/6, 2/-, and 2/6 each; cage-moulted cocks, in full song, 5/- each. Few very large German hand-reared hen Bullfinches, finger tame and ideal hybridisers, 5/- each; cock Siskins, 2/- and 3/- each; cock Twites and Redpolls, 1/- each; cock Chaffinches, warranted in song, and doing right song for London racing, 1/- and 1/6 each. Few very fast, suitable for pegging, 2/6 each. Splendid lot cock Greenfinches, all very steady, 6d. each, three 1/-; yellow cocks, 1/- each; hen Chaffinches, Greenfinches, Linnets, three 1/-; cock Skylarks, in song, 2/- each. Two-year-old hand-reared cock Lark, finger tame, absolutely loudest and freest singer extant, veritable street ringer, 25/-; another, not quite so loud, 15/-. These Larks will sing anywhere at any time, and must be heard to be believed, as they are absolutely a revelation. Hand-reared cock Song Thrush, in free song, 5/-. Contest-singing cages for Linnets, Goldfinches, or Chaffinches, 0d. each. Please note all birds are guaranteed properly on hard seed, well caged and steady, and all inland country caught birds in open season, not sea-coast spring flight birds which die of pairing fever soon as caged. See letter below: "5, Primrose-st., South Hylton, near Sunderland, March 26. Sir,—Thank you for such a grand Siberian Goldfinch. He is a picture, and credit to you in the way we received him. Yours, R. Markham."—"2, Camden-st., North Shields, March 27. Sir,—Please send two more 5/- Goldfinches. I have an hairdresser's shop, and my customers won't let me keep them. They say they are the best Finches they have ever seen about here. I have been a fancier 55 years, and can truly say they are the best Finches I ever had. Yours, D. Warwick."—"7, Main-st., High Blantyre, March 25. Sir,—Received British Goldie all right, and am well pleased with it, and also yourself for the way you have treated me in sending on a replace bird as good as this one. Yours, W. Wilson."—"67, Main-st., Newton Mearns, March 19. Sir,—Birds received last night, perfectly safe. Please receive my best thanks for same. They are just what I wanted. Yours, W. Montgomery."—"Brace-st., Dunkeld, March 18. Sir,—Bird arrived all safe, and doing well. I am well pleased. Many thanks. Yours, D. Wood." Don't forget when dealing with me you are bound to get fullest satisfaction or your money back. See Roller Canary column, and note name and address, as I have no connection whatever with any other advertiser.

The Verdict of Value.
Read it please, just as one specimen:—
Richmond, Yorks, April 2, 1910.—The pair of Crests arrived here safely, and I must say I am more than satisfied with such a grand pair, at such a low figure. I can honestly say I have paid as much as £3 for a pair of Crests, and then not equal to yours, as they are such a good size, and grand length of feather, which looks excellent quality. I wish I had sent to you years ago, as you would have saved me money, but you are sure of my future orders, and also many others, I hope, from this part of the country. Thanking you again for such a lovely pair, and also for prompt attention.—A. E. to W. Rudd.
W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, Norwich.

Yorkshire—Greens
Palace Winners.
Having acquired the Stocks of the following noted exhibitors—Mr. P. Clayton, Mr. C. Pickup, and Mr. R. E. Helliwell, I am now in a position to make such an offer as was never made before of the Highest Class Pairs, guaranteed unrelated, and every bird bred from winners. Several actual winners amongst them. Prices: Cocks, or hens, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/- to 100/-; matched pairs, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/- upwards. I invite you to come and see this marvellous collection yourself. If that is impossible, your order through the post will receive prompt and personal attention. For the winnings of these birds see the reports of all the leading shows during the past season. I have also a few grand Yorkshire Cinnamons from same strains at same prices. For other varieties see my advert on p. 299 Send for my Free Catalogue.

SUCH A BUDGET

of testimonials as I publish week after week must prove to you that my Leipzig Rollers are without rival in the Canary world, and a more remarkable fact is that I do not publish one fiftieth part of the testimonials I receive, but the whole of them are filed in their government stamped envelopes ready for inspection at any time. I still have large stock of genuine Leipzig Rollers on hand, all in full song day and glaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong, and flute notes, etc., etc., and guaranteed free from any harsh notes whatever, price 7/6 and 8/6 each. I have just received last consignment for this season of the special Leipzig bandmasters or schoolmasters. These are birds that have been kept back in Germany specially for breeding from and as tutors to their progeny, and all are in magnificent condition, full song, and ready for immediate breeding, price 10s. and 12/6 each. Hens, same strain, 3/- each. I also have few specially soft and mellow singing Seifert Roller cocks, in full song and fit to win contests immediately, price 15/- and 20/- each. Anyone wishing to improve their strain of birds cannot have a better opportunity, as these birds are of the purest blood Germany can boast of. I also have splendid lot loud free singing Hartz cocks in full, loud, free song at 5/6 each; Hartz hens, 2/- each, twelve 2/-; singing box cages, 1/-, 1/3, and 1/6 each; special Roller cabinet singing cages, with loose fronts and folding doors, 2/6 each; Roller breeding cages, 2/6, 3/-, and 3/6 each. See following letters, which are entirely unsolicited: "156, Third Avenue, Queen's Park, London. March 29th. The Leipzig Roller arrived safe and started singing 5 minutes after arrival. He is a splendid songster and far superior to the Roller I have been keeping.—Yours, J. Fletcher." "Swindon, Wilts. March 27th. Sir,—Received birds quite safe. The Leipzig Roller is a magnificent singer, something grand; beats all birds I ever heard for singing. I don't know how to thank you for sending such lovely birds. The hen is in splendid condition, and cock is at the Hotel singing splendidly.—Yours, R. Loveday." "56, Mary Street, Limerick. March 24th. Sir,—Birds arrived safe and we are delighted with them. Leipzig Roller cock is real good value and worth double the money.—Yours, W. McNamara." "School of Art, Keighley. March 24th. Sir,—Birds safely to hand. I am delighted with them. Leipzig Roller sang as soon as unpacked, and Goldie is a beauty.—Yours, E. Parratt." "221, Gorton Road, Reddish, Stockport. March 24th. Sir,—Leipzig Roller is an extra good singer. I have had birds from elsewhere, but they are nothing like this one.—Yours, T. Doyle." "407, Tonbridge Road, Maidstone. March 24th. Sir,—Leipzig Roller has given every satisfaction. He is really a pretty songster, quite out of the ordinary. Thanking you for genuine transaction.—Yours, S. Pearce." "Police Station, Kingstone, Hereford. March 24th. Sir,—I am well pleased with Hartz cock. He started singing 10 minutes after being put in cage. I must say it was very good of you to send me another bird in place of one which died without any comment whatever, and I should advise anyone wanting a good Roller should have one from you. They will get excellent value for money and, above all, a straightforward dealer.—Yours, P.C. Phillips." "19, Stephen Street, Consett. March 24th. Sir,—Received Roller all right and am highly satisfied. I've had both British birds and Rollers from you before, and have had the greatest satisfaction every time. Both Rollers are going on splendid.—Yours, R. Ornsby." "Forest Road, Southport. March 18th. Sir,—Roller has turned out a champion. We are highly pleased with him.—Yours, R. Ainscour." "74, High Street, Bideford. March 17th. Sir,—Many thanks for card and especially bird received to-day in good condition. I am at last pleased to have found an honourable firm to deal with. All the birds you have sent are very satisfactory and certainly good value for money.—Yours, R. Taylor." Please note: All Canaries are sent on full week's trial at my risk during whole time on receipt of cash or deposit system of CAGE BIRDS, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. As this is last lot of Rollers I shall have this season, intending purchasers will do well to order as quickly as possible to avoid disappointment. See British Bird column.

YORKSHIRES.

Read following testimonials.—St. Peter's, Sydney, Australia (received here April, 1910).—Yorkshires arrived quite safe, and give me every satisfaction. They will take some beating here on the show bench, and are marvellous value for the money. My future orders are yours.—Sid Conway to J. Taylor. Another from 11, Church Street, Toronto, Canada (received here April 2nd, 1910).—Pair of exhibition Yorkshires to hand, in grand condition, and are a couple of gems. I will recommend you to all I know that require high-class birds.—N. S. Gardiner to J. Taylor. Grand prize-bred yellow Yorkshire cocks, at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; buff cocks, 5/6, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each. All on full song, and seven inches long. Clears, ticked, variegated, cinnamon-marked, and clear pink-eyed; pairs carefully matched to breed winners at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair. Yellow and buff hens, full of quality, and ready to nest, at 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6 each. Colour-fed or natural colour, and all guaranteed cold-room bred and healthy. J. TAYLOR,

36, Aireville Road,

Frizinghall, Bradford.

OVER 200 PRIZES THIS SEASON

Pairs from 20/-; odd birds from 10/-; clears, cinnamon, green marked: Wm. Richmond, Mayfield-grove, Harrogate.

J. C. BARNES,

149, Duncombe-st., Sheffield. Few grand birds to spare; true position, very lengthy, feathered to perfection, and well on leg; correctly matched pairs, 30/ to 60/-; odd cocks, 10/- upwards; hens ditto; approval with pleasure; stamp reply; winners of numerous cups, medals, etc., at leading shows; all my winners guaranteed own breeding.

HENS. HENS. HENS.

These are the kind you require to breed champions, long, slim, upstanding birds, feathered to perfection, and showing that bit of breed so much admired in a true Yorkshire, position and type A1, clear, ticked, or marked, yellow or buff; also a few odd cocks, splendid stock birds, reasonable prices; approval; cash or deposit; stamp particulars: W. H. Shackleton, Melrose-house, Lyttoun-rd., Bradford.

H. H. TOWERS.

Owing to the commencement of the breeding season, I must now clear out my remaining stock. I have about 16 pairs which I will sell cheap, all guaranteed in good health and feather, and ready for nesting. I will let them go in one lot for the best offer, or will sell them separately, or in pairs; cocks 7/-, hens from 6/- each, or pairs from 12/6 per pair. This is a splendid opportunity for anyone desiring good, reliable stock who does not wish to pay a high price. My wins at the recent Crystal Palace show included Championship, Diploma, and Palace Medal, two 1sts and three 2nds, and the results of my exhibiting at all the other principal shows prove the excellency of my strain. Stamp for reply: Address, 8, Colne-rd., Glushurn, nr. Keighley.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

Intending being away from home part of present breeding season, for health reasons, have only put a few pairs for own home breeding. This arrangement necessitates my offering from 30 to 40 pairs, eminently suitable for breeding high-class clears, marked, cinnamon-marked Yorkshire varieties, also 20 surplus hens fit for immediate use, guaranteed untried and in breeding condition. To induce and effect a quick and immediate sale, to breeders desiring up-to-date style and quality, have decided to reduce prices fully one-third below season's list rather than offer in one lot to wholesale buyers for resale. Pairs previously offered at 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, to 40/-, reduced to 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, to 25/- respectively; surplus hens from 4/-, 5/-, 6/- 7/6, to 10/-; few young promising young cocks, suitable for next season's shows, 20/-, 25/-, to 30/-; my past 30 years' experience in breeding and keeping Yorkshire varieties only is sufficient proof of inherent quality, without further comment. All cold-room bred, reared and kept; all approval, cash or deposit; price list post-free; Jonas Knight, Copy St., Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

YORKSHIRES.

Direct from Mr. Bates' 20 years' Crystal Palace strain; also Messrs. Bailey and Shackleton strains. Have a 100 beautiful birds for sale. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair. Any I send on approval and guaranteed to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself. Order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

'TIS GOOD.

It is good to know you have so many friends, and you know I have thousands, and still keep making more every day. All my customers are friends, and you will be as soon as you see the high quality of birds I supply. There is nothing better, few just as good, and none so cheap. All my customers bear testimony to the high quality of my birds. The following samples will convince you: 19, Edward-st., Burton-on-Trent, 1/4/'10.—Norwich hen arrived in good condition. I only wish I had sent to you at first. For quality and price, prompt dispatch, etc., you take the lead. I shall certainly send you more orders.—J. Emery. 52, Ellen's-view. --Received Norwich in perfect health and pink of condition. I wish I had dealt with you sooner, I should have saved money, and had more fairness than Mr. ——— gave me. The bird you sent is worth double price you charged. Your honesty and fair dealing is reliable.—J. Cawsen, Sherfield, English, Romser, 1/4/'10.—Bird arrived in good condition. I am pleased, for it is just the one I wanted. Thanks for such prompt attention.—G. Weller. I have thousands of similar letters of praise open for your inspection, and guarantee to give you the same satisfaction if entrusted with your orders. Note the following prices for sound, healthy, typical birds: Yorkshire cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; upstanding breeding hens, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6 each; matched breeding pairs, 9/6, 10/6, 12,6, 15/-, 20/-. All Canaries carriage paid to your door on 7 days' approval.

Miss E. L. Storey, Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster

"THAT GIVE SATISFACTION EVERYWHERE."

And for this reason they are absolutely the best value it is possible to obtain. You may pay far higher prices, but you cannot get better value than I can give you, for proof read following testimonial from 31, Byer Moor, Burnopfield, 3/4/10.—Mr. Dykes, I received the pair of birds in splendid condition—a perfect pair, and give every satisfaction, as all others have done. If I do not breed some good ones it will not be your fault. I had some good birds from Mr. ——, but have had far better from you. Again thank-you and wishing you the success you fully deserve.—Geo. Pryde to L. Dykes. Another from 316, Condercum Road, Benwell, Newcastle, 2/4/10.—Dear Sir,—The Canaries you sent are satisfactory in every way, and I have instructed Editor to forward the deposit to you, and shall be pleased to recommend any other friend to you who is in want of Canaries.—A. Saunders to L. Dykes.

I have still some clinking stock birds left, both cocks and hens, at prices to suit all pockets, and those wishing to secure some of the best blood in the Fancy, now is the opportunity, as I am desirous of clearing all except own breeders as early as possible. Champion, long, slim, leggy, Yorkshire cocks, any colour, at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Grand typical, racy hens, right sort to breed winners, and all anxious to nest, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each. Pairs properly matched to breed winners, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- pair; also four pairs selected for own use, but have rather more than I can find room for, at 40/-, 50/-, 60/-, 80/-; honestly worth double. All cocks guaranteed on full song and seven inches long—some over. All cold-room bred and kept, and in splendid condition. Travelling cages, with proper food for journey, 3d. extra. Any sent on full week's approval at my risk, on receipt of cash, or on deposit system. Easy payments arranged with genuine fanciers, and all orders dispatched same day as received.

See show reports at all leading shows during past season for results, having won over 200 cash prizes, 3 challenge cups, gold, silver, and bronze medals, and numerous other specials in keenest competitions. Price list with winning testimonials post free. Inspection invited at any time; state wants.

10,000 Fanciers

Wanted, to send for my Free Copyright Illustrated List of all Varieties of Canaries, and thereby select their requirements from the largest collection in the World. Absolute proof given of this statement by inspection.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

Does this in any way interest YOU ?

If it does; then you can have what you can not elsewhere obtain, i.e., you cannot get the same value for the self same prices. This I have demonstrated to thousands, and if you will give me the opportunity, I will prove it to you.

The Beginner's Pairs and Outfit.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only

5/- (Five Shillings).

SPECIAL AMATEUR PAIRS.

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

Travelling cages in all cases 3d. extra. Approval Deposit Cage Birds Rules, or upon receipt of cash.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

REMOVING.

As I am removing to larger and more up-to-date premises during the next few weeks, I am compelled to sell 20 pairs of my own stock birds, all young birds; 6 pairs of Norwich, bred from birds that have cost me £5 pair—I offer 3 pairs at 10/- pair; 2 pairs at £1; 1 pair at 30/-; 6 pairs of very fine Yorkshires at 15/- pair; 1 pair at 12/6; 12 pairs of real Seifert Rollers, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- pair; also a few fine odd hens. Send me word what you want and if I cannot match your birds up there will be no harm. All birds on full week's approval: Enoch Tams, Church-st., Longton, Staffs.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

PARROT AVIARIES, MORECAMBE.

Important to Purchasers of PARROTS.

PLEASE READ ONE OPINION FROM HUNDREDS:

"Luton, April 2nd, 1910. Received Parrot safely. I am perfectly satisfied. It is better than I expected to get. I can assure you if I can put in a good word for you to likely purchasers I shall do so.—J. Ward." Now, if you want a genuine Parrot write me, or a good pair of breeding Budgerigars.

BEWARE of the so-called "Grey-coloured Parrot." These have pink breasts and are Rose Cockatoos, and not Parrots at all. Their present wholesale price is about 4/- to 5/-. Send for my list, and "The Parrot Trick Exposed."

Club Reports.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE & DIS. C.B.S.

At the usual monthly meetiug held April 2nd there was a large turn-out of members. The members decided that the first feather show be held in July, and that J. Hands, Esq., be the judge. Five new members were proposed, so that everything tends to a record year for our society. We are also getting up-to-date staging ready for our annual show.—GEO. HAYVER, Sec.

WOODSIDE O.S.

The society held their quarterly meeting in the Northern Hotel, Aberdeen, on March 16th, when it was decided to hold their annual show on December 4th, 1910. Several specialist judges were nominated for the different classes, but have not been definitely settled on yet.—ALEX. THOMPSON, Sec.—(We note that Dec. 4th is a Sunday; possibly Dec. 3rd is meant.—ED.)

GUISBOROUGH (Yorks).

Grand Linuet singing contest will be held at Wear's Cafe, on April 9th. First bird will be hung at 3 p.m. prompt. Entrauce fee 1s., to be sent on or before date of contest. First prize 8s., second 4s. Judge, Mr. Deekon (Skinningrove). Grand Linnet contest was held at Wear's Cafe, April 2nd. Winning bird belonged to Mr. Blenkey (Lingdale), which gained 445 points. J. Lowe's bird was second with 249 points.—R. MAYS, Hon. Sec.

DERWENT VALLEY C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held at headquarters, Church Hall, Hamsterley, Mr. Barkas was in the chair, and there was a moderate attendance of members. Decided, to hold our first feather show on July 2nd and our annual open show on October 29th. Three new members were enrolled. Will secretaries please note that I have now taken over the duties of secretary, and all communications should be addressed to me at Railway Cottages, Westwood, Medomsley, R.S.O.?—J. LINDSAY, Sec.

HALIFAX O.S.

On April 2nd members and friends had the pleasure of listening to a very interesting and instructive lecture on the "Yorkshire Canary," given by Mr. Cundall (Halifax). I believe this was his first attempt at lecturing, and I hope we may have the pleasure of listening to many more from the same gentleman. Several questions were asked, and Mr. Cundall ably replied to them. Mr. Walsh proposed, and Mr. Lee seconded, that a hearty vote of thanks be given to the lecturer, which was carried unanimously. Mr. Cundall suitably replied. Four new members were made, which brought a very pleasant and instructive evening to a close.—H. WHITAKER, Asst. Sec.

NORTH MANCHESTER C.B.S.

Meeting held March 22nd, Mr. Clarke (President) in the chair. Mr. Coulson (Ardwick) gave a lecture on the Norwich Canary. The lecturer gave his method of selection, feeding, and preparation for the show bench, after which Messrs. Norris, Clarke, Jackson, Jones, Firth, and Vint asked questions which the lecturer answered in his usual clear style. Mr. Clarke proposed and Mr. Jackson seconded that the best thanks of the society be given to Mr. Coulson for his very able lecture. Mr. Coulson, in replying, said that if anyone had learned anything from his paper he was amply repaid for his trouble. Mr. Murphy was proposed as a new member.—JOHN DAVEY, Hon. Sec.

A Lecture on Breeding Pairs.

The lecture on breeding pairs which Mr. A. Malcolmson gave us on April 1st was a treat, and was listened to with the keenest interest by a large turnout of members and fanciers. Mr. Malcolmson said, in his opening remarks, that he was at a loss what to say, as this was his first attempt at lecturing, but he would give those present the benefit of his experience during the time he had been in the Fancy. Explaining the method of pairing up, he had brought two pairs and a young one with him, to give them an idea of what was wanted. He explained the good and bad points. He always liked to know the progeny of each bird, as he thought it always helped to give one a better chance to pair up well, as it was not always the best birds that threw the best youngsters. As to his method of feeding, he was a great believer in egg and sponge biscuits, the very best canary seed, plenty of clean water, dandelion heads, or a small piece of lettuce. He did not believe in dandelion leaves, as he thought it scoured the birds too much. Asked if he believed in giving young ones water when taken away from parents, he said yes; but he always put a piece of bread soaked in cold water between the wires, as the young could get plenty of moisture out of it, and it did not sour the same as milk. Asked what was the cause of so many young ones dying, he thought it was through the egg food getting scattered about the bottom of the cage and getting stale. The best plan, he said, is to clean out the bottom of the cage before putting in fresh food. Asked further what caused hens to sweat, he said he thought it was through fanciers giving too many tit-bits throughout the winter, and having hens too fat when the breeding season came on. Asked how he made up his egg food, he said he took three sponge biscuits to one egg, as with this method one did not need sugar, as there was plenty in the biscuits. This brought a most interesting lecture to a close. A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. Graham, seconded by Mr. Maxwell, to Mr. Malcolmson.—WM. PRIEST, Sec.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Usual monthly meeting, held on March 26th, at the Swan Hotel, Fountain Street, Manchester, Mr. T. Routledge chairman. A good number of members were in attendance, and two new members were elected. After the ordinary business a lengthy discussion took place respecting our next show. Eventually it was decided (subject to the hall being at liberty for our dates) that it be held at the Textile Hall, Bury, January 13th and 14th, 1911. Mr. Massey kindly promised to give a lecture (on the Roller Canary), at our next meeting. Will members and friends please attend? — ANDREW PERCIVAL, Hon. Sec.

MIDLAND ROLLER C.C.

Usual monthly meeting held March 31st, 25 members being present. It was decided to hold our open contest the same date as last year, viz., Nov. 3rd and 4th, which I shall be glad if secretaries and exhibitors will kindly note. Messrs. Bird and Harper brought a few birds for educating members on the various tours; this proved very interesting. After the business, the rest of the evening was spent in harmony, several members contributing songs and duets. Our next meeting will be held at headquarters April 82th, when Mr. Harper has promised to give us a paper on his method of breeding Rollers. —J. H. WILLOWS, Hon. Sec.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Committee meeting held at headquarters, the Feathers Hotel, Gt. Chapel-st., Westminster, March 21st. Present: Messrs. J. Robson (chairman), J. Dewhurst, C. Cooper, C. T. Maxwell, T. R. Trower, G. Crabb, G. Thurling, A. C. Askew, F. Wyse, and Messrs. Plumbridge and Carr. Minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. Letters were read from Messrs. Curry, Mortlock, Arrighi, Morgen, Longden, Page, and Hodgson. It was unanimously decided that the club's annual outing take place on Saturday, 28th May, and that we go in the neighbourhood of Effingham, Surrey. The morning party is to leave Waterloo by the 9.20 train, and the afternoon party by the 1.37 train to Effingham, each member to take his own ticket. A cordial invitation is extended to all members and friends of London societies. Mr. J. W. Bancroft (Swansea) was elected a member of the club. A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the meeting.—PLUMBRIDGE AND CARR, Hon. Secs.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held April 2nd, at headquarters, Mr. P. Whiteley in the chair. Owing to the unavoidable absence of the advertised lecturer (Mr. C. E. Hall), the Chairman called upon Mr. H. J. Mennard to give us an impromptu address on breeding and rearing. This proved very instructive, and caused much discussion, which was joined in by many members, including our old friend Mr. King, who also gave us a bit of his experience on the subject. The following four fanciers were elected members: Messrs. Whitehouse, Hartley, Middleton, and Marshall. The Secretary called the members' attention to the subject of our next meeting, viz., "Selecting, Moulting, and Exhibiting British Birds," by the well-known British expert, Mr. C. Hunt; and as the papers were in the hands of secretary he could promise them some really interesting and instructive matter, as in all Mr. Hunt's thirty years' experience this was the first paper he had written, and he deserved a good attendance of fanciers and friends for the amount of trouble such a paper must have taken him to prepare.—J. CHAMBERS, Hon. Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Annual meeting held March 17th. Mr. Jones presided over an exceptionally good attendance. Five new members were enrolled, viz., Mrs. L. Chester and Messrs. Perrin, Moss, Rutter and Merritt. The auditors, Messrs. Smith and Tonkin, presented the balance-sheet, which showed a loss of £10 on open show and £2 on the general account. This amount was subscribed for by the members present in order that the year might be commenced with a clean sheet. The whole of the old officers refused to again accept office in order that some of the other members might be induced to take a keener interest in the society. Mr. A. Shellam was appointed Chairman, Mr. S. F. Whetton vice-chairman, Mr. S. E. Tonkin treasurer, and Mr. J. W. Dummett secretary and show manager. The following were elected on the committee: Messrs. W. Sampson, E. Thorne, H. C. Smith, F. D. Jones, E. J. Banks, W. Wilson, F. P. Dymond, E. Thomas, H. J. Ford, S. F. Howard, and A. Maggs. A vote of thanks was accorded the retiring officers, and Mr. Jones responded. Messrs. Thorne and Sampson, on behalf of the new committee, expressed their thanks to the members and assured them of their determination to maintain the position of the society. It was resolved to hold the open show on November 30th and December 1st, and to appoint as judges Messrs. Payne and Battye. The date of the first feather show was fixed for July 6th, with Messrs. Jones, Banks and D. G. Lewis as judges. A discussion took place on the Cage Bird Union, and it was unanimously agreed that we withdraw from it, in conjunction with the other societies that have intimated their dissatisfaction with it. All correspondence intended for the society should now be addressed to Mr. Dummett, 34, Tudor Road, Cardiff. —W. SAMPSON (late Secretary).

SOUTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

Sixth annual general meeting, held at the "Feathers" Hotel, Great Chapel Street, Westminster, on March 23rd, Mr. R. L. Crisp presiding over a very good attendance. The minutes of the last annual meeting were signed, and the balance sheet approved. The president presented the various specials to the respective winners present. Messrs. J. W. Ramsden and F. Easterling also presented the specials so generously given by them to the winners, and received a very hearty vote of thanks. Mr. J. W. Ramsden has very kindly offered similar specials for competition this coming season; Mr. J. Barton, 10s. 6d. to the runner-up of the cup; and Mr. G. J. Warley a guinea cup. Votes of thanks were accorded the president, vice-presidents, committee, auditors, scrutineer, and the secretary, for their services during the year. The result of ballot for officers for the ensuing year was as follows: President, Mr. R. L. Crisp; vice-presidents, Messrs. W. G. Elsmore, J. Robson, A. E. Pattrick, and F. Easterling; committee (London), Messrs. J. W. Ramsden, C. W. Mabey, H. Peverall, H. E. Tringham, J. Tyson, G. J. Warley; (Provincial), Messrs. H. Knight, H. Smith, Capt. Fellows, H. E. Parrott, F. J. Gibbs, R. A. Hudspeth; auditors, Messrs. Males and Tringham; treasurer, Mr. R. L. Crisp; secretary, J. W. Rennie. Sixty-two voting papers were returned. Mr. J. Robson very kindly consented to give a lecture on the Yorkshire Canary. This he gave with his usual ability and adeptness, explaining the various bad faults, and also the points which go to make up a good bird. He invited questions, and several members availed themselves of this opportunity. A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Robson, and with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Crisp for presiding, the meeting terminated.—J. W. RENNIE, Hon. Sec.

WARRINGTON C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held March 31st, Mr. F. W. Walters presiding. Prize money and specials for table show were distributed, everyone expressing his gratification at the quality of the specials given by the donors. Mr. J. Leech gave his paper on the Linnet, which proved very interesting. The lecturer explained his methods of selection of the fresh-caught specimen; how to meat them off and moult them out to make show birds. We were sorry so many of the British bird fanciers were absent. Mr. W. R. Knowles was called upon to give his paper on the rearing of Canaries. This subject was very opportune, and was listened to with marked interest. Mr. Knowles has experimented more than the average fancier with the different foods, etc., and has a wealth of knowledge to impart. The paper was rounded off by a good discussion, which lasted till close on eleven o'clock. After recording a hearty vote of thanks to Messrs. Leech and Knowles, a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close.—C. DUKES, Hon. Sec.

YORKSHIRE C.S. OF IRELAND.

Meeting held at Douglas Hotel on 30th March, Mr. T. R. Fry in the chair. Present: Messrs. Rooney, Lynch, Sheridan, Furley, Birse, Gillin, Callaghan, Stewart, Holley, and the Hon. Sec. The election of judge for the forthcoming show, November 3rd and 4th took place. Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot) was duly elected. A proposition was brought forward by the Council and passed, viz., "That any person applying for close rings must be a member (or intending member) of the society"; passed. It was also decided that runner-up medals be given in connection with the senior and junior cups. Mr. Sheridan was elected to judge the Yorkshires at young bird show the first week of July, and Mr. Fry the Norwich and other classes. Four new members were elected, viz., Messrs. Gaskin, Keating, McEnteggart (Dundalk), and P. Cullen (Dublin). A vote of condolence to Messrs. Devins and Mulligan on the recent death of Mr. Devins's mother, was passed in silence, all present standing. A lecture will be held on 11th April, in the Grande Hotel, Sackville-st.; all interested in the hobby are invited.—D. CARROLL, Hon. Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

Annual general meeting held on March 31st at Oldham Hall, Oldham Street, Liverpool, Mr. J. W. Metcalfe in the chair. The minutes of the February meeting having been duly confirmed, the balance-sheet for 1909 was presented, and after a few explanations, was passed unanimously. Messrs. Aston and Atherton were elected members, and Messrs. H. Amos and W. G. Smith nominated. Notices of motion: Nos. 1 and 4 lost; 2 and 3 carried. It was decided to promote a draw to provide cash specials for the ensuing season. Patronage. Classification same as last year, i.e., selfs and fouls alternately with cocks and hens. All applications must be in the secretary's hands not later than July 16th. Patronage will not be granted to any society offering less than four money prizes, nor to mixed shows. The following propositions were carried:—"That no member winning either cup or medal in future shall take any other season's specials"; "That all points scored by novices shall count for all novice specials, according to the number of prizes offered at the different shows." The following officers were elected:—Patrons, Right Hon. Col. Seely, M.P., W. W. Rutherford, Esq., M.P., J. S. Harmood Banner, Esq., M.P., W. Muirhead, Esq., J.P., C.C., John Henrickson, Esq., G. R. Johnson, Esq.; president, John Walker, Esq.; vice-presidents, Messrs. Brennan, Bazley, Critchley, Creber, Clayton-Dean, Denton, Francis, Freestone, Helliwell, Harrison, Hickson, Jones, Dr. Martin, T. Pilling, J. Pilling, Pickup, Pyke, Richmond, Simpson, Vernon, Wright, W. Walker; chairman, Mr. J. W. Metcalfe; vice-chairman, Mr. A. Thompson; treasurer, Mr. J. H. Isaacs; assistant-secretary, Mr. G. Western; auditors, Messrs. Ed. Lawson and J. Walker; committee, Messrs. J. Abbott, R. Atherton, Deacon, Hales, Nimmo, Rowlands, and Wardale; secretary, Geo. Green, 36, Lord Nelson Street, Liverpool. Members are requested to pay their annual subscriptions as early as possible. There are 120 members at present, but we should welcome nominations from all parts of the country. Subscriptions are invited towards providing the championship cups, four of which we are hoping to again offer for competition this year, all the cups having been won outright last season. Will secretaries and members kindly note change of secretaryship?—GEO. GREEN, Sec.

SCOTTISH CREST CLUB.

Annual general meeting held in Glasgow on March 20, with a fair attendance of members. The president, Mr. Adamson, took the opportunity of expressing sympathy with the bereaved widow and family of our late member, Mr. Geo. McPhail, and his sorrow for the loss the club had sustained. The minutes of previous meeting were read, and a hot discussion took place on the way the medals had been allocated, which was considered a breach of the rules. Mr. Young moved, and Mr. C. Campbell seconded the adoption of the minutes if that part be deleted, which reads "one member one medal"; which was carried. Mr. Kirkwood objected to the medals being awarded to winners as stated in the balance-sheet, seeing it was against the rules. Mr. Noble moved that the medals be awarded to winners as arranged; this was seconded by Mr. McLay, and carried. The silver medals competed for at the various shows were presented to winners by Mr. Campbell: City of Glasgow, J. Cram; Perth, J. Noble; G. and W. of Scotland, J. McLay; Kilmarnock, G. F. Adamson; Dundee, Wm. Cairns and Geo. Mackie; Scottish National, A. C. Macdonald; Paisley, Wm. Paul. Gold medals for best young Crest: G. F. Adamson, Crest-bred; Robt. Whitton; ditto, for most points for season 1909, John Noble. The balance-sheet was gone over, which shows a deficit of 2s. 4d., which was vouched for by the auditors. Mr. Paul drew the attention of the meeting to the omission of a special given by Mr. T. Sharp (Uphall), appearing on the special list, which was admitted an oversight on the part of secretary. Mr. Buchanan moved the acceptance of the balance-sheet, seconded by Mr. Young, and its acceptance was unanimous. A medal was offered by Mr. Young to the member who gets most new members for ensuing year; which was accepted. Also a gold medal for best Crest belonging to a novice was offered by Mr. Campbell, and a similar offer for best Crest-bred by Mr. McLay; both were accepted. A motion to revise the rules by Mr. Young was carried. The disqualification of a Crest hen for alleged faking at the Scottish National Show belonging to Mr. McLay was brought up, and he was asked to give an explanation. He said he was dressing the bird's crest with a silk "hankie" when he accidently broke a quill in the crest which started to bleed; he tried to stop it by rubbing it with a lead pencil. It turned out to be a copying-ink pencil, and the blood not being stopped carried the colour on to the other feathers after the bird had been staged; which caused the disqualification. Some of the members were inclined to sympathise with Mr. McLay, as she was a good bird. But Mr. Young moved that a vote of censure be passed on Mr. McLay for his folly, seconded by Mr. Campbell, and carried. Mr. D. Anthony (Uphall) was admitted to membership. A voluntary subscription was collected to carry on the club's business, and the secretary was instructed to issue the voting papers at the earliest moment. Some applications for club's patronage were forward, but were held over for the committee to deal with. This being all the business, a vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—ALLAN CHALMERS, Hon. Sec., 27, Hillhead, Kirkintilloch.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held at 6, The Broadway, on April 4th. Mr. W. H. Stoakley presided, and there was a good attendance of some 40 members. One new member was elected and there were three nominations. Messrs. Robson and Mason agreed to judge at the young bird and annual shows. The auditors, Messrs. Dixon and Wright, reported they had duly audited the accounts, and had found everything in admirable order. They congratulated the hon. secretary, Mr. H. Smith, on the excellent manner in which he had kept the accounts. Some little discussion took place as to whether the Society should continue its membership of the Cage Bird Union, and in the end it was decided to adjourn the matter to the May meeting. A judging competition of Yorkshire Canaries was then held, Mr. Peveral kindly acting as final judge. The points gained were as follows:—G. Griffiths 15, T. Brown and J. Carson 12 each, A. J. Shipton, E. W. Dell, and G. Beeney 10 each, A. Hare 8, G. W. Baker and A. H. Dyke 7 each, F. W. Owen, H. Dixon, L. Owen and Mrs. Whittome 6 each, F. J. Randall 5, P. Rorke 4, Mrs. M. E. Gill 2, Mrs. Owen and G. J. Warley 1 each, F. Whiting, E. J. Whittome, F. P. Found, and another member nil.

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE (Hand-in-Hand) C.B.S.

Annual meeting held on March 22nd, the President (Mr. A. Burrows) in the chair. Messrs. A. A. Bretenfield and J. Fisher, the two auditors, presented the balance-sheet for the past year, which showed the society to be in a most satisfactory condition, also leaving a good balance on the right side after all accounts had been paid. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Mr. W. E. Allen, president; Mr. J. Fisher, vice-president; Mr. J. Nason, treasurer; Mr. A. W. Law, secretary; Mr. W. E. Allen, collector; committee, Messrs. W. Munday, W. Stockwin, H. Baron, W. Jeyes, W. Tabor. The headquarters for a number of years past has been Mr. J. Nason's "The Forester's Arms," and with all due respect to our "old friend," it was thought advisable by the majority of the members that we should give another member a turn for the ensuing year. And upon the vote being taken it was decided to remove the society to Mr. A. E. Dunkley's "The Old House at Home," Wellingboro' Road, Northampton. A hearty vote of thanks was given all the officers for the past year for the manner in which they had carried out the work of the society. Mr. Summers, of Earl's Barton, was duly elected a member, this bringing a most interesting meeting to a close.—A. W. LAW, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Annual general meting held on April 2nd in the Fawcett-street Cafe. There was a moderate attendance, about one-third of the total membership being present, Mr. J. Farrar occupying the chair. A good deal of correspondence was placed before the members. This having been satisfactorily dealt with, the auditors gave their report, Mr. W. F. Swan stating that everything had been found quite correct, and in first-class order. The two auditors having been thanked for their services, the Secretary gave his report, giving in detail the working of the society, both financially and otherwise, during the past season. The report was unanimously adopted, and Mr. W. F. Swan proposed and Mr. R. Haswell seconded, that the best thanks be accorded the Secretary for his report; which was carried unanimously. The next business was in respect to the Cage Bird Union, and Mr. W. Reid proposed that we withdraw from it, at the same time stating his reasons. This was seconded by Mr. A. Walker, who also supported Mr. Reid in his views. Mr. W. F. Swan moved an amendment that the matter be still left in abeyance, also giving his reasons, and Mr. C. Waters seconded. A somewhat protracted discussion took place, and upon its being put to the meeting the amendment was carried by a majority of one, one of the members refraining from voting, stating that the matter had no interest for him one way or the other. Mr. Reid then moved that the matter be definitely settled at our next meeting, and stated that the matter had been shelved long enough and that it was time a definite decision was arrived at. Mr. J. Machin seconded the proposition. Mr. W. F. Swan moved an amendment that the matter be left in abeyance for an indefinite period, stating that we had nothing to lose by doing so. Mr. Allison Elliott seconded, and on its being put the whole of the members present voted and the proposition was carried by a majority of two, so that whether we remain affiliated to the Union or not will be definitely decided upon at our next meeting on April 16th. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, C. E. Thompson, Esq.; Vice-Presidents, W. Hall, Esq., C. Grimshaw, Esq., G. Bell, Esq., J. Cobb, Esq., and J. Keenlyside, Esq; Chairman, Mr. J. Farrar; Vice-Chairman, Mr. W. F. Swan; Trustees, Messrs. J. Farrar and R. Armstrong; Committee, Messrs. W. F. Swan, A. Elliot, J. Riseborough, C. Waters, G. Davidson, J. Copeland, A. Walker, J. Machin, and R. Haswell; Assistant Secretary, Mr. J. Copeland; Hon. Secretary, W. Reid. The position of Treasurer was left open until next meeting. I would be very pleased if any fancier wishing to join us would communicate with me at 14, Plantation-road, Pallion, Sunderland.—W. REID, Hon. Sec.

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.
Post Free 7d.

A practical, up-to-date guide to Canary Breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby.

Contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing, and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, etc.

I have been appointed secretary of the Green Canary Association, writes Mr. Geo. Green, 36, Lord Nelson Street, Liverpool.

The committee of the Willington and Dis. C.B.F. and F.S. intend holding the 1st annual show of cage birds, etc., in the Parish Hall, on December 10th, writes Mr. George Carter, secretary, 21, Park View, Willington, Durham. All particulars can be had on application to me.

Our annual open show, writes Mr. R. Roll, secretary of the Norwich Alliance All England C.B.A., will be held in the Corn Hall, Norwich, on October 7th and 8th, with Messrs. J. Robson, W. E. Greeves, and J. Stark as judges. Our classification will be a very liberal one, and we hope to have the support of the Fancy.

We would draw our readers' attention to Mr. Harry Barker's advertisement of floral bargains on another page, and remind them that the season for planting is now in full swing. Not only is he a nurseryman in a very large way, but he also does an expensive seed business, and supplies everything required for the garden. Mr. Barker's general catalogue is well worth applying for to 12, Whittlesford Nurseries, near Cambridge, mentioning CAGE BIRDS when writing to him.

The following gentlemen have kindly agreed to judge at our next annual show on December 17th, writes Mr. McLaren, secretary of the Broxburn and Dis. C.B.S.: Mr. R. Menzies (Edinburgh), for Scotch Fancy; Mr. J. Hamilton (Eskbank), for Border Fancy; Mr. A. Chalmers (Kirkintilloch), for Norwich; Messrs. R. Bald (Bathgate) and L. J. Arrighi (Edinburgh), for Mules, Hybrids, and British.

Twitterings.

The Tonbridge and Dis. F.A. 4th open show takes place on November 29th and 30th, writes Mr. P. Stonestreet, the secretary.

Cage-makers and manufacturers are asked to send their wholesale lists of brass cages, fittings, etc., to Mr. H. T. Gibb, 19, Bond Street, Brighton.

My address, writes Mr. Alex. Donnelly, is now 70, Cheetham Road, Swinton, near Manchester, which I shall be glad if fanciers and secretaries will kindly note.

It may interest you to know that on Good Friday last a nest of fully fledged Starlings was found here under a thatched roof, writes Mr. T. Dodd (Newmarket).

I hear at the time of receiving an order for cages that a gentleman at Grimsby has already 36 young birds in flights, writes Mr. E. E. Pass (Hucknall Torkard). I thought perhaps readers would like to know of this good start.

Mr. H. W. Battye (Huddersfield) has been elected as judge for our open show on December 31st, writes Mr. R. Mays, hon. secretary of the Guisborough and Dis. "Priory" C.B.S.

We have engaged Mr. J. Wilcock (Eccleshill) to judge all varieties at our next members' show, to be held in the Town Hall on Boxing Day, December 26th, writes Mr. Wm. Vart, hon. secretary, Kendal and Dis. C.B.S.

Kindly notify that my present address is Longford Cottage, South Street, Greenhill Lane, Alfreton, where all correspondence for the Codnor Park Society should be sent, writes Mr. J. H. Mitchell, the hon. secretary.

Kindly note the change of secretary of the Morley and Dis. Cage Bird Society. In future all communications should be sent to me at 101, Glenfield, Bridge Street, Morley, near Leeds, writes Mr. A. Gledhill, the hon. secretary.

Mr. J. C. Barnes (Walkley, Sheffield), we hear, has been appointed judge at the following shows: Northampton, October 19th; Sheffield (Members'), October 22nd; Ilkeston, November 26th; Sandy Lane (Bradford), January 14th, 1911.

The Blackpool and Fylde C.B.F.S. draw is postponed until May 3rd, writes Mr. Jas. R. Crossley, the hon. secretary. Also we have engaged Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot) as judge for our First Feather show, to be held on June 25th.

We have been successful in securing the services of Messrs. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) and Chas. Houlton (St. Helens) to judge at our open cage bird show to be held on November 26th and 28th, writes Mr. Thos. Smith, hon. secretary, Ilkeston and Dis. O.S.

Could you assist me through CAGE BIRDS to find the name and address of a man who sent me a Goldfinch from the G.W.R. Bridgwater Station on March 22nd last? writes Mr. Thomas Walker (Queen's Hotel, Tirril, Penrith). I have written the police, also the stationmaster, who says the person who signed for bird put R. J. Matthews, but no address. I lost the name and address of sender. He has sent two postcards, but no name or address, and I want to send the cash.

In Charge of 42 Aviaries.

Mr. O. Millsum, of Swindon, whose wonderful collection of rare foreign birds has been one of the features of our shows for the past few seasons, is, we hear, leaving England for Brussels, where he is to take sole charge of 42 aviaries of foreign birds. His own stock, consisting of between 200 and 300 beautiful specimens will go with him. Mr. Millsum has been a bird fancier from boyhood, and attributes his success to careful study of the various species and their particular requirements. He is the only exhibitor who has shown the Hunstein Bird of Paradise, which won at the last Crystal Palace Show, and has been illustrated in CAGE BIRDS, along with the Stella Lory, another of this gentleman's unique exhibits.

The Cuckoo near Fleet Street.

The cry of the Cuckoo is heard by many people at the base of Ludgate Hill, only a stone's throw from the offices of CAGE BIRDS. Indeed, there are many Cuckoos. But very little search is required to reveal the fact that it is not the real bird, but London's latest toy—a potware little bird that can be hidden in the hand. By blowing at the tail and pressing a finger on a hole the two notes can be clearly produced. The hawkers, however, do not seem to know much about Cuckoos. The birds are in varying shades of brown. A hawker was asked the right colour for a Cuckoo. He answered: "The colour of the one you have in your hand—that's the colour of a Cuckoo." It was coffee-coloured. He was asked if he ever saw a Cuckoo. "Lots of 'em," he replied. "Where?" "In Ireland," he said, with some asperity.

PART ONE of the standard work on Hybrids.

BY

CHARLES HOULTON.

Published in Monthly Parts - - - SIXPENCE EACH.

Two Coloured and Two Art Plates with each part.

This is not a work whose excellence begins and ends with the superficial attractions of good paper and plenty of half-tone illustrations, but is a standard work, written by an acknowledged expert, and prepared for publication by experts. It has been designed not from the standpoint of attracting the penee of the general public, but as a soberly authoritative and carefully practical work, embodying in the simplest and most straightforward language all that there is to be known on this peculiarly difficult and scientific subject. It is not packed with French and Latin quotations, nor abstruse and formidable tables of figures which no one outside a University can understand. The author sets himself the more difficult task of helping every breeder of hybrids and every student of the many problems connected with hybrid breeding, by relating all his own experiences and collating in readable form all that is at present known on this most fascinating subject. There are no less than sixteen coloured plates. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual hybrid—not a pretty group suitable for a children's picture-book, but a plate that shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present-day type and general characteristics of modern hybrids. The successful fancier is nothing if not practical, and to achieve success in hybrid breeding it is necessary, above all things, to be practical. The practical man wants a practical book, not a picture book. It will, we feel sure, be generally conceded that CAGE BIRDS has produced in a dignified book on a difficult subject—a standard work of the highest merit and a fitting monumen of the hybrid breeder's art.

Part I. will be on sale at most of the leading bookstalls and newsagents, but we can send it to you post free for 6d. if you are unable to obtain it.

DO NOT MISS MR. NORMAN'S PLATES.

'CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London.

The balance-sheet of the recent pair show of the City and Suburban A.C.B. (sent us by the secretary, Mr. V. Wynn), reveals as the satisfactory result a profit of nine and threepence.

We hear that the polling for two guardians for the parish of Wapping has resulted in the election of Mr. J. D. Hamlyn, the well-known London naturalist and dealer. The poll was:—Alderman Barker 78, Mr. J. D. Hamlyn 78, both elected, Mr. Grundy 32.

OBITUARY.

Mr. W. MACMASTER (Fort William).

It is with the deepest regret, writes Mr. W. Simpson, hon. secretary, Fort William O.S., that I have to report the death of one of our oldest members in Mr. Wm. Macmaster. He was a keen Scotch fancier, and was never so happy as when he had one of his favourites to show his friends. He was laid to rest in Killmallie Churchyard on April 1st. The members of the society sent a beautiful floral tribute, and much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Macmaster and family.

Mr. W. BAGSHAW (Tideswell).

It is with regret, writes Mr. A. Flint, secretary Tideswell C.B. Improvement Society, that I have to record the death of Mr. W. Bagshaw, who for many years has been secretary, and of late years joint secretary with me, for the Tideswell C.B.S. He passed away on March 23rd, and was interred on March 26th, leaving a wife and three little children. He was always greatly respected by our members for the honest straightforward way in which he carried out the business connected with the society. Most of the members attended at the funeral, carrying a beautiful wreath which was placed upon the grave. All who knew him will join in sympathy with Mrs. Bagshaw and family.

A Robin Attends Church.

Nature sent a chorister of her own into St. Paul's Church on Sunday morning, March 27th, says the "Bedford and County Record." During the Choral Celebration a Robin flew into the Church and perched on the cross of the chancel screen. From his elevated post he sang his sweet carol as a kind of obligato to the organ and the choir. He could be heard quite clearly by the whole congregation, though few knew where he was perched till a flutter of wings betrayed him. As the choir ceased he stopped too, only to break out again with renewed vigour, and this time with no hesitation as to his full right to take his share in the musical service. For the greater part of the service he held his own, sometimes flitting off to one of the south windows, and then returning to the Cross; but at last he flew out by an open window and left the church the poorer for his going. In the evening, Dr. Harding returned the compliment by playing "Hush, ye pretty warbling choir" from "Acis and Galatea."

I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for over two years, and have received many benefits from the information it contains concerning bird life. I wish it very success.—H. CALLUM (Birtley).

The committee of the Southend and S.C.O.S. have, in addition to purchasing the silver challenge cup, competed for and won by Mr. L. Parish, at their late show, purchased another cup to be competed for by novices at their next annual show. The cups will be known as the "Champion Challenge Cup" and the "Novice Challenge Cup." Both are solid silver, and are worth respectively £6 6s. and £3 3s. The radius for membership is open, and I shall be pleased to hear from any fancier wishing to join.—W. FRANKS, hon. secretary, Eric Cottage, Tintern Avenue, Westcliff-on-Sea.

The S.N.P.C. Patronage.

Will show managers wishing for the patronage of the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club apply to the secretary, sending with application last show's schedule? We shall want seven classes in champion and six classes in novice; these classes must not include natural colour class, and must be in the open section of the club's show. The clubs need not belong to the Cage Bird Union, but the show managers will have to abide by the rules of the S.N.P.C. —F. S. MATTHES, hon secretary.

An Amiable Magpie.

One of the attractions just now in that London beauty spot Kensington Gardens is a Magpie of very handsome plumage and great friendliness of manner, who is usually to be found about the Kensington end of the Broad Walk. He is a most amiable fellow, and feeds freely from the hands of such as offer him luncheon. Specially favoured persons he will permit to stroke him; but there are not many such. Presumably he has escaped from captivity from somewhere close by.

SOMETHING LIKE BUSINESS.

I am pleased to inform you that I have had a very large number of orders for my Wild Seed Mixture advertised in your paper, "Cage Birds," of last week. Yours is a grand paper to advertise in.—WM. ALLISON (Aberdeen).

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement in "Cage Birds," as I had over 30 applicants too many to reply to personally. This speaks volumes for "Cage Birds" as an advertising medium.—J. ROGERS (Waltham Abbey).

Owing to having such a large number of answers to my advertisement in "Cage Birds," I find it impossible to thank the applicants individually, so may I ask you to thank them for me?—HERBERT CHAMBERLAIN (Barton-on-Humber).

Kindly thank all applicants re cycle advertised in "Cage Birds.," I cannot answer them all. I could have sold it three times over. I can always find a sale for my birds, or anything else in our valuable C.B.—J. EGGINTON (Sheffield).

From my small advertisement in "Cage Birds," I have had a fine sale for my champion mixed seeds. I have had repeat orders from Ireland, and am very well satisfied with the result of my small outlay.—F. EASTERLING (Battersea, London, S.W.).

Allow me to thank all who have written me re my advertisement in "Cage Birds." They are too numerous for me to answer individually. I sold out by the first post Saturday morning, but still letters keep arriving.—H. THOMPSON (London, W.).

Kindly thank all who wrote me re my birds for exchange, in the columns of "Cage Birds." If I answered them all, it would have been cheaper for me to have given the birds away. Letters came by scores to me.—R. WHITMORE (London, S.W.).

I must speak in praise of "Cage Birds" as a grand advertising medium. I have had several advertisements in your paper, and have always received satisfaction, and have always had fair bargains. I wish "C.B." much success.—R. BOOTH (Ardwick).

Kindly thank the many readers who have answered my advertisement in last week's paper; they have been so numerous that it would be impossible to answer them without incurring considerable expense. I wish "Cage Birds" every success.—H .A. COLLYER (Slough).

The last time I advertised in "Cage Birds," I had 43 answers re my ten Bullfinches. "Cage Birds" is the best paper for any man. I call it "The Poor Man's Friend." I have had it weekly now for four years, and it gets better every week.—A. STEVENSON (Edithweston).

Kindly mention that I sold all the hen Canaries on the Saturday after the Friday's issue of "Cage Birds," in which my advertisement appeared. I cannot possibly answer all the replies. C.B. is splendid for advertisements, and other matters too.—HENRY SMITH (Wallington).

The British birds I advertised in "Cage Birds" were all sold. I had over 60 applicants for the same, and could not reply to all. Therefore I could not send them as entered to the Crystal Palace Show. This speaks well for "Cage Birds."—JAMES NICHOLS (Blackburn).

For lightning results from advertisements, "Cage Birds" is the paper. The Woodlark I advertised the 2nd April was gone by 12 o'clock. I had a telegram for the bird, but he was sold. 'Cage Birds" is the proper paper for the fancier.—G. TURNEY (East Ham).

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement re Goldfinch Mules for Norwich Canaries, I cannot reply to all, there being so many. It is the first time I have advertised in "Cage Birds," but not the last I am sure. I wish "Cage Birds" every success.—B. MOORES (Manchester).

I had 47 letters in reply to my last advertisement in "Cage Birds." I may say, too, I had orders from all parts of the country, and I had so many applications, in fact, that it was quite impossible for me to answer all of them. "Cage Birds" is the best paper for the disposal or purchase of birds, and should be in the hands of all bird breeders.—T. J. REYNOLDS (near Helston).

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement for cycle in "Cage Birds." I am unable to reply to all. I have made a satisfactory exchange. I have never failed to have replies to anything I have advertised in "Cage Birds." Wishing the good old paper every success.—J. B. THOMPSON (Windermere).

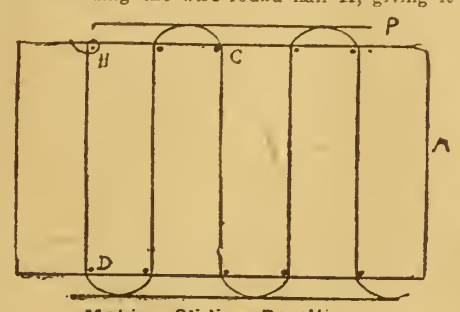
Thanks for the splendid results of my advertisement in "Cage Birds" of 19th February. I have sold out everything except one bird, which I shall keep. Mr. H. S. Davies (Llandilo) was the buyer of the "King" Parrakeet, a big winner. I shall still continue to take "Cage Birds." I think the answer to correspondents very good.—W. A. BENNETT (Coventry).

Kindly thank all enquirers about the yellow Norwich cocks which I advertised in "Cage Birds." All letters containing stamp have been answered, and it is impossible for me to answer so many. They came from all over England, Scotland, and Wales, so it speaks well for the great circulation of your paper.—E. WEEDALL (Winsford).

Please stop all my advertisements in "Cage Birds. I have about cleared out. I may say I have had good sales, having sent birds to all parts of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, and have also had enquiries from the States; but I have refused orders from the latter place on account of my not having time to attend them.—SAMUEL DEAN (Gt. Horton).

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement in "Cage Birds" re pom. puppy. I had so many replies for him, I was unable to answer any except those who sent a stamp for reply. I may say that I have disposed of him. I wish your valuable paper, "Cage Birds," every success.—ALF. COOPER (Carisbrooke).

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement in "Cage Birds" re my prize Borders, for a yellow Norwich hen, or sale. I sold them to a man in Birmingham, and he was well pleased with them. I had about fourteen letters and post cards for same, and I could not answer all. I have been a reader of "Cage Birds" since the first issue. I will always advertise in "Cage Birds" when I have birds for sale.—S. WILLIAMS.



I thank the advertisement columns of "Cage Birds." It is now quite two years since I last had any need to advertise Lizards in your valuable paper, and that has enabled me to send out consignments (during the last few weeks) to France. It shows the value of "Cage Birds" as an advertising medium, when my name and address were taken out of an old copy in France two years after its publication. Therefore, if fanciere have surplus stock, I recommend them to advertise in "Cage Birds. It is well worth the little fee charged. I wish "Cage Birds" every success in the future.—C. E. FISHER (Glossop).

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds." 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Mopy, but Eats Well.

K. Coxall.—The bird would undoubtedly do better in a room where no fire is kept, though it must be quite free from draughts and damp, and should not be exceptionally cold. Choose a spell of nice, mild weather, and remove it to such a room. Hang it in a nice bright place, but not near a window. Keep cage floor strewn with clean coarse gritty sand, and see the perches are of proper size, so that the bird may grip them comfortably. If the claws are overgrown, wash the feet clean so that you are able to see the blood vein down centre of claw, and snip off the overgrowth just short of the end of the vein. Feed on two parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple, and for the next fortnight give a scrap of bread soaked in milk, slightly dusted with soft sugar, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed, three times a week. Give a free supply of green food—dandelion and chickweed—daily. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. If the wheezy noise has not considerably improved by that time, give twenty drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil well shaken in the water every second day in the following week.

Shell-less Eggs.

Miss K. Lovegrove.—I could wish you had mentioned what green stuff you have been giving this hen. If, by chance, you have been giving dandelion, or gave some for the first time on the Tuesday or Wednesday of last week, you should strictly avoid it for the remainder of the season—for this hen, at least—and give chickweed, groundsel, or watercress instead. If you have other birds commencing to sit, give the perfect egg laid by this hen to one of the others, and separate this hen for two or three weeks. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape, and every second day for the first week give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Limit the diet to this, and a spray of green stuff daily, for a week. For the next fortnight afterwards give a small teaspoonful of egg food every third day; a pinch of a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure, inga, sesame, and linseed every third day; and omit all extras save green stuff on the remaining days. Give green food daily. Keep a piece of cuttlefish in cage regularly. In the drinking water for the first week give six drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day, and twenty drops on the alternate days. After that give twenty drops of chemical food in the water every second day for another fortnight.

A Double.

F. J. S. C.—(1) Am a trifle sceptical as to whether there is anything seriously wrong with the hen. Is she apparently paying attention to the cock when making the noise, and does she appear healthy at other times? If this is the case, I would not worry about her. You certainly ought not to have mated her unless she does seem healthy and vigorous. Your staple diet contains too much rape; reduce the proportion to one in four. Give a small teaspoonful of egg food with a third of a teaspoonful of gold of pleasure and sesame mixed in it every second day (this, of course, is for the pair, as you need not separate them), and on the alternate days half a teaspoonful of the seed mixture you name. Stop the sponge cake, and instead of the watercress give three or four leaves of dandelion daily. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards you may give twenty drops of whisky, and five each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, and ipecacuanha wine every second day for a week. (2) It is impossible to say whether the hen which ate all her eggs last year when she was not mated would repeat the performance this year when she had a mate until she has been tried. But a hen with such a bad history is scarcely worthy of trust. If a good specimen, and you are anxious to get young off her, use a nest with a false bottom, as illustrated several times in our pages, and thus save the eggs from her beak, and set them under a reliable pair of feeders.

Roller With Cold.

Henry Crowder.—Before attempting any treatment whatever, you should have endeavoured to remove the causes of the cold. Do this at once. See that the bird is in a nice equable place, perfectly free from draughts and foul air, and which is bright and well-ventilated. Next, reduce your dietary to the following: As staple diet give a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and maw, and every second day for a week give a small piece of bread soaked with milk, sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed strewn on top. Give a leaf of dandelion daily. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, and tincture of lobelia, every second day of a week, or until cold has disappeared.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

Dying after Leaving Parents.

G. E. F.—I cannot tell the cause without knowing how you fed and treated them. However, do not this season take the young away until you see they feed freely on the egg food, and are also able to get out the kernel of cracked hemp, by which time they can also with some effort manage rape seed and a little canary. Continue the supply of egg food for the first week after removal; give also a supply of cracked hemp, broken canary, and summer rape, whole. Withhold green food for the first week or two, except such things as the green seed stalks of plantain and shepherd's purse. After the first week gradually reduce the proportion of egg in the soft food, and as you see the youngsters cracking canary and rape more freely, reduce the quantity of egg food given, and also add whole canary seed, which should be made the staple, and gradually withdraw the crushed seed and add a small quantity of bread and milk twice each week. Keep cage floor and all food and water vessels scrupulously clean, and keep a regular supply of gritty sand on the floor. With this treatment the bird should not "go light," but if you find them falter, at once begin to give a little bread scalded in milk, and with three or four drops of cod liver oil emulsion dropped on, every second day for a week or so. If you think the birds consume too much water you might add a little solution of iron and quinine as you suggest to deter them, but if properly treated generally there is no necessity whatever for any such restrictions; neither is it a wise policy to commence dosing with drugs at such a tender age.

More Early Deaths.

Troubled.—The trouble is that there is something radically wrong with your management when you cannot get a youngster to survive two weeks. Your feeding does not seem very good, and in this case at least you mated the birds too early. You make no mention of canary seed as a portion of the diet. Surely you do not withhold it. This must be the mainstay of the diet. Give an unlimited supply of this, with a pinch of summer rape every second day and one of hemp whenever it turns exceptionally chilly, and a scrap of egg food once each week. Limit the diet to this whilst hens are sitting. When young are due to batch, give a small allowance of egg food, and continue giving this in small quantities two or three times a day for the first three days. Then begin to increase the quantity as the demands of the young increase, and add a little green food. Continue giving this from this time in small quantities, freshly gathered, if possible, twice a day. Give groundsel, chickweed, or watercress, but avoid dandelion for your birds. When the young are ten or twelve days old begin to give a supply of cracked hemp daily, in small quantity at first, and increase if necessary gradually. A supply of soaked rape may also be added after the first fortnight, especially if there is a large and voracious brood. Continue on these lines until the young are ready to be taken away, and for treatment from this stage see reply to "G. E. F."

Three Points.

A. M. J. (Cricklewood).—As you do not say how much egg food you have been giving the birds, I cannot venture to say whether they may have had too much. The first cock was certainly in a bad way, and I scarcely expect it has survived until now. It was probably a slight apoplectic seizure, and the gentian would have little or nothing to do with its origin, although no drug at all should be given without some real need. If he is still alive, feed him on plain canary seed, with a pinch of summer rape every second day, and a scrap of bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar and maw seed twice a week. Give a pinch of Epsom salts in the water every second day for a week, and a spray of chickweed daily. Do not try to breed with him again until quite well. Give the hen that has nested but not laid, in addition to a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape, half a teaspoonful of a mixture of hemp, inga, linseed, maw, and teazle in equal parts every second day, and on the alternate days half a teaspoonful (not more) of egg food sprinkled with gold of pleasure. In the drinking water dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a split pea daily for three days. The Norwich cock must have had the tail feathers broken off and the stumps left in. Wait until the hen has commenced to sit, and then catch him and examine. If you find my surmise correct, carefully withdraw the stumps at three "sittings," with an interval of a day between each. Take out four at each "sitting."

Not Singing, and Moulting.

H.H., Burnley.—You should first of all remove the bird to a box cage, and hang in a bright, comfortable position, quite free from any draught, and not necessarily in a very warm place, but where the temperature varies but little between day and night. Feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of hemp and a morsel of ripe banana. Continue this treatment for a month. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week. During the next week give 6 drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of tincture of steel every second day, and after this give 20 drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight. Give a little dandelion or chickweed daily. The bird will not sing until the moulting stops. If it does not begin in a reasonable time after the feathers cease dropping, write again and refer to this reply.

Brevities.

Deserting Eggs (S.T.).—This hen's behaviour now, coupled with her history last year, would be quite sufficient for me. It is very doubtful indeed whether she will ever act differently, and the best thing you can do is to discard her altogether, and replace her with a healthy and lusty young hen. The only way in which you could hope to get young of this ne'er-do-well would be to take away the eggs and give them to foster parents to hatch and rear, and as she is a cross-bred bird she can scarcely be worth that trouble.

Ventilating Aviary (Inquirer).—Sorry, but your present letter leaves me in the same position as the last. To know just the size of the room does not give one any idea as to how it can best be ventilated. Cannot you manage a rough sketch—it does not matter how crude it is, just to give me some idea of the shape and style of the structure, and showing the position of any existing windows, doors, and fireplace, and mark which side faces the sun at midday. Also say whether building is of bricks or wood.

Out of Song (Gwalia, Barry Dock).—Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Twice a week give a pinch of a mixture of hemp, inga, and teazle in equal parts, and every second day for the next fortnight a piece of bread the size of a hazel nut soaked in cold milk, drained, sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure strewn over it. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence and six drops of lemon juice every second day for a week, and six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second in the next week. Give a leaf of dandelion daily.

Wheezes Badly (Scotty).—Am afraid you will never do any good with the bird. Feed as advised to "Gwalia, Barry Dock," for a month. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week; the next week give the whisky, etc., mixture you have been giving two days in every three. In the third and fourth weeks repeat the same treatment in the same order. Keep the bird in a comfortable temperature, not necessarily very high, but let it be as free as possible from extreme fluctuations.

Hens Not Laying, etc. (Royal Dragoon).—You can only exercise the virtue of patience, and hope for the eggs to appear in due course. This may occur any time. If, however, the hen sits closely you might examine the nest to see whether she has already laid, and got the eggs hidden with nesting material. I have known hens do this. If the eggs are not there give a small teaspoonful of egg food every second day, and sprinkle with a pinch of a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure and sesame seed. On the alternate days give a half-teaspoonful of equal parts hemp, inga, and linseed. Give two leaves of dandelion daily. As regards the young dying, see reply to "G.E.F."

Large Abdomen (Ab. Ova.).—The cause, granting the appearance is of a pronounced and abnormal type, is due to imperfect development of the embryo, which may be owing to weak germs, or to too great cold during incubation. You can do nothing to cure it, but if the abnormality is only slight, there is just a chance Nature may remedy it before the youngster leaves the nest. As this was the first nest, and all the other eggs were clear, it is most likely that this was the result of a weak germ. It may not be repeated in the second nests. There is also the possibility of nothing abnormal being present. With only one youngster in a nest one sees its helplessness rather exaggerated for the first few days. Do not handle or interfere with newly-hatched young.

Abnormal Egg (I.G.M.).—Throw away the small egg and let the birds gradually come in condition again naturally and start afresh. The probability is they were not ready for mating when you put them together. Feed on a mixture of three parts canary and one part summer rape as staple. Every third day give a teaspoonful of egg, and on the intervening days give, alternately, a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga, and sesame, gold of pleasure, and maw. Give two leaves of dandelion daily. Continue this diet until the hen goes to nest again. For the next three days add six drops of syrup of buckthorn to the drinking water. It is not true that Roller hens are good for only one season—their period of usefulness is as extensive as any breed we have.

Lancashire Moulting (B. Hill).—I doubt whether you will do much good in breeding with her this year. See the cage is quite free from red mites, and the bird not troubled with grey lice. Keep her quite free from draughts and constant fluctuations of heat and cold, and keep her in a fairly comfortable position. Give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as staple diet. Every second day give a small teaspoonful of egg food, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and half a teaspoonful of hemp on the alternate days. Give two leaves of dandelion daily. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards 6 drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of tincture of steel every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give 20 drops of chemical food, continuing the latter on alternate days until the feathers have ceased dropping. Allow the bird to bathe two or three times a week on mild days.

Dropping Feathers (Puzzled A.E.).—This phenomenon, in your case anyway, is not the result of a disease, but the outcome of injudicious management. The position of the birds in the window, exposed to extremes of heat and cold, and probably draughts, is without doubt the sole cause. Move them further into the room, not too near the fire or ceiling, but in a bright, well ventilated position free from draughts and as equable as possible. Feed on a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as staple. Every second day for the next fortnight give each half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with 4 drops of sherry and 2 of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and a small pinch of maw scattered over it. On the alternate days give a similar quantity of hemp and a morsel of ripe banana. Give a leaf of dandelion daily. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days and after that 6 drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of tincture of steel every second day for a week, and 20 drops of chemical food every second day for another three weeks.

Diarrhœa (Anxious).—See reply to "J.R." for "Norwich with Diarrhœa," and treat your bird on the same lines.

Norwich Moulting (J. R.).—Keep the bird in as equable a temperature as possible, though not necessarily a high one. See that it is quite free from red mites, and feed and treat it the same as advised "H. H. Burnley."

Not Laying (F. F., Bindoff).—See reply to "Royal Dragoon," and feed and treat the birds as there advised. Let the birds remain together, do not interfere with their arrangements, and have patience for a while.

Is it Injurious? (Mignonette.)—No, there is not the slightest risk of harming the birds by having mignonette in the room where they are kept. In fact, there is no danger in giving the birds sprays of the plant when in bloom to pick over, when, as frequently happens, it is covered with aphides. The birds enjoy eating off the insects, and if they also eat portions of the plant it does not harm them.

Cause of Death (Lawrence).—It would be impossible to say with any degree of certainty what the bird died of without a postmortem. But I have scarcely a doubt at all about its being due to an attack of pneumonia, and suspect the attack coincided with one of the bitterly cold nights about that time. You should have given the eggs at once to another pair, or divided them between two other hens with small clutches.

Hustling (S. G.N.).—It was certainly a smart bit of work of your hen to build, and lay the first egg on the sixth day after being mated. She was in fine condition when mated, and if the cock was in as good condition there is nothing whatever to fear respecting the fertility of the eggs. The chances are greatly in favour of a good result, so I trust by the time this appears you will be the happy possessor of a fine clutch of thriving youngsters.

Removing Eggs (Wally).—If you cannot arrange for some steady, reliable hand to remove the eggs each morning before midday, so that they have to remain in the nest until night, I would certainly advise you not to remove them at all. There are many cases where certain hens, and also certain eggs, would not be adversely affected by remaining in the nest until night, but you cannot tell whether your hens and eggs are going to be of that type or not. Therefore, be on the safe side, and leave the eggs alone from the first.

Thin and Thick ("Novice").—See the position is not exposed to any serious fluctuations. If near a window move her to another position where it will be more equal and comfortable. Give plain Canary only as staple; every second day separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and teazle. On the alternate days give about the same quantity of egg food, with 4 drops of sherry and a pinch of a mixture of equal parts sesame and gold of pleasure seed mixed in it. Give two dandelion leaves daily. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of lemon juice every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and 4 of aromatic sulphuric acid.

Nibbling Feathers (Kit).—Satisfy yourself the bird is not troubled with grey lice. Give it a bath every three or four days, and add a few drops of quassia extract to it on alternate occasions. Give it a mealworm every second day for a week or two. Do this by crushing the head of the worm and pinning it on end of a perch. Omit the millet from the staple diet, and twice a week give a pinch of the mixed seed. A scrap of bread and milk lightly sprinkled with soft sugar once a week, with the daily supply of green food, will suffice to complete the dietary. You may add a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of lemon juice to its water for two days.

Feet Bitten Off ("Hairdresser").—These cases do sometimes happen, either through accident or vice on the part of the parent or parents. If the former, it may not occur again, and I would certainly advise you to try the hen again. Interfere as little as possible when she is about hatching next time; give a little green food from the first day, and if you notice her interfering with the young other than feeding and cleaning them, add also a mealworm now and again for a day or two. Offer it by crushing its head and pinning the worm on the end of a perch. Also next time when only one or two young are hatched leave one of the eggs, or place a dummy egg in the nest for the first week or so.

Not Laying (Chorlton).—I suspect you mated the birds before they were in proper condition for it. There is still a fair chance of things coming right in the end. Leave them together. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give a teaspoonful of egg food with a half teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure and sesame seed mixed in it. On the alternate days give a small teaspoonful of hemp and inga mixed in equal parts. Give three or four leaves of dandelion daily. Keep them on this diet for a month if necessary, or until the hen has laid a clutch of eggs. If there are no more signs of her doing this a month hence than now, replace her with another one which is ready to go to nest. Do not imagine this is the usual experience. Your friend must have been singularly unfortunate in his choice of birds.

Backward Norwich (Ffurdoow).—Your best plan is to get a young active cock to mate with the hen, as the one you have now will be useless for breeding for some weeks yet to come, even if he is of any use at all this year. Keep him in a good sized cage in a bright, well-ventilated position, but not draughty, and do not keep him too warm. Limit his seed supply to a small teaspoonful each day for a fortnight, but be careful not to overlook him for a day. Let the seed consist of equal parts canary and rape four days a week, and canary only on the other days. Give a liberal supply of green food daily. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and in the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. Then begin again and repeat the two weeks' treatment in same order.

Concerning a Shed (G. Dear).—I think you would be best advised to give up the idea of utilising this shed. Are the insects really earwigs or wood lice? I suspect the latter, and their presence in numbers would indicate a bad condition of the structure of the shed, and that the woodwork was decayed; and the dampness will not improve matters. If you use the shed, in addition to the alterations you propose, dust the floor liberally with carbolic disinfecting powder, put a good-sized ventilator—say, six or seven inches high and at least a foot in length—in the east and west ends, cover with perforated zinc, and lay down a second floor inside the shed raised eight or nine inches above the original floor. This will place the inner floor higher than the new ventilator, and allow a good current of air to circulate between the two floors, which should counteract the damp. You only give me the height of the place, so I cannot tell how many birds it would accommodate. Fair sized, straggling branches would be quite efficient perches.

In the Window (Green).—See reply to "Puzzled A.E." and act accordingly, as you are in the same boat and have made the same error. Feed and treat your bird the same, but as a first step remove it from the window, or no amount of treatment will avail. During the first week, when giving the gentian and steel, give also on the alternate days 20 drops of whisky and 5 each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, and ipecacuanha wine.

Breathes Fast (Short Winded).—It is probably nervousness that makes the hen breathe as you describe when you go near her. If she is bright and active generally, I see no reason why she should not be good for breeding this year. You may treat her for a week as advised to "H. S. B." as a precautionary measure. More than that I hardly think will be needed.

Removing Cock (C. Collins, Sheffield).—No, as you have not removed the cock before now, do not remove him now the young are hatched, unless the hen should cease feeding the young when a few days old, in which case you might try the effect of removing him. But if they feed all right let things go as they are. If you want to remove him next time, do it as soon as the hen has well settled down to sitting.

Breeding in a Cupboard (F. J. C.).—How are you going to manage the ventilation? I hope you have not overlooked this important necessity for the health and well-being of the birds, as it will need very careful attention in such a small place, and if not properly attended to you will find that although you bred successfully in it last year, things will not go so smoothly when a number of birds are confined in the same space. It will be best to keep the birds on one side only. The cages would be so close together if hung on two sides facing each other, that it would cause a good deal of uneasiness and neglect of duty among birds of a particular temperament.

Norwich with Diarrhœa (J. R.).—Keep cage and perches scrupulously clean; stick a piece of cuttlefish in wires for him to peck at. See that all your seeds, especially the rape, are sound and good. Feed on plain canary as staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately, and on the alternate days a pinch of hemp and about half a teaspoonful of crushed dry biscuit. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn for three days and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and five of tincture of opium for a day or two until looseness is stopped. Give no green food for a week, but a morsel of banana may be given every second day as a substitute.

Substance on Beak (A. Sears, Stoke Newington).—Hope I have interpreted signature correctly. The substance was doubtless a small abscess, and should now be quite healed. If not, wash it clean with a little fairly warm water, in which you have dissolved a little boracic acid. Dry gently, and anoint the place sparingly every second day with boracic ointment. Keep cage and perches scrupulously clean, and add a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of lemon juice to the water for two days. Give a spray of green food daily, a pinch of a mixture of black rape, inga, teazle, gold of pleasure, maw, and hemp, in equal quantities, twice a week, and a scrap of bread and milk twice a week for the next fortnight. There can be no objection to mating as soon as the place is quite well, if he is ready.

What Class? (Constant Reader of CAGE BIRDS).—Am afraid I do not understand you very clearly. If the bird is self-cinnamon, whether of the pure cinnamon of Norwich type, it cannot be termed a marked bird. As regards the class, it naturally depends upon the classification. If it is a Norwich Plainhead with cinnamon colour, it would go in the "any variety Norwich," or if no such class is provided, in the "any other variety." If the bird is of the pure cinnamon type, and there was only that one in the show, it would still probably go to the "any other variety" class, as a separate cinnamon class would, in all probability, be cancelled in such circumstances. If this is not what you require, write again, and describe the bird more explicitly, and also give the suggested classification.

Mopy Norwich (H. S. B.).—See that she is not exposed to draught at all. Keep in an equable and fairly comfortable place. See that cage is quite free from red mites. Feed on plain canary seed only as staple, and every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape. On the alternate days for the next fortnight give a piece of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure on top. Give a spray of chickweed or a little dandelion daily. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for two consecutive days, and every second day for the remainder of the week, and on the alternate days give twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills, and paregoric, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together. Continue giving the latter on alternate days for a fortnight.

Two on Singing (C.C.C.).—1. The great point is to keep the bird in bright and healthy surroundings, and quite free from cold draughts. Give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as staple; twice a week a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, black rape, linseed, and teazle, and every second day for the next fortnight half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with 4 drops of sherry, and a pinch of equal parts of gold of pleasure and sesame seed mixed in it. Give two leaves of dandelion, or a spray of chickweed daily. 2. Certainly, Canaries have a natural song, which is louder, harsher, and less varied than that of the trained Roller. They will usually sing this freely enough without any tuition. For ordinary purposes a good free singing bird is the best tutor; but when required to train birds properly for pure singing purposes, a bird-organ is the most useful ally. Bird warblers, such as you describe, are amusing to play with (until the performance becomes exasperating), but are of very little practical value.

Slow Starter ("Anxious.")—I expect the birds are only waiting for a rather stronger breath of Spring before beginning in earnest. The answers to your questions are:—1. The hen was probably not quite so forward as you thought she was. Leave matters alone now, and exercise patience. Things will come right in the end. 2. The event you refer to will recur more frequently when the hen gets forward in real earnest. It is quite possible for one such occurrence to fertilise several eggs, but usually it is the exception and not the rule. 3. I do not care about your method of feeding. Give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as staple. Every second day give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga, and on the alternate days give the same quantity of egg foods sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. Give three or four leaves of dandelion daily. Cannot tell when you may look for eggs. It depends upon the condition of the hen; it may be only a week, or it may be two, three, or four weeks hence.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

A Singing Linnet.

Roller.—You say that you have ordered the "Nutshell" booklet upon the Linnet, and this will give you all the information you can want. It is not advisable to suddenly change the seed mixture which has been given a bird for a lengthy period, and on which it thrives. The mixture you mention is a good one, except that for the dandelion teazle seed should be substituted; the former is very expensive, and should be given as an occasional "titbit." No "soft food" needed. Chickweed and shepherd's purse are both preferable to groundsel and dandelion in my own opinion, for regular use, especially when in a seeding state. Still, a little dandelion is good to be regularly given in the spring, and the flowering tops of groundsel are also very much relished. Don't stick to just one greenstuff; vary them. Strictly speaking, a living room is not a good place in which to keep British birds; an unheated room is best. Many Linnets thrive quite well in living rooms, however.

Many Matters.

M.L.—To answer all your questions fully would, I am afraid take quite a column. The open end of the aviary should face south, or south-west, and the shade of trees would, no doubt, be grateful to the inmates in the height of summer. Your place is a fair-sized one, and the two hen Bullies may get along well in it; but they can behave very badly to each other in the breeding season. I know I dare not now keep two hen Bullies together in any of my flights. The strongest simply bundles into the others and pulls the clothes off their backs in big beakfuls. The hens are almost sure to nest, and they might possibly rear their young if you supply plenty of seeding greenstuff (chickweed, shepherd's purse, groundsel, and the like). A little insectivorous food can be offered, but the quantity you will need is so small that it will not be worth your while to mix it; buy one pound (or less) through our advertisement columns, and try it first. Seed mixture for the aviary: Canary and teazle three parts each, charlock and summer rape one part each, linseed half-a-part, by measure. In a separate dish give some hemp seed one day, sunflower seed the next; give both regularly should the hens have young to feed. Also give wild-seed mixture and a little of the other seeds in general use (maw, niger, etc.) now and again. The above seed mixture will suit a Siskin admirably; and a little hemp, maw, niger, cracked sunflower and wild seed mixture (varied) will soon bring him into breeding condition. Some Siskins are very meddlesome with the nest, and will interfere with eggs; best to shut them off while hen is laying, until, that is, you have had opportunity of testing their behaviour.

British Bird Queriists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

A Young Puzzle.

A. Fox.—I had to smile at the two guesses at the identity of the youngster you have picked up in the main street at Woking. It is too early for Butcher Birds—they have not reached England yet, and they are not likely to lose their children in the streets of Woking when they do. The Bramblefinch does not breed in England. So both guesses are put out of court. I expect you found, in reality, some naughty young Starling which had lost its mamma. This would be coloured and marked in the manner you describe; and there are some about now, I know. You will rear it alright on the food you mention, though the addition of some minced hard-boiled egg is advisable; and this Lark food will do for the staple diet when it can feed itself. It would be better, however, to use a portion of a good dog meal (such as "Melox" or Spratt's), softened with hot water, and to stir into this an equal portion of the Lark food, the two combined making the bird's food for the day. Starlings are also very fond of ripe fruit and berries of all kinds, live food (mealworms, beetles, etc.), and table scraps.

Concerning the Nightingale.

J.V.—1. A Nightingale will certainly live in captivity as far north as Midlothian. It must, of course, be kept warm during the cold winter weather. 2. They certainly sing in the daytime; practically wholly so when in a cage. It is impossible to say for how many months in a year individuals vary so in freedom of song, but over a far longer period than when in a state of nature. They will, in captivity, sing both during autumn and winter. 3. Nightingales also are sometimes offered for sale at a few shillings each, but they are not well on food (i.e., are newly caught). A known songster will fetch from 20s. to 30s.; more if moulted in captivity, and an extra good specimen. 4. Get a special scithill cage for Nightingales and similar small insectivorous birds from one of the large cage-makers advertising in our columns. All up-to-date makers will supply a suitable design. The stock food should be that which I recommend for small insectivorous birds, viz., powered Osborne biscuit, four parts; best ants' eggs, two parts, dried flies and powdered silkworm pupæ, one part each; meat meal, half part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold mashed potato, varying it frequently. It is necessary, of course, to give, in addition, live insect food (flies, spiders, wood-lice, earwigs, smooth caterpillars, green fly, ants' eggs, etc.), one can obtain, as in season. To the above stock mixture I frequently add, after damping, a teaspoonful or two of preserved egg-flake, or, more generally, part of a hard-boiled fresh egg, finely minced, and occasionally a little finely scraped raw lean mutton or beef. Ripe fruit should enter largely into the menu; banana, very ripe pear and apple, strawberries, grapes, elderberries, blackberries, raspberries, garden currants, etc., are all more or less appreciated—you will soon find out your bird's likes and dislikes.

Feeding Thrushes Cheaply.

R. U. Wagner.—You ask for the cheapest staple food for a number of Song and Missel Thrushes, Starlings, Fieldfares, Blackbirds, and the like, one that is easily made. The cheapest satisfactory way which I have discovered is to get a bag of some good brand of puppy meal, or dog meal, such as Spratt's, or Clarke's "Melox," from a corn dealer's, soften this with hot water, then mix into it some good maker's packet Thrush food (dry). The latter, used dry, will absorb any superfluous moisture; it should leave the finished food just crumbly moist. You will soon find the right quantity of each to use for the daily supply (it must be made fresh daily), and find it very cheap. Variety is good, of course, and you should give some vegetable or green food with it frequently, such as grated raw carrot, or finely-chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season, or cold boiled potato. Vary them frequently, and add hard-boiled egg, finely minced up, occasionally. Give some live insects, also ripe fruit and berries frequently, and according to season. If necessary, crush the "Melox," or whatever brand you use.

Linnets for Song.

T.P. and George.—Let the Linnets' stock mixture be: Canary and teazle three pints each, summer rape, charlock, and linseed one pint each. In the winter (if the birds are in a cold room) about one pint of hemp should be added to the stock mixture. A feed of maw and niger, and a good wild seed mixture can be given frequently (varied) by way of a change. Let them have a little green food, especially rape seedlings, in the winter, and flowering dandelion tops and the young leaves, also seeding shepherd's-purse, chickweed, plantain and groundsel freely in the spring and the summer. To bring them in condition for song and breeding the great "secret" is to give them a daily supply of the best old hemp, and crack it lightly, so that they feed well upon it. Also put in the "tit-bit" drawer daily, a teaspoonful of the following mixture: Two ounces each of gold of pleasure, niger, plantain, sesame, and thistle, one ounce each of mustard (the golden-yellow seed), dandelion, maw, cornflower, and lettuce. The "Nutshell" booklet upon the Linnet would be very helpful to you, and tell you about the moulting, etc.

Keeping a Hawfinch.

Leytonian.—All my own Hawfinches have an unlimited supply of water, both for drinking and bathing purposes. It is no use giving colour food except during the moult; no doubt many exhibition specimens get a little of it. Berries (haw, black, privet, etc.) should be given as well. I have frequently given particulars of the feeding, etc., of Hawfinches. The principal food is sound, plump, white sunflower seed, or mixed sunflower and safflower. Give this, and a mealworm or two every day or so; the bird asks for little more (though the sunflower should not be given alone). The mealworms should be given direct from the fingers; they are a great help in keeping (and getting) a bird steady. The bird also appreciates hemp, linseed, canary, oats, and sometimes a little buckwheat, summer rape, small Indian corn, etc. His powerful beak makes short work of beechmast, suitable nuts (walnuts, etc.), plum and cherry stones, hawthorn, privet, etc., berries, and the like. They appreciate a little young lettuce, watercress, chickweed, shepherd's-purse, also ripe apple, pear, etc., occasionally. They love tender green garden peas, of which they are passionately fond, and these are especially good given in the pod. They are fond of a bath, so let him have one whenever the weather is suitable; daily, if possible. The free use of water is the finest possible thing to keep him in good condition.

Brevities.

Three Larks (Victoria Street).—A little down in condition, I should say; maybe owing to the changeable weather. Get an ounce or so of saccharated carbonate of iron from a chemist, and mix 5 grains (the chemist will show you, if you ask him, exactly how much of it this quantity represents) into the soft food of each bird daily for a week or ten days. The soft food should be moist. This will "pull them together." Have never used syrup of violets. I presume you keep the birds under good conditions.

Chaffinch in Poor Feather (Boots).—I expect it is the heat of the room (and the gas), which you admit gets "rather warm," that is responsible for the bad state of plumage of your Chaffinch. Canaries are very different to British birds, so far as standing heat is concerned, and some Britishers will stand it far better than others. I expect you will now have to wait until next moulting time before the bird shows any improvement in its plumage. Of course, if you choose to change him into a cold room that may drop him into moult right away. There is some risk, of course, attached to doing this.

A Muling Matter (F. K. Underwood).—By all means let the hen Canary mate with the cock Canary for the first nest. She will lay clear eggs if you don't, for if her condition is so forward the eggs will come, mate or no mate. And the Goldie is useless until you see he is properly "up" in breeding trim. Pity the Finch is such a "poor little thing"; a good big Goldie is always worth having.

Wanted, Mules for Song and Colour (H. W. Haley).—The Mules bred between a cock Goldfinch and a hen Canary are certainly the best, so far as colour goes, their jackets more nearly resembling Jacob's than does that of any other Mule. But, so far as beauty of song goes, in my opinion a Linnet Mule scores an easy first. I am presuming, of course, that the birds sing their papa's natural notes, or some of them, at least. The Linnet, too, is the easiest bird to mule with. Further, a Jonque Linnet mule is quite a pretty colour. Therefore, probably a Linnet is the bird which will suit you best as a mate for your hen Canary, to produce a good-looking mule with a fine voice.

A Mating Trouble (W. H. P.).—Possibly the Linnet "sulks" and pecks at the hen because he is not up in breeding condition. You must not take any notice of a little "pecking," however, so long as it does not involve serious fighting and feather pulling. Most birdie marriages begin with a squabble, you know. I should separate the two, but keeping them within sight of each other, until the hen Canary shows signs of being seriously bent upon nest-building; if the Linnet is then "rank" (as fanciers say), I think you will have little further trouble.

Linnet and Canary (Marcus).—You need not trouble one little bit over the point you raise. When a hen Canary is paired up for breeding (in reasonably forward condition) the richer diet of a Linnet or a Goldfinch will in no wise harm her; it is "worked off" by the exertions inseparable from the building of a home, and the rearing of a family.

The Best Songster (W. J. W.).—In my own opinion, a good Linnet can beat a good Goldfinch easily so far as beauty of song is concerned. The Linnet scores alike for volume, variety, and sweetness; the Goldfinch's is the more cheery, "merry" ditty of the two. Individuals, however, differ greatly in merit as vocalists. Some utter a more or less wooden, chattering kind of song; others have a mellow quality of tone which is quite flute-like and altogether delightful. I have one such Linnet now, whose "rounded periods" are a never-failing source of pleasure to me. He puts my Goldfinches quite into the shade.

Shall I, or Shall I not? (Brown Dickie.)—I am surprised to learn that the sun in the afternoon shines into the room which "faces north." But we'll let that pass. I see no reason whatever why you should not invest in a breeding cage with a fair chance of producing in it some Linnet-Canary Mules. You will find this more interesting, I think, than merely keeping a few birds for song. One of my bird-rooms faced almost due north (a little to westward), and I had considerable success in it, both breeding and otherwise. It was well lighted, though.

Sex of the Chaffinch (C. C. C.).—It is very simple indeed. The cock Chaffinch has always a red breast; the hen never. The male is brilliantly coloured, from top to toe, in fact; while the hen is a soberly garbed, greyish brown little creature, brightened only by the white wing bars and white edging to the tail feathers.

Larks not Singing (R. H.).—Are you sure that you have cock birds? You should get one pound of a good-class insectile mixture from one of the makers of such foods (about 1s. 6d. per lb.), using our advertisement columns. Add one part of this to one part of the mixture you mention in your letter, moisten it (if necessary) with a little grated raw carrot, and on this the Larks should soon come into song and high condition. I presume, of course, you are housing and keeping them properly. Read the "Nutshell" booklet upon the Skylark.

A Greenie Bullie Couple (J. O. Rowlands).—This is the stock seed mixture to give: Canary and teazle three parts each, summer rape, charlock, and sunflower one part each. In addition, give in a separate dish (vary them) wild seeds, hemp, and niger. Plenty of early young dandelion (leaves, seedy heads, and flowers) is essential; other good and easily obtainable greenfoods are seedy groundsel, chickweed, and shepherd's purse. A little soft food (egg food or an insectile mixture) is often relished. Keep the couple together now for good or ill; nothing gained by parting them.

Floor of Thrush's Cage (New Year).—It is certainly possible to get peat moss litter in London (I use it myself, anyway), and this is a first-class and very cheap covering for the floor of Thrush, etc., cages. Coarse-cut pine sawdust is excellent if thickly laid down, and there is no chance of its flying into and choking up the water and food vessels. Cocoanut fibre is very good, but not cheap (comparatively). You don't need to have any guarantee; the Wild Bird Act won't touch you. The bird can be out of doors until the winter approaches (has it yet left us?), if the cage is watertight and the spot a sheltered one.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Birds for Aviary.

Alnwick.—I should certainly advise you to keep to Parrakeets, as mixing Parrakeets and Finches means sooner or later the mutilation or slaughter of the latter. The only birds I dare advise you to keep with Parrakeets are Cardinals, Cowbirds, and Troupials, and even with these mishaps occur. You could, however, have a very nice series of Parrakeets and Lovebirds in your aviary, but as you want breeding results, do not overcrowd. Pairs each of Rosella Parrakeets, Cockatiels, Redrump Parrakeets, Green Budgerigars, Black-checked Lovebirds and Yellow Budgerigars. As I do not think the Cardinals would breed in such company, you could put in odd males of Crested, Pope, and Virginian Cardinals, which would make a pleasing variety of form and colour. As you are in the far north, I consider an arrangement of hinged glazed sashes in front of your wire netting would be an improvement for winter use, you could then in bad weather only open these according to the position of the wind. It would be essential for you to have at least double the number of small barrels, logs and husks that you have pairs of birds. While the centre of the aviary should be left fairly open for flight exercise, there should be an abundance of branches about, varying from the fine twiggy type to those 2ins. in diameter. The bath should be large and shallow, a clear one inch depth of water in a cemented cavity, would be ample, and no risk of the smaller birds being drowned.

Foreign Bird Queriists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Teaching Budgerigars to Talk.

E.E.—I am afraid you will find your patience sadly tried, for it is not every taught Budgerigar that talks, it is simply a few out of a crowd; this may be in large measure because but few tackle the task. I cannot add a great deal to what is stated in your book; if you take them in hand before they can feed themselves (the younger the better) you must carry out the directions given for hand-rearing, or if this is too much trouble, take them in hand as soon as you see them shelling seed for themselves. You must just make pets of them, talk to them and fuss about with them generally. The first thing to do will be to train them to come on your finger and get their full confidence, and then patience and kindness must do the rest. With this species I should advise you to train males, though, as a rule with most species, both sexes talk equally well. They should be caged singly, and had better be so placed that they cannot see each other. If I have not made it clear, repeat query for what is lacking.

Procuring An African Grey.

J.L.H.—I cannot criticise advertisements, but a really good talking Grey Parrot, in good health and feather, is worth from £10 to £15, though it is not always easy to find purchasers at this price; but, personally, if I had such I wished to part with, I would sell at a low figure. You may get a good healthy bird, just beginning to articulate a word or two, for 35/- to 50/-, but at the lower figure I fear the element of chance enters in. Most low-priced birds offered have been over in this country for only a short time, though they may have begun to mimic a few sounds and say a word or two—with such birds there is always the risk of latent infection, contracted during importation, developing in a few weeks, or soon after you have purchased it. The most satisfactory way with Greys is to get a really acclimatised bird. See it before purchasing and judge of its ability and condition before you part with your money. Such a bird would, I expect, cost you £5.

Birds for Aviary.

Nemo.—I am quite aware that Finches and Budgerigars are kept together, and sometimes quite a year or two will elapse before mishaps occur. I so kept them myself for some time, but in spite of close observation, mishaps began to occur, and I had to consign them to an enclosure reserved for large birds. Your birds should breed. Have you a true pair? The male has a blue cere, that of the female is brown. Zebra Finches, Silverbills, Grey and White Java Sparrows, Long and Rufous-tailed Grenfinches, Bronze and Magpie Munnikins, Common and Green Avadavats, Gold-Crested, St. Helena and Grey Waxbills, Grey and Green Singing Finches, Cockatiels are quite amiable, and I have never known them to interfere with the smallest Waxbill, but the same cannot be said for Budgerigars, but with them it is more mischief than malice. Supply canary, white and spray millet seeds as staple diet, and oats, rice in the husk, hemp, and sunflower seed in small quantities; grit, green-food, cuttlefish, and also ripe fruit. Supply soft-food when they are feeding young.

Brevities.

Breeding Budgerigars (C.C.C.).—1.—For Budgerigars cokernut husks are much better than shells and such, ready wired for hanging up, can be purchased for a few pence each from advertisers in our columns. 2.—When the hen Budgerigar is in breeding condition, her cere is a rich brown, when out of breeding condition it becomes dull bluish. 3.—There is not much the matter here; at least, I incline to the opinion that what you refer to is merely its warbling in an undertone. 4.—Immaterial; all my husks are hung so that they sway a little, but they cannot swing violently, either by the birds or strong wind. 5.—Equal parts. 6.—Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine, in equal parts. For use, take one part mixture to three parts water, and supply no other drinking water till the birds have taken freely of it. 7.—I cannot pretend to settle this problem, but you will notice that if they get disturbed at night, they and most other birds dash wildly about to their own hurt.

Soft Food, Etc. (C.C.B.).—Equal parts of chicken meal, ants' eggs, dried flies, and crumbled sponge cake; all the above will keep indefinitely in the canisters or bottles, if stored in any dry place. Take the required portion and make it crumbly moist with boiling water. Ripe fruit and one or two mealworms or other insects should also be given daily. Zebra Doves will breed in an outdoor aviary, and either a shallow box or wicker platform (say, the lid of a small fruit hamper), fixed in the branches or against the wall, rather high up, will meet their requirements—they will merely twine a few fine sticks and bents together thereon and will usually rear two or three broods each season.

Blue Grosbeak (Thank You).—Put this bird on to a course of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water); give it every other day, so long as the voidings are not watery loose; when this occurs you must cease giving it for say a week. On the days you are not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. I would only give at most two mealworms per diem for a time. Repeat query next week and let me know how the bird is progressing, also examine it and ascertain if it is over-fat. Also state if it is in an in- or out-door aviary. Give me the above information, and I will try to give you more definite help in our next issue.

Aviary for Lovebirds (T.J.T.).—The aviary will answer its purpose well enough, and as it is will accommodate, say, one pair each of Green and Yellow Budgerigars and Black-cheek Lovebirds. I note you say: "shut in by buildings, not much sun at any time." Your aviary would be greatly improved for the comfort and well-being of the birds if you could make a small all-wire annexe, in the position that it will get all the sun possible. With a little thought and observation you should be able to arrange this. Light, sun, and air, are agents that tell for health and vigour, and consequently are sound precautions against disease.

Will They Agree? (C.G.).—I presume the additions you name are odd birds; they certainly would agree when breeding if they are pairs. Pennants and Rosellas sometimes are pugnaciously disposed towards each other, and the Lories are not, as a rule, amiably disposed towards other species of Parrakeets; but, personally, I should risk it. Keep them under close observation until their respective demeanours were fully ascertained. As a general rule the larger Parrots and Parrakeets treat Budgerigars and Lovebirds as "beneath notice."

Choice of Birds ("Lough Derg.").—Your aviary is well conceived, though it would have been much more useful if it had been of a minimum height of 8ft. Of the birds you name I consider the following as the more likely to succeed:—Common and Green Avadavats, Zebra Finches, Zebra and Grey Waxbills, Grey and Green Singing Finhes, Cutthroats, Bengalese Spice Birds, Canaries, also Long- and Rufous-tailed Grassfinches, and White Java Sparrows. You ought not to keep more than a score of birds, the size of a Norwich Canary, in such an aviary, and I should advise covering up the wire netting during cold weather, and even in the summer if you are troubled with cats, as though the birds may ignore them during the day, a cat drives them wild with fear during the night.

The Breeding of Indian Green Parrakeets (J.H.F.).—I can help you better if you will kindly tell me what kind of nesting receptacles you have, and the conditions, size, etc., of your aviary. Are you troubled with mice? Are the birds in perfect feather and full of vigour? How do you feed? Three to five form the clutch. These birds have been bred in this country on more than one occasion; both sexes share the duties of incubation. If you care to send me your address through the Editor, I will send you a paper containing the account of the successful nesting of these birds. Will give you full details if you will repeat query and answer above questions.

PARK AND LAKE AVICULTURE.

A Goldfish Problem.

C.C.C.—With one small goldfish in a bowl 4½ inches deep and 13 across, once a week will be quite enough to change the water; you could add another fish if you liked—a silver one would make a pretty contrast. For these small vessels the best weed is common water-cress; select some pieces with plenty of rootlets, and these will live for some time and afford food for the fish. Remove when the cress begins to turn yellow. This and ants' eggs are all the food that the fish need, though a very little bread or a small worm or two may be added at times. But leave nothing in that may go bad.

Treatment of Grass Snakes.

Anxious.—These do not need to be kept in damp moss; fill the floor of the aquarium in which you propose keeping them with shingle or turf, and sink in this a pan of water large enough for them to get into entirely. Feed on frogs and minnows; I doubt if full-sized ones would eat mealworms.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Ida H. Allen.—I could trace nothing of an infectious character on conducting post-mortem examination of cock Canary, which I found was extensively affected, the liver being the principal seat. This was in a condition of fatty degeneration denoted by an alteration in its consistency and colour, being much paler than normal, a yellowish white. Secondary to this there existed an inflammation of the bowels brought about by the absence of bile, which is Nature's intestinal antiseptic. Fatty degeneration considerably upsets the normal function of the liver; there is interference with bile secretion, and consequently the intestines suffer. Blood in the excrement would arise from this cause. Fatty degeneration of the liver arises from many causes, both bacterial and chemical; too long continuation of certain drugs will bring about the disease.

W.E.G.—Autopsy of Goldfinch-Bullfinch hybrid presented some remarkable and unusual lesions implicating both lungs, but more markedly the right. I have encountered similar post-mortem appearances in the large domestic animals, but never before have I met with this condition in birds. Pneumonic affections of birds as a rule prove rapidly fatal, but here the disease had been existing for many months. On the upper surface of the right lung, and extending half way into its depth was a necrotic or dead patch of lung tissue, completely put out of action and devoid of all functional activity; consequently the bird would have, as it were, little more than half of the right lung in working condition, which would account for symptoms of gaping owing to distress or partial asphyxia. The left lung was affected to a slight degree, but sufficiently so to interfere with its breathing powers. Necrotic or apparently necrotic areas of lung tissue are commonly encountered in sheep due to the presence of filaria, thread-like parasites; also they used to be seen in lungs of cattle suffering from contagious bovine pleura-pneumonia. I am giving you these simply as examples, and shall carry out microscopic examination of sections of this dead tissue to arrive, if possible, at the cause. Why this affection should have come under your notice as of common occurrence in Bullfinch and Bullfinch hybrids it is difficult to say, for I cannot see that these birds possess any greater susceptibility than others. You had a very difficult case to treat; no amount of scientific skill would have been of any avail; yet the tincture of benzoin would give relief for a time. I will acquaint you later as to the result of my further examination; it takes some few days or so to prepare mounted specimens.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

A Cutting (H. Gentle).—Accept our thanks for your kindness.

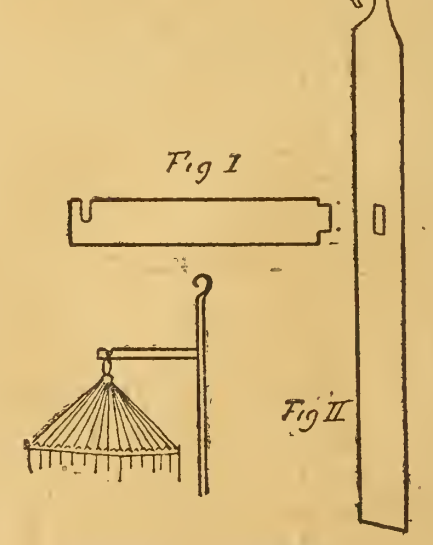
A Photograph (J. Thomas).—Sorry to hear of the failure; better luck next time.

Illness and Birds (Novice).—We have sent your letter to an expert, and will give you his opinion upon the matter in our next issue.

Two Ideas (A. Nickelson).—If accepted, the ideas appear in due course; owing to the number received, many have to wait some time. We seem to remember having given swing ladder perches before.

An Opinion (Inquirer).—If the birds were received by you dead, we cannot understand why you had the money paid over to the sender, as you do not now seem to approve of them reaching you in that state. We never heard of Goldfinches "partly eating each other." Your only remedy (if any) is against the railway company for loss in transit.

Correspondence.



A Good Friday in Pearson's Park, Hull.

SIR,—These words were once spoken to me: "I will not allow you to keep more than two birds; I have told George as well." George was my mate. We lived together and we kept birds—British Hardbills. We were spoken to thus by our employer. I added Softbills to our collection and increased our stock. It is not always wise to go against an employer's wish, but I often do unwise things. My employer gave me notice. I had cremated his cat, so would have to part from the lovely birds I had lived amongst. Having to move did not trouble me. I loved a nomadic life; it brought me in touch with Nature when I got among the birds. I had lived in caravans, I had lived in tents, I had existed on the road. I would again take to the open road. I kept one bird out of our collection, a lovely Redwing. I went north—I was making for Hull. The Seagulls were skimming over the water when I was crossing the Humber. I wandered through the streets and at last stood in George Street, and gazed at the foreign birds in the shop of a well-known dealer. They looked glorious in the colours in which the great Creator had arrayed them. Surely in this immense town—this town that spoke of liberty—I would be allowed to keep birds. I looked up at the noble column erected to William Wilberforce; it spoke of freedom. Yes, and I kept birds in Hull. Those who are responsible for the management of this great city's public affairs are a credit to this mighty seaport. They set a pattern that other towns might well follow, for they provide birds for the public to look at. In the spring, when the sun was shining, I stood in Pearson's Park, the most beautiful of the three parks in Hull. Why? I stood among crowds of people looking at the birds in the aviary. I saw no sad faces. Ladies with exquisite dresses came in, and men with careworn faces which told of the indoor life many have to follow in the great seaport of Hull. They all looked pleased. Men, out with their wives and families, held up their little ones to see these feathered creations. Lovers came in and tried to explain to each other the different kinds of birds. All seemed happy; it was good to be among them. Many sorts of birds were there—Siskins, Bramblefinches, Chaffinches, Snow Buntings (most lovely), Corn Buntings, Greenfinches, Tree Sparrow, a pied Jackdaw, a Magpie and Parrot, and many others. These were in the inside aviary. Then there was the outdoor aviary, where Blackbirds, Starlings, and larger birds were kept, and people gathered round them. It was Good Friday, and the weather was splendid. On the grass children, young men and maidens, and old folk as well, played. This beautiful park bore the name of the gentleman who gave it to the public. It would have done his heart good could he have seen the pleasure it was creating. Many lovers were there. They seemed to find it difficult to find a quiet spot, so many people were about, and no man cares to let others hear him telling his girl the same old story. Breeders of birds know that even many male birds are shy in this respect. When you are in the birdroom they hardly seem to know each other, but close the door and spy through the keyhole! The birds in this park were well attended to by a well-known British bird exhibitor, Mr. T. Medley. Night came on and many mortals went towards the slums and narrow streets. Yet sometimes even in these slums the thought of that day would surely return. To say hard things about these submerged bird fanciers is to speak without knowledge of them. Circumstance often forces man where he little thought of ever landing. I was at work shovelling slack into a furnace, and over this tremendous town hung a smoke from many works, and no matter from what quarter the wind blew it brought with it evil smells. But thoughts came to me of my birds, and they diverted my mind from things depressing. Near me as I finish these few notes is a beautiful Goldfinch. This was one of my birds when in Hull. He has travelled many miles since (like his owner), but gold will never part us; love holds us together.

A Handy and Easily-made Cage-hanging Device.

SIR,—The accompanying is a sketch of a cage-hanger, which I have used for this last seven years, and I think you will see its advantage over the one described and illustrated in CAGE BIRDS, of March 5, as it will hold on any ordinary nail in the house, and does not need a special bracket which has to be fastened on to the wall. It is very easily made with two pieces of iron about ⅝in. wide, and from 1-16in. to ¼in. thick. Or fig. 1 may be made from round wire about ¼in. thick. All you have to do is to pass the reduced end of fig. 1 through the slot in fig. 2, and rivet the end over, and you have a very useful and convenient hanger that will hang anywhere.

S. BOOTH.

A Lady Fancier's Canary Breeding Experiences.

SIR,—An account of how a lady amateur has kept Canaries may be of some use to readers of CAGE BIRDS; at all events, I will try to put into writing my experiences. I thought at first I could make a little money for the many charities I like to contribute to, and for some years I was successful, but then came a time of disappointment. The young died when about ten days' old. Older birds seemed to fall into decline and die, and some died off quite suddenly from heart disease. It was during this time I learnt a great deal through the kindness of friends. Now, I consider myself most fortunate. Last season 27 eggs hatched, and I reared 25 fine, strong birds, without a defect. My birds are not true breeds, but mixtures of Yorkshires, Germans, and Lizards. By the way, crosses between Yorkshires and Lizards make fine songsters. I suppose never was heard such a solo and chorus as I have at present, the hens doing their best to add to the strain. To return to my story. I have a few Crested birds. These I mate with Plainheads, say, a bright yellow Crested cock with an evenly-marked Plainheaded hen, which will have good results. I have, to my cost, learnt the upshot of mating two Crested birds. So, novices, don't do this. When I pair my birds I give them a little egg food and a small stalk of groundsel as an extra to their usual diet. In about three days the hen will most probably be seen flying frantically about, with a bit of rubbish in her mouth. Now you may give her a nest. I make mine out of half a cocoanut, lined with flannel, with three or four holes pierced in it by a red hot skewer, in order to tie in the nest. You ought to give them part of a nest bag or some prepared hair. These you can buy at a small cost, but do not give them sheep's wool, as it twines round their feet and drives them silly. The building of the nest takes days, as the cock sometimes thinks he is a better architect than the hen; and very likely he is, but this means delay. The hen lays from three to six eggs, and will lay four sets in the year. I leave the eggs as laid in the nest, though some remove them when laid and replace them by nest eggs, in order that all the chicks may come out at the same time, setting them when the third egg is laid. The hen sits for fourteen days from the day she starts. So you ought to be prepared with a fresh piece of groundsel and a little vessel of boiled German rape seed, strained. The evening before the first egg is expected to hatch, you might put these for the birds to find early the next morning. Be careful not to give linseed or flax seed during the breeding season, as it does not agree with the young birds. In about three weeks the young birds will be thinking of shifting for themselves, so see that the mother hen has some material to build her second nest with, else she will pluck her youngsters, and leave them quite naked. I have seen the cock creep up under the nest and pull out all the wee tail feathers from his sons and daughters. The second clutch will come very soon after the first. The eggs often get damaged by the first family dancing on them, so one will have to watch carefully for an opportunity when all are off the nest to insert a clean nest. The old nest can be scalded and made ready for another time. The cock bird will finish off the rearing of the young, but sometimes I have known him beat off, and refuse to feed the poor little birds when they have naturally gone to him for their portion. If this should happen, one can very well feed them with egg food, made moist, and given through the wires on the point of a stick or quill. At first they timid, but very soon they come and take it. When the young are separated from the parents continue the soft food, and bruise the hemp seed for them, as they are not quite up to cracking it for themselves. The second batch will go on in the same way, but do not expect as many birds in the third and fourth nests as in the first and second; and it is as well not to let the hen rear too many birds, as it weakens her too much. A hollow perch, such as a cane, is very useful, especially at this season, as mites are now very troublesome; they have to hide themselves in a hollow perch during the day, so when you are cleaning your cage, remove the perch, and give it a sharp tap on a piece of white paper, and you will be surprised. I keep my birds in an unheated room, facing south and east. I hang the cages on straight brass hooks, screwed into the window frame. I give a cold bath to them all the year round, and the only artificial heat is given when I light a small paraffin stove on a particularly cold night. I sometimes give my birds a slice of boiled carrot; at first they cannot make out what it is, but very soon they get to like it immensely. If I see one of them looking sickly I give it bread sopped in milk. You boil just as much fresh new milk as will be absorbed by a piece of soft white bread, but do not have it sloppy. A little maw seed sprinkled on top makes it most attractive. I am very fond of large cages. One flight I have is 3ft. long, 2ft. wide, and 2ft. 6ins. high. In this I have about sixteen birds. Of course, they sometimes have a difference of opinion, but Canaries are never long out of temper. It is pitiable to see, as you do sometimes, a beautiful, large Canary hanging in a window in a tiny cage, with scarcely room to stretch itself.

Our Invaluable "Breeding Room Register." By G. E. Weston.

Post free, 7d.

A well-known fancier has said of it:—"It makes bird breeding easy." This book no breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room, and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred—keep account of their strong and weak points. It contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

An Inexpensive Lark Food.

SIR,—I have pleasure in answering your correspondent's questions re my letter which appeared last November on tho Skylark. Wilfrid wishes to know where I obtain my maggots. I go to a shed where tallow is made, and from the old fat which is stored there I pick up as many maggots in half-an-hour as will last mo for several months, both for Lark-food and fishing bait purposes. I give my Lark a bath in this manner: First, have a sixpenny Lark runner-cage, which I put him in and place in the yard; then I put water in about an inch deep. He then dives in and splashes the water about as though in a fit. Occasionally I take him into a field in his runner-cage, which has a tight string net top, and turn the cage wrong end up and let him remain among the wet grass for an hour or so. My Lark cage is 3ft. long and 1ft. 3in. wide and 3in. deep, wired at front sides and top half domed. This cage allows the Lark his much-needed exercise, and only requires cleaning out once a month. When buying a Skylark, go to the catcher from whom they are to be got cheapest; select the bird which runs from one end of the cage to the other, or crouches down in a sitting position. If no such bird is present, don't have one at all, for the Lark which bangs itself against the sides and top of the cage on being approached will never be worth its salt as a singer. Buy a hand-reared one or rear a nest of them for yourself. Take the birds when they are about 8 days old, and feed them on oat-cake steeped in milk and worms lightly dipped in sand. Take care that no sops get into the bird's nostrils, or it will cause their death. When they are six or eight weeks old, take the cocks in to the fields to learn the song of their wild brethren. Many fanciers neglect this, and that is why we hear so little music from hand-reared Thrushes and Larks. I adviso Mr. Evans to give up his packet mixture and feed his bird on this: To two lbs. of pea-meal and two lbs. of oat-meal, mixed well with the dripping got from 4lbs. of beef suet; the result will soon be known to him.

REDPOLL.

Scandal at Skelmanthorpe.

The Recent Y.U. Suspensions.

SIR,—I am very pleased indeed to see a reply, or, at least, a letter, asking me some questions, and making a lot of bold assertions which are all "make up," with no real truth at the bottom, making a joke into a real thing, and making half truths into real live truths. Just have patience, Mr. Morley, and I'll answer every question you ask, but I'm very sorry to say that you have not answered one single question out of either of my letters. You seem to evade them altogether. It reminds me of a dog that was very bold and full of swagger, trying to worry a hedghog, and every time the dog had a bite he got pricked, and at last he had to retreat and leave the poor hedgehog alone. Mr. Morley does not even deny anything that I have stated in my last two letters respecting the certain parties implicated in the charges of fraudulent practices. I never said that Mr. Morley had ever borrowed any birds. Mr. Morley speaks of my own acknowledgment, "wrung from me when before the council." But I did not appear (as he himself states later on in his letter!) so what could they wring from me? Then I don't understand his speech a little farther on (don't think he does himself). The next item is, he goes on to say that I have several times shown cocks in hen classes. I never heard tell of them singing at the show (perhaps I had them trained up to such an extent). Well, I will be candid with you. I did show a young unflighted buff cock about four years since, all through the show season as a hen, and when breeding time came round I put him up for a hen, but he objected. Then I knew that he was a "real gentleman." I also had a green marked bird about two years ago that I sent out along with the ladies. I could have sold this bird to a well-known judge for a hen. So if a judge is taken in with a young bird, what about a novice, for I was in the novices then? This is my first year out among the champions; looks as though they were afraid of me. Mr. Morley goes on to say such disgraceful practices they have never stooped to indulge in. Then he takes my part and says that if it be that I have suffered martyrdom for the society, even good men (like myself), with high ideals and noble characters, have done this in the past. You seem to be dreaming, John; though men of the past have suffered martyrdom for their cause, I don't think they were Canary keepers. He tries to make out that I am working contrary to the rules and regulations of the society. No, my friend, it is just the reverse. I and my friends, Mr. Jenkinson and Mr. Firth, have admitted our folly, and the Council have rewarded us accordingly, and given us an extra stroke for the others! Then he goes on to say that I was always suspected by the society (which he knows is a lie), or they might have accepted my generous offer of 10s. to be entrusted as both secretary and treasurer. I should just like to explain this matter very plainly indeed. Now I was one of the first men to start our Cage Bird Society at Skelmanthorpe, and I don't think anybody will contradict me when I say that I was the best worker in the movement and did more work all the year round than any man in the society. After about two years' nice running, things seemed to clog a little, for reasons well known locally. It was because of the conditions prevailing that I then said by way of a joke and sarcasm that I would give 10s. to be the secretary under those conditions, which I thought wanted altering, and which, of course, got altered. Mr. Morley goes on to say that our delegates form part of the Council. Yes, I know that they form part of the Council, and I also know that they were both going to do all they could to crush all our statements. I don't know much about "acrobatic statements" (which Mr. Morley mentions); I am dealing with good solid facts. Then my friend goes on to say that they send men to the Council meeting not to hear what I have to say, but because they are interested in the Fancy. Why do they send two delegates when the case is going on, and never above one at an ordinary meeting, and then they don't attend one meeting in twelve at the most? Mr. Morley says that I had every opportunity of proving these men guilty. That is not true, for I could not possibly go on any condition whatever that day. Then, if I could, I hardly dare, for, as I have said before, these men were, I believe, dangerous. I know for a fact that one of them came home with a broken leg. I think that ought to be ample evidence enough to show that they were dangerous. Then, again, Mr. Hill, the Y.U. secretary, overlooked three persons in the matter, and two out of the three would have assisted me against these inconsistent people. I should like to know if speaking the truth is cowardly? In conclusion, for the third time of asking, will you all be men and speak the truth and go in peace and sin no more? There is just one other little matter, and that is, will a certain red-haired man when he is speaking to me, not do so with oaths and cursing, and ask his wife not to do likewise? I hope all are well satisfied with these plain, simple explanations.

HENRY KAYE.

SIR,—A regular reader of CAGE BIRDS for the last six years, I have read with interest the correspondence under the heading of "Scandal at Skelmanthorpe." I feel that in justice to readers I must say a little on behalf of the men who have been suspended, but, in particular, Mr. Henry Kaye. I may add that I have known all the parties concerned from youth upwards. It appears, from reading the correspondence, that there has been a regular practice of changing birds for show purposes. According to Mr. Kaye's letter, he has absolute proof of what he writes about, and I fail to see why the council cannot give him another hearing and allow him to bring his proofs forward. I see the secretary at Skelmanthorpe says that Mr. Kaye was "always suspected" by the society, and wishes to know his motive for offering to perform the duties of secretary and treasurer for a small salary. As one who knows Mr. Kaye, and his love of the Fancy, I say his motive was purely for the good of the society, as he is always willing to sacrifice his time for the benefit of the Fancy, and as a true lover of the birds. I may say that I have had dealings with Mr. Kaye, and have always found him upright in his transactions. As regards showing a cock for a hen, surely this is not a crime. I have known a judge make the same mistake, in fact the bird was awarded a prize at a well-known show by another very capable judge, but unfortunately the hen commenced to sing and was disqualified. It appears that the Skelmanthorpe delegates sat on the council while the case was being tried. Surely this is not British justice. In conclusion, I must say I very much regret that such practices should have occurred, knowing that the very best of birds have been, and are at the present time, bred at Skelmanthorpe, as several of the most successful exhibitors can testify.

Suggested Society and Show for Mid-Rhondda.

SIR,—I was pleased on opening CAGE BIRDS to see "Interested's" letter re a suggested show for Mid-Rhondda. I am sure if cage bird fanciers would only meet together a very good society could be formed. Would "Interested" call a meeting, say, at Tonypandy, or where most suitable?

ANOTHER INTERESTED ONE.

SIR,—In reply to "Interested" in last week's CAGE BIRDS, I should like to see a Cage Bird Society for the Rhondda Valley, as it is a grand centre in which to hold a show, with plenty of fanciers around. I hope to see the Tonypandy fanciers taking it up and calling a meeting.

GILFACH.

Wake up, Fanciers!

SIR,—There is an old saying, and a very true one, that there is always a fool in a crowd. But I think "A. R. Coe" will not have done CAGE BIRDS any harm; I think also he would be a lot better if he would mind his own business. CAGE BIRDS does not need to seek cheap advertisements, and I think the Preston and Flowers Defence Fund is for a very deserving case. We know very well if the prosecution (the R.S.P.C.A.) get the thin edge of the wedge in they will drive it home.

MANSFIELD.

SIR,—I cannot read the letter of your correspondent "A. R. Coe" without having a few words to say. A.R.C. seems to think the whole matter re Preston and Flowers is nothing but sickly nonsense, and hardly worth a comment. Would he tell us why he has lent himself to such an unworthy object? I should say only to advertise his petulant nature, of which he gives your readers full measure. He says that his opinion is that it has only been got up for journalistic purposes. A more dastardly accusation it would be impossible to make against a paper that has been so faithful to the class it caters for. We all know the advance the Fancy has made since the inception of CAGE BIRDS, which has been brought about by the information and advice it gives and the correspondence and co-operation of its readers. I am surprised such incoherent rambling as Mr. Coe's should have been put before readers, without it is the wish that they should see the class of people there are in the world. I am sure if such rambling statements were made in a court of justice the judge would have no option but to adjourn for an examination of the mental state of the mind of the man making them. I hope his friends have taken the advice given. If your correspondent A.R.C. only had the power to back his will, we might all get our "marching orders." He seems to have a great amount of love for the poor working man! We can understand he would do something desperate if only he had the power. I hope other readers will have a word to say. I am pleased to say I got the "Annual" last week, and I consider it a marvel.

WALTER CONNELL.

SIR,—Mr. A. R. Coe's letter would be a disgrace to any respectable person, because of the vile and false insinuations, couched in most objectionable language, which he makes against CAGE BIRDS. He says birds are kept by rich and poor alike; that is an incontrovertible fact, but it will be admitted by most people that the poorer classes are more vitally interested in the hobby, and are its chief supporters. How he can bring the charge of writing "Socialistic nonsense" against Mr. Elkerton for merely stating that fanciers were oppressed by the present bird laws, and that richer folk were allowed to pursue their really cruel sports of fox-hunting and pheasant-slaughter unmolested, is more than I can understand. Surely no one can deny that Mr. E.'s statements are true, and that the British Bird Fancy, which offers harmless recreation to countless numbers of working men, is threatened with the possibility of unreasonable interference from any prejudiced magistrate who cares to fine and punish bird-keepers, none of whom will be really safe if that power is not removed. I hope (with Mr. E. and Mr. Bryden, in the April 2nd issue) that fanciers will make a stand against this tyranny, and, as can be seen by their liberal contributions to the fund, they are doing so with a right good will. I wish CAGE BIRDS (which I have taken since I was thirteen) the best of luck and the ever-increasing circulation it deserves.

What is a Dark Mule?

SIR,—Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper, as a novice exhibitor in Mules. Being at Menai Bridge Easter Show, I noticed the winner in the dark Mule class with a white mark on the back of the neck, and the second prize winner with a white spot under its beak. Are these the birds to win in a dark Mule class? On drawing the judge's attention to it, he said it was no harm. I was at Manchester Show last October, and I noticed birds in the dark Mule class with white spots on them were left without a card.

What is the Youngster's Name?

SIR,—Perhaps it would be interesting to CAGE BIRD readers to learn that I caught here at Woking, Surrey, on March 30th, a fully-fledged young bird. I am unable to identify its species. It is very tame, and I am hand-feeding it. It is puzzling, as I caught it in one of the main streets here, and heard it chirping. It is a large brown bird, with a speckled breast, of the size and stamp of a Greenfinch, with a similar beak, but larger. This is very early for young birds, is it not?

The Midland Counties Yorkshire C.C.

SIR,—In reply to your correspondent A. Mansell, I have pleasure in informing him that the above club is still in existence, and will, I hope, continue the good work done during the past season. Unfortunately, as I have been away from home a great deal lately, matters are not quite so forward as otherwise they would have been, but if your correspondent continues the same diligent student of your columns as hitherto, he will doubtless discover in the course of two or three weeks the information he is so anxious to possess.

A New Cage Bird Society for Chesterfield and District.

SIR,—There was a good number of cage bird fanciers present on March 26 at the Queen's Head, Chesterfield, where we decided to form a Cage Bird Society. The next meeting will be on Saturday, April 23rd, at 7.30. The agenda is: Election of officers and committee and other important business, radins, etc. We should like all the novices and beginners, as well as older fanciers to come and take part. If any fancier in the district would like to join and cannot get to the meeting, he can have all particulars if he will write to me. We had just a score of fanciers present, and we look like having a very strong society. It was unanimously felt that after a little discussion we had better elect officers, etc., at the next meeting. Now, we should welcome fresh faces, so don't be shy. The club room is separate from the house. Don't forget, Queen's Head, Gluman Gate, April 23.

Does the Roller Canary Need Smartening in Appearance?

SIR,—As one who has bred and kept Roller Canaries for a good many years, I was interested in the letters of Messrs. Rook and Ayscough, discussing the question whether the appearance of that sweetest singer of the Canary family can be improved without any marked deterioration in vocal powers. A year or two ago, when lecturing before the Inverness O.A. on the Roller Canary, I detailed the results of some experiments tried in the direction indicated. From Seifert hens of high class, personally imported from Germany, and cocks of a good Trute strain, I commenced the experiment by selecting the largest and most presentable-looking cocks, none of which, however, were at all striking in form or colour, though as singers, excellent. The best of the hens I mated with Norwich cocks, as yellow as I could get them, and the cocks were paired up with yellow Yorkshire hens, good slim ones. So far as appearance went, the progeny of the Roller-Yorkshire cross were not greatly distinguishable from ordinary Yorkshires, except that they were smaller than good specimens should be. The progeny of the Norwich cross lacked distinction in appearance, and the increase in size was less than one would have expected. In regard to singing qualities, the birds bred from the Yorkies were decidedly superior to those with Norwich blood, in fact greatly superior. Some of those of the Norwich stock were loud and free singers, but few of them had the sustained roll of the genuine German bird, and a number developed notes of a harsh and chopping character. By crossing the German-Norwich with the German-Yorkshire, a fairly big bird was got, but there was a lack of form, most of the youngsters being a bit bunchy-looking. Mating the Roller-Yorkshires with pure Seifert stock brought smaller birds, of course, but on the whole shapely and good in colour, with practically as high vocal powers as the average Roller Canary. Under a "schoolmaster" many of the cocks beame really good singers, so that, so far as my experience goes, the introduction of Yorkshire blood proved a decided success. It seems impossible to get the German breeeers to pay any attention to the appearance of the Roller Canary, though it is obvious that with the smallest amount of selection the present type could be much improved, even without the use of any but Seifert or Trute birds of the true pedigree. It would undoubtedly give an impetus to the Roller fancy, because a showy-looking singing Canary would be more popular than a singing Canary with the unattractive appearance of the little, shapeless, colourless Rollers which now reach us from Germany. Once the German breeder realises that there is money to be made by the modification in type, no doubt it will become an accomplished fact, and certainly it will give a new lease of popularity to the delightful little singer, whose outward charms fall so far short of his wonderful range of song.

A Self-shutting Door Device.

SIR,—Seeing the self-closing door device in "Illustrated Ideas" in CAGE BIRDS of February 19, I send this one, which I think is an improvement; and it would look much neater. It will be seen from the sketch that the weight is out of the way, and would not be caught by anyone passing the door; and it would not be knocking against the door when the door is opened or shut, and thus destroy the paint on the door. It is a cheap device, and if desired, pulleys could he used instead of bobbins. The weight D could be made of an old sash weight or a piece of old lead water piping. A is the bracket for screwing to door, showing cord threaded through hole at top. B is plan and elevation of bracket with bobbin attached for screwing to framework of door. C is the bobbin with screw for screwing to framework of door, and D is the weight referred to above.

C. EMBURY.

A Word to Sellers of Canaries.

SIR,—I should like to express my thoughts to fanciers, especially those who breed a large number of Canaries each year, and make use of CAGE BIRDS for selling their surplus stock. I make my remarks to those adopting flattering advertisements to draw the novice: "Clear Yellow Norwich cock, winner of first and special, 10s." A friend of mine sent for a bird advertised in this way and sent deposit to the Editor, which the seller was quite willing for him to do. When the bird arrived it was a Buff, and not as advertised. Now after corresponding and waiting, this means that the would-be purchaser has no bird, because this is not the bird he wants, and he sends it back; and at the least it has cost him 1s. 4d. to look at the bird. There is still another point, where a man advertises matched pairs for 10s., 12s. 6d., 15s., fit for keen competition. Now a novice who has been keeping birds, say, one year or three years, may have sold out at the rate of cock, 5s., hens 2s. 6d. He sends for a pair for 12s. 6d. (such as I was asked to have a look at) supposed to be yellow cock and buff hen; both birds were buffs. This novice, in disgust, declares he will never send for any more birds. We must encourage the novice, or the Fancy will die down. I would urge sellers, when sending birds, to send them as advertised (colour and sex). If not, the time is coming when this kind of thing will have a very bad effect on the sales.

Why do Hens Refuse to Feed their Offspring?

SIR,—You must not feed your hens into high condition too quickly, but do it gradually; you must not over-do it. If a bird is in too high condition it will lay a clutch of eggs and sit for 14 days; by that time eggs are forming again, and that is the reason the hens do not feed their young. Now let that hen set for 10 or 12 days, then transfer the eggs, if good, to another hen, and let No. 1 hen go nest again. Feed her on nothing but plain Spanish Canary seed, until the young are due to hatch, and then a little egg food in the morning may be given, and bread soaked in milk in the afternoon. Then it is 10 to 1 that hen will feed all right. That is my experience, and I have proved it right. I have not lost a young one through hens not feeding for several years, and generally have six pairs up.

H. WILLIAMS.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—Mr. C. still disputes my statement, viz., that it is impossible for any netter to tie 1,500 knots per hour. Well, as I have stated before, I have done it, and my brother has tied 1,600 round the same net in an hour—half-mesh. Also I have done three rabbit nets, 22 by 20, in an hour. I said nothing about 22in.-20in. What use would a rabbit-net of that size be when stretched over a pole? Mr. C. ought to know better having had thousands of tons through his hands. Also 22 knots by 20 means 1,320 in the three nets. As you say you have had 40 years' experience, why did not you reply to "Amateur's" correspondence and give him the information he asked, and not wait until someone else did, and then find fault with him and dispute the statements? Perhaps you will give CAGE BIRDS readers this information, which will be useful for those who are making their own nets—how much netting they will have to do to have the bird nets 12 yards long when armed to take 5, 6 or 7ft. staves, also a better way to arm them than my information gives. Seeing that you have made thousands of tons of netting (query, machine made), we might be able to get something worth knowing. Seeing that you can buy 1 yard long and 7 feet deep for 3d., making nets by hand is not a very highly paid job.

NETTER.

The Making of Birdlime.

SIR,—Mr. H. Lawton wants to warm the birdlime up again, and add a little more linseed oil. When it is too stiff add more oil; if too soft, add more resin. It takes a little gauging to get it just right to catch birds, but when properly made it will hold any British bird, if it touches the twig, and it keeps for years.

G. TURNEY.

SIR,—I see a fancier wishes to know the way to make birdlime. My method is as follows: First get a copper pot, then put in one-third the quantity of linseed oil that the pot will hold to allow for boiling, then put on a bright fire (no flames), stirring all the while until a dense yellow smoke issues—perhaps for one hour and a half or two hours. Have a jug of water at hand, dropping a little off your stick into the jug. Test the drop between your finger and thumb until you get it the required stiffness. When ready pour the lime into a bucket of water, stretching it with your hands until it is like elastic. If it is good lime it will float on the top of the water; if not boiled long enough it will spread all over the water, sticking to the sides of the bucket. To darken the lime you can add two tablespoonfuls of archangel tar (in the oil, of course), as on bright days the birds fight shy if the lime is too light-coloured. I have tried the resin, but I think it tends to take the stickiness out of the oil. Put the lime in lever lid syrup tins, where it will keep for months. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success.

BIRD CATCHER.

The Making of Egg Food.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. E. Godry respecting my mincing machine, they are to be had at any ironmonger's, etc. The price ranges from 3s. 6d., according to size, and they are supplied with interchangeable circular plates, with different sized punched holes. I had an extra plate made (like my friend up north), viz., a sieve. I use the middle size plate for cracking hemp for youngsters. It is easy to use it and place any plate in position; it is a most simple machine. The egg food comes out like Canary seed, and is far better than by using the sieve (put through with a knive, etc.). The birds eat it greedily. You can take the machine to pieces to be cleaned. It is very strongly made. The largest size plate is very handy for the wife for domestic use. It is not necessary to send to England, for you can procure the machines in Paris, as I saw them in the shops there while over last year. But I forget at the present moment the exact place. I am very glad indeed to hear of a foreign fancier taking an interest in the making of egg food. I also assure readers that if they only give the above method a trial, the food will amply repay them in rearing larger birds and stronger in every way. Any child can work the machine. Just simply put the egg and bread on top, then turn the handle like a barrel organ, and lo! out comes the egg food. My children always gather round when I am making any and generally make a grab for some, for they say it is like eating sponge cake. I conclude this epistle by hoping fanciers in general will have a most successful season and give three cheers for the outcome of a champion egg food, made under pure condition. Just another word, it is not a patent, and I hope to hear of other fanciers using same to their satisfaction.

GEO. WILSON.

(The mincing machines mentioned by Mr. Wilson are sold at the majority of ironmongery stores for the purposes of cutting up fruits for mince-meat and meat for hashes, sausages, etc. They are used by a great number of bird-keepers for grinding up biscuits, eggs, seed, etc.—EDITOR.)

The Thrush which Bred in a Cage.

SIR,—You may be interested to hear that my cock Thrush that bred in a cage has gone over to the great majority, the outcome of an accident that happened several years ago to one of his legs. A tumour afterwards grew on the leg. This I removed each year, but each season it grew, and now it has taken the bird off. He was singing the day before he died. We had him as a nestling in 1905. We still have the hen, but she appears a bit down in the mouth—I mean beak—since "cocky" went his way. We also have the hen Blackbird in fine trim, and two wild-caught Thrushes, in good condition and steady, but they do not sing yet. Nearly all the experts declare they are cocks. Am just a wee bit doubtful myself, but I hope for the best, and am keeping a few pairs of Yorkshires to console myself. Many fanciers say that Thrushes cast their so-called shank bone every three years, but after close observation extending over several years I more than doubt that statement. They do something that the casual observer might easily mistake for the removal of the shank bone, but it would take me too long to explain this. So allow me to conclude by wishing CAGE BIRDS yet further success.

The Lizard Canary in the North.

SIR,—I fully expected that some abler pen than mine would have replied to Mr. Fuller's and Mr. Rukin's letters re the Lizard Canary in the north. Mr. Fuller says: "The northern fanciers want a Lizard Club." Well, I think it is the only way to protect the interests of the Lizard up here, as evidently the L. and L.F.A. do not intend to give us a chance, although they have been asked to give their patronage to my society's show (Sunderland) on several occasions, and (as Mr. Rukin says about Notts and London), it is only by sending out birds to these shows that they get known. What about the north? Do we not want as much encouragement as other districts? Even if we do put classes on for Lizards, the members of the L. and L.F.A. do not send any birds. Mr. Rukin says that we do not cater for Lancashires. Has a man with a love for Lizards to keep the other variety as well? Are clubs who offer classes for Lizards also bound to give them for Lancashires? I think the Lizard Club to foster the variety ought to give their support to any club that gives classes for Lizards, as they are, as a rule, found in the A.O.V., and it should be a specialist club's duty to remedy this. I am pleased to say that the Lizard Fancy is booming here, several fanciers having taken up the variety, including myself, and I consider the prospects good. I hope these few remarks will be taken in the friendly spirit in which they are written, and if any good accrues to the Lizard Canary through this controversy I for one shall be very glad. In conclusion, I wish Mr. Fuller and Mr. Rukin a prosperous breeding season, and hope that they will see their way to send a good few entries up north in the future.

GEORGE DAVIDSON.

The Type of the Lancashire Canary.

SIR,—It would have given me greater pleasure to have replied to "Horseshoo" had he not used a "nom-de-plume." I thank him for the compliment he pays me as a judge of birds other than Lancashires, and will say unhesitatingly that could I judge Lancashires only I do not think the Rochdale Committee would year by year engage my services as they have done, for the simple reason it would be absurd to incur the expense of bringing a judge from a distance of over 200 miles to judge twelve classes of Lancashires. This, apart from any question of capability, would doubtless settle the question. Beyond this I declino to enter into a discussion with "Horseshoo" or any other man as to my capability, but prefer to leave my reputation as an All-England judge of over twenty-two years' standing to speak for itself. I put down the two birds shown by Mr. Collinge because, in my opinion, they exhibited undoubted signs of the Norwich Crest cross, and Mr. Collinge admitted I was right, but he resented my action in putting his birds out of competition, and never submitted his Lancashires to my judgment again, although he did his Norwich Crests and Crestbreds. I agree with "Horseshoe" that Mr. Collinge most certainly did know a Lancashire. But "Horseshoe's" letter will not further the question of "the type of the Lancashire Canary"; it is too intensely personal. Let us leave persons and stick to the birds. My contention is that birds which show the finish of the Norwich Crest are not Lancashires. One has to remember, however, that when a bird is very heavy and long in its coppy it must of necessity droop somewhat. The short feathered ones seldom droop, but these are not the sort we want. Length and width of feather are valuable properties, and providing the headgear breaks properly behing the eye, and has the correct finish of back skull, with the body properties up to standard, that bird should in my opinion be given its place in the prize-list. When the headgear droops all round it loses its coppy character and becomes a crest, and birds so adorned should be passed as "wrong class." It is on this principle I have always endeavoured to act, and I believe my actions have met with the approval of those most concerned. If not, I can hardly believe that both the L.L.F.A. and the L.C.A. would have put me on their list of judges.

C. A. HOUSE.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. House in your issue of the 26th, he says I have upheld his decisions. Now, I don't think so. Has he forgotten the fight we had in "Fur and Feather"? He also says Rochdale friends know what constitutes a Lancashire. Who says they do not? But I say they have done more harm to the Lancashire bird than all the other breeds in the country. No breeders have used as many crested bred birds as our Rochdale friends, and you know it, Mr. H. Now, as to my old friend, John Garner, has any one seen him breed or show a Coppy with a crest all round its head? Has any one seen one in his bird-room? I don't think they have. As for me or any one else teaching Mr. Garner how to breed Lancashires, it is simply rot. I think Mr. Garner as a breeder is second to none. I was very much amused last week, being in a well-known breeder and exhibitor's room, one of the best we have, to hear him say he had been getting some birds from Mr. Garner to improve his stock. Now I know where his other stock came from in the beginning, and he has done a lot of winning under Mr. House and Mr. Garner. I asked him what he was after, and he said he wanted to improve them, and it would take him two years to do it, as the old ones did not suit him. Well, I smiled to myself and thought of Mr. House. Here is an exhibitor who is at the top of the tree and keeps on winning year after year, and yet is not satisfied with his show birds. So something must be wrong with the Lancashire or the judges. I may say there are no sour grapes or a green-eyed monster in me. Let us have the right birds in the right place, and I would like to know if the standard says the Coppy must go round the head like on the bird shown by Mr. Adams. Does that come nearest to the acknowledged standard of the breed? Mr. House goes on to say, "have I forgotten." I forget nothing where the Lancashire is concerned. I may tell him I have no ambition to show at Rochdale or anywhere else, as I don't breed or keep birds for what I can get out of them. I told Mr. House years ago I would not show until I had confidence in the judges, and I think I have kept my word. I may tell him that Mr. Compston was wholly responsible for the standard, and Mr. Compston showed it me before any one else saw it, and let me tell him that if it had not been for me he would not have got it out at the time. Yes, Mr. House, you were there, also Mr. Garner, and you were in favour of it. There were also other breeders there, and some did not like it, as you know. I must tell Mr. House that if he was only half as keen after the Crested blood in the Lancashire as he is after the paint in the Lizard, it would be a lot better, as there is not a quarter of the painting done that there used to be. I say again, that if a judge is appointed to judge, he should judge to the standard, or what is the use of making a standard? I say the specialist clubs should see to it; or what is the use of being a club? Remember it costs a lot of money to attend meeting after meeting, not but what I enjoy going to meet old friends year after year, but nothing is done to advance the Lancashire. As a friend of mine said to me last week, the exhibitors are the men that pay the piper, and he thought they had a right to call the tune, and not let the judges undo everything we do at the club meetings. So, Mr. House, help a lot of good lads to stamp the Norwich out of the Lancashire classes. In reply to Mr. Rukin, will he kindly publish the old standard produced by Mr. Compston and the so-called new one got out by Messrs. Garner, Vickers and Buckley?

E. FULLER.

[We must ask our correspondents to be good enough to leave the personal element out of their letters. We think there should be plenty of scope for discussion on the Lancashire Canary without any "hammering" of fanciers themselves, who doubtless all have the good of the variety at heart.—EDITOR.]

Several Letters unavoidably held over.

BRITISH ROLLER C.C.

Result of young bird competition, champion section: 1, F. J. Randall, 60 points; 2, A. Foulds, 41; 3, Massey and Ridings, 35; 4, J. H. Willows, 26; 5, A. Percival, 17; 6, F. E. Fisher and T. Wilsdon with 15, divided. Novice section: 1, A. Harper, 66 points; 2, T. J. Smith, 36; 3, A. G. Pattison, 30; 4, G. Cole, 19; 5, J. A. Ives, 12; 6, W. Holland and N. Sagar with 10, divided. In the champion section Messrs. Cole and Pattisou scored 21 points each; as there had been a misunderstanding as regards the working of the definition of novice, both these gentlemen very generously decided to forego their points so as to avoid dissatisfaction as they had won two prizes and they did not want to take any advantage through the misunderstanding. The competition was a big success as regards filling the classes at the different shows, with the exception of the Palace. A lot of members had not followed the points scored, with the result they missed winning prizes, and others no doubt could have improved their position. It is to be hoped that in the next competition the points will be followed more keenly.—J. W. NORRIS.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Meeting held at Spencer Hall, on March 31st. In the absence of Mr. Gardner, Mr. Johnson presided. Several new members were elected, namely, Messrs. Gambrill, Finch and Kent, and the following were nominated for membership: Messrs. Staines, Spencer, and Haste. This makes eleven new members since January. The secretary read the report of pair show, showing a profit of £1 11s. 6d. After this the members listened to a lecture on "Mule Breeding," by Mr. G. E. Weston. It was a most useful and interesting one to all, and no doubt will be the means of some members obtaining better results this season. They learnt several new tips in regard to this branch of the Fancy. The lecture was greatly appreciated by all, including several visitors, though not strangers. It is getting quite a common thing lately, by the way, to see some well-known fanciers amongst us. We are always ready to welcome new members, if there should be any fanciers desirous of joining. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Weston brought this most enjoyable evening to a close. Will members kindly remember that their annual subscriptions were due on January 1st.—CHAS. W. LAW, Hon. Sec.

HULL C.B.S.

The most successful show of pairs for Mule and Hybrid breeding ever held by the society took place on April 4th, when 31 pairs were staged in two classes. Mr. Geo. Harland, who officiated as judge, had a very hard task, some grand pairs being on view, which, with a bit of luck during the coming breeding season, should do their fortunate owners some good, by producing a few first prize winners. The awards seemed to give every satisfaction.

PARTICK AND DISTRICT C.B.C.

Monthly British bird show and meeting held in the Trades' Hall, Anderson Street, Partick, on April 1st, Mr. Anderson presiding over a large turn-out of members. It was agreed to hold our first feather show on July 9th; classification to be same as last year, including two extra classes for Yorkshires. The following members gave notice of specials: Messrs. Graham, Hamilton, Anderson, Webster, Aitkenhead, which were allocated as follows: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, best birds in hall. During the meeting Mr. Matthew Craig had got through his judging, and the members adjourned to the large hall to see the exhibits. After having a good look round members thought that Mr. Craig had done his duty very well indeed.

ALNWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

First table show of British birds and pairs held in the Station Temperance Hotel, on March 29th, when some good birds faced the judge, Mr. R. Luke (Chevington Drift), whose awards gave every satisfaction. We did not hear a single grumble either in the room or outside. This being "Bob Luke's" first "judging job," we must say he did his work well. The Canary pairs especially took some sorting out.

Mule and Hybrid Breeding and How to Go About It.

By J. S. COOPER (Matlock).

Don't forget a little egg-food once a day when you catch any of the birds on good terms as regards pairing, but don't force them too much, rather let Nature have its course. Prepare egg-food as follows: one egg (three days old) boiled for from fifteen to twenty minutes—no more. When it is cold, get a double quantity of home-made bread, two days old, without the crust, and don't bother if you have to eat that yourself; then hold it under a running water-tap till just soaked through, after which squeeze all you can out of it, when it is quite spongy. Then you can chop the egg, or put it through a mill altogether. Mix in a little maw seed and then it is ready for use. Always use either glass or earthenware vessels for same. You can easily make them a dainty morsel by adding a little blight off rose trees, or grubs off vegetables, and if you come across any decayed leaves on the fruit trees (especially the plum tree), give those too. You will find that common dock is troubled with these little grubs; take them as they are, leaf or leaves altogether; either Mr. Goldie or Mrs. Bullie will soon find them, if their friends don't.

Now, you must have a room apart from aviary, either inside or adjoining the house. You can have about half-a-dozen good, large Sib-Canaries of the Norwich type for foster-mothers, in case you have some fertilised eggs, but these birds should be kept out of hearing of those in the aviary. You can either run a Goldfinch with them or, as I prefer, two good large cock Bullies. These should be run into large flight cages all together; then pair up in double-breeders or the proper Hybrid breeding cage about the middle of April. Put two Canaries with one cock Bullie. By putting in the wire slide you will keep the hens from pulling at one another, and at the same time he will show you his favourite mate. Then you can draw one wire slide, and put a wood or zinc slide in, shutting the hen off which Mr. Bullie does not fancy. Then introduce a good large earthenware nest-pan, ready lined, and nesting material, dusting the pan with fresh insect powder.

Concerning the Goldie.

The other hens you can run the Goldie with, to try for a clear Mule, or you can try any of the Finches out of the aviary, and work on the same lines as above-mentioned. Don't forget Mr. Goldie, if he is your favourite. It is wise to shut him off at night when the hen is about to lay, till you have got the egg. You take the egg out and put a china dummy egg in its place, and so for every one you take, placing the real eggs carefully in a box containing bran. Be careful not to knock them at all. They must be turned over every day till the third egg is laid. Then you can shut the Finch off and return the eggs for incubation, and if you choose you can introduce him to other hens, if they are not engaged sitting on eggs from the aviary.

While the incubating is going on, feed with good sound Spanish Canary seed as a staple food, but let the Finches have an unlimited supply of the various sorts that I have mentioned, and do not forget the bath as well as fresh water every morning. By working in this way you will stand a good chance of a Bullie Canary or a light Mule. But don't neglect your odd hens by letting them sit too long on unfertile eggs, but always try and have one or the other on a nest. You will be able to tell if eggs are fertile by holding them up between thumb and finger, where there is a good light, or when you are standing facing the sun, when they have been incubated for six or seven days. An experienced person can tell when the egg is lying in the nest, but when he gets the egg to the light if it is unfertile it is quite clear, and if fertile dull, and by about the tenth day it will be much darker. When you have any of these fertile eggs return them to the nest and give another dust of insect powder. Don't disturb them afterwards.

Egg-food, etc.

Supply a little egg-food on the thirteenth day and a little hemp, as British birds hatch mostly under the fourteen days of incubation. In case the foster mother does not take to feeding the young, chop up a little green-food and mix it with the egg-food; but don't give too much, as the young are better without it till they are six or seven days old. Then you can give a liberal supply of the various seeds and green foods that I have mentioned. Now will be the time for those dandelion heads just before they blow. Chickweed is also seeding, and this will give them an appetite and make them thrive. When the young are about three or four days old introduce the bath, but don't leave it on too long for the first time or two. When they get to be ten or twelve days old, let the hen have a free use of it. At this stage give another dust with insect powder, and have perches close to nest in case one of the birds should over-balance when exercising its wings, as if they once get on to the bottom of the cage they very seldom get in again, and then they don't get brooding enough to keep them warm at night, and so sometimes die. It very often happens, too, to the strongest bird, and as a rule the cock bird, the first out of nest.

As soon as the young begin to pick about for themselves mix fresh crushed hemp in with egg-food, and put in a shallow pot on cage bottom. Stop all green-food when they can properly feed themselves, and gradually wean them off the egg-food and get them on to Spratt's Cod Liver Oil food with plenty of crushed seeds of various kinds and colour-food. This last you can mix in with the Spratt's Cod Liver Oil food. Give a liberal supply of it right through the moult. Then you will have made the best of your luck. Do not forget a liberal supply of the bath after they are about five or six weeks old; this will be a great help towards getting their plumage close, bright and neat.

On the Show Bench.

If you have one or two that you would like to try on the show bench, get them into a large flight cage in pairs if they will agree, when they are about seven or eight weeks old, and let them have the Cod Liver Oil food (one teaspoonful each) made a nice salmon colour with colour-food. When through moult stop colour-feeding so strongly, and give only every other day. You can run them into show cages now and again, and let them have plenty of the wild seed and blight, etc., mentioned above. The Norwich pattern show cage painted inside a nice rich holly green with a good gloss on, and black outside, is very suitable for Hybrids.

The aviary illustrated on page 329 is alright if you happen to be your own landlord. If not, I prefer the wood structure, in case I wish to remove it any time. The aviary depicted is built on the same lines as that mentioned at the commencement as regards the roof, floor, and back wall, if not of brick. When building them you can save a little expense by putting between every three or four courses a piece of galvanised hoop iron bedded in mortar; these should run from end to end of the wall. By doing this you can have a single brick wall instead of double. The space showing under the netting at the front is obscure glass, the same as in the door and above. The glass on the roof can be whitewashed in the spring to make the heat of the sun less severe in the mid-day. Or blinds can be arranged to slide on cords close to the roof. This can be done by putting rings in each side about twelve inches apart for the cord to work through. There is a blind at each side of the door, fixed behind a weather board which will keep it dry when it is not in use; these can be dropped down when the weather is very severe, or when you are feeding your stock. Or it serves when catching any birds; for this purpose I like a net on a light stick, something like an ordinary fisherman's landing net.

HINTS TO NOVICE BREEDERS OF THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD

A Lecture given by Mr. A. W. Curtis before the Wimbledon C.B.S. on April 4.

At the conclusion of the judging competition held by the society on April 4th, Mr. A. W. Curtis gave a lecture on "Hints to Novice Breeders of Plainhead Norwich," thus filling a gap caused by the absence through indisposition of Mr. R. L. Crisp, who should have made a few remarks on the Yorkshire Canary.

Gaining Knowledge.

Addressing his remarks chiefly to novices, Mr. Curtis said he advised those just starting in the Fancy to visit a few rooms belonging to prominent breeders with the object of gaining knowledge as to the most suitable cages to buy or make. In this matter, he said, observation should be of great assistance, but he gave many valuable and practical hints as to details tending to the comfort and health of the birds, such as the advantage of removable fronts and perches, sand trays, etc. He advised the novice wherever possible to use good roomy breeding cages, mentioning that he himself used the two compartment or double breeder, 2ft. 9ins. in length, 1ft. 3ins. in height, and 11ins. in depth, with two sliding divisions for the centre, one being dark and the other half wood and half wire—the latter for use when pairing up, so that cock and hen could see and feed each other through the wires, and also so that when the young were first shut off the old ones could feed them. One advantage of these cages is that no nursery cages are required, and the young brood can be allowed half the breeding cage till old enough to be put into the flight cage.

The flight cage he recommended to be about twice the length of the breeding cage, his own being about 5ft. 8ins. in length, and 1ft. 6ins. in height. This would be found very handy to fly hens during the winter months.

Breeding Cage Matters.

Coming to some important items in connection with the breeding cages, he dwelt upon the size of the perches, which should be large enough for a hen to be able to steady herself up and not so large that she could not get a good grip of it. He had always found one from ⅛in. to ⅝in. width by ⅝in. to ⅛in. in thickness to answer very well. The top should be slightly rounded off and the sharp edges just planed off at the bottom. The perches should be fixed an inch clear of the nest pans on each side, that is to say, should the pan be 5 inches in diameter, the perches should be fixed 7 inches apart.

In fixing a perch, care should be taken that there is about a quarter of an inch clear between the end of the perch and the back of the cage to prevent lodgment of red-mite. The pin can project at the end far enough to hold it in position.

With regard to the position of the nest pan, it should be hung so that the top edge is about an inch above the top of the perches. The wire bracket which carries the nest pan should be hung to the back of the cage on a small brass cup hook, which was far better and neater than screws or nails.

It was most important to thoroughly cleanse and overhaul the cages before commencing breeding operations; every hole and crevice should be properly stopped, and the whole painted out with good lead and oils. Where cages were hung on walls the backs should not touch the walls, a screw turned in to the bottom of the cage to within half an inch of the head would prevent this, if the nails on which the cages were hung were far enough out to allow of the cage hanging half an inch clear of the wall. This would allow a passage of air at the back of the cage, and prevent the lodgment of red-mite.

The lecturer dealt amusingly with the difficulties of the raw recruit who rushes too hastily into bird breeding, and he advised the thoughtful novice with limited means to first join a society and by this means learn as much as possible how he should prepare to receive birds before he buys them. The making of his own cages he will find a very interesting pastime, while visits to shows and observation of the winning birds will give him an idea of the type of bird required and guide him when selecting his breeding pairs. To become a successful breeder and exhibitor took much longer than many imagined, and the novice need not be disappointed if at the end of his first season he had not succeeded in breeding a first-prize winner.

Pairing Birds.

Mr. Curtis gave hints as to the pairing of birds, and mentioned errors into which inexperienced novices could easily fall in the matter of double-buffing and double-yellowing. These things should not be attempted until more experience had been gained.

The birds a novice should select for stock purposes should have good bold heads and necks, two very essential points which should never be lost sight of; a Norwich Plainhead with a good, bold and well-shaped head and a well filled-in neck was almost sure to attract the judge's eye. Another quality necessary to the making of a good Norwich was that cobby body so often described but so difficult to maintain.

With regard to flights and tail, the lecturer said he liked to select a hen with them fairly short, for he found that a long-tailed hen seldom bred short-tailed youngsters. A hen with drooping wings should also be avoided. For stock pairs they should have good big birds, both cock and hen. He preferred birds as evenly balanced as possible, in possession of as many show points as possible, and the larger the better. He did not wish to be misunderstood to mean that size was his first consideration, for type and quality must never be lost sight of, nor was either of these of much use without the other. Type could only be maintained by the judicious pairing of two typical birds. If a novice at any time found he was losing in quality of feathers, then was the time to introduce double-yellow blood. The same remark applied to falling off in colour, or the introduction of a little green blood would occasionally assist in the maintenance of quality and colour of feather.

The novice likely to make the most successful fancier was the one blessed with the most patience and perseverance, said the lecturer, and he gave very interesting episodes from his own experience showing the necessity for this. Forethought and judgment were also required to make a successful exhibitor. Commenting on the indifference often displayed in staging matters, he urged the importance of showing birds in clean cages, of seeing that the perches in show cages were such as to enable the bird to balance itself properly, and of seeing that both perches and cages were as clean and neat as possible.

In the Courts.

CATCHING BIRDS IN THE CLOSE SEASON

At Yarmouth Police-court on March 31st, Geo. Thompson was summoned for having in his possession three recently caught wild birds.

Inspector Quigley, R.S.P.C.A., said that on Sunday, March 27th, he was on the North Denes with Detective Marshall near the Rifle Butts, and saw defendant with his son bird catching. Witness watched them for twenty minutes, during which time they caught one bird, placed it in a bag, and set their nets again. On seeing witness and the detective approaching defendant ran to a decoy bird which was secured to a stick with "braces," cut the string and the braces, and released the bird, which then flew away, but dropped, and witness saw it in the stubble. Witness then took possession of the bag, and found it contained three hen Linnets. Defendant was also using four decoy birds (Linnets) in cages. Witness told him he should report him for catching wild birds in the close season. Witness produced the whole of defendant's kit, and showed the magistrates the nets, decoy cage, and bag with stocking mouth in which the captured birds were placed. Defendant admitted he knew the close season began on March 1st, but he was endeavouring to get an honest living. With defendant's consent he released the captured Linnets, and told him to bring the four decoy birds in cages to the Court. These were not produced, and defendant said he had to sell them.

The Chairman said that catching birds was a lazy way of getting a living, and he was strong enough to gain a living properly. Defendant was ordered to pay 7s. 6d. costs, which he at once paid.

Inspector Quigley said it was left to the magistrates' discretion whether the nets were confiscated. He did not think defendant would repeat the offence during the close season.—The magistrates allowed defendant to carry them away with him, but warned him against using these nets.—"Eastern Evening News."

Bird Migration: One of Nature's Miracles.

By W. E. TESCHEMAKER, B.A.

Year by year, as the month of March comes round, the first of our migratory birds reach our shores, and one of Nature's greatest miracles is brought prominently before our notice. Already (March 27th) the Wryneck and the Wheatear have been reported from our S.E. counties, and I am expecting every day to see the Chiffchaff. The sight of the first migrant makes us involuntarily ask ourselves the question the philosopher asked so long ago—"Unde venis? quo vadis?" (Whence comest thou? whither goest thou?). This is a question to which ornithology has not as yet succeeded in giving a complete answer, and the subject is far too complex to be adequately treated in the short space at our disposal; nevertheless, it may be interesting to discuss a few of the conditions which probably influence migration.

Let us first distinguish between (1) spring migration and (2) autumn migration. We will take the latter first, because, coming first as it does in the life of a young bird, it is much the more interesting. We see the beginning of migration in the driving away of the young of almost all species of birds by the parents. Let us note that scarcity of food is apparently the root cause, though not the immediate cause, of autumn migration. The old birds have second broods to rear, and for that purpose they require the entire food supply of their immediate district: hence they drive the young away. The young now find themselves face to face with the first problem in their young lives, namely, where to find food. They cannot stay where they were bred, and if they go further afield they intrude upon the landed property of other adult pairs, so they begin to wander about the country and frequently gather together in small or large parties. Thus we can understand how it comes about that as early as the middle of July young Whitethroats, Garden Warblers, and Flycatchers begin to gather in large numbers along the whole of our S.E. and S. coasts. Here they often wait for a considerable time before making up their minds to launch themselves on their first crossing of the English Channel, and here we will leave them for the moment whilst we try to clear away a few preliminary difficulties.

Migrants and Non-migrants.

The first of these is, why should some species find it necessary to migrate, and others—apparently closely related to them—manage to exist without migration? For instance, the Whinchat migrates, and the Stonechat—a bird of apparently identical habits and similar constitution—remains with us throughout the winter.

The answer to this is probably that these two species are outwardly alike, but their requirements are not alike. Three men meet at a club: one, we will say, is a doctor, another is a journalist, and the third is a stockbroker. They are all dressed alike, nor could you tell by looking at them which belonged to which profession. Nevertheless, if the doctor tried to make a living by journalism he would probably starve, and vice versa, so would the journalist if he took on the doctor's job. In the same way we may be pretty sure that the Stonechat has methods of foraging for insects under gorse, etc., which are unknown to the Whinchat.

The Young Before the Old.

The autumnal migration of adult birds presents no great difficulties, because they know the way, but the well-attested fact that the young lead the way is one of the most remarkable problems connected with this subject, because the latter have had no previous experience of the route. There are three possible explanations of this matter. Amongst the migratory flights of young birds there are generally a few adults—probably birds which have not nested or which have lost their nests—and these may show the young the way. Or we may suppose that the young birds, after leaving the vicinity of their nest, fly in a haphazard way north, south, east or west, and find their way by experiment. It is just on this point that the recently adopted system of marking young birds in the nest with rings is likely to throw much further light in the immediate future. Already the experiments on this basis at Rossitten have yielded valuable results with regard to the migration of Hooded Crows and Storks, and the rings issued in this country by Mr. H. F. Witherby (Editor of the monthly magazine "British Birds") have afforded useful data as to the Black-headed Gull. It has been proved that at all events some young Woodcocks and Black-headed Gulls fly north after leaving their nesting haunts.

Further corroboration of this view may be found in the fact that there are undoubtedly a large number of stragglers from the main migration routes, and it has been suggested that these stragglers perish and never return in the spring. Thus every autumn some Yellow-browed Warblers are seen at Heligoland, a long way west of their usual line of migration, but they are not seen again in the spring flight. We must not forget, however, that the distribution of species is undergoing continual changes, as an instance of which we may take the recent extension of the range of the Starling northward and westward. The Starling now breeds in parts of Iceland and Russian Lapland, where it had never before been seen within the memory of man. The Blackstart, too, now breeds in parts of Germany where it was unknown a quarter of a century ago, and has become a regular winter visitor to our own coasts. It is evident that the extension of the range of any species can only be due to successful divergence from the ordinary migration routes.

Lastly, we may suppose that the young birds have inherited from countless generations of migrants not only a general sense of direction, but some vague knowledge of the route. Whether we accept this hypothesis or not, we must at all events admit that migratory birds have an actual and undoubted sense of direction. Last summer an interesting (though somewhat cruel) experiment was carried out with some Swallows which were captured on their nests in Cheshire and released in the Isle of Man. They all found their way home, and, by a comparison of the times of departure and arrival, it was ascertained that they must have flown at the rate of 40 miles an hour. As it is hardly likely that these particular Swallows had ever been over the route before, it is evident that they were able, without any hesitation or delay to ascertain the direction in which their homes lay, and the distance precludes the possibility that they could have done this by sight.

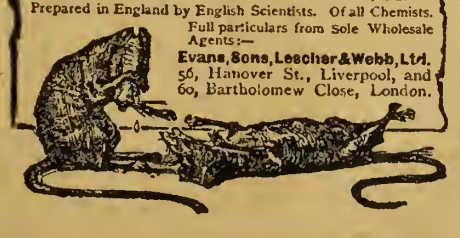
The Inherited Instinct.

We will now return to our young migrants which we left on the seacoast, making ready for their adventurous flight across the Channel, and we ask ourselves what is the impulse which induces an immature bird, which has never before seen the sea, to face the unknown perils of the passage. Some years since I was spending the last fortnight of September with some friends on the seacoast, and, as I had nothing to do except a little shooting and fishing, I amused myself by trying to disprove the oft-repeated statement that no man has ever seen any migrants actually leave our coasts. In this I was not successful, but still I was rewarded by some interesting data. All the Swallows that had been bred in the immediate neighbourhood had left except just four. The weather was fine: the north wind blew fresh and strong, and flights of Swallows passed south daily, but these four Swallows lingered, and the reason was obvious; they were two old birds, and a late brood of two young, which the parents could sometimes be seen feeding on the wing. I used to keep close watch on them by day, and every night I used to go out with a lantern to the old barn where they roosted and note if they were all there. How do you suppose that those four Swallows started on their migratory flight? Each left on a different day.

The reader who has grasped the significance of this observation understands more about the underlying causes of migration than some who have written books on the subject. He will realise that what we call the migratory instinct affects each individual separately; that it is partly a certain condition of bodily fitness and partly a state of mental emotion—and how strong the latter must be we can guess from the fact that in the above instance it induced a united family to break up into separate units. He will understand why the young birds and the unmated adults leave first (which has been a puzzle to many), namely, because, not being exhausted by the labours of rearing young, they are the first to attain to this condition of physical fitness. He will infer that the migrant does not wait for a favourable wind but that, when once the psychological moment has arrived, it stands not upon the order of its going: it goes!

Crossing the Sea.

We will now suppose that our young migrants are just starting to cross the Channel, and the interesting question arises—at what hour do they start? When migrating across terra firma it is well established that they fly by day and rest by night, but when crossing the seas there is some evidence that they fly by night, although I think this evidence should be received with some caution. A writer of some recent excellent articles on bird migration in the Mediterranean district says:—"They are normally over the central part of the sea during the nighttime," but I have myself seen the smaller migrants landing on the southern coast of France and Italy at all hours of the day. My observations during the past twelve years on the S. coast of Devon lead me to think that the migrants generally cross the English Channel in the very early hours of the morning. I generally hear the first Cuckoo about 8 a.m. Nevertheless, when there is a big rush of migrants, they may be seen landing on our S. Devon coast throughout the morning and early afternoon.



On one point there seems little doubt, namely, that when the migrants reach the sea they pause for a longer or shorter period, partly no doubt to feed and recuperate and partly perhaps to secure favourable climatic conditions. Swallows, for instance, which reach our S. Devon coast towards the evening are generally gone again by the following morning. Chiffchaffs and Willow Warblers may stay 2 or 3 days, and Wagtails sometimes a week or more. I have frequently seen the migrants there arrest their flight at sight of the sea. For instance, in the month of August, 1908, Mr. W. T. Page, who was staying with me for a few days, and whose name is well known to our readers, was reclining on a couch in my garden when a Corncrake dropped almost perpendicularly from the sky and took shelter underneath the couch. By the time Mr. Page had adjusted his eyeglass to have a look at it, it had taken wing again (possibly it had grave doubts as to whether the couch was strong enough to sustain Mr. Page's weight), and went off not with the usual slow laboured flight of a Rail, but with the strong and rapid wing-beats of a Hawk, thus showing how very much faster birds fly on migration.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL

By C. A. House. Post free 1/2 (postal order).

A thorough and practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, written by a well-known expert and judge. It contains chapters dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the German (or Roller) Canary.

An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman, reproduced in the finest art style.

There are also exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases and seeds—a compendium of knowledge approached by no other book of its kind at the price.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Aviaries, Bird-Rooms and Cages.

Price 2/3, post free (bound in cloth, gilt).

A Special Handbook written by that well-known fancier, MR. H. NORMAN ("Cage Birds" Artist-in-chief) who has illustrated it with a wealth of helpful drawings. It also contains Ten Lovely Full-page Photographic Plates.

It is a practical guide for every bird-lover who desires to thoroughly understand the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries, and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

Medicines for Cage Birds: Their Application and Doses.

By GEO. YATES, M.R.C.V.S.

Much has been written in contemporaries recently respecting therapeutical treatment, selection, and modes of administration of medicines employed in the bird Fancy, and realizing that bird-lovers, like all animal lovers, have a natural inclination for the "experimental doctoring" of their pets, I would like to remark upon the precautions to be observed in the selection and application of such medicinal agents, and to give a description of those drugs in general use, together with a few formulæ which I hope may be found useful to those desirous of attempting home treatment.

Sifting the Wheat from the Chaff.

The number of drugs in general use is very great, and it is found that comparatively few of these are really useful. So in order to separate the valuable ones from those that are worthless, selections of the former have been published from time to time by the medical authorities of different countries, and of the preparations made from them, which have thus become official. It becomes, however, a necessary provision that preparations so employed should be thoroughly reliable, as it is a well-known failing for chemists, in the prescribing of medicines for animals, to imagine that "anything will do"; this is a practice to be deprecated, and to insist on the best quality and standardisation of drugs should be a point observed by fanciers.

In many instances more than one drug has to be given at the same time; but the simpler the medicine employed the better, particularly when the amateur purchases the ingredients and compounds it himself. Successful combination, remember, is at once the most important and most difficult part of prescribing. The mere appearance, taste, and flavour of a mixture are important points for consideration, whilst the chemical reactions which may occur between the constituents must be constantly kept in mind. Many drugs when mixed together undergo what is known as a chemical decomposition of one or more of them, with the result that an entirely new substance is formed, which may be harmful to the subject to be treated. Drugs which so act are said to be chemically incompatible: this term conveying the production of inelegant, useless, and often dangerous compounds.

A Journey Skywards.

In respect to the latter, I noted a prescription recommended in a contemporary a while since, consisting of potassium chlorate and sulphur; this constitutes one of the "dangerous incompatibles." Although when prescribed in small quantities (as it was) little risk is entailed, yet on the other hand, were one to mix it with an idea of administering it to any number of birds, or for purposes of stock, the probability is that the amateur dispenser would cease to dispense any more, the two ingredients forming a dangerous explosive compound, the preparation of which has caused the death of many who in ignorance or error have attempted its admixture.

Again, I frequently note the recommending of certain drugs to be administered in drinking water, which are themselves often insoluble, or not readily miscible with water; consequently, there exists refusal to partake of such medicines, or their administration in a too saturated or dangerous condition.

In other cases, however, the chief consideration will be the physiological effect of the combination. Each of the ingredients may be intended to produce a different result from the others; or one or more may be used to modify the action of the other, or to correct some unpleasant, dangerous, or otherwise undesirable influence which it might exercise in addition to the action we wish to produce.

The Prescription Explained.

In what may be taken as a "classical prescription," it is the custom to arrange the constituents under four headings, viz., the basis or drug proper; the adjuvant or substance to assist; and particularly to hasten the action of the basis; the corrective, to limit or modify the same; and the excipient or vehicle to collect the whole into a convenient and pleasant form for administration. Take for instance the following:—

Citrate of Iron and Ammonia	(this the basis).
Liquid Ammonia	(adjuvant).
Spirit of Nutmeg	(corrective).
Infusion of Calumba	(vehicle, or excipient).

So we see that although several drugs may be included in a formula, the specific action of only one may be intended, whilst the others are simply used to modify its action, or in many cases to aid its solubility. Numerous drugs are insoluble in water. A notable instance is that of quinine, which is largely used in febrile and specific diseases of birds, requiring, as it does, to be combined with a small proportion of sulphuric acid to bring about this effect. It may be readily seen, therefore, that the art of treating disease lies not in the fact of possessing a large mental stock of remedies, but in the knowledge of admixing and prescribing such remedies so as to not alter their composition and to simplify administration.

The duration, or period, for which a drug may be administered, depends on a variety of circumstances, e.g., when a drug is allowed to enter the bird's system for any lengthy period, in many cases more rapidly than it can be excreted, a time will arrive when it will have accumulated to such an extent in the tissues as to produce marked effects; on the other hand, certain drugs lose their effect when administered for any length of time, this is known as "toleration."

Some Useful Remedies.

I shall now proceed to enumerate a few of the more useful drugs, together with prescriptions containing same, in so simple a manner as to be readily understood by all.

The salts of sodium place some very useful and cheap preparations at our disposal, two only of which I shall here mention, viz., sodium chloride, or common salt, and sulphate of soda, common known as glauber salts.

Common Salt occasionally administered in the drinking water acts as a stomachic, and facilitates digestion. In too large doses it acts as an emetic. As an agent for expelling worms which so commonly infest our birds it is exceedingly useful; also it is a general alterative, improving the condition and tone of the bird's system.

Dose: 5 to 10 grains to an ounce of water, freshly administered night and morning; continue for a week, and again repeat after an interval of a few days.

Sulphate of Soda acts as a useful saline aperient, and may be used in lieu of the more expensive proprietary preparations, a small quantity dissolved in the drinking water (just sufficient to make it taste) and administered fresh night and morning until the evacuations become watery, is useful in birds of a gross (fat) tendency, as in addition to its purgative action, it has a direct action on the liver.

Carbonate of Ammonia, as one of the salts of ammonium, is a convenient form for the administration to birds, being readily soluble in water, and valuable in affections of the respiratory tract. In common colds, catarrh, bronchitis, and pneumonia, it acts as a general stimulant, raising the tone of the heart's action, which in these complaints is considerably depressed. The bronchial secretion is markedly increased, and rendered more liquid and easily raised. Three grains in every tablespoonful of water, repeated three times daily, until the bronchial exudate is removed, and followed by a vegetable tonic, such as compound infusion of gentian (of which I shall speak later) will be found a great acquisition to fanciers troubled with these complaints amongst their birds.

Of the salts and preparations of iron perhaps the most popular is the Sulphate of Iron met with in green prisms, soluble 1 part in 1½ parts of cold water. Dose: 2 grains to each tablespoonful of water, night and morning. It is a useful tonic and astringent, and is valuable as a vermicide, but if too freely given is apt to upset digestion and cause unthriftiness. This is obviated by using the Saccharated Carbonate of Iron, which does not possess this failing, and is readily taken by birds, being pleasant and sweet. It is, however, insoluble in water, and is best given with a little milk sop, or sponge cake. It is very safe, and 5 grains may be used, prepared as above.

Iron and Ammonium Citrate and Iron and Quinine Citrate, both readily soluble in water, both act as tonics, having a specific action on the blood, and they also act as preventives in outbreaks of specific disease in an aviary, by fortifying the system of the birds to resist contagion. Given occasionally to healthy subjects, they improve the general appearance and health. Either preparation, in 3-grain doses to every tablespoonful of water, may be administered to advantage night and morning for a week.

Iron Wine affords an excellent tonic in recuperation from debilitating disease. It is prepared from iron wire digested in sherry. Dose: ½ teaspoonful in 2 fluid ounces of water, night and morning.

Under the White Rose.

Secretaries of the various specialist clubs are now busily engaged in the preparation of next season's work, and this is where the "spade work" comes in. No sooner do they get one year's work cleared off than they have to start on another's. They obtain no respite, and it is sheer love of the work and of the Fancy that keeps them up. During the next few weeks each will be having its own special meeting (I wonder if anything will come of the proposed amalgamation of several?), when officers will be chosen, rules, new and old, gone through and debated upon, and competitions revised, renewed, or amended. Little do the rank and file know what work and time the respective secretaries and officials put in to prepare for the following season; and the least they can do is to try and obtain new members (Oh! how it gladdens a secretary's heart to get a few!) and assist by attending all meetings possible to give what little help they can during the busy season.

I THINK the only variety of Canary that is kept to any extent in Yorkshire, and has not some organisation in Yorkshire to look after its interests, is the Yorkshire Green. True, several of its upholders are members of the Green Canary Association of Liverpool, but they do not get together to talk things over, and in regard to shows providing classes, it is only now and again that a society can be persuaded to provide classes for them and ask for the patronage of the G.C.A., which is readily given. The Green Fancy is always well upheld by the G.C.A. members. Could not something be done to further the interests of the Green—not in the way of a separate club, but by the getting of fanciers together to try and devise some scheme whereby the Greens and the G.C.A. patronage could be brought to Yorkshire for, say, three or four shows?

DURING the holidays I had perforce to make a few journeys into the country. Good Friday found me wending my way over Shipley Glen, by Dick Hudson's, and over the moors to Ilkley. But all the way there was little bird-life to be seen. Probably the number of people about had caused the birds to vanish. Arriving at Ilkley, dinner was the first item. After about an hour's rest we went onwards again to Ben Rhydding, past the "Cow and Calf" rocks, over Burley Wood head, across the moors again to Hawksworth, where we were rather more fortunate, several Blackbirds, Song Thrushes, and one Missel Thrush being observed with nests practically ready for eggs, and a few of the smaller birds love-making in the hedges. At Hawksworth tea was obtained; then a ramble of a few miles in the twilight brought us to the cars at Baildon Bridge, en route for home.

MONDAY found us on our way to Halifax to pay a visit to the Zoo, which has just been reopened. This is situated just outside the town, a penny ride on the car bringing us to the bottom of the hill on the top of which the Zoo is situated. My word! and what a hill! Halifax is all hills and hoils. But when we arrived at the top we were well repaid. Up there the air is grand and bracing, nearly Blackpool air, and the beasts and birds should be all right. Unfortunately for us we found it hard work to get near the cages and dens, there were so many people there; but we have promised ourselves another visit when times are quieter. First we saw the wolves, bears, etc.: then came the birds. The Budgerigars are a nice lot, and have a spacious aviary all to themselves, and are supplied with cocoanut husks for breeding. Then we inspected the Parrots, several varieties being represented; also Cockatoos. The Lemon-crested bird is a nice specimen, although I have seen larger. Rose-crested Cockatoos and the Blue and Yellow Macaws are a lively lot, and provided much amusement by their antics. Three Owls were on view, blinking at the daylight in their usual wise and stately style, these finding a home in the corner of the aviary dedicated to the Eagles, Ravens, etc. The Raven is a lovely specimen, and seemed on quite friendly terms with the other inmates. Probably he can take care of himself. Pheasants of various colours, brilliant, gorgeous, and stately, ran the Peacock close for brilliance, although one of the latter would be hard to beat at present, he is in such lovely plumage. Then pigeons were here in galore, and on the ornamental waters were Gulls, Swans, both white or mute, and the black variety, ducks in all colours, geese, etc. Unfortunately we could not get near the small birds, so we must leave these for another time.

BY the way, how would it be for the Yorkshire County B.B. and M.C. to form a party for a half-day at the Zoo? It would be hard to find a better place than Chevinedge for interest to all concerned.

*A Pet Nightingale.

One summer my father had some young Nightingales, and one he gave to me for a pet. It became very tame, and every morning I used to go and feed it on egg, ants' eggs, and biscuit. I would open the cage door and hold a mealworm to it, and it would fly to me and take the worm. Then it would fly back into the cage. The bird was very fond of flies and spiders, and I would catch them for it.—Sent by Reggie Sandy (age 9½), 133, Laitwood Road, Balham.

*The Homer Canary.

My father keeps a lot of birds, principally Canaries. One day as I was coming home, I saw a crowd round our house. Wondering what the matter was, I made haste home. Then I found that one of my father's best Canaries had escaped, and flown on to a neighbour's roof. People were throwing orango peel at it. They at last frightened it away. We all thought it was lost. Even my father gave it up, and went back to finish feeding his birds. A minute or two later, he happened to look out in the garden. There he saw the Canary hopping towards the birds' place. Father then put his net over it and caught it.—Sent by Walter Schofield (age 13), 87, Bramford Road, Ipswich.

The Hedge Sparrow.

Last year a pair of Hedge Sparrows built their nest in a little shrub about two feet from the ground, and about three feet from our house. They were not afraid of us when we went past. They lined their little nest with moss and hair, and laid four blue eggs, which hatched out successfully. When the young wer old enough to leave the nest, the parents hopped from branch to branch, the young ones following till they reached the ground. The parents then fed them. There are still one or two about the garden, and they are very tame as they come close up to our doorstep and hop around our dog's kennel and his feet. He does not attempt to hurt them. They have a cheerful little song, which often greets me when I awake in the morning.—Sent by Willie Bennett (age 11), Rose Acre, Bearsted, near Maidstone, Kent.

What is to be the Future of the Cage Bird Union?

A Serious Outlook.

Having the welfare of the Cage Bird Fancy at heart, we view the present position of the Cage Bird Union with considerable misgiving. Its well-wishers cannot but regard the outlook as decidedly ominous. What are the facts? Since the Crystal Palace 1910 Show the following societies have seceded from the Union:—

The London and Provincial O.S.
The London Cage Bird Association.
Hull C.B.S.
Hastings United C.B.S.
Blaydon-on-Tyne C.B.S.
Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S.
Redruth F.A.
Morpeth C.B.S.
Newcastle C.B.S.
Cardiff C.B.S.

Add to this list Gateshead C.B.S. and Bournemouth C.B.A., whose secessions were announced before the Palace show, and we have a total of twelve important clubs whose members are apparently agreed that the Cage Bird Union as an organisation is no longer of service to them or the Fancy.

A number of indictments have been brought against the executive to account for this state of things, and it will be as well in the public interest to review briefly some of the more important accusations. It is averred by critics of the Union that amongst other things—

(1): The rules are not adhered to by the members nor by the executive.

(2): That the methods of the Union are arbitrary and coercive.

(3): That its proceedings receive insufficient publicity.

There can be no gainsaying that a strong, properly organised, rightly managed ruling body would be a great power for good in the cage bird world, and it is in the hope of awakening the leading lights of the Union to a greater sense of their responsibilities and the possibilities of their institution that we pen these few lines. In our opinion the only thing required in the Union is a stronger, more aggressive system of control—a little more of the iron hand in the velvet glove. And the sooner the members of the Union realise that they cannot buy a man of brains and energy as secretary for such a sum as fifteen pounds a year, the sooner will the affairs of their Union stand a chance of rectifying themselves.

It will be said by some that the business of the Union should not be conducted by the secretary, but by the Executive Council and the various committees. We agree up to a point, but without a strong guiding hand, without the controlling influence of a man of purpose and unusual intelligence and firmness, either as secretary or president (or, preferably, both), the affairs of any club, whether it be a large or small body of men, are bound to be more or less disorganised.

Now we have the greatest personal liking for the present secretary and president of the Cage Bird Union. They are both models of integrity and amiability. Further, they are the best of fanciers, with a long record of good services in the cause of the Fancy standing to their credit. It is only with the deepest regret, therefore, and from a strong sense of public duty, we feel compelled to say that, in our judgment, and in that of many prominent men we have consulted on the matter, the present holders of the positions in question are not precisely suited for the posts they officially occupy. We say this only after the gravest consideration and at the risk of rousing animosities which we would, if we possibly could, avert. But there is no use in blinking the truth in the face of a crisis.

The general meetings of the Union have been notorious fiascos. Why? One reason, because the chairman has not strongly asserted himself, but has tried to be too pleasant and patient with delegates, and instead of confining discussion to a simple and straightforward issue, has allowed it to ramble into generalities and personalities of the dreariest and most useless kind.

With regard to the present secretary, his methods seem to be those of laissez faire. It is reported of him that he is in favour of allowing breaches of the rules to "slide" rather than face possible discomforting hostility. His reports are certainly few and far between, and tell us little or nothing of what has transpired at Union meetings, sparse though the latter be. Take his account of the executive council meeting held at Nottingham on March 19th last. A glorious obscurity is thrown over the whole proceedings. Even the names of those present are withheld. Why? The names of the gentlemen nominated for president and secretary are not stated. A member of the Union makes a claim against a railway company; his name is not given. A case is brought forward of a society which has not paid its prize money. The name of this society is not stated. Why? On account of the resignation of the auditors, two others were appointed. This report does not state who they are!

Why, in the name of common-sense, are these most important particulars kept back from those who keep the Union alive by their subscriptions? This hole-in-the-corner, kiss-in-the-dark, manner of carrying on a great public body can have no other end but Disaster. The fullest possible publicity should be given to these meetings. The secretary of the C.B.U. should take a lesson from the secretary of the Poultry Club, who every month reports at great length all the transactions of his society—and very interesting these proceedings prove, and of the greatest interest to the public is their publication.

CAGE BIRDS has before now offered to run the legal risk of publishing an account of the club's disqualifications and votes of censure. With what result? Its offer has been ignored. What is the present policy of the Union?—Like "Brer Rabbit," to lie low and say nothing. Like the Ostrich of the fable, it thinks if it buries its head deep enough in the sand, its enemies will not see it because it cannot see them! The Cage Bird Union has a number of men in its ranks fully qualified to see that its rules are carried out (as Mr. Hadwin expresses it), in a firm but not arbitrary manner. The same gentleman voiced all our sentiments when he appealed for publicity for the Union's workings. If the executive will only put their house in order, we believe it is not too late yet for better counsels to prevail in the ranks of those who have seceded; but failing reformation in the more important respects, who shall blame them, and indeed, other societies, if they prefer to remain outside the Union?

These are strong words—but the situation calls for them, and it is at great personal sacrifice we take this duty on ourselves of attempting to rouse those responsible for the Cage Bird Union into a state of activity. There are men in our midst who are fully capable of bearing the task obviously set in front of such a Union, and to them we appeal for a more vigorous policy, and a more assertive manner of enforcing it. Let us see the weaknesses and the strength of the Union in the clear light of day, so that its failings may be eradicated and its strength vindicated. Then we shall have a body that shall prove a power for good in the land.

Before the next show season starts we think some effort should be made to overcome the ill-effect produced by the last general meeting. Is it not possible to summon an extraordinary meeting of representatives of every important club in the country—the Yorkshire Societies included—with the object of removing all existing causes of dissatisfaction with the Union and reforming it wherever past experience has shown such reformation desirable? The difficulty and expense in gathering these delegates together are considerable, but we believe all the obstacles could be overcome by the exercise of a little ingenuity. What has the Fancy to say to the suggestion?

Wild Bird Life.

Early Nests.

Round the shrubberies, among the ivy of old walls, and the sheltered sides of the woods, nests of Blackbirds and Thrushes are fairly plentiful. By the wild bank or round the homestead the perky Robin is to be seen daily carrying dainty morsels to his sitting mate; the Hedge-Sparrow has built a well-lined home in the evergreens, and another among the gorse at the edge of the common. These three species are among the earliest of our commoner birds, they are known to everybody, and just now their nests are exposed to the gaze of the most superficial seeker. At present we have no thickly-grown hedge or rampant woodbines to assist the birds. These early ventures (unless upon quite private property) generally come to grief; the village urchin cannot resist the temptation to annex his first find, or to show his fellows the skyblue treasures; and as one after the other takes a daily peep, the poor bird is annoyed beyond endurance, and finally deserts a home which has cost it so much trouble and care to construct.

Up in the elms overlooking the village the Rooks have no such troubles, they are left to build and incubate in security, except that they are exposed to the elements. Hardy rascals they are. All day long there are a few of them constantly on guard, sitting quietly upon the topmost branches close to the nest, facing the cold piercing wind, which apparently has no effect upon them, or they would have sense enough to obtain some slight shelter from the huge collection of sticks and turf used in the building. During the last four or five years there has only been a slight increase in the Rook population in the immediate neighbourhood. Some apparently suitable sites have been well-nigh deserted, while others have had small additions, but although some half a hundred nests may be counted around the village, there are no signs of the making of a big community. So different this from the huge Rookery away up at Woodmansterne (one of the most picturesque spots in Surrey). There the steep roadway is cut in the side of the hill, and the grand old trees growing upon either side are crowded with nests. To walk beneath and listen to the Rook talk going on above amid the rustle of the wind in the branches, and to watch the home-coming of the busy birds, while one rests in the sunshine, sheltered from the cold wind, well repays one for the long tramp to this charming spot. Down below in the wooded valley, where later we shall seek the dainty Warblers, we can hear snatches of Lark music, borne to us on the breeze, forming a welcome contrast to the harsh cawing of the Rooks.

A Useful Tit.

The Long-tailed Tit is the only one of the family building in the open. It feeds entirely upon insects, and for this reason should be encouraged.

Alien Bird Life.

Each autumn brings a host of wild birds across the wild North Sea to our Eastern shores. During favourable seasons this influx is beyond all calculation. Starlings have been known to be so numerous that farmers have had to put off the sowing of their wheat, for it is well known that this is one of the few times in which this bird is so destructive. A flock of them feeding steadily for a few days will soon clear a field of sprouting corn.

In Favour of the Gulls.

The County Council of Cumberland has for some years protected the Black-headed Gulls, but in consequence of some complaints the Council determined to make elaborate investigations, which proved entirely satisfactory. Nearly half of the birds examined had been feeding upon wire-worms and other destructive larvae; a few had been eating oats, and the others fed upon fish. Undoubtedly these birds are extremely useful when feeding upon farm lands.

An Ingenious Nest.

A short note from a reader informed a journal in the Midlands recently of a peculiarly constructed Martin's nest. The birds had previously been ejected from their home by aggressive Sparrows, and at length built a nest with an entrance at the bottom with a tunnel running up the side to the usual opening. This was only just large enough for the old birds to squeeze through, and effectually kept out the intruders.

Increasing Gulls.

The Black-headed Gulls are increasing rapidly, and are so plentiful in some districts that they will soon be pushing the Rooks away as followers of the plough. There is a popular notion that if Gulls are seen inland there is rough weather at sea, but now these birds may be seen much more frequently inland than in former years. As they increase they spread, which is natural of all birds.

A Fighting Plover.

Fighting among male birds at pairing time appears to be pretty general. Some species spar and flutter, and make much more show than others; but these do not always do the most damage. It is the quiet, determined ones that are the real fighters. Among these the little Kentish Plover must take premier position. He is a hard, stern, obstinate opponent.

Books for Bird Lovers.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit he returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rato of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARR.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

THERE ARE TIMES

which is already cooked and sterilized, only requires damping with cold water to make a reliable, efficient and genuine Egg and Biscuit Food, upon which the breeder may rely implicitly. Do not confound it with any other preparation on the market, for it resembles none of them in the least. Sold in 3d., 6d., and 1/- tins, by us, and all Corn and Bird Shops. It has been pronounced by publicly-recognised authorities to be by far the

COCK GOLDFINCHES, LINNETS

Cock Goldfinches; extra, picked for muling and showing, 2/-, 2/6, 3/-; grand Linnets, cocks, real beauties, perfect feather, every bird netted, and all fat, not straight from the net to the railway co., price 10d., 1/- each, three 2/3, six 3/6; graud upstanding cock Larks, caged off, singing, 9d., 1/- each, three 2/-, six 3/-; all guaranteed. Note: Every bird above I guarantee in every way. It does not pay me to supply rubbish. Goldfinch, Bullfiuch, Linnet cages, 1/-, 1/3, 1/6, 2/- each. Beautiful enamelled box cages, sand drawers, loose fronts, etc., price 2/-. Established 1879: Sandiford, Bird Specialist and Judge, Preston, Lancs.

I STILL HAVE ON HAND

Grand large stock of Worcestershire cock Linnets with nut-brown wings and back, Rose Redbreast, in full song, 1/-, 1/6 each, 3 2/-, 6 4/3, 7/- dozen. I have 40 beautiful cock Liunets, steady as rocks, extra good songsters, finger tame; these Linnets have been selected from thousands, and I guarantee them to make nice mulers, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6 each. I defy any man to supply you with any better quality at double the price. Cock Chaffinches, 1/-, 1/6 each; cock Greenfinches, 6d. each; exhibition specimens, 1/-, 1/6 each; steady hen Greenfinches, Chaffinches, Linnets, 6d., 3 1/-; 300 beautiful cock Larks, in full song by day and gaslight, 1/6, 2/-, 3/-, 4/- each. All the above birds are sent out on my well-known approval system, cash or deposit; strong travelling cage, 3d. each: Thomas Hughes, 65, Saltley-rd., Birmingham.

to purchasing birds from a distance is that the purchaser cannot see what he is getting before he purchases. This objection cannot arise when you purchase from me, as I send all birds on approval at my risk on the distinct understanding that if you are not in every way fully satisfied with the birds when you have received them, you only have to return them and back comes the whole of your money promptly and cheerfully without question or comment. I am originator of this approval system in connection with wild birds, and was first advertiser in this or any other paper to send all wild birds on approval throughout the year. I have a grand stock of Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, all been caged months, in perfect feather, full song, and steady as rocks, 3/- and 4/- each. Few extra special large square blazed birds for exhibition and muling, 5/- each; warranted genuine cage-moulted cocks, in full song, 5/- each; Siberian cock Goldfinches for muling, in full song, and perfectly steady, 5/- and 6/- each. Grand lot inland country caught cock Linnets, all big, bold birds, in free song, and perfectly steady, 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-, twelve 7/-. Fifty extra special larger cocks, been caged months, in full, free song and perfectly tame, 1/6, 2/-, and 2/6 each; cage-moulted cocks, in full song, 5/- each; cock Chaffinches, warranted in soug, and doing right song for London racing, 1/- and 1/6 each. Few very fast, suitable for pegging, 2,6 each. Splendid lot cock Greenfinches, all very steady, 6d. each, three 1/-; yellow cocks, 1/- each; hen Chaffinches, Greenfiuches, Linnets, three 1/-; cock Skylarks, in song, 2/- each. Two-year-old hand-reared cock Lark, finger tame, absolutely loudest and freest singer extant, veritable street ringer, 25/-; another, not quite so loud, 15/-. These Larks will sing anywhere at any time, and must be heard to be believed, as they are absolutely a revelation. Hand-reared cock Song Thrush, in free song, 5/-. Contest-singing cages for Linnets, Goldfinches, or Chaffinches, 9d. each. Please note all birds are guaranteed properly on hard seed, well caged and steady, and all inland country caught birds in open season, not sea-coast spring flight birds which die of pairing fever soon as caged. See letter below: "5, Primrose-st., South Hylton, near Sunderland, March 26. Sir,—Thauk you for such a grand Siberian Goldfinch. He is a picture, and credit to you in the way we received him. Yours, R. Markham."—"2, Camden-st., North Shields, March 27. Sir,—Please send two more 5/- Goldfinches. I have an hairdresser's shop, and my customers won't let me keep them. They say they are the best Finches they have ever seen about here. I have been a fancier 55 years, and can truly say they are the best Finches I ever had. Yours, D. Warwick."—"7, Main-st., High Blantyre, March 25. Sir,—Received British Goldie all right, and am well pleased with it, and also yourself for the way you have treated me in sending on a replace bird as good as this one. Yours, W. Wilson."—"67, Main-st., Newton Mearns, March 19. Sir,—Birds received last night, perfectly safe. Please receive my best thanks for same. They are just what I wanted. Yours, W. Montgomery."—"Brace-st., Dunkeld, March 18. Sir,—Bird arrived all safe, and doing well. I am well pleased. Many thanks Yours, D. Wood." Don't forget when dealing with me you are bound to get fullest satisfaction or your money back. See Roller Canary column, and note name and address, as I have no connection whatever with any other advertiser.

Try one.—Varney, Stratford.—"The Elms, 18, Whitehouse Loan, Edinburgh.—Hummell arrived safely, and sings lovely; it is a pretty bird, and give satisfaction.—N. Turnbull." "Birds arrived—are singing well.—R. M. Lee, 79, Mill-street, Crewe." "Broom, Newton Mears, Glasgow.—The birds arrived in good condition; I am very well pleased with such value.—J. Broom." "32, Easson-road, Darlington.—Bird to hand. I like the song wonderfully well, and thank you for your prompt delivery and attentiou to my instructions.—H. Hutchison." Send all orders to Varney, Stratford, London.

YOU KNOW.

You know very well that despite all the competition and fairy tales I still stand alone for superior quality of birds, although my prices are so reasonable. That is the reason I offer such advantageous terms. I am the originator of the seven days' approval at my sole risk scheme. Furthermore, I pay carriage, that the birds are delivered to your door without any extra cost. Let me send you the odd birds or pairs you require, carriage paid, on seven days' approval, at my risk. I guaranteed to give you satisfaction. I could fill all this paper with genuine unsolicited testimonials, would time permit, but the following samples will prove what all my customers say: 7, Union-st., Rhondda, 1/4/'10.—Received bird safe; am very pleased with it, and thank you for your honest dealing, and sending me such a good bird at the price.—J. Twigg. Tacrefair, Kivabon, 1/4/'10.—Received Roller; it gives the best of satisfaction; when I require more birds I shall most certainly send to you.—B. Bamford. I have thousands of similar letters open for inspection, and guarantee to give you the same satisfaction if favoured with your order. The quality of my birds is unsurpassable. Genuine trained St. Andreasburg Rollers, cocks, in full song (the world's best songsters), 8/6, 0/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; pure Roller hens, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6 each. All Canaries carriage paid to your door on 7 days' approval, at my risk.

Miss E. L. Storey, Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster

12 Years a Songster.

Aberdare, April 9th, 1910,—Please send me price list of Norwich songsters. The bird we had from you 12 years ago has only died a week ago, having been in song up to the last few days. I have mentioned this to many, and have been hardly credited. D. A. James to W. Rudd.

Champion Songsters.

These cannot be Touched Elsewhere for quality and value. Sing anywhere. Great attraction. Very handsome, hardy, pure bred Yorkshires or Norwich, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6. Thousands to select from.

These must not be confounded as just an ordinary singing Canary; they are all specially and personally selected; birds that with ordinary care will not break down in song; but go right through the season. A week's trial allowed. Travelling cages 3d. extra.

W. RUDD, The Bird Specialist, Norwich.

ENGLAND'S ROLLER EXCHANGE.

We import every variety of German Roller, from 5/- to £5; we sell for cash or exchange for other livestock: Isaacs, 82, Neal-st., Long Acre, London.

SUCH A BUDGET

of testimonials as I publish week after week must prove to you that my Leipzig Rollers are without rival in the Canary world, and a more remarkable fact is that I do not publish one fiftieth part of the testimonials I receive, but the whole of them are filed in their government stamped envelopes ready for inspection at any time. I still have large stock of genuine Leipzig Rollers on hand, all in full song day and glaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong, and flute notes, etc., etc., and guaranteed free from any harsh notes whatever, price 7/6 and 8/6 each. I have just received last consignment for this season of the special Leipzig bandmasters or schoolmasters. These are birds that have been kept back in Germany specially for breeding from and as tutors to their progeny, and all are in magnificent condition, full song, and ready for immediate breeding, price 10s. and 12/6 each. Hens, same strain, 3/- each. I also have few specially soft and mellow singing Seifert Roller cocks, in full song and fit to win contests immediately, price 15/- and 20/- each. Anyone wishing to improve their strain of birds cannot have a better opportunity, as these birds are of the purest blood Germany can boast of. I also have splendid lot loud free singing Hartz cocks in full, loud, free song at 5/6 each; Hartz hens, 2/- each, twelve 21/-; singing box cages, 1/-, 1/3, and 1/6 each; special Roller cabinet singing cages, with loose fronts and folding doors, 2/6 each; Roller breeding cages, 2/6, 3/-, and 3/6 each. See following letters, which are entirely unsolicited: "156, Third Avenue, Queen's Park, London. March 29th. The Leipzig Roller arrived safe and started singing 5 minutes after arrival. He is a splendid songster and far superior to the Roller I have been keeping.—Yours, J. Fletcher." "Swindon, Wilts. March 27th. Sir,—Received birds quite safe. The Leipzig Roller is a magnificent singer, something grand; beats all birds I ever heard for singing. I don't know how to thank you for sending such lovely birds. The hen is in splendid condition, and cock is at the Hotel singing splendidly.—Yours, R. Loveday." "56, Mary Street, Limerick. March 24th. Sir,—Birds arrived safe and we are delighted with them. Leipzig Roller cock is real good value and wortb double the money.—Yours, W. McNamara." "School of Art, Keighley. March 24th. Sir,—Birds safely to hand. I am delighted witb them. Leipzig Roller sang as soon as unpacked, and Goldie is a beauty.—Yours, E. Parratt." "221, Gorton Road, Reddish, Stockport. March 24th. Sir,—Leipzig Roller is an extra good singer. I have had birds from elsewhere, but they are nothing like this one.—Yours, T. Doyle." "407, Tonbridge Road, Maidstone. March 24th. Sir,—Leipzig Roller has given every satisfaction. He is really a pretty songster, quite out of the ordinary. Thanking you for genuine transaction.—Yours, S. Pearce." "Police Station, Kingstone, Hereford. March 24th. Sir,—I am well pleased with Hartz cock. He started singing 10 minutes after being put in cage. I must say it was very good of you to send me another bird in place of one which died without any comment whatever, and I should advise anyone wanting a good Roller should have one from you. They will get excellent value for money and, above all, a straightforward dealer.—Yours, P.C. Phillips." "19, Stephen Street, Consett. March 24th. Sir,—Received Roller all right and am highly satisfied. I've had both Britlsh birds and Rollers from you before, and have had the greatest satisfaction every time. Both Rollers are going on splendid.—Yours, R. Ornsby." "Forest Road, Southport. March 18th. Sir,—Roller has turned out a champion. We are highly pleased with him.—Yours, R. Ainscour." "74, High Street, Bideford. March 17th. Sir,—Many thanks for card and especially bird received to-day in good condition. I am at last pleased to have found an honourable firm to deal with. All the birds you have sent are very satisfactory and certainly good value for money.—Yours, R. Taylor." Please note: All Canaries are sent on full week's trial at my risk during whole time on receipt of cash or deposit system of CAGE BIRDS, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. As this is last lot of Rollers I shall have this season, intending purchasers will do well to order as quickly as possible to avoid disappointment. See British Bird column.

Vernon Street, Lincoln, April 4th, 1910.—The birds arrived safe, and I consider them very fine birds, and good value. Your reputation for sending out good value stands first.—W. Hoff to Joe Thomas. Gaskel Street, Parr, St. Helens, April 7th, 1910.—I received bird this morning, and am very well pleased. It started singing as soon as the railway man placed it on the table.—H. Hankinson to Joe Thomas. 1, Star Road, Eastbourne, April 6th, 1910.—I have decided to keep the Yorkshire cock you sent me on approval. He is a splendid bird, and just what I wanted. Thanks for straightforward dealing and promptitude.—T. H. Groves to Joe Thomas. 4, Hill Street, Greenock, April 7th, 1910.—I received bird safe this morning, none the worse for its long journey. It is a fine bird, and I am quite pleased with it. Thank you very much for your promptness and fair dealing.—Ben Morris to Joe Thomas. Malvern Road, Romford, Essex, April 2nd, 1910.—The Pair of Gems reached me safely yesterday, and I am very pleased with them.—R. S. Rawlings to Joe Thomas. 23, Richmond Street, Mansfield, Notts., April 9th, 1910.—The Norwich Cock arrived in good condition. It was singing grand half an hour after being taken from travelling cage.—James Mountney to Joe Thomas.

'TIS GOOD.

It is good to know you have so many friends, and you know I have thousands, and still keep making more every day. All my customers are friends, and you will be as soon as you see the high quality of birds I supply. There is nothing better, few just as good, and none so cheap. All my customers bear testimony to the high quality of my birds. The following samples will convince you: 19, Edward-st., Burton-on-Trent, 1/4/'10.—Norwich hen arrived in good condition. I only wish I had sent to you at first. For quality and price, prompt dispatch, etc., you take the lead. I shall certainly send you more orders.—J. Emery. 52, Ellen's-view. Received Norwich in perfect health and pink of condition. I wish I had dealt with you sooner, I should have saved money, and had more fairness than Mr. ——— gave me. The bird you sent is worth double price you charged. Your honesty and fair dealing is reliable.—J. Cawson, Sherfield, England, Romsey, 1/4/'10.—Bird arrived in good condition. I am pleased, for it is just the one I wanted. Thanks for such prompt attention.—G. Weller. I have thousands of similar letters of praise open for your inspection, and guarantee to give you the same satisfaction if entrusted with your orders. Note the following prices for sound, healthy, typical birds: Yorkshire cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; upstanding breeding hens, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6 each; matched breeding pairs, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. YORKSHIRES.

SATISFACTION ALL OVER THE WORLD.

Read following testimonials, which speak for themselves: St. Peter's, Sydney, Australia (received here April 1st, 1910):—Yorkshires arrived quite safe, and give me every satisfaction. They will take some beating here on the show bench, and are marvellous value for the money. My future orders are yours. Sid Conway to J. Taylor. Another from: 11, Church Street, Toronto, Canada (received here April 2nd, 1910): Pair of exhibition Yorkshires to hand, in grand condition, and are a couple of gems. I will recommend you to all I know that require high-class birds. N. S. Gardiner to J. Taylor. Another from: 18, Elmsleigh Road, Paignton, Devon, April 9th, 1910.—Yorkshire hen to hand, and is a perfect gem for type, size and quality, and you can depend on receiving my future orders. A. Saunders to J. Taylor. Champion prize bred long, typical yellow or buff Yorkshire cocks, on full song, at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each, all standard length, and some over. In clears, green marked, cinnamon marked, and clear pink-eyed; colour fed or natural colour. Pairs matched to produce winners, and ready to nest at once, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair; yellow or buff hens, anxious to nest, at 8/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6 each, worth double; all cold rooms kept, healthy, and feathered like glass. Illustrated price list post free. Travelling cages, 3d. extra. Seven days' approval allowed, at my risk.

YORKSHIRES.

Direct from Mr. Bates' 20 years' Crystal Palace strain; also Messrs. Bailey and Shackleton strains. Have a 100 beautiful birds for sale. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand yonngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair. Any I send on approval and guaranteed to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself. Order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire.

"THAT GIVE SATISFACTION EVERYWHERE."

And for this reason they are absolutely the best value it is possible to obtain. You may pay far higher prices, but you cannot get better value than I can give you, for proof read following testimonials:—177, Main Street, Barrhead, 10/4/'10,—Mird arrived safe, with thanks. He is a beauty, and grand singer. Peter Gray to L. Dykes. 61, Crescent Street, Merthyr Vale, 10/4/'10,—Would you please forward me another Yorkshire hen for enclosed P.O.? I received the last hen quite safe, in good condition, and am quite satisfied with it. Evan Davies to L. Dykes. Bowes Hill, Butterknowle, Co. Durham, 11/4/'10,—Mr. Dykes, I received the bird in good condition, and am quite satisfied with him. I shall give you another order soon; I also have a friend or two thinking of starting keeping birds, and you can depend on receiving their orders, as they have seen mine. Yours, R. G. Cummins.

I have still some clinking stock birds left, both cocks and hens, at prices to suit all pockets, and those wishing to secure some of the best blood in the Fancy, now is the opportunity, as I am desirous of clearing all except own breeders as early as possible. Champion, long, slim, leggy, Yorkshire cocks, any colour, at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Grand typical, racy hens, right sort to breed winners, and all anxious to nest, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each. Pairs properly matched to breed winners, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- pair; also four pairs selected for own use, but have rather more than I can find room for, at 40/-, 50/-, 60/-, 80/-; honestly worth double. All cocks guaranteed on full song and seven inches long—some over. All cold-room bred and kept, and in splendid condition. Travelling cages, with proper food for journey, 3d. extra. Any sent on full week's approval at my risk, on receipt of cash, or on deposit system. Easy payments arranged with genuine fanciers, and all orders dispatched same day as received.

See show reports at all leading shows during past season for results, having won over 200 cash prizes, 3 challenge cups, gold, silver, and bronze medals, and numerous other specials in keenest competitions. Price list with winning testimonials post free. Inspection invited at any time; state wants.

L. DYKES, Reliable Aviaries, 70, Bolton Hall Road, BOLTON WOODS, BRADFORD.

Have You Compared these Prices for YORKSHIRES?

When I say Yorkshires' I mean it—not something with Feathers on mercly, the breed of which would puzzle anyone to define.
COCKS—5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-.
HENS—3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-.
PAIRS MATCHED FOR BREEDING—7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards.
Cages 3d. extra.

A good pair for starters, and breeding cage fitted complete, lot packed, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-.
Extended list free.

N.B.—If you have birds a bit too fine, and want to introduce fresh blood and length, let me know, I can fit you up properly; having some of the largest birds in the "Fancy," this is no silly, idle boast; I have no place or time for that in my life.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

HENS. HENS. HENS.

These are the kind you require to breed champions, long, slim, upstanding birds, feathered to perfection, and showing that bit of breed so much admired in a true Yorkshire, position and type A1, clear, ticked, or marked, yellow or buff; also a few odd cocks, splendid stock birds, reasonable prices; approval; cash or deposit; stamp particulars: W. H. Shackleton, Melrose-house, Lyttou-rd., Bradford.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES.

Intending being away from home part of present breeding season, for health reasons, have only put a few pairs for own home breeding. This arrangement necessitates my offering from 30 to 40 pairs, eminently suitable for breeding high-class clears, marked, cinnamon-marked Yorkshire varieties, also 20 surplus hens fit for immediate use, guaranteed untried and in breeding condition. To induce and effect a quick and immediate sale, to breeders desiring up-to-date style and quality, have decided to reduce prices fully one-third below season's list rather than offer in one lot to wholesale buyers for resale. Pairs previously offered at 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, to 40/-, reduced to 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, to 25/- respectively; surplus hens from 4/-, 5/-, 6/- 7/6, to 10/-; few young promising young cocks, suitable for next season's shows, 20/-, 25/-, to 30/-; my past 30 years' experience in breeding and keeping Yorkshire varieties only is sufficient proof of inherent quality, without further comment. All cold-room bred, reared and kept; all approval, cash or deposit; price list post free; Jonas Knight, Copy St., Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

"WORTH DOUBLE

Those bought in Town a few weeks back at a higher price."

Folkestone, April 9th, 1910.—Many thanks for selecting me such a good pair of birds. They are worth double those I bought in Town a few weeks back, at a higher price. C. D. Winton to W. Rudd.

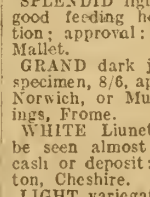
You will be treated just the same as above, providing you favour me with the opportunity.

The Beginner's Pairs and Outfit.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/0 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only

5/- (Five Shillings).

SPECIAL AMATEUR PAIRS.



My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

Travelling cages in all cases 3d. extra. Approval Deposit Cage Birds Rules, or upon receipt of cash.

DUNFERMLINE & W. OF FIFE O.S.

Second annual general meeting, held in the Co-operative Hall, on April 9th, when it was arranged to hold our show on January 3rd and 4th, 1911, seeing that the New Year comes in on the Sunday. This will give fanciers from a distance a better chance to have their exhibits sent away on the Monday.—JOHN TEMPLEMAN, Hon. Sec.

LEICESTER (Hand-in-Hand) C.B.S.

Usual fortnightly meeting held at White Swan on April 5th, Mr. W. A. Gibbins (president) in the chair. After the usual business, Mr. C. Walton gave a lecture entitled "The Management of the Canary." This proved very instructive and interesting, but the small number of members present was anything but encouraging to the lecturer. Mr. Walton will conclude his lecture at our next meeting, on April 19th, when I hope members will turn up in good numbers. Mr. A. Hubbard was elected a member.—J. E. WOOD, Sec.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Monthly meeting held at Slatter's Rooms, on Mar. 31st, Mr. A. Towl presiding. Numerous questions were put relative to the Fancy, causing some interesting discussion thereon. The subject of again joining the Cage Bird Union was brought up for discussion, but it was decided to leave the same over until our next meeting for a final decision. It was suggested that we have an open show, but nothing definite was done, this also being left over until our next meeting, when the matter should be finally settled. We enrolled a new member.—MOORE AND HARDING, Secs.

CAGE BIRD UNION: DIST. No. 5.

Delegate meeting, held April 9th, at 28, Pembroke Place, Liverpool. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe was appointed chairman, and Mr. S. Hadwin secretary. It was decided that the councilman for the district appoint the delegates to attend the various shows in his district. It was also decided that the general secretary send a monthly report to the Fancy Press of all business transacted during the month. Alteration of Rule 12, add after secretary, treasurer, and the funds of the Union be banked in the names of the secretary and treasurer, "That the general secretary publish a list of affiliated and licensed shows at least a fortnight before the end of each month, for the month following." A long discussion took place on the dilatoriness of the officials in connection with the working of the Union, and it was decided "That this meeting is of opinion that the Executive Council have been to blame for not seeing the work more properly and satisfactorily carried out." The members present pledged themselves to report any offences against the rules which might come under their notice, and see they were dealt with promptly, and hoped all delegates in the district who were not present would do the same, and so make for a more vigorous policy in the future.—S. HADWIN, Sec., 28, Pembroke Place, Liverpool.

CAGE BIRD UNION: DIST. No. 10.

Meeting of delegates of societies in the Cage Bird Union, District No. 10, was held on April 9th, at the Albert Restaurant, Swansea. Present, Mr. P. Jenkins (Swansea C.B.S.), Mr. D. Jeremy (Morriston C.B.S.), Mr. W. Jenkins (Maestag C.B.S.), Mr. J. D. Davies (Felinfoel C.B.S.), r. W. Sampson (Cardiff C.B.S.), and D. A. S. Longden (district secretary). Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. It was proposed that Mr. W. Sampson be chairman for ensuing year, which was carried, and Mr. D. A. S. Longden was elected secretary for the year. Letters were read from Mr. D. R. Jones (Llanelly C.B.S.) and Mr. W. H. Aptin (Treharris Society), expressing regret at not being able to attend. The next business was to consider the position of the Cage Bird Union. A long discussion took place, and the feeling of this committee was in favour of still adhering to the C.B.U. It was proposed by Mr. Sampson, and seconded by Mr. W. Jenkins, that in view of the effort being made by the executive council to revive and strengthen the Union, this committee do its best and give all assistance they can to carry same through.—Carried. Regret was expressed on hearing that the Cardiff C.B.S. intended withdrawing from the Union. But the committee hopes Mr. Sampson will use his influence to get the Cardiff Society to reconsider their decision, which he has promised to do. The arrangement of show dates was next considered, but as a few of the societies had not yet fixed up three dates, same was left over for a future meeting. The arrangement of delegates to attend shows for next season was left in district secretary's hands to arrange later. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close after two hours' sitting.—D. A. S. LONGDEN, District Secretary.

UDDINGSTON AND DIST. O.S.

Meeting held April 7th, at Reading Room, Mr. T. Prentice (president) in the chair, with a splendid attendance of members. New rules were drawn up. Open show date fixed for November 26th. Six new members proposed. Our next meeting will be held at Reading Room on May 5th, to fix date of First Feather Show. Intending members can have full particulars on application to me.—JAMES DUNLOP, Sec.

CROOK (Original) C.B.F. & F.S.

At our usual monthly meeting, held at headquarters on April 6th, there was a very fair turnout. The members decided to hold their First Feather Show on July 2nd, and elected Mr. R. Slack to judge. We are having 30 classes at this table show, and giving medals for each section to members who gain most points. Two or three new members were proposed, so that everything tends to a record year. We shall be pleased to accept any genuine fancier as a member.—BROWN AND HORNER, Secs.

HARTLEPOOLS C.B.S.

At our monthly meeting, on April 6th, the whole of the nest feather and open show business was completed, it being decided to hold both shows in the Church Square Schools. The proposition to again visit Wynyard Park (the seat of Lord Londonderry) was enthusiastically carried, and it was decided to invite our Stockton friends to accompany us. This will make our fifth visit to Wynyard, and each year it is looked forward to with increased delight. The formation of a Roller section was accomplished, and Messrs. Fairey, Lamb, and Steel were elected a subcommittee to further its interest. Our society is now an open one, and I shall be pleased to hear from anyone wishing to join.—E. WOODHEAD, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN B.B.M. AND F.B.C.

Cups and medal winners for 1909 to 1910.—British birds and Mule cups: Mr. J. Maddison (Newcastle): Foreign bird cup: Mr. J. T. Porteous (Hexham); medal winners: Messrs J. Maddison, J. T. Porteous, J. Shepherd and Son, G. Graham, C. Waters, Todd and Son, and J. McKenzie, 2 each; Thos. Holmes, G. Davidson, J. C. Bell, Bertram and Storey, J. Forster, and E. Atkinson, 1 each. Societies requiring the above club's patronage must state classification and judge when making applications, which are kindly invited (radius, Northumberland, Durham, Cumberland, Westmorland). Anyone desirous of becoming a member (subscription 2/6) please communicate with me.—J. BERTRAM, 95, Gainsboro' Grove, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

BATLEY AND DISTRICT O.S.

This recently organised society held a meeting on April 2, and the attendance of members was satisfactory. The advisability of becoming affiliated to the Yorkshire Union had been fully discussed lately, and it was resolved to join this body—a step undoubtedly in the right direction, and one which should tend to elevate the society to the front ranks. Mr. W. Kershaw was elected as a representative and delegate to the union, and the interests of the society will be thus safeguarded. There was an addition of five fanciers to the membership roll at the meeting, and considerable discussion took place respecting the delivery of a series of addresses, and the holding of washing competitions, first feather shows, etc., and final arrangements will be made at the next meeting. "Rex" in the "Dewsbury Reporter."

SPEN VALLEY C.B.S.

The members met at headquarters, the Commercial Hotel, Cleckheaton, on April 5th, in order to acknowledge the close of a successful showing season. The occasion was honoured by two special items—a sumptuous dinner ably laid by the landlord, and the distribution of prizes to the respective winners. The prizes were presented as follows:—1st, Mr. F. Allen, silver cup and gold medal; 2nd, Mr. W. Fielding, silver rose bowl and gold centre medal; 3rd, Mr. H. E. Hadwin, gold medal. The position of chairman was creditably fulfilled by Mr. J. W. Wharton, an old veteran in the bird-breeding and showing world. Songs were contributed in fine style at intervals by Messrs. F. Sykes, H. Jessop, and J. W. Wharton, the accompanist being Mr. R. Clough, who filled that position in a remarkable style. The host and hostess received a vote of thanks, on the motion of Mr. F. Allen, seconded by Mr. S. Graysou, and endorsed in eloquent style by Mr. J. Wharton, jun.—J. LEWIS, Hon. Sec.

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

Meeting held on April 5th in Dinean's Restaurant, 71, London-street, Glasgow. The president (Mr. R. B. Gibb) occupied the chair. It was decided to have the following four classes at First Feather Show, to be held on July 9th: 1 clear or tick, Yellow, 2 ditto Buff, 3 var. or cinn. mark Yellow, 4 ditto Buff; entry fee, 4d. per bird. The following specials were allocated for same: 1, miniature rose bowl for best bird in classes 1 and 2; 2, miniature rose bowl for best bird in classes 2 and 3; silver medal presented by Mr. W. B. Cobb for best bird shown by a novice; 2s. 6d. presented by Mr. Heudry for most points (champions); 2s. 6d., presented by Mr. Bowman, most points (novice); leather matchbox engraved, presented by Mr. Sinclair, for fourth most points. Will members, wishing to give other specials, kindly let me know before next meeting? It was decided to have our annual picnic on June 11th, Loch Winnock again being the destination. It is intended to spend the afternoon birds' nesting. Mr. S. F. Wood kindly offered his services as guide. The president again offered the club a special for open competition. Mr. Crerar (Portobello) was admitted a member. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.—FRED. BOWMAN, Hon. Sec.

DEWSBURY & DISTRICT C.B.S.

Probably throughout the career of this society the function on April 1 was the most pleasurable one. The tables at their headquarters, the Savile Hotel, were laden with good things, admirably served by Mrs. Dyson, the hostess. A most representative gathering of the fraternity sat down and enjoyed the repast, and the utmost cordiality prevailed throughout the proceedings. After the tables were cleared the evening was spent in chatting over matters appertaining to the culture of the Fancy, and songs were rendered by Messrs. Woffenden and Thompson, whilst Mr. E. Clegg acted as accompanist. Mr. Pickering, the society's delegate to the Yorkshire Union, reported upon his work in that office. The most enjoyable part of the proceedings was the short address on the "Yorkshire Canary," given by Mr. Jim Overend, of Ravensthorpe, a "father" of the Fancy, in his usual humorous Yorkshire style. His qualifications for speaking on this subject are unassailable, and what he does not know about the Yorkshire Canary is not worth knowing. A life-long experience through many vicissitudes assisted "Jim" a great deal to "expand" himself on this occasion, and his hearers were highly delighted and amused, besides being instructed. High compliment was paid to him. Mr. It. Blamires presided over the proceedings.—"Rex" in the "Dewsbury Reporter."

WREXHAM AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held at headquarters, "Royal Oak," High-street, April 8th, Mr. F. Bennett presiding. It was resolved to hold a nest-feather show on June 25th, and to extend the radius for membership to twenty miles. This society, which was only formed twelve months ago, is making great headway, and now has a membership of over thirty. Four new members were made at the close of the meeting. Mr. T. Hampson kindly consented to give a washing exhibition at our next meeting, which is to be held on the first Friday in the month; all fanciers and friends are invited. For particulars as regards membership apply to—B. BENNETT, Hon. Sec., Hampden road, Wrexham.

HANLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held on April 6th at the Boro' Hotel. There was a good attendance, Mr. J. C. Robinson occupying the chair. A good deal of correspondence was placed before members. This having been satisfactorily dealt with, the next business was in respect to the Cage Bird Union, and it was left for the members to consider whether we remain affiliated or not. It will be definitely decided at our next meeting, April 20th. Two new members were made in Mr. W. Llewellyn and Mr. S. Brough. The election of officers resulted as follows: Chairman, J. C. Robinson, Esq.; treasurer, G. Lawton; secretary, B. Peake; committee, W. Evans, S. Wild, J. Williamson, T. W. Lowndes, W. Llewellyn, G. H. Mason, S. Brough; auditors, J. Topless and J. C. Robinson.—B. PEAKE, sec.

ALNWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Special committee meeting, held at Temperance Hotel, on April 11th, Mr. Wm. Sanders in the chair, to consider whether we remain members of the Cage Bird Union, and also to fix the date and judges for our open show. Mr. H. P. Staig, in the absence of our secretary, Mr. W. A. Broadley (who was unable to attend) read a letter from Mr. T. C. Crawhall, secretary of the Newcastle-on-Tyne C.B.S., re the C.B.U., and a discussion ensued on the matter, when Mr. J. Rogerson moved and Mr. R. Forster seconded, "that we withdraw from the C.B.U.," which was carried unanimously. The date of our open show was next discussed, and after consulting the "Dates Fixed" column in CAGE BIRDS, it was decided, on the motion of Mr. T. E. Wake, seconded by Mr. Wm. Millar, that our open show be held on November 19th. It was then moved by Mr. R. Forster, and seconded by Mr. E. Beswick, that we have the same judges as last year. A new member being proposed and elected, concluded the business.—W. A. BROADLEY, Sec.

READING AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held on April 6th, at Palmer Hall. Mr. R. J. Locke was elected a member. After a brief discussion it was decided to alter our members' show date to November 16th, and Mr. J. Robson was elected as judge. A washing display was then given by Mr. J. Brooker, the chairman (in the absence through indisposition of Mr. Yates), who very kindly volunteered at very short notice to show the members how to "put 'em through it." Anyone could see that these were not the first birds he had handled, and during the display he pointed out to the novices where damage was likely to result if care was not exercised. We were all very interested, and Mr. Brooker was heartily thanked for his kindness and for the instruction provided. It was agreed that at the next meeting on May 4th the schedule be decided for the first feather show in July, and the annual show in November. May I appeal to any fancier in our district who wishes to join us to either attend that meeting or send his name to me as soon as possible so as to make our show as representative as we can?—W. H. PYKE, Secretary, 25, The Grove.

BORDER CITY (Carlisle) O.S.

Second annual dinner held at Headquarters on April 7th, when about twenty sat down to the excellent repast provided by our host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Chaplow. The toasts of the evening, "The King and Royal Family," and "Success to the B.C. (C.) O.S.," were proposed by Messrs. O'Neill and Holmes respectively. After full justice had been done to the dinner the tables were cleared, and Mr. Holmes took the chair. After a few remarks re the work of the Society, he called upon Mr. R. Thomlinson to set the concert going with a delightful song, which was well received. Selections on the gramaphone belonging to our host were given occasionally. Mr. Dixon sang, and was followed by "Uncle George" with a pleasing recitation. Mr. Doughty, undoubtedly the star of the evening, entertained us with some good, old-fashioned song and stories. Mr. A. O'Neill in a couple of songs amused the company, introducing in one the name of the chairman effectively. Mr. W. Chaplow recited, or tried to, in his own funny way, while our host gave us "Tom Bowling," as only one who has been a sea captain can. Time passed only too quickly. The chairman made a few remarks before calling upon Mr. Doughty for the last song, after which our host and hostess were heartily thanked for their kindly efforts, and the company dispersed after singing "Auld Lang Syne."—JOHN C. BELL, sec.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held April 7th, Mr. Currah in the chair. The secretary announced that our judges, Messrs. Roe, Greeves, Patterson, Bailey, and Dewar, had all replied, accepting the positions. Letters were read from Mr. Pope, secretary Plymouth C.B.S., Mr. Broadley, secretary Alnwick C.B.S. and others. The date of the First Feather show was fixed for July 9th, Messrs. Currah and Robson to judge Canaries, Messrs. Shepherd and G. Taylor the British, Mule, and Foreign birds. Mr. Shepherd then gave us an admirable demonstration on "Cage-making." He began by stating that of all the woods used in cage making he preferred a good yellow pine; it was cheap and stood with the least shrinkage and warping. Then he described how to buy the wood in the cheapest way, so that instead of paying 1½d. to 2d. per foot, it could be bought to come out at a little over 1d.; this was done by buying a deal and having it cut afterwards. He showed the use of the shooting board and plane, and the way to glue two pieces of wood so that the joint would not break; and many other interesting and helpful tips were gathered. He also showed us an instrument which he had invented to use with the brace to cut the round doors in show cages; this was most interesting, as being Mr. Shepherd's own idea entirely. Many questions were asked and answered, and everyone voted that we had spent a most enjoyable and profitable evening. The following new members were admitted:—Messrs. Lomas, Byker, Coomber, Jesmond, Cockburn (Wallsend), Robinson, Benton, Eastop (Gateshead), and Stonehouse (Newcastle). All who wish to join and take part in our members' show and members' classes at open show, must do so by next meeting, as per rule. We shall be very pleased to welcome as many as care to do so; the entrance fee is 1/-, and annual subscription 2/6. Our next meeting will be held on May 5th, when we hope to have an egg-food making competition. Members will please bring their own material, and a gold-centre silver medal will be given to first and a silver medal to second, as prizes. —T. C. CRAWHALL, hon. sec.

LINCOLN
Schedules of: S. DICKINSON, 35, St. Hugh Street.

We have been permitted to inspect two oil paintings, the work of Mr. P. Jowett (Bradford), which, we are informed, were not finished in time for presentation at the recent great gathering of Yorkshire fanciers. It is a pleasure to us to note the rapid strides made by Mr. Jowett in the art of portraying birds, the Yorkshire Canaries on the paintings under notice being very skilfully and artistically delineated. We are sure they will be much appreciated by the fanciers fortunate enough to win these excellent examples of Mr. Jowett's skill with the brush.

Of the many remedies in daily use for the destruction of rats and mice there is none which obtains or deserves better support than the "Liverpool" Virus. In addition to daily testimony from all over England, Scotland, and Ireland of wonderful results obtained from its use, it has been tried with the best of effect in such distant parts of the earth as India, Malay, Australia, South Africa, and South America. Its chief recommendation lies in the fact that it is always effective when carefully used, but it possesses additional merits in being sold prepared ready for use, and of being made by English scientists at the Liverpool Institute of Comparative Pathology, where the profits of its manufacture are devoted to further research.

Twitterings.

It has been agreed to reduce our entrance fee to 3s. per member, writes Mr. W. Easton, secretary, Deans and Dis. Cage Bird Society.

A printer's error occurred in Mr. William Gore's advertisement in our last week's issue. Line 29 reads: "Hartz hens 2s. each, twelve 2s." This should have read "twelve 21s."

The Manchester District Committee (No. 4) of the Cage Bird Union are holding a meeting on Saturday at the Old Boar's Head Hotel, Manchester, writes Mr. Geo. W. F. Lythgoe.

Twelve tons Ramsden's Pure Peppers arrived. Colour and quality never before equalled. Usual prices and guarantee. Guarantee does not cover pepper sold loose by traders.—(ADVT.)

Will secretaries of societies and fanciers kindly note my change of address, writes Mr. F. Wardleworth, late of Newton Heath, to Rose Neath, Will's Road, Adswood, Stockport.

The Ashton-under-Lyne and Dis. O.S. has been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington) to judge at their back-end show on November 26th.—H. FODEN, hon. secretary.

I have removed from Hepthorne Lane, near Clay Cross, and my address in future will be Bank View, Tideswell, near Buxton, where all correspondence should be addressed.—THOS. FOX.

We have engaged Mr. R. Taylor (Preston) to judge the Norwich Canary section at our open show, on November 4th and 5th, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Hillmen, secretaries of the Liverpool O.S.

I have removed from Cammell Road to 81, Bellhouse Road, Shiregreen, Sheffield, writes Mr. T. Hemming. The articles on bird medicines will be most welcome to bird fanciers. CAGE BIRDS is the best paper for cage bird keepers.

Mr. Wellings, of Prescot, will, we understand, judge at Blackpool on June 25th, Ormskirk on July 9th, Dublin on November 3rd, Whitehaven on November 11th, North Manchester on November 12th, Ormskirk on November 26th, and Belfast on December 2nd.

CAGE BIRDS evidently has a very wide distribution for I received a letter from Connecticut, U.S.A., for advice on the treatment of parasitic disease from a gentlemen who had perused my article on "Worms in Birds," writes Mr. Geo. Yates, M.R.C.V.S.

The Uddingston and Dis. Society have secured the services of the following judges: Mr. A. Malcolmson (Glasgow) for Norwich, and Mr. A. Cochrane (Edinburgh) for British, etc., classes for their open show to be held on November 26th, writes Mr. James Dunlop, the secretary.

We have secured the services of the following gentlemen as judges for our open show at Nottingham on November 12th next, writes Mr. G. E. Wilkinson, hon. secretary, Nottingham and Notts O.S., viz., Messrs. T. Heath (London), Jas. F. Dewar (Edinburgh), and J. C. Barnes (Sheffield).

Have "booked" Manchester show again, writes Mr. H. W. Battye (Huddersfield). I shall not be a "Union" judge this season, as I am booked for the Belfast Norwich, Crest, and Yorkshire Club show on November 19th, this being the fifth time of going over there out of the last seven shows.

The seventh annual show of the Avonbridge O.S. will be held on November 19th, writes Mr. Peter Gentleman, the secretary, and the following gentlemen have been elected to judge: for Norwich and Border Fancy Canaries, Mr. D. Hamilton (Hamilton); and for Mules and British birds, Mr. R. Bald (Bathgate).

The cage bird show of the Frome F.A., writes Mr. C. I. Young, the secretary, is fixed for October 13th, Mr. J. Robson judge. The cage bird committee is composed of Messrs. E. Austen, W. Dodge, P. Edwards, H. Pickford, J. Yeo, W. Singer, E. Robins, secretary, A. J. King, and chairman, C. I. Young.

Our First Feather show will be held on June 18th. We have, I may say, a nice little balance in hand of 19s. 1d., after losing very heavily on our open show. Thanks are due to the gentlemen who sold tickets for the draw, also for prizes and donations for same in aid of show funds.—JAMES IRLAM, hon. secretary, Sale Open O.S.

In the "Daily Mail" for April 8th appeared an article written in a humorous vein, describing a "Search for a new Pet." This interesting contributor discussed pets from leopards down to toads, not forgetting chameleons, racoons, dingos, and other weird and wonderful creatures. But when the toad is introduced, the writer remarks: This was the last straw, and I said, almost rudely, "Take me where I can buy a clean, healthy Canary!" Our readers will agree as to the good taste this remark evidences.

The numerous friends of Mr. D. R. Jones, the chairman of the Llanelly and Dis. Cage Bird Society, will be glad to hear of his splendid success at the Llanelly Council election on April 4th, when he was successful in heading the poll by a substantial majority. The following is the result:—Mr. D. R. Jones, 1,007; Mr. E. W. Jones, 870; Mr. G. H. Stacy, 776.

Our assistant secretary, Mr. H. W. Tomsett, has kindly undertaken to arrange a grand Bohemian concert for Tuesday night, May 10th. He informs me that already a large number of well-known artistes have promised to appear. Will our members and friends make a note of this and keep the date open?—W. HOBSON, hon. secretary, Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.

Our First Feather show has been fixed for July 9th, when Mr. John A. Ferguson (Glasgow) will judge, and our annual members' show will be held on November 19th, when Mr. A. Chalmers (Kirkintilloch) will judge the Canaries and Mr. John Muir (Glasgow) the Mules, British and foreign birds, writes Mr. Wm. Proudfoot, secretary and treasurer, Glasgow West End C.B.C.

The London and Provincial O.S. are holding a members' table show (9 classes, for British and foreign birds and Hybrids), on April 21st, at "The Raglan," Aldersgate Street, London, E.C. Admission is free to all, the show opens at 7.30 p.m., and it is confidently expected not only that there will be a very good show of birds, but that the attendance will as usual be a large one.

We are to have a lecture by Mr. J. H. Payne (Gloucester) at our meeting on April 20th, at the Sydney Arms Hotel, writes Mr. A. S. Treasure, hon. secretary of the Cheltenham C.B.S. The subject will be "Some Kinds of Canaries." The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock, and we shall be very pleased to see any gentlemen who are interested in the Fancy.

Mr. C. W. Mead, the well-known breeder and exhibitor, will deliver a lecture at our next meeting on April 21st, on "Bird-cage Making," with demonstration, writes Mr. A. V. Lane, hon. secretary of the Walthamstow F.A. Friends and members of other societies are cordially invited to attend. In aid of the funds of the society a charge of threepence each for admission is being made on this occasion.

"British Birds" (one shilling net, Witherby and Co.) for April contains an article on the Lanceolated Warbler in Lincolnshire, by Mr. G. H. Caton Haigh, another on the Marsh Sandpiper by Mr. M. J. Nicoll, M.B.O.U., and others. There are also a large number of notes and a letter by Mr. J. G. Millais on "The Natural History of British Game Birds," all of which afford interesting reading.

Our next annual open show is fixed for December 14th and 15th, and Mr. G. Gardner will judge the cage birds, writes Mr. W. Driver, late secretary of the Cambs. O.S. I also announce with great regret my retirement from the secretaryship of this society owing to pressure of business. My successors will probably be Messrs. Unwin and Howlett, both old members of our committee.

We have received a copy of the 1909 annual report of the Norwich Plainhead Canary Club. The secretary's (Mr. Jno. Hopkins') report is a very satisfactory one, and views the future as well as the past twelve months hopefully. The balance on the year's working remains at practically the same figure at which it stood in the previous accounts, namely, £2 7s.; but it should be noted that £3 3s. has been set aside out of the year's income as a reserve for cup fund. This is a state of affairs which is highly creditable to Mr. Hopkins and his fellow officers, and redounds much to the reputation of the Club. The report-handbook contains also the names and addresses of the members besides the "scale of points." Information respecting the club may be had of the secretary, at 126, Bury New Road, Bolton.

An interesting account appears in "Printers' Ink" of April 6th of the immense influence upon advertising exercised by Spratt's Patent, Ltd., and telling how this wonderful organisation tracks pet owners everywhere. The following are excerpts:—"Our Press appropriation," says Mr. Lethbridge (the director in charge of the advertising department), "covers dailies, sporting papers, ladies' papers, 'doggy' papers, poultry and cage bird journals, and the illustrated weeklies. Seeing how varied is the demand we have to supply, our advertising goes on all the year round, although, in point of fact, we have two principal seasons for sale—spring and autumn. We also boast that 'where there's a dog there's a Spratts' plate'—in every town and village in the United Kingdom without exception. We believe in keeping advertisement posters and plates bright and attractive looking, and we have a system of alternate colours; thus a white plate is followed by a red one, a red by a green, a green by a blue, etc. We have a great hoarding advertisement at Liverpool which measures 154ft. by 60ft., and we have a similar one at New York. We attend all important dog, poultry, and agricultural shows, amounting to about 1,100 every year."

Rooks as Egg-stealers.

The other day the noise that usually follows the laying of an egg was succeeded by a loud cackling among the hens, writes a correspondent in a contemporary. A Rook was seen coming out of the fowlhouse with the newly laid egg in his beak. He flew with difficulty for about fifteen yards and then had to put the egg down. Being pursued, he left the egg on the ground and flew to the nearest tree cawing angrily. He returned two days later and again alighted in the run, but this time was shot. The Carrion Crow is, of course, a well-known egg-stealer, but it is unusual that a Rook should be such a practised thief. The rookery is three-quarters of a mile away. Some Rooks become confirmed egg-stealers.

In submitting to us a copy of the Poplar and Dis. Cage Bird Society's balance-sheet for the year ended December, 1909, which shows a balance of £6 12s. 6d. (£2 3s. 2d. more than was brought into the accounts from the previous year), Mr. H. W. Cook, the hon. secretary, states that the values placed against the cups, staging, etc, are under-estimated, the cups alone being worth and actually costing 50s. Altogether the balance-sheet is a very satisfactory one, and shows the society to be in a flourishing state, upon which fact they are to be congratulated.

I was very pleased to see my Broken Cap Silver Lizard, first and diploma at the Crystal Palace show, depicted on the front page of CAGE BIRDS on April 9th. It is a life-like picture of him. He has done well on the show bench, being second at Rochdale O.C., second Manchester, second Rochdale "Good Intent," first L.C.B.A., second Salford, second Scottish National, and first Crystal Palace, 1910. I may say I have him paired up to the clear Cap Gold hen which was first at the Crystal Palace at the same time, and I am thinking I shall have something from them. I thank you very much for this and the other pictures you have credited me with from time to time.—JOHN DEWSNAP (Glossop).

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. R. ACKROYD (Manningham).

It is with the deepest of regret, writes Mr. H. Grange, secretary of the Manningham C.B.A., that I have to report the death of Mr. J. R. Ackroyd after a week of pneumonia. He was a man highly respected by all fanciers he came in contact with, and our heartfelt sympathy will go out to his wife and family in their sad bereavement.

I am extremely sorry to inform the many friends of that sterling fancier, Mr. W. H. Cooling, of Mountain Ash, that he is suffering from a very severe attack of pneumonia, writes Mr. T. L. Castree (Mountain Ash). I am sure his cage bird friends, especially in Wales, will be sorry to hear such a sad account of him. Although he has not held as prominent a position on the show bench as he did three or four seasons ago, he has in no way relinquished his connection with the Fancy or his love for his birds; and if all goes well we may expect to see him again in a season or two budding out again with his old love, the Norwich Plainhead. His stock at present is only lying idle for the purpose of betterment. I feel sure all who know him will wish him a most speedy recovery and good luck in his future career.

We deeply regret to learn of quite a chapter of misfortune which has fallen to the lot of that well-known and highly esteemed fancier of Yorkshires, Mr. John Broadley, of Windbill. Miss Broadley writes: "My father, I am sorry to say, is very ill, and has been so for nearly a week with influenza, while my mother is the same; in fact, we have a very unfortunate house at present, as one of my brothers got very nearly killed through a big heavy lid (weighing about 60 lbs.) dropping on his head. He was quite unconscious for four days. The accident happened nine weeks ago, and we have had to stay up with him for six weeks night and day. Father and mother got a bad shock, and having to sit up with him so long they have got quite knocked up. I am sorry to say my brother is making very slow progress." Mr. Broadley's many friends, and the Fancy generally, will join us in wishing the family a speedy return to brighter days.

The Open Norwich P.C.

The Open Norwich Plainhead Club invite applications from societies desiring the club's patronage, and to kindly note "resolution" passed at general meeting: "That societies desirous of the club's patronage will be required to provide not less than six open Norwich classes, and prize money to be not less than 22s. per class."—O. MITCHELL, hon. secretary.

Yorkshire Canary Club.

Any member desiring to bring any business before the general meeting of the Yorkshire C.C. should at once give notice in writing to the secretary. There will be a committee meeting at the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford, on April 16th, at 6 p.m. Voting papers will be sent out to all members this week, and are returnable not later than Monday, April 25th, to the scrutineers, Messrs. F. Hammond and T. Ogden, 70, St. Margaret's Road, Great Horton, Bradford. Date of the annual general meeting, April 30th, 1910.—JOHN GREAVES, secretary.

NOW READY.
—BY—
CHARLES HOULTON.

Published in 8 Monthly Parts - - SIXPENCE EACH.

Two Coloured and Two Art Plates with each part.

This is not a work whose excellence begins and ends with the superficial attractions of good paper and plenty of half-tone illustrations, but is a standard work, written by an acknowledged expert, and prepared for publication by experts.

It has been designed not from the standpoint of attracting the pence of the general public, but as a soberly authoritative and carefully practical work, embodying in the simplest and most straightforward language all that there is to be known on this peculiarly difficult and scientific subject.

It is not packed with French and Latin quotations, nor abstruse and formidable tables of figures which no one outside a University can understand. The author sets himself the more difficult task of helping every breeder of hybrids and every student of the many problems connected with hybrid breeding, by relating all his own experiences and collating in readable form all that is at present known on this most fascinating subject. There are no less than sixteen coloured plates. EACH PLATE IS A PERFECT STUDY OF AN INDIVIDUAL HYBRID—not a pretty group suitable for a children's picture-book, but a plate that shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present-day type and general characteristics of modern hybrids.

The successful fancier is nothing if not practical, and to achieve success in hybrid breeding it is necessary, above all things, to be practical. The practical man wants a practical book, not a picture book.

It will, we feel sure, be generally conceded that CAGE BIRDS has produced in

V. Lane.

We are informed that Mr. W. G. Poole, Stratford-on-Avon, has been engaged to judge Redruth Show on July 6th and 7th next.

In the past I have found CAGE BIRDS invaluable to me for information regarding all sorts of British and foreign birds, both from a breeder's and exhibitor's point of view. I have taken CAGE BIRDS for a number of years, and I may say that the matter it contains I have found of the utmost value to me in helping me to win numerous prizes.—W. LUCAS (Coventry).

The Walthamstow Fanciers' Association is to be congratulated upon the excellent manual for 1910 which it has issued. This quite bulky little volume contains a mine of information relative to the working and the competitions of the society. It reflects great credit upon the hon. secretary, Mr. A. V. Lane (9, College Road, Walthamstow), with whom fanciers desirous of joining this progressive association should communicate.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds." 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Arienlture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Not Sitting at Night.

Mrs. M. A. Daw.—If what you describe has been going on until this reply can appear, I greatly fear the clutch will be quite spoilt, unless, as is possible, the hen began to sit more steadily in a day or so after laying the fourth. If you had not removed the cock you should have tried the effect of removing him, and vice versa. For future guidance I can only say that beyond modelling the nest in a nice comfortable and proper shape and size if the hen has failed to construct one herself on the evening of the day the third egg is laid, and dusting it with fresh pyrethrum powder, you should interfere with the nest as little as possible. Leave her to herself as much as possible. Try to arrange for another hen or two to go to nest at the same time as this one, and then if the above method of working the cock with the hen is ineffectual, and you are satisfied she is not worried by insect pests, here is one more plan you may try as a last resource, which I have known to work well when it is quite near roosting time, or the time when the hen leaves the nest, remove every perch out of the cage, so that she must perforce, either stay on the nest or sit on the floor. Remove them quietly so as not to disturb the hen, and be up betimes next morning to return them. Should she prove a passive resister, and elect to sit on the floor at night rather than the nest distribute her eggs among other hens which have been sitting about the same length of time and try to believe matters might have been worse.

Wedded Strife.

John Machin.—The unseemly bickerings, and also the cock going out of song when mated are all in the order of things, because, although not in variable with every pair, it is quite a common occurrence. Your dietary may be a little more generous. Give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Every second day give a small teaspoonful of egg food, with a pinch of a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure and sesame seed mixed in it, and on the alternate days a small teaspoonful of a mixture of one part each hemp and inga, and a half part of maw, linseed, teazle, and gold of pleasure. Give three or four leaves of dandelion daily. Stop giving apple now. Continue the above diet till the birds have gone to nest. In the drinking water you may give six drops of syrup of buckthorn for two days, and afterwards twenty drops of chemical food for a day or two, but do not go on with this indefinitely. See they have a supply of cuttlefish. When the hen begins to sit reduce the diet to plain canary seed as staple, with a pinch of rape every second day, until the eggs are due to hatch.

Laying One Egg.

Student.—You should have given fuller information concerning these hens; their age, whether they commenced to sit after laying the eggs, how long they had been mated, and so forth. It is not unlikely that their condition received a check by one of the recent snaps of cold, and if they had not commenced to sit your best plan would have been to separate the pairs for a week or ten days, and feed them during this time the same as advised to "John Machin." You should also have given the buckthorn as an aperient for two days, and after that, instead of the chemical food, you should have given six drops of tincture of gentian and three of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. At the end of this time the hens should have shown signs of coming naturally into condition again, and should have been re-mated in the usual way. Of course, it may be too late to do all this now, as the hens may already be starting to nest again, and, in that case, you had best let things follow their own course, but you may still follow the above instructions as to diet until the hens have laid their complement of eggs. The eggs that were laid, assuming the birds had been mated some days before laying, you might have distributed among other hens just commencing to sit, on the offchance of their being fertile.

Not Nesting.

F. W. H.—Your hen was not in a sufficiently forward condition when mated, which is the reason why further developments have not occurred. There is a chance of her having started to nest by the time this reply appears, in which case leave them alone. But in case the hen still shows no more signs of beginning to nest, as the cock is apparently in high condition, you may certainly separate them, and try the cock with another hen, especially if you have a hen which is very anxious to begin nesting, as shown by restless activity, and now and again plucking at the feathers on her breast or sides, and hopping about holding them in her beak. With such a hen you might mate the cock, and have her sitting on eggs by the time the other is really ready to be mated. Add to the diet of the hen in question, whether you separate her from the cock or not, in addition to the egg food on alternate days, in which mix a pinch of gold of pleasure seed each time, every second day, on the days you are not giving egg food, a small teaspoonful of a mixture of one part each hemp and inga and a half part each teazle and linseed. Add also a fourth part of summer rape to the Spanish canary as staple diet. For green food give three or four leaves of dandelion daily.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

Laying and Egg Testing.

E. D. G.—(1) If this hen is past her youth, as I rather suspect may be the case, I should not consider her worth a deal of trouble for future work in the breeding cage. It will be quite useless allowing her to sit out her time on the two eggs, both of which seem to be abnormal ones, as even if they were fertile, the chances of their producing only freaks is considerable. If the hen was a good reliable feeder last year, and you should happen to have trouble with any other hen, or any deserted eggs, you might throw away the abnormal eggs and give the hen a clutch of normal ones to hatch and rear, and thus make her a useful servant after all. Otherwise, separate her from the cock, remove the nest, give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, feed on plain canary, with a scrap of bread and milk every second day, and green food daily for a week. Then feed up again, and mate her again in a fortnight. (2) About the eleventh or twelve day, I should say, is as early as you can tell if eggs are fertile by putting them in water. This method depends upon the movement of the chick within the shell. Both kinds of eggs, fertile and unfertile, will float, but the latter will remain quite still, whilst those containing living chicks will bob about with the movements of the chick. Of course, they must only be put into quite warm water. You could tell fertile from unfertile easily enough by the sixth or seventh day by the method shown and explained in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, from our Manager.

Pants Heavily.

Good Health.—I think the cock being as well as the hen since you put them together is simply due to the fact that he is placed under the same conditions as the hen, which conditions are probably wholly unsuitable and the cause of the trouble. You had better separate the pair if they still show no signs of making further progress. Place them in box cages side by side, or one in each side of a double breeding cage; see that they are in a position quite free from draughts, damp, or extremes of heat and cold, and at the same time are not exposed to impure or vitiated air. Keep cage strewn with clean gritty sand, and a piece of cuttlefish in the hen's cage. As a staple diet, give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give each half a teaspoonful of egg food, with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed mixed in it, and on the alternate days a half-teaspoonful of a mixture of one part each hemp and inga, and a half part each linseed, teazle, and black rape. Give two leaves of dandelion to each daily. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence daily for three days, and afterwards give twenty drops of whisky and five each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, and ipecacuanha wine every second day for a week. The following week give twenty drops of chemical food daily. If they are then in good condition, and free from panting, you may try them again. But do not put them together until both birds, and especially the hen, are in the proper condition for mating.

Young Birds Dying.

Rule.—I think there must have been something wrong with some part of your dietary, or the method of preparing it, to cause so many deaths at three or four days old, if, as you say, the hens fed well as long as the young would take food. But as you say also that the young were continually gasping as if for breath, is it possible what they were really doing was gasping for food, and the hen had in fact ceased to feed them? Had the young full crops at any time when you found them "gasping," or had they food in the crop when they died; or, again, were the bowels blocked with waste matter? How did you prepare your egg food, and am I right in thinking you gave a liberal supply of hemp from the time the young were hatched? The answers to these questions might elucidate your difficulties. To prevent similar losses this year follow the instructions as to feeding and management given in reply to "Troubled" in last issue, and if the same trouble occurs again in any of your early nests write again, and I will do my best to help you. Do not keep windows open all night until weather is more mild and settled, if, as I gather from your letter, this is what you did last season when unfavourable conditions prevailed. Plenty of fresh pure air is invaluable, but do not abuse the method of supplying it.

Breeding in Outdoor Shed.

A. Thomas.—I see no reason why you should not breed quite successfully in the shed. The wire gauge panels will provide quite efficient ventilation, and if you want to have the birds flying loose you may turn in two cocks and five or six hens, and as soon as the first round of nests have fully fledged you may give access to the wire flight, which will thereby ease your accommodation considerably, and the weather will also be more suitable for the larger open air space. Hang up at least a dozen nesting sites, such as German wicker travelling cages with the short bars removed from the one end, square nest boxes of good size, cigar boxes without lids, etc. They will be best appreciated well up towards the ceiling, but do not hang two or three temptingly higher than all the rest, or trouble will occur. Give canary and summer rape separately in unlimited quantity; and hemp, crushed biscuit, a variety of green food and various seeds when young are about. Crushed and scalded dog biscuit, and bread and milk, may largely take the place of egg food in these circumstances.

Always Eating.

Hibernia.—Unless I must assume that the bird is also always sleeping when not eating, which no healthy bird should do, you give me no idea at all as to whether anything is really wrong with the bird. I am inclined to think there is nothing more serious the matter than the lethargy due to overfeeding. Keep him in a fair-sized cage, in a comfortable, but not heated, place, free from draughts and impure air. Keep floor of cage strewn with clean gritty sand. Stick a small cube of hard common salt between the wires for him to peck at. Supply the bath freely now in mild weather. As regards the diet, restrict it to the following menu for a month, and if a considerable improvement has not taken place in that time write again and repeat particulars, referring also to this reply. Give a teaspoonful only of plain canary seed as staple each day. Every third day reduce this quantity by one-half, and give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of two parts summer rape to one part each black rape, hemp, inga, and teazle, to make up the bulk, or rather more than the usual quantity. Give a liberal supply of green food daily—chickweed for preference, or groundsel, and a leaf of dandelion daily. Twice each week, on days when you are not giving the mixed seed, give a piece of bread the size of a hazel nut, not more, soaked in cold milk, drained, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Limit the diet solely to this for the time named, but be careful and not forget the daily supply, lest a catastrophe occur. In the drinking water during the first week give six drops of dandelion juice, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day, and in the following week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid on alternate days.

Brevities.

Missing Question.—(W. E. Shaw).—Your letter contains no question on any subject, so I do not know what you wish me to reply to. If you overlooked the real point in writing, better write again and give your question first place. Your feeding whilst the hen is sitting is correct. If you have any trouble with the young look up replies to "troubled" and "G.E.F." in our last issue.

Bare of Feathers (J.E.S.).—You ought to have said how you feed the bird, where you keep it, and I should like to have known its probable age. Keep it in a good sized box cage, in a place where the temperature varies as little as possible, but not necessarily in a very warm place, and in a well ventilated position, but free from draught and impure air. Let her bathe freely in mild weather. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts inga, maw, gold of pleasure, teazle, and linseed, and on three other days, each week for the next month give a small piece of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur, and sprinkled lastly with soft sugar. Give a fairly liberal allowance of green food, chickweed preferably, daily; in the drinking water 10 drops of syrup of buckthorn daily, and afterwards 20 drops of chemical food every second day for a month. Slightly smear bare places with carbolised vaseline twice a week. You will probably find little improvement until next moult, but the above will help things to come right.

Taking It Calmly (A. R.)—Certainly it may be worth while trying this hen again. It is much too early to talk about giving up hopes. The hen may be a late-hatched one, and, consequently, very young, but, in any case, she only wants a little more time to develop, so have patience for a while. Keep her in a cage where she can see the cock, and take tit-bits from him when so disposed. Give her six drops of syrup of buckthorn in her water daily for three days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of steel every second day for a week. Give two leaves of dandelion daily; every second day half a teaspoonful of egg food with a pinch of a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure and sesame seeds mixed in it; and on the alternate days the same quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga.

Sits Moping (Corner-bird).—Sorry, but I cannot give you any really definite advice without knowing more of the symptoms the bird shows. Better write again, and give a few more particulars, especially as to whether it has any difficulty in breathing, whether in plump condition, or otherwise, and if its bowels seem in good order. Also say its probable age, and how you have been feeding it. Meantime feed on plain canary only as staple, with half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and twice a week on the alternate days a scrap of bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and ten drops of lemon juice, daily for three days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. A pound of colour feed would suffice for about eight birds. The exact quantity, however, will be affected by the rapidity or otherwise of the moulting process.

Altering Green Food (A. G. D.).—I would not advise you to make any drastic change in the green food supplied when the young have reached a fortnight old. If watercress is still readily obtainable stick to it until the young have left the nest, or if it is necessary you should make the change, bring it about gradually by giving only a small quantity one day, and slightly reducing the usual amount of watercress, and after that gradually increasing the lettuce, and proportionately reducing the watercress day by day until one has nearly replaced the other.

Quick Laying (Spider).—The probability is you kept this pair apart too long after the hen had reached that condition of "freshness" when mating was actually necessary, and, consequently, when you put them together they had barely time to come to an understanding before the eggs were forward for deposition. If the cock was in very fresh condition when put in with the hen, so that mating took place quickly, or, say, by the next day, I should advise you to set the eggs under another hen if possible, as they are probably fertilised all right. Then you may remove the nesting material for a week, continue to feed as you are now doing; give a little dandelion daily as green food, and let them come on naturally again for a second nest. At the end of a week give just a tuft of moss or hair for the hen to play with, and when you see her trying in earnest to make a nest with it, and calling for the cock from time to time, give her a fresh supply of material, when she will probably get along better.

Sunshine or Shadow (A.H.T.).—No, it is not really essential for the sun to shine into your room in order for you to breed Canaries or Mules successfully. Providing you have a bright and well-lit room, nice and airy, but free from draughts, you may dispense with actual sunshine, though it is, of course, always advisable to have a room which gets a fair amount of sun whenever this is possible.

Trouble About Eggs (F.L.H.).—(1) Reject her altogether. That is the only really practical way of dealing with an egg-eating hen. You may try blowing the contents out of a couple of eggs and refilling the shells with a creamy compound of mustard, salt and cayenne, stopping the hole, and placing these in the nest for her to investigate; or give her two or three china eggs to peck at until she is tired. If a really valuable specimen, prepare a nest for her, as shown several times in our columns, in which the egg rolls out of sight as soon as laid, and set them under a reliable pair of foster parents. (2) If this hen is in too plump condition reduce her somewhat by a plain and limited seed diet, plenty of green-food, and a pinch of Epsom salts in the water every second day for a week. When next mating her, add a pinch of powdered cuttlefish to the egg-food each time, and give 20 drops of chemical food in the drinking water about five days a week. Also smash up a little old limey mortar to coarse powder, and mix with the sand for the floor of the cage.

Ventilating Bird-room (W. Pugh.—It is very unfortunate you have not the window in the south end of your room. The best and most efficient means of ventilation was to stop about one-half the length of the roof about four inches short of the top, and superimpose a second covering sufficiently wide to prevent rain driving underneath and entering. Short of this now you should have the middle panel of the window in the west end made as a sash to open or close at will. Near the floor in the centre of this side also cut out an opening twelve inches wide by six inches high, cover inside and outside with sheets of perforated zinc, so placed that the perforations are not opposite each other, and in the north and south ends cut out similar openings six inches by five inches near the eaves, and cover them in the same way. You might add wooden sliding shutters over each on the inside, which will enable you to regulate the ventilation to suit any prevailing conditions of weather.

How to Treat Yorkshire (A.H., Waterford).—You ought to have given me some idea what you wanted the treatment for. At present I am quite in the dark, whether the bird is well or ill, or whether you are keeping it for singing only, or want to breed with it. If you are keeping it as a songster, give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Twice each week give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, black rape, linseed, and millet. Once a week give a few crumbs of sponge cake, or a small piece of bread scalded with milk, drained, and sprinkled with soft sugar. Give a spray of chickweed, groundsel, watercress, or bit of lettuce, or dandelion, daily in summer, four times a week at other times. Give a bath daily also in summer; two or three times a week when weather is mild in winter. If this is not what you wish to know, please write again.

Young Birds Dying (J. S. T.).—Look up reply to "Troubled" in last issue. It is also possible your bread may not be quite suitable. It should not be too fresh, but of such an age that it will crumb up into small crumbs when rubbed between the hands without any suspicion of clotting or stickiness, and yet not so dry but that there is a slight feeling of dampness in the crumbs. It should also be quite free from alum or other chemicals, which are sometimes added in the manufacture. If you are satisfied these things are faultless, then, as you succeeded better when you used biscuit in making your egg food, by all means go back to biscuits again, as, apart from being cheaper, bread has very little advantage over good plain biscuits. Another point: You should not begin to give hemp liberally as soon as the young are hatched. The reply to which I have referred you will tell you about this.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

An Outdoor Flight.

Beginner.—I think your erection is very awkwardly shaped to allow of the proposed division into three parts—the height is much too great in proportion to the frontage. It is floor space that is so important, not height. If you want to indulge in attempts to breed, I think the best plan will be to divide the place at the centre, horizontally, then making six compartments 2ft. 6ins. long by 2ft. 6in. high by 3ft. 6in. front to back, each of which would hold one pair of birds. If you mix a number of pairs the chances of breeding results are much more uncertain, especially with British birds. To ascertain the possibilities as regards Foreign birds, you must address a query to the Foreign bird department (Mr. W. T. Page). A few pairs of Budgerigars (by themselves) would answer satisfactorily. Six suitable British couples would be Goldfinches, Linnets, Bullfinches, Greenfinches, Redpolls, and Siskins; all likely breeders, especially if kept apart.

The Problem of Death.

Goldfinch.—It would doubtless be "stomach trouble" of some kind which carried off your newly-caged Goldfinches and Linnets. An internal upset is the all too frequent result after a week or two's confinement, and a diet of hard, dry seed. The liver, or some other internal organ, gradually gets upset by the change of diet incidental to their (the birds) changed state (i.e., from the field to the cage). I am (by all accounts) fairly fortunate myself with fresh-caught birds, and much of my success in keeping them alive I attribute to the frequent mild doses of saline medicine which I give them. I always keep handy a bottle containing a saturated solution of sulphate of soda, and of this I now and again add sufficient to the drinking water to give it a decided saline taste. This keeps the bowels working properly, and prevents that bad state of constipation into which so many newly-caught birds more or less quickly get when put on to dry seeds—constipation which is often the fore-runner of death. If the human system gets "clogged" we all know that there is trouble, and speedily, too, unless the impurities are removed from the body and the digestive and other organs "cleared for action," so that they may carry out their intended functions. Take the "tip" with the next fresh-caught birds you obtain.

An Outside Flight.

A. Thomas.—It seems a very decent sort of place indeed that you have erected, and your birds ought to do well in it. Whether you will get many youngsters hatched and reared therein is a "horse of another colour," as the saying goes; I am afraid you won't if you restrict the occupants to British bird couples. The reasons for this I have often stated in these columns. A very extensive aviary (well shrubbed, if possible) is needed if one desires to keep a number of pairs of the different species with the prospect of them breeding successfully. A mixture of a few hen Canaries with a hen Siskin, Goldfinch, Chaffinch, and Bullfinch would suit the cock Bramhle, Greenfinch, Linnet, and Redpoll. You might try two hen Bullies, though they will probably fight. Two or three cock Linnets could go in; and if you leave out the hen Goldie you could put in two or three cocks of this species. About one dozen birds in all will be the limit; if you want to breed anything, that is.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

Keeping a Chaffinch.

Pinkie.—It is quite correct to describe the Chaffinch as a hardy bird, which usually adapts itself readily to existence in a cage. Its feeding presents little difficulty. As a staple seed mixture give the following: Canary and teazle three parts each, summer rape, charlock and linseed one part each. In addition, give a feed of white sunflower seed or safflower seed daily; or put one part amongst the stock mixture. Smashed walnuts (and other nuts) are greatly relished, also, and should be given occasionally as a special treat. A small feed of hemp can be given once a week. Give a mealworm or two every day or so, varying same with flies, gruhs, earwigs, and occasional spiders, aphides, wasp gruhs, live ants' eggs, etc., as obtainable. Chaffinches will eat most kinds of live food. These birds will peck over a sprig of shepherd's-purse, chickweed, groundsel, etc. Radish, turnip, and summer rape seedlings are usually eagerly devoured, too, when just sprouting, which they soon do when the seed is soaked in cold water. Keep the bird in a box cage, hanging about breast high in a room wherein people are constantly moving about. Let him bathe freely.

Managing a Goldfinch.

W.M.—Let the stock food be good, sound teazle and old hemp, three parts of each, Canary two parts, and linseed one part. In a separate dish give a dessert spoonful of cracked sunflower seed occasionally, with a good pinch of maw and niger seeds now and again, as a further change. A little wild seed mixture is also excellent. The bird should have (when obtainable) a free daily supply of knapweed, thistle heads (especially any with tiny maggots at the centre), milk thistle, seediug chickweed, groundsel, and shepherd's-purse (not the coarse leaves), any cornflower heads which you can get full of seed—all, or any, of these are liked by the Goldie, when in season, and help to get him through his moult in exhibition form. Many like a tiny white mealworm (just cast its skin) now and again. He should have provision for a bath whenever he feels inclined to take it. That he should bathe freely is important. When a bird is not thoroughly on seed, run his stock mixture through a hemp mill before offering it to him. This will lightly crack it. Failing a mill, run the domestic rolling-pin (or a jam jar) over it. I think your bird ought to be singing now. The hen has a very small blaze, which seldom extends past the centre of the eye (towards the back of the head). The proximity of other birds would not affect its song. If you suspect mites, dust Keating's insect powder well down amongst the plumage on two or three successive days.

Brevities.

A Feeding Problem (Marcus).—Evidently you have overlooked the answer I gave you in last week's issue (fourth reply from bottom of column 3, page 347). To put it briefly, I then stated that the richer diet of the Linnet would not harm the hen Canary whilst breeding operations were in progress. My own hens with my muling Linnets and Goldies get the same diet precisely as the Finches.

A Breeding Matter (Blondin).—I have cock Canaries in the same room as my own muling couples. When a hen Canary is in "rank" breeding condition she will usually call to any male bird, British Finch or Canary; it then rests with the Finch to do his duty. The probability is that your birds are not yet keen on nestiug. Do the hens show any desire to build? It is a fact that one often gets fertile eggs from a muling couple although the Finch has never been seen in the act of paying amorous attention to his mate. You must, of course, wait patiently until your hen Canaries start to build their nests; the Fiuches can do nothing till then.

Canary-Bullfinch Couple (R.W.S.T.).—As the couple are feeding through the partition wires, by all means draw out the latter and let them run together. Your feeding methods are good; let the two birds when together have the diet which the hen Bullie has been used to. You want to add chickweed and shepherd's purse, likewise tender young dandelion leaves, to the list of greenfoods.

In an Aviary (E. E.)—The seed diet (canary, white millet, and turnip seeds) is an extraordinary one for a Goldfinch, Greenfinch, Bullfinch, etc. I presume they have been thriviug on the generous allowance of green foods. You should add to it, at least, teazle, hemp, and summer rape, with a little sunflower. With these, and the greenstuffs, there is a chance of young being reared. Seeing that you enquire as to a suitable mate for the hen Canary, I presume the Greenfinch is a cock and the Bullie a hen, in which case a Siskin cock might be the best addition to the aviary. A cock Bramblefinch would be purely speculative, inasmuch as a Bramblefinch-Canary Mule has never yet been bred, I believe.

A Tail and Song Problem (New Starter).—(1) I have never before heard tell of a bird's tail which "wasted away." If the bird has smashed the feathers and the stumps remain in, it will be necessary to extract the latter before new feathers can grow; and to pull out the stumps is the only remedy. Of course, at the next moult the tail will come right, for the old "stumps" will then be shed in the natural way; (2) Prepare a mixture of hemp and niger, half-pint of each, and maw seed a quarter pint, and give the Linnet a teaspoonful daily (in addition to its usual mixture). This should serve to put him on song in a short time. Perhaps the change of quarters has silenced him for the time being. Is the bird tame (steady)?

What Went Wrong? (Springburn).—You should read the reply given "Goldfinch" this week, and act upon the advice therein. But the saline medicine should not be resorted to only when the birds show signs of being decidedly ill; its administration should be looked upon as a preventive measure. Is your kitchen a very warm place? (most kitchens are). If so, it is not quite an ideal spot in which to keep British Fiuches.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Budgerigars, Java Sparrows, etc.

Briton.—(1) I should not put in more than 6 pairs, your numbers will soon increase. (2) If any interference occurred at all, it would be the Budgerigars annoying the Lovebirds; you could put a pair each of Black-cheeked and Blue-winged Lovebirds with them. (3) The plumage of both sexes of Java Sparrows is alike, but the hen Java has a narrower and more pointed beak than the male; this is most noticeable when viewed in profile. (4) Yes, providing you supply at least half-a-dozen nesting receptacles, and plenty of nesting material. (5) It is either a Goffin's or Bare-eyed Cockatoo; I cannot tell which from the scanty details given. I should keep a tin of canary and white millet seed in its cage; it will occasionally visit the small seed, and the change will be very beneficial. From many sources I have gathered the moult has been very irregular this past season; if the feathers appear long in coming try anointing the bare parts with Spratt's "Pennacura."

Ring-neck with Swelling.

A. T. C.—Your letter reads much as if your bird had been getting a bit of everything, and birds so fed usually get into a bad way. Confine your diet to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts in variety, plain biscuit, stale crust of household bread, or dry toast. Do not give any tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, nor any kind of animal food. Give several doses of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water), with two or three days between each dose. When not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Bathe the eye with a rose-water and zinc eye solution, and keep the nostrils well cleansed with diluted glycothymoline. A few sips of very weak brandy and water (chilled) two or three times daily will act as a useful stimulant. Keep the bird warm and out of draught, yet where it will also get light and air. If no improvement in about a fortnight, repeat query, please, and give full details as to previous dietary, and nature of swelling under the eye. In the case of any aggravation of the present symptoms, write again at once with fuller possible details. Seed mixture: Canary and white millet seed 2 parts each, and 1 part each hemp, dari, paddy rice, oats, and sunflower seeds; well mix, and always keep a tin of this mixture in the cage, also a piece of clean cuttlefish.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free, a mine of information of use and interest.

Virginian Nightingales and Their Breeding.

Sparrow.—The difficulty of breeding these and similar species is keeping up a sufficient supply of insect food, as some pairs for the first week or ten days will only supply live food to their young, though they will satisfy their own hunger on artificial foods. Your having them in a cage, if they will attempt nesting under these conditions, should make the keeping up a supply of live food a simpler matter than if they were in an aviary with other birds. However, if your cage is of the Crystal Palace type (all wire), I fear there is little chance of their attempting to nest, nevertheless it is worth a trial; put in a nest box, screen it with twiggy branches, and also tack some felt or something similar over wire (side and top) of this part of cage, so as to make it private. At the present time to bring them on, give each bird two or three mealworms daily, and if they are steady let them have a fly round the room when convenient; also supply in addition to the usual seeds ripe fruit and a little of some good soft food mixture (see advert. columns). When young are hatched out supply live insects ad lib., such as cockroaches, mealworms, beetles, smooth caterpillars, live ants' cocoons, and any other garden pests you can capture. If your cage is all wire it would perhaps be better to attach a box, say, 12 inches square, to one end of the cage, and fix the nestbox in this; it would be sufficiently lighted from the open side against wire.

Brevities.

An Ailing Ring-necked Parrakeet (A. F. C.).—Get the following mixture from your chemist: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glyceriue in equal parts; for the next seven days supply one part of the mixture to three parts of water as the bird's sole drinking fluid. If the voidings are at all hard, give one dose of Dinneford's Magnesia, as already advised, and in all other respects treat as per our previous reply. The bird should be kept in as even a temperature as possible, and while draughts must be avoided, the cage should be kept where the bird will get plenty of fresh air. Report progress a week hence.

Hand-rearing Budgerigars (E. E.).—Pour boiling water over one day's supply of seed overnight, and it will be ready for use next morning. The young bird should be fed every hour; it should have its last meal quite late, and feeding should begin at daybreak. A little soaked stale household bread may also be given, and just a drop or two or chilled water at each feeding; a quill dipped in the water, and allow two drops to trickle into the bird's mouth will be ample. Half a cokernut husk would be the best receptacle for it to rest in. Hope your trouble will meet with its due reward.

Black-cheeked Lovebirds, etc. (H.B.).—(1) Yes, in most aviaries they breed freely, but in some few cases results have been poor. (2) They are about the most handsome of the Lovebirds; briefly, the upper parts are greenish, with chocolate-brown, yellow and orange-yellow bead, and facial markings and varied underparts. (4) They are not noisy. They hail from Rhodesia. Sometimes Budgerigars interfere with the breeding arrangements of other small Parrakeets, but nothing worse usually happens. You could keep the Passerine Parrakeet (Blue-wing Lovebird) with the above.

What Birds? ("Ray and Bee").—They are Red-headed Lovebirds, and usually arrive in this country in a debilitated condition, though in fairly good plumage. Your diet is satisfactory, as far as it goes, but it is not varied enough. I should also give them a millet spray occasionally, a little ripe fruit, and a piece of cuttlefish to nibble at. Get a bottle of Dinneford's Magnesia, and put a teaspoonful into the drinking water every third day for a fortnight, and as soon as you can procure it, supply daily grass in flower (seeding grass), and a small piece of lettuce. The difficulty is to get these birds to take sufficient exercise to keep them fit and well; if they are tame and fearless, letting them out of their cage daily for an hour or more, according to convenience, would be very beneficial.

Pair of Birds for Cage (C. M.).—As you require them for your young son as pets I should advise you to get a pair of Zebra Finches, 4s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. a pair. They are easy to cater for; he will soon learn to look after them himself; hardy, pretty, and decidedly foreign in appearance. Get a full-sized canary breeding cage, take out the nest boxes, and hang up at one end, near the top, one of the small Hartz travelling cages (any bird dealer will sell you one for a few pence), cut away one of the bars, to allow the birds to get in, take out the fittings, stuff in a little hay, leave more hay loose about the cage, and the birds will do the rest. Supply canary and white millet in equal parts, also keep a millet spray hanging in the cage; supply water for drinking and bathing, and keep cage tray well covered with gritty sand. Procure at once, and they will settle down and breed during the summer.

Budgerigars with British Birds (H. I. G.).—The only risk of keeping Budgerigars with Finch-like birds is that the former are apt, in sheer mischief, to break the legs or wings of the latter. However, if you keep to one pair, and take out the young as soon as they can feed themselves, I do not think you will have any trouble with them, and the risk run will be but small. But if you leave young and old in together, and allow numbers to increase, sooner or later this will lead to disaster. You must supply a tin of white millet seed in addition to your other mixtures, and hang up a millet spray occasionally as a change.

What Parrot? (S. W.).—Your description is not sufficiently complete; it reads much like a Moustache Parrakeet, but I cannot speak with certainty till I get a fuller description. Are there any head or facial markings, any sign of ring round neck? The Parrot is evidently quite untamed, and, being in strange quarters, and among strangers, gets badly scared; as it becomes accustomed to you, and its environment, it will settle down, and the screaming nuisance abate. Supply in addition to the seed mixture ripe fruit and a few nuts. If you will repeat query with details asked for I will give you a full and definite reply in next issue.

Breeding Indian Green Parrakeets (J. H. F.).—It is rather interesting to hear of these Parrakeets sitting on hay; this has been the cause of your trouble, I expect, but you had better leave them alone now as she is steadily sitting; but if she forsakes the nest, either supply a small barrel, hung up longtitudinally, a log nest, or a nest box with concave bottom. With very few exceptions Parrakeets build no nest; they merely fashion out a log or hole in a tree to their liking, and lay their eggs on the bare wood. The paper posted you will supply you with necessary details; if not, repeat query next week on any point you are still in doubt about.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; aualysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

D. Walker.—Your birds are suffering from infectious pneumonia, and needed careful attention and isolation long before this. It is a pity you had not communicated with me before. Like others, you have allowed the disease to spread throughout your rooms, and to become so firmly fixed that the greatest difficulty lies in its entire eradication. Not only does this delay help to further spread the disease, but it acts by increasing the virulency or deadliness of the casual microbe. Cages inhabited by deceased birds should be thoroughly disinfected by boiling, if so constructed as to allow of this. Any sick birds must at once be isolated, and should not be attended by anyone having charge of those apparently healthy, as the disease can be easily carried by one's clothing, etc. You may thus be successful in arresting its progress, or, on the other hand, it may mean a matter of months; at any rate, carry out this plan as early as possible. You cannot do better than treat your remaining birds with quinine, the most convenient form for your case being the citrate of iron and quinine. Buy sixpenuyworth from your chemist in crystals and dissolve in the drinking water, administering fresh night and morning just sufficient to tinge the water. This you may continue for a week or ten days, then allowing three or four days to elapse, afterwards repeating for another week. Shall be pleased to give you any further advice you may need.

G.H.T.—I hope you received the specimen I sent to you by post. As it is an interesting case for the benefit of readers generally I shall describe it here in a little more detail. The subject was a Cinnamon hen Canary, and the history is that it was purchased with another about a month ago. At the time it did not appear very well, suffering from constipation, and occasional acute attacks of pain evidenced by a croaking noise. The purchaser, uncertain whether to reject it or not allowed himself to be persuaded, as he describes, by an older fancier to keep the bird. This was very unfortunate. From the time of purchase to the time of its demise it has been weakly, its appetite precarious, and it never once revived, constipation being the principal trouble, and emission of noises indicative of pain. I examined this bird carefully, and found affecting the capsule of the liver two nodular growths arising from infection of septic fever, both considerably large. In no other organ were they present. Their situation involving such an important organ as the liver (which plays such an important part in digestion), together with pressure sustained by the adjacent intestine by these growths, enlighten us as to the cause of the constipation; and the pain would result from the pressure upon the nerves of these organs, particularly during the passage of excrement. Still of more import is the question as to whether my correspondent is entitled to recover for the value of the bird. I would advise him to carefully watch the remaining bird, and should he possess others, to at once isolate it from these and disinfect the cages. It is interesting to note the variety of symptoms displayed by birds affected with these lesions, according to their situations to a keen observer; unfortunately, only the minority of my correspondents afford me these.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Numbers and Addresses (J. W. L.).—Yes, numbers count as one word, and addresses are, of course, counted in word for word.

A Eulogy (Unknown).—The fact that your letter of appreciation of Mr. Kaye, and condemnation of other fanciers, is above a nom-de-plume, in our opinion quite destroys its value, and we therefore see no object in publishing it.

A Cutting (J. Lepla).—Many thanks for your thoughtfulness.

Withdrawal of a Motion (W. R.).—We cannot venture to advise you in this matter, as we feel it would be tantamount to interference in the conduct of your society.

A Club Notice (W. Easton).—Your notice of meeting on April 12th did not reach us until after last week's issue was printed and on sale.

An Advertisement (A. V. Lane).—We congratulate you on your excellent manual, and tender our thanks for the advertisement you have been good enough to include in it.

A Machine (X. X.).—Such a machine was illustrated and described in our paper about twelve months ago, but we do not think that any firm makes and offers it for sale; have heard nothing as to this.

Question of Special Prizes (Special).—The name and address of the secretary of Wellington Show is Mr. George Hitchman, 6, Spring Hill, Wellington, Salop. We cannot answer your question about special prizes, but advise you to communicate with the firm in question direct.

BARTON C. AND B.E.C.

At the monthly meeting, held April 6th, a table show of pairs for Mule and Hybrid breeding was held at the Red Lion Hotel. It was a poor show, only four pairs being staged. Where are our members, and what are they doing? Will they please attend? Surely a true fancier can spare one night a month for the benefit of the club. So roll up and try to make it a success in the future.

1, vhc, Small, leader Goldfinch and Linn. Can., very good pair, easy win; 2, 3, Beach, 2nd Goldfinch and cl. Can., good pair; 3rd, Linnet and cl. Can., nice pair. Mr. C. Dent judged, but his was not a very hard task, and not a very long one.—E. C. DUNN, Sec.

GARSTON E.B.A.

At the last monthly meeting a very interesting and successful British Birds and Canary Pair Show was held in the Baptist Schoolrooms, Earp Street. The judge was Mr. David Griffiths, who is the oldest fancier in the district, having purchased his first pair of birds some 30 years ago. The quality of the birds was extra good, and the awards were received with unanimous approval. During the evening Mr. A. Christopher obliged the "raw recruits" by giving a washing exhibition, the same being thoroughly appreciated.

GOLDFINCH: 1, 2, Bryant; 3, James. LINNET: 1, Jones; 2, Gray; 3, Christopher. SISKIN, ETC.: 1, Jones; 2, Gray; 3, Greene. GREENFINCH: 1, Jones; 2, James; 3, Christopher. MULING PAIR: 1, 2, Jones; 3, Gray. YORKS., YELL. CK. AND BUFF HEN: 1, Christopher; 2, Ireland; 3, Moly neux.—A. WILKINSON, Hon. Sec.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE & DIS. O.S.

Table show of British hardbills, held on April 5th, in one of the large rooms at headquarters, and proved to be quite a success. There were a good number of visitors, the room being packed to the door. The points gained will count for the special prizes, which consist of three sections, Norwich, Yorkshire, and British, there being three grand specials for each section. The competition was the keenest ever held; there were 20 entries in one class —a real good class, many good birds being cardless. Mr. J. Mellor placed the cards with general satisfaction.

1, Foden (Goldfinch); 2, Colville and Knight (Bullfinch); 3, Lockwood (Goldfinch); 4, Baron (Linnet); vhc, Kelsall (Chaffinch); hc, Taylor (Linnet); c, Heap (Siskin). At our next meeting Mr. H. Kelsall has promised to give a demonstration on cage-making, when all fanciers and friends will be made welcome.—H. FODEN, hon. sec.

GLASGOW WEST END C.B.C.

Usual monthly meeting and table show of British and Foreign birds was held in Clarendon Hall on April 8th. During judging the meeting was held in the side room. Business was got through in good time. Two new members were enrolled, viz., Messrs. W. Kane and A. Wilson. The president asked for specials for table show, when four were handed in. After a vote of thanks to the chairman the meeting adjourned to the large hall to view the birds. The number forward totalled 30, and Mr. R. V. Raine judged. Unfortunately, Mr. J. G. Andamis had four birds too late for competition, viz., Blackbird, Greenfinch, and two Chaffinches. A members' judging competition was held, in which great interest was taken. Everyone was satisfied with the judge's decisions. President A. Miller proposed a very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Raine for coming to judge, and hoped it would not be the last time we would meet him in the same capacity. Mr Raine, in returning thanks, said he would have great pleasure in coming again to judge. Thereafter the prize cards and specials were presented to each of the winners at the last monthly show. This brought a successful and pleasant evening to a close. Awards:—

YELLOWHAMMER (1): 1, Smith. A.O.V. BUNTING (5): 1 (Meadow Bunting), Taylor; 2, spl, (Black-headed Bunting), 3, spl (Snow Bunting), 4 (Cirl Bunting), 5 (Lapland Bunting), Henderson. A Splendid London Exhibition.

Amongst the Attractions do not fail to Visit "Cage Birds'" Stall.

In London at the present moment—at "Olympia," West Kensington, to be precise—is to be found one of the most entertaining and altogether charming exhibitions ever seen in the metropolis. We refer to the "Ideal Home Exhibition," which has been organised by that well-known newspaper, the "Daily Mail."

The object of this exhibition is primarily to bring to notice the thousand and one means by which the modern home—from the humblest to the highest—may attain that acme of completeness and comfort which modern resources have rendered possible. But this is not all. Instruction (for such it is) is conveyed in the very pleasantest of manners, as the spectacular side of the exhibition is so beautifully contrived that the visitor cannot be other than charmed with the pretty prospect spread before him under the huge dome of the exhibition building.

The Tudor village, with its old-time inhabitants (at least, so far as costume goes), while it cannot hope to be a "joy for ever," will most assuredly remain a joy to visitors for so long as the exhibition opens its doors. We recommend readers not to miss seeing it.

Amongst the host of other attractions, too, do not neglect to pay a visit to "Cage Birds" stall (No. 142), where all our publications will be found on sale, and where crowds of visitors assemble daily, admiring spectators of the display of birds to be found there—the tame birds being especially attractive, charming the coins out of many a pocket. That the "Fancy" will recruit many bird lovers from Olympia is certain.

The exhibition is open on every week-day from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., and closes on April 23rd next. The price of admission is the popular shilling.

The Preston and Flowers Defence Fund.

Since we published our last list, the following subscriptions to the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund" have come to hand:—Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., 7s. 6d.; and a further subscription from northern fanciers, per the Newcastle-upon-Tyne C.B.S., 2s. These sums, with the amount already acknowledged in our columns, viz., £61 13s. 11d., bring the aggregate up to £62 3s. 5d.

In our next issue we shall have an important and interesting statement to make concerning the progress of this case; and we hope to be in a position to indicate the date, or thereabouts, of the hearing of the appeal.

Proposed New Cage Bird Society for Stroud Valley and District.

Sir,—I should esteem it a favour if you would kindly allow me to bring the above to the notice of those of your readers who reside in this district, who, I feel sure, will be interested. I have for some time past been of the opinion, as the number of fanciers in this Valley must be upwards of fifty, that a very successful society could be formed to extend and help forward this most fascinating, paying and high-moral inspiring hobby. Great scope for gathering valuable advice, etc., showing of birds, and the pleasure of bright meetings of members, are the advantages of such a society. Will all sincerely interested persons please send their names and addresses to me, when a meeting can be called and preliminary arrangements made?

Items from Ireland.

Sir,—The weather as I pen these notes is all that could be desired for the start of a successful season, and I hear that there are at the present time young on the perches, so I am sure we will have a good muster of youngsters at the first feather show to be held in Dublin in July. Time after time I have been asked has the old Y.C.C. gone, or have they held their annual general in private this year. I hear that they have squared up with the prize winners at their late show, but I hope they don't forget that some of the successful exhibitors at the 1908 show have still £ s. d. due to them. I notice the Y.C. and C.B. have appointed a judge for their open show in November. Are we to take it for granted that he is to do Canaries and British? A good day's work. I am sure that there are plenty of British men in Ireland capable of placing the cards. Why not give one of them a start? A matter I think would be of great benefit to the Fancy in Ireland is, before the coming show season, to get all the secretaries of the societies—north, south, east and west—to meet and try to come to some understanding, if at all possible, each society to give power to its secretary to act on their behalf at the said meeting, to be held in one of the cities. I would be glad to have expressions of opinion on this matter in the columns of Cage Birds, as I am sure the Editor will give us the space. Surely, if this meeting could be arranged, and all clubs unite hand in hand, we could look forward to a record exhibition season. When I think over matters connected with the "Cage Bird Fancy," I often wonder why so much quarrelling, etc., comes about. Surely if we go into it for the love of the birds we should not, as it were, draw daggers over them. Now, I hope before many weeks have elapsed that some understanding between the different clubs will come about, and that everything will be got to move in harmony the coming season, and that we will be congratulating ourselves when it will be past and gone.

Suggested Society and Show for Mid-Rhondda.

Sir,—I was pleased to see on opening Cage Birds last week that other fanciers had taken up the suggestion of a society for the Mid Rhondda. I am glad to tell "Interested One" and "Gilfach" that there will be a meeting held at the Gwalia Restaurant, Tonypandy, on Wednesday, April 20th. So will all those fanciers who feel interested in seeing a good society formed rally around and be at the meeting? We will welcome any fancier from Porth to Treherbert, Ynshir and "Gilfach" included. If there is any fancier who wishes to join us and cannot be at the meeting, if they will send their names to me, before the 20th, I will bring them before the meeting. Hoping every fancier will make an effort to be there, and wishing Cage Birds every success.

Yeo, 1, Upton Terrace, Hendrecafn, Penygraig.

Sir,—With reference to the letters upon the above, I as a bird fancier living in the district, and greatly interested in the Fancy, would be very pleased to see a society started in Tonypandy, as Pandy (as it is generally called) would be a fine centre for the Valleys—Rhondda Vach and Rhondda Vaur. Porth is the junction of these, which are only about six miles from the Porth Station, at the extreme end of the Valleys. There are a lot of members of the Porth Society living in Tonypandy. I might mention that the Porth Society is "gone down," and there is no suitable place in which to hold a show there now. Will the gentlemen who signed the letters—"Interested," and "Another Interested One," also "Gilfach"—sign their names under their letters, so as to let the fanciers around know who they are? There is nothing to be ashamed of in the signing of one's name. And will someone living in Tonypandy try and arrange to hold a meeting in some restaurant there? I suggest calling a meeting as soon as possible, say, April 23rd. Now, fanciers, strike the iron while it is hot. I will be pleased to become a member, and try and get some more to come along.

Scandal at Skelmanthorpe.

The Recent Y.U. Suspensions.

[Mr. H. Kaye writes thanking "A Lover of Justice" for the letter published in our columns last week.]

Sir,—Being one of the men Mr. Kaye reported to the Y.U. Council for lending two birds to two novice members (one in 1907 and one in 1903), these charges are false, and I went to Bradford, a distance of 20 miles, to answer these charges. When I got before the Council, Mr. Kaye, the man who laid them against me, did not appear. What he made these charges against me for I don't know, unless it was because Mr. H. Lodge called me out of the council room as a witness for him against Mr. Kaye for lending a bird to show in the novice class. Instead of coming to Bradford to fight the case, Mr. Kaye sent a letter saying we were too dangerous to travel with. Then, when the Council exonerates us, Mr. Kaye starts writing to your paper wanting us to go again to Bradford. I am not afraid of going before the Council again when I can walk, if he will pay my fare if I win, and if I lose I will pay his. Then, again, he accuses me of washing Mr. Firth's birds. Well, I have only washed him one bird in all my life, and that was at the beginning of the show season; but I know for a fact it was his own bird, as I was with him when he bought it. Surely that is no crime? as I will try to help any fancier and show him all I can to help him on in the right way. Mr. Kaye goes on to say that one of our members went to Bradford and came back with a broken leg, giving readers of Cage Birds the impression that he got it done at Bradford. That man was myself, having happened on an accident that morning in the mine, splintering a small bone in my leg. Now, Mr. Kaye, I think this a cowardly insinuation to make against any man, much more a man with five little children depending on him, and if you are the gentleman you profess to be you will apologise for your cowardly insinuation. Then perhaps you will be able to go in the peace you talk so much about.

Luther Dyson.

Sir,—I had no intention of replying to H. Kaye's letters, but they are so full of slander that one cannot let them pass altogether. Well, Mr. Kaye (or Hedgehog, or whatever he might choose to style himself), will you let us know what a "half truth" is, as this is one of his latest inventions, and comes in nice and handy for him. Now, H. Kaye sent a letter to the secretary of the Y.U., stating he had not lent this bird to F. Firth. This is one of his half truths. Then he appears before the Council and acknowledges having lent the bird. In this week's "C.B." he denies ever having appeared before the Council; another of his half truths. So if he will add these together it will make one untruth, and what he has left he may use to curl his moustache with whilo he considers how much it cost us to go to Bradford to appear before the Council of the Y.U. for false statements made by him. Neither H. Kaye, nor anyone else, can honestly accuse me of breaking the rules of the Y.U. in any way. H. Kaye wishes to know how many times birds have been in one room and home again. A true and correct statement was given before the Council. If Mr. Kaye can prove otherwise, he is at liberty to do so in Cage Birds.

M. Peel.

[If Mr. Kaye has any charges to bring against Mr. Peel, or Mr. Dyson, or anyone else, he must forward them to the proper quarter, which we take to be the secretary of the Yorkshire Union; we cannot publish them in the columns of Cage Birds.—Editor.]

Sir,—I am sorry that things are coming to such an end at Skelmanthorpe as at the present time. I write you because I want you to say in this week's paper whether I, F. Firth, have sent any letters to you or not. I have been charged with doing so by some of the Skelmanthorpe Cage Bird Society members. I wish you to correct them. They say I sent that letter signed "A Lover of Justice," which appears under Mr. Kaye's this week. Now to any sensible man the very beginning of the letter is sufficient evidence, for the writer goes on to say that he has been a regular reader of Cage Birds for the last six years; as for myself, I can truthfully say that up to two years ago I had never had a cage bird paper in my hand. Some people are fast at saying nothing. It is an old saying, and a true one, too, that you may catch a thief, but to a lie there is no end. I also wish to make it known that I strongly object to my name being used again in any letter by either party. Seeing that I am one that is on the sine die list, I think that is bad enough. But I can assure the Skelmanthorpe Cage Bird Society that I have lost no sleep through it. I committed the crime, and now I am paying the penalty. I think when a man has done something wrong it is no sin to take to it. The mischief comes in when we do these things, and try to get away from them; that has been the secret of the trouble in Skelmanthorpe.

F. Firth.

[The letter referred to was not written by Mr. Firth, and we may go so far as to say that it did not come from Skelmanthorpe at all.—Editor.]

Sir,—We read with intense interest in last week's Cage Birds, another epistle written for our edification by "Saint Henry," the peace-maker. As we anticipated, he has entirely forgotten his vow made when he appeared to answer the charge before the Yorkshire Union Council at Bradford, and by false statements and denying truthful facts has rendered his head liable to be placed upon the block ready for the chopping process. If he now pretends to have meant this as a joke, he would probably use it then to press home one of his half-truths. We were exceedingly pleased to see that he read into those "bold assertions, half-truths, live truths, solid facts, jokes, etc," as he terms them. But he need not have become ecstatic, as he apparently did by the tone of his introductory remarks. Surely he does not imagine it requires the art of a competent journalist to write down a few facts on this inspiring topic? If he does, he must indeed be a bigoted marvel. Now, when Mr. Kaye first heard of the objection brought against him by H. Lodge, he wrote a letter up to Bradford saying he had sold the bird in question, and it had been the bona-fide property of the other party. Then the following Saturday, when he appeared to answer the charge, he acknowledged having lent this bird for exhibition purposes. Do we need to boldly assert, Mr. Kaye, that this acknowledgment was positively wrung from you by the truthfulness of the other party implicated? Mr. Kaye's intention from the beginning was to deny everything that was brought against him as evidence, and, if possible, win the case. Did you appear on this occasion, as you denied last week? Again, Mr. Kaye states in his letter of March 26 that some of them had been exonerated from all blame when there was nobody there to accuse them. Does he mean by this that the Secretary of the Yorkshire Union notified these gentlemen to attend the council before any charge had been brought against them? If not, we again ask why he did not appear to substantiate his previous evidence, because he must have accused them, otherwise the Secretary of the Y.U. would not have requested them to attend, and (as he himself stated) so give each member an opportunity of defending his own case? Does Mr. Kaye now understand the gist of our letter, and see the reason we regard him as such a coward for not being present to bear witness against them? We contend he has not one single atom of genuine evidence whereby to convict any of these gentlemen whom he has accused. It was nothing more than a plot devised as a plea for his own case; seeing no other way of escape he thought if he could but get a few honourable fanciers implicated there might be held out some hope of mercy. This is the meaning of his remarks about making a clean breast of it, bearing the sins of the society, going in peace, etc. We wonder where on earth could be found anyone with an unbiased mind to sit on a council and give a patient hearing to one previously convicted for an offence, after reading such an astounding record of inconsistency as appeared in his last letter. Would it be reasonable, British or Foreign, for any true lover of justice to rely upon his evidence and deal with these gentlemen accordingly? To take up this attitude would certainly appear to us seething with a spirit of prejudice and revenge. This is not the case of one bird only being exhibited at one show. We readily admit this no crime; but did ever anyone yet keep a cock bird in show condition until the breeding season, without its divulging the sex secret? Mr. Kaye's birds are not kept up in a bedroom, visited perhaps once a day, but just behind his loom, where every movement can be seen at a glance. Let us give the case a fair and impartial judgment without any of Mr. Kaye's suppositions or training stories. Mr. Kaye will know that we were not present at the hearing of these cases. Therefore, if he wants a full report of the defence, he had better send up to Bradford, because we regard the character of our fellow-fanciers as towering so high above reproach as to deem it nothing less than a gross insult to suggest such simple trash in their hearing as Mr. Kaye keeps on repeating. When we said Mr. Kaye was always suspected, we did not wish to imply he was dishonest (nor had he any prospect of growing rich out of the funds of our society if he fulfilled both offices); but we utterly detest autocracy, and claim a right to suspect any man who asks for absolute control over finance. Prevailing conditions were always suitable to Mr. Kaye, providing he could have everything his own way, and we agree with him he worked hard. But what more convincing proof is needed than his present mode of procedure, that if anything goes wrong he is prepared to crush everything within his power? It is from this standpoint we review all his boasted efforts since we joined the society. He knows he has held up to suspicion some of the most honourable gentlemen in the Fancy, and has endeavoured to destroy the society by using all the means at his command, even taking advantage of an unfortunate brother fancier, Luther Dyson, who happened to meet with an accident, causing an injury to his leg whilst engaged at his work in the mine on the same day as his trial. Mr. Kaye uses this as an insinuation that our members are no better than hooligans, so incapable of conducting themselves properly when on a journey as to return with fractured limbs. Sarcastic "peace-making" of this order surpasses understanding. When we read that homely story about your bull pup and the hedgehog, Henry, it almost made us smile. We thought it contained a valuable lesson, viz., that the wisdom of nature foresaw it was expedient to cover this harmless, useful creature, the hedgehog, with prickles as a means of protection. A wise council foresaw the dangers each member's interests were exposed to, and therefore surrounded us with rules and regulations, so that when anyone insisted on tearing in pieces the bonds of security, they might be held in suspense. Now, having been pricked, Mr. Kaye, be wise and beat a hasty retreat.

A Canary's Double Eggs.

SIR,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to state that one of our members has had a hen Canary lay a double egg. Both eggs have a shell on, and there is a small hole in the side of each egg, where they have been joined together. One egg is of the ordinary size, and the other a little smaller. The hen has since laid three more eggs, and is doing well. Will fanciers please state through CAGE BIRDS if they have known this to happen before?

Two Eggs in One Morning—Four in Three Days.

SIR,—May I ask through your correspondence column if it is usual for a hen to lay two eggs in one morning? A yellow Norwich hen, paired to a Muling Goldfinch, laid two eggs on the morning of Sunday, April 10, both normal in shape and colour, and fully shelled; and what is, to my mind, more surprising, laid on the Monday and Tuesday following, and commenced sitting as usual, making four eggs in three days. I examined these eggs after eight days' sitting, and found only one fertile, which I know is one of the two laid together, because of a peculiar blotch of spots at the thin end. The hen is unflighted.

"TWO'S COMPANY."

A Green Border Section for the Green Canary Association.

SIR,—It has been suggested by a few of our members that the Green Border should be taken into the Association on the same lines as the Yorkshires and Norwich. With this object in view a meeting has been called, and will be held at the Secretary's house on Wednesday next, April 20th, at 8 p.m. prompt. Doubtless the project will meet with a certain amount of opposition, but our esteemed president, J. Walker, Esq., is prepared to personally guarantee the classes at, say, six patronage shows, and the variety will be self-supporting; hence we do not see why the venture should not prove successful. After the pro's and con's have been debated on, the matter will be brought before the general body on April 28th. In the meantime, any fancier willing to support us by joining the society in the event of the variety being accepted, might send a postcard to the undersigned at 36, Lord Nelson Street, Liverpool. Will Scotch breeders of Green Borders especially kindly note?

The Type of the Lancashire Canary.

SIR,—Having followed the correspondence that has appeared in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, during the last few weeks, re the type of the Lancashire Canary, it is interesting to me to learn that the L. and L.F.A. is at last going to play a big part (in my opinion) in regard to the true type of the Lancashire. The first step in this direction was taken at the L. and L.F.A. meeting, held in Manchester on April 9, by the appointing of the specialist judges, one of these in particular being of the "Three Star Brand"; and although we have had plenty of information from that quarter lately, which owing to the L. and L.F.A. selection will have to be seriously reckoned with in the future, I venture to state that no novice need be at all afraid to exhibit Lancashires under him, as I predict that any one of them will stand a very good sporting chance of winning a first prize. But after the true type of the Lancashire has been settled to his, the L. and L.F.A.'s famous specialist judge's satisfaction, I should like to ask what is going to become of the Lizard? Are we, in order to satisfy a man's ambition by talking himself into a Lancashire judge, going to the trouble and expense of submitting another variety of birds under his jurisdiction before we are fully convinced that he is morally a fully-qualified professional exhibitor of that particular breed which he is appointed to judge? Or must we in order to get the correct type of the Lancashire, sacrifice the Lizard Canary, and take a sporting chance along with the Lancashire novice?

LIZARD.

SIR,—I see that our "old crank Teddy" is again on the warpath re the type of the Lancashire Canary, using the same old-time arguments, and still slating the judges, and those in particular whom years ago he begged and prayed for to have judge the variety! The fact is (in my opinion), that if Mr. Fuller would go in and breed a few of those "ideal and typical" birds he speaks so much about and place them before the judges, he would do a far greater service to the Lancashire fancy; furthermore, greater credit would be given him, and more notice taken of his letters. Those who know "Teddy" best, simply laugh to scorn his blustering effusions, and have been looking out for years for those "typical and sensational" specimens which he promised to produce from his rooms whenever judges House and Compston were appointed as specialists to judge the variety! I know these judges were appointed, but neither the "cash" Mr. Teddy promised to help defray the cost of their judging, nor yet his ideal and correct exhibit has yet come to the front, and many besides myself are in doubt whether Teddy has now or ever has possessed by his own breeding any of those typical specimens whose scarcity on the show-bench he bemoans so much. Let him produce just one such specimen this season, turn it out and let the Fancy note his "ideal," and he will confer the greatest benefit of modern times upon the Fancy. I note "Teddy" also has a crack at the Lizards, and I note with satisfaction his statement that "there is less faking" than formally. I am pleased to know from Teddy that it is so, but, same as the Scotsman, "I hae ma doots." Had I not, I should feel inclined to have a crack in again myself, but until I am assured that trimming and faking are things of the past, I must decline, and simply sit on the fence. However, I will give the question of again entering competition some consideration, and will, during the coming show season, visit a few of the leading shows and see if Mr. Fuller's contention is correct. If I find it so, then I will promise to again turn out a team worthy (I hope) to uphold my name.

F. W. BAKER.

SIR,—I have great pleasure in sending you copies of the Lancashire Standard now in operation, and the one friend Teddy places so much confidence in, and claims as Mr. Compton's sole idea.

OLD STANDARD.

NEW STANDARD.

	Points.
Head: Coppy	30
Neck: for fulness and thickness	10
Back: Round, full, and long	10
Length of bird and substance	25
Upstanding position and type	15
Total	100

I trust Mr. Fuller will be satisfied with being able to compare the two Standards, especially the so-called new one, about which he seems to be very dubious. I am pleased to see a new Lizard breeder's name in your paper, and can only say that Sunderland C.B.S. would most likely have got our patronage before this except for their show date clashing with one of our oldest societies, who give the Lancashire and Lizard good classification, and this in spite of losses on the classes. I myself have sent one or two this last year or so, but it means a big expense, sending out to two shows in one day to say nothing about the strain on the birds themselves. Cannot our friends in the North see their way to make an entry at one or other of our shows, instead of expecting us to send to their shows, and meeting them on their own ground, as it were, every time? Anyone who has done any exhibiting will admit that a bird having travelled a good distance shows to a big disadvantage compared with one that can be staged straight away. I fancy, however, anyone who knows me at all will not accuse me of funking in the least sending any distance if I can do so, and give the birds fair play, as, for instance, the following shows in our cup competition, viz.: Rochdale O.C., Manchester, Rochdale "Good Intent," Nottingham, L.C.B.A., Middleton, Scottish National, and Pendleton and Salford, eight shows; and these, with the exception of the Scottish National, were almost in successive weeks. I know there have been plenty of good birds sent up North, so surely we should get to see some of them this coming season. Now then, friend Reid, just send us a few entries, and whether you get our patronage or not, if you have Lizard classes, I will send you on my own entry and try and get more entries. Wishing one and all a good breeding season.

Magpies in London Parks.

SIR,—I was much interested in your note on the Magpie in Kensington Gardens, London. Perhaps it will interest your readers to hear that a pair of Magpies have built at the corner of the Horse Guards' Parade, Spring Gardens end, and very amusing it has been to watch them. But, alas! I hear that the proverbial "man with the gun" is in attendance on them. I think this a great shame.

A New Cage Bird Society for Bangor and District.

SIR,—As a sequel to the very successful cage-bird show held recently under the auspices of the Catch-my-Pal Union, an extremely well attended meeting was held in Mr. Lester Irving's residence on April 6, to consider the formation of a Cage-Bird Society for Bangor (Co. Down) and district. It was unanimously resolved that the object of the meeting be confirmed, and the following officers for 1910-11 were appointed:—Mr. Lester Irving, chairman of committee; Mr. D. E. Alexander, treasurer; Mr. J. P. Watson, secretary, 112, Irene Terrace, Bangor; committee, Messrs. S. Shannon, R. Stewart, W. Pidduck, G. Absolom, D. Beattie, W. M'Kee, and D. Carlton. Club shows will be held for first feather birds, and a show, open to all comers, with a few reserves for members, in December of this year. Seldom or never has a new project in Bangor been taken up with so much enthusiasm, and thanks to the exertions of the promoters we have every confidence that the Society will have a sustaining influence on the members in giving them an interesting hobby free from the temptations of the public house.

The Feeding and Keeping of Skylarks.

SIR,—Having seen a deal of correspondence in CAGE BIRDS lately concerning the Skylark, I would like to say a few words about the feeding and keeping of these very fine songsters. At present I have six Skylarks. Four of them I keep in the kitchen, and two I keep upstairs, which I hang out of the bedroom window during the day, and they sing their full, loud song nearly all day long. Two of the other four are hand-reared, and the other two field-moulted; they all start their full song early in the morning, and as long as they can see a light in the house at night will keep bursting into song. If I happen to go out for a short walk, when I return I very often find two or three of them covered over with dark covers, as they make too much noise. This is the way I make my ordinary food: I put two tablespoonfuls of beef dripping into a tin in the oven, and when it is melted I add 1lb. of peameal and ½lb. of oatmeal; then I put it back into the oven for a quarter of an hour, and keep mixing it up with a spoon. When I take it out I let it stand half-an-hour, and then mix it well with my hands. This, of course, is only an ordinary food. On another occasion I hope to give two more recipes, one for making hard food and another for making soft food.

RD. WILFORD.

What is a Dark Mule?

SIR,—I noticed in last week's CAGE BIRDS that Mr. Jackson wishes to know what is a dark mule. Mr. J. ought to be satisfied with what the judge told him in my presence; but it is a case of a disappointed exhibitor, and nothing else. So it is no wonder he is grumbling. I have bred several mules, including my present winner, and if Mr. J. had bred his own, he would know what is a Dark Mule. Also my mule, which has a slight tick of yellow on the back of the head (not a white mark on the back of the neck), won 1st and special at Pwllheli show last Boxing-day under Mr. Wellings, and the Goldie-Canary which stood 2nd at Menai Bridge was placed the same at Pwllheli. So I think by that, being under two expert judges, they ought to know better than a novice what kind of a Mule ought to win in a Dark Mule Class?

W. NOLAN.

SIR,—Kindly allow me to contradict your correspondent, R. Jackson, re dark Mules at Menai Bridge Show. He states that the 2nd prize winner had a white spot under its beak. I absolutely deny it. Indeed, it amuses me to see how prejudiced some men are. When they see a good bird they at once try to find some fault with it, and when they fail they try to invent one. And so in this case. But it all arises from disappointment. Mr Jackson was himself an exhibitor in this class, coming out 3rd. Had he won, very likely his letter would never have appeared in CAGE BIRDS. I exhibited this bird only twice, and he won 2nd both times under Mr. Wellings, and Mr. House, out of 23 dark Mules in the two shows, and these gentlemen have, in my opinion, better knowledge of a good Mule than a novice as Mr. Jackson titles himself. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

To Sellers and Buyers of Canaries.

SIR,—I note that a correspondent says sellers send Buffs for Yellows, and that you have to pay 1s. 4d. to look at the birds. I, for one, would not grumble at that if the birds were as advertised. To read the advertisements some people put in, one would think winners grow on tree-tops. If these advertisers would put something like the truth, it would save a lot of trouble. But you can't expect to get a winner for 12s. 6d. I say use the deposit system.

F. HENSON.

SIR,—I was pleased to see a correspondent—"Dickey Dent"—bringing to the notice of sellers of Canaries the importance of sending birds as per advertisement, and with your kind permission would like to give novices (like myself) a word of advice about replying to advertisements. About September last an advertisement appeared offering at a low price (although costly to me) young cock Hartz Canaries, singing, sex guaranteed. I sent a postal order for two, enclosing a stamped postcard for advising me when despatched. I waited a week, then went over to enquire about them. Upon my arrival, was told they had been sent off per carrier that day. However, they were not sent off as a matter of fact until about four days after my visit, and lo and behold, they have both turned out to be hens. Upon entering my bird-room this morning, I find one has two eggs, and the other is anxious to nest. So much for all my trouble and expenses. I naturally wondered why the singing had not taken place, as they have been in my room side by side with a good singing Roller. My advice to beginners is this: Save up a trifle more and deal only with a reliable breeder. Pay a fair price, and the result will soon be obvious; and don't heed such advertisements as I unfortunately was tempted to do. One word in conclusion, insist upon the deposit system, with the Editor, which has proved a benefit to myself and doubtless to a great numbers of readers. I wish "Dickey Dent" and his friend better luck next time. CAGE BIRDS every success, and everyone a successful breeding season.

LOVER OF BIRDS AND JUSTICE.

[On several occasions we have warned readers of the necessity of exercising caution whenever cock Canaries (especially "young cocks") are being offered at very low, tempting prices. Twice last season we published editorials advising insistence upon the deposit system and verification of the sex (wherever possible) before completion of the purchase.—Editor.]

SIR,—"Dickey Dent's" letter of last week is not uncalled for, as no doubt such tricks of certain kinds of dealers (not fanciers) have done and are doing a lot of harm, as those buying for the first time think they are offering genuine birds, though older hands know good birds cannot be had at the prices mentioned. There is also another thing done, which I think even worse, that is in sending birds which are full of asthma, as here the deposit system is not much use, as the birds, being doctored up, show no signs of it for a week or two, and then the money has been paid over. But I am glad to say there are many honourable men to be found, as for several years I have had birds from all parts of England, and only once have I met a real fraud, and that was over a 7s. 6d. matter. Only in February last I wrote a fancier re some birds he had advertised in CAGE BIRDS, and he immediately replied, giving full particulars of four birds, and offering to send them even without deposit. Well, I sent for one, and when it arrived, others who saw it asked me to get one for them, and the result was I sent for all four, as they were honestly described in his letters. While writing, I would like to let readers know how I was treated by railway and steamship companies re carriage. The first Yorkshire Canary I had sent direct to Belfast, thence rail to Portadown, carriage 1s. 8d., which at first I refused to pay. On the station-master writing on my behalf to try and have the rate reduced, I had a sharp letter saying there would be no reduction, and (please note) any others from the same place would be charged same rates. Well, I told the clerk we would see further about that part of the business, and as I was getting the other three birds sent that week, I asked the gentleman to send them off for a trip, via Liverpool, thence per L. and N.W. Railway Company, via Holyhead and Greenore, to Portadown, and the carriage in this instance was only 1s. 2d. So I would warn fanciers who may be sending birds from Scotland to Ireland to fight shy of the Belfast route.

The Future of the Cage Bird Union.

What is it to be? Some Opinions from Our Readers.

SIR,—As an old opponent of the Cage Bird Union, I would be glad if you would permit me to reply to your very able editorial article in the issue of CAGE BIRDS dated April 9th. An old opponent! True, but not of the general principles that were meant to be embodied in the Union, but of the coercive manner in which it was proposed that the Union should govern the Fancy. Events have passed during the last few weeks which have conclusively proved that the Cage Bird Union as at present constituted is doomed—not through any lack of support from the Fancy, but rather through the inexplicable lack of that tact and good management which are absolutely essential if a body so extensive as the Cage Bird Fancy is to be correctly governed. I have repeatedly heard it predicted that the Union would gradually die out of its own accord, and in the light of recent events it certainly appears that these predictions are coming true. The reasons for this gradual decay are not very difficult to find, and the first and principal one is in the word "coercion," closely followed by what you so aptly described as the want of "a little more of the iron hand in the velvet glove." Readers of CAGE BIRDS two or three years ago will remember the violent controversy that took place in its columns over the fateful Rule 17, which was then described as the "Keystone of the C.B.U.," and it was definitely stated that without the rule the Union must inevitably fall through. As an opponent of the rule, I contended that if such was the case, it simply proved my assertion, that any Union which based its existence upon such a coercive rule could not possibly be of any benefit to fanciers, and that eventually the rule would be the downfall of the Union. That the rule has been largely responsible for the present unsatisfactory condition of affairs cannot be denied, for without a doubt the other causes of complaint against the Union are only of secondary importance compared with the great dissatisfaction and ill-feeling which have been caused by Rule 17, which, for the benefit of new readers, I might say is now Rule 22. I failed to see then, and I fail to see now, by what possible right the Union claimed the power to say where fanciers may show their birds, and where they may not, thus infringing upon their rights and curtailing the legitimate liberties of men who keep cage birds for a hobby, in order to enable the Union to compel societies to become affiliated, whether they desired to or not. When the rule became an established fact what was the result? Many societies absolutely refused to join the Union, on the ground that Rule 17 interfered with the rights and liberties of their members; and other societies, principally those existing in districts where the majority of societies had become affiliated, were compelled to join against their will, because they recognised that their open shows would suffer if they did not do so, owing to the members of the neighbouring societies being debarred from exhibiting at an unaffiliated show. The further absurdity of the rule is that it is in a certain sense only half a rule, and it inflicts its hardships only upon the exhibiting members of the Union. Thus, a member of the Union may not exhibit at a non-Union show, yet he is at perfect liberty to judge a non-Union show. And, further than that, although a member of the Union cannot exhibit at a non-Union show, any non-affiliated exhibitor may show at a Union show. Could anything be more absurd? Is it to be wondered at that exhibitors recognise the fact that they are far better off when out of the Union? Would it not be much better to abolish the rule altogether and place the Union members upon an equal footing with non-Union members so far as opportunities of exhibiting are concerned? It may be news to some that Rule 22 of the C.B.U. is considered by some unaffiliated exhibitors to be a veritable God-send to them, but it is nevertheless a fact, inasmuch that it enables them to win prizes at shows where many of the crack exhibitors are not allowed to show at; and it is therefore scarcely to be wondered at that they refuse to join the Union. It was stated at one time that the very life of the Union depended upon the existence of Rule 22, but after the fair trial it has had I think it will be apparent to everyone at present that the life of the Union depends upon the non-existence of the rule, and personally I cannot see why a strong National Union promoted for the benefit of the Fancy cannot exist without having recourse to such coercive rules. This obnoxious rule is solely responsible for the motion standing in my name to be brought forward at the next meeting of the Sunderland Society: "That we withdraw from the Union," for at present we are the only affiliated society in the North who will hold an open show this year, and it would be obviously unfair to our members if we were to remain affiliated, and thus deprive them of the opportunity of showing their birds at the other Northern shows. In regard to the management of the Union, it cannot by any stretch of the imagination be said to have been satisfactory, and no doubt the "slating" you gave them in your article was deserved to a certain extent. I felt rather sorry for the President, Mr. Bladon, who is probably a most good-natured gentleman, and no doubt his kindly disposition would lead him to adopt peaceful measures at a time when more stern action was required, and without a doubt he will feel your remarks very keenly; yet he may not blame you for speaking your mind so freely. Mr. Raynes also has my entire sympathy, and if the facts were fully known perhaps he is not so much to blame for the recent Palace fiasco as we appear to think. The one great fault against the secretary appears to be the lack of communication to the Press, yet I fail to find anything in the rules of the C.B.U. which compels the secretary to notify the Press, or societies either for that matter, of what has transpired at the Council meetings, although this is not as it should be. Were the Council taken collectively, and their management of the Union during the past two years criticised, it would be found that they are really to blame for the present unsatisfactory condition of the Cage Bird Union. The method of dealing out justice adopted by the Executive Council of the Cage Bird Union is certainly a peculiar one, and savours of the policy of "Punish those who cannot help themselves, and let the strong go free." One instance of each will be sufficient to illustrate my meaning. Take the case of Mr. T. C. Crawhall first. He was found guilty of exhibiting at an unaffiliated show and suspended for two months. The two months selected by the District Committee (No. 1) were the principal months of the show season, and every show where Mr. Crawhall could have competed for a certain cup was held during these two months, with the result that he was unable to compete at all. Mr. Crawhall appealed against the decision of the District Committee on the grounds that the sentence was too severe, and owing to the straightforward manner in which he gave his evidence, and the extenuating circumstances under which he committed the offence, his appeal was supported by every Northern Society with which he was connected—I believe five in number. However, the appeal was dismissed by the Executive Council, with the result that five societies lost a good member, the C.B.U. lost a strong supporter, and Mr. Crawhall lost all chance of winning a cup. And the irony of it all is that here is a good fancier who unwittingly makes a mistake, freely acknowledges it, and is punished most severely; yet during the past show season the C.B.U. has been openly flouted in respect to Rule 22, and within the knowledge of the District Committee, but not the slightest action has been taken against the offenders. Why? It has been said that the offenders were not reported. What need is there to report anything when in some cases the District Committees were not aware of the fact? Why don't the District Committees look after these things themselves? Do they expect that every fancier who visits a show is going to act as a "tout" for them? The best and most straightforward manner in which to deal with this matter would be for the secretary of the District Committee to obtain a catalogue of these shows, and enquire into all doubtful cases. However, the case of Mr. Crawhall sufficiently illustrates how strict the C.B.U. Executive Council can be when dealing with a solitary individual. Let us see how they fared when they were opposed by a strong society. Many of your readers will be aware that the present crisis in the affairs of the C.B.U. in the North originated over a certain special at Newcastle Show two years ago. Without going into details with which I have nothing to do, it will be sufficient to say that the decision arrived at by the Newcastle Society was declared by the Executive Council of the Cage Bird Union to be wrong, and that the Newcastle Society decision must be reversed. Whether the decision of the Council, or the decision of the Society was correct, is immaterial to the point at issue. The Executive Council is the recognised Final Court of Appeal, and whether their decision was just or not, it should have been carried out. Did Newcastle do so? No. They thought the decision was unjust, and openly defied the Union. What did the Executive Council do? Nothing whatever, thus proving that the Newcastle Society was a stronger body than the Executive Council of the C.B.U. Why did they not suspend the whole Newcastle Society for refusing to comply with the decision of the Executive Council, as per Rule 21? Was it because they were afraid to do so, or was it because one of the Executive Council was also a member of Newcastle? These things need explaining, and it is simply due to what you have termed "the want of a little more of the iron hand in the velvet glove" that a single society was allowed to prove itself the master of the C.B.U. Prompt action on the part of the Union at that particular time would have immensely raised its reputation, and without a doubt the present crisis would have been unheard of. One more point, and I have finished. What capabilities do the members of the Executive Council possess that they should constitute themselves a "Final Court of Appeal" in all matters appertaining to the Cage Bird Fancy? One member at least admittedly does not know the difference between a Canary and a Mule, and also admits that he is a novice. I say this without any disrespect to the gentleman in question, and I think he will understand that I am only using his case to illustrate my meaning. If it should happen that (as is quite possible from the manner in which they are elected) the other members of the Council were also novices, so far as knowledge of cage birds is concerned, what use would the Executive Council be as a Court of Appeal if they had to decide any question such as whether a certain bird was a Canary or a Mule, or, for that matter, deciding the identity of any other cage bird? I think fanciers will grasp my point, which is that a Court of Appeal should consist of a number (say six or seven) of recognised experts in the Cage Bird Fancy, who would deal with all matters relating to the birds themselves, and leave the Executive Council to look after the legal affairs of the Union. In conclusion, if the Union should fall through, I for one shall be very sorry to see it go, for I have no objection to it other than on the score of the coercive Rule 22, which I have always fought against; and should the Union decide to go on without that objectionable rule, or a new Union rise in its place that will benefit the Fancy without being so coercive in its methods, it will assuredly have the hearty support of

[If it be Mr. Reid's idea (certain passages in his letter might reasonably be held to suggest it) that the purport of our article was the "slating" of C.B.U. officials, or the hurting of the feelings of any particular official, we can only say that he has woefully misconstrued our object in penning it.—EDITOR.]

SIR,—Your article in CAGE BIRDS issue of April 9, should be a power for good, if only in the direction of rousing the rank and file of members from their apathy and lack of sympathy with the objects of the Cage Bird Union; it is against these that the Union has had to contend, and it is these which are at the root of the Union's not being a total success, as well as the disregard of its rules by many members and societies. It is indeed regrettable that such a large number of influential societies should have seceded from the Union's ranks; this fact should stir up the members to find out where the Union has failed, and to remedy the defects. As one who has taken the keenest interest in the Union since its inception, I do hope these societies' objections will be ventilated at some meeting, and that they will reconsider their decisions. No reasons have been vouchsafed for these secessions, and I venture to suggest that if instead of withdrawing and so weakening the Union by their examples, these societies had given their reasons at an adjourned general meeting, it would have been more politic. The London and Provincial O.S., for instance, beyond merely announcing the fact in the Press, have given no clue of their grievance. Their delegate is a member of the Executive, but no suggestions have been made by him to that body to remedy the trouble which caused the society's action. Nor, I understand, have they or the London C.B.A. given any notice to the Union's secretary of their withdrawal. The L.C.B.A. also give no clue of their grievance. Still, it is notorious that never, at any time, has it taken kindly to the Union. Of the others, Rochdale would seem to desire to form a counter Union for Lancashire; Newcastle presumably cannot see their way to conform to the adverse ruling in their appeal to the Council. Cardiff appear to have withdrawn because others have done so, and of the remainder several have openly shown their distaste for the rules. If the withdrawals have been merely because of the informality of the Crystal Palace meeting, that surely was not sufficient to condemn the Union as a whole; but if they were for other and more serious reasons, these societies might have exercised the power given by Rule 8 to call a special meeting and had the reasons discussed; and no doubt they would have been met. The danger of these secessions is that a number of Unions, Federations, and so on will spring up, with varying codes of rules and consequent universal confusion. It is a pity the indictments brought against the Union were not more specifically set out, as these might have contained some of the reasons of the withdrawals. It is stated that the rules are not adhered to by members and the Executive, and that they are arbitrary and coercive. The non-adherence to the rules by members and societies is, I believe, the one great stumbling-block to the Union's success—a number of societies have not been loyal to the Union. One of the most important implied its intention of defying the Council's ruling, if it went against them, in a case arising at their show, while many members have openly infringed the rules. With such a state of thing no organisation can carry on its work successfully. Now, if the rules are not considered good, why not have them amended? The only one to which any opposition has been made is the old Rule 17, and it should be borne in mind that this rule has been brought up at every general meeting, and confirmed on each occasion. In addition to this, a post-card vote has been taken, which resulted in an overwhelming majority in favour of its retention in its present form. Still, if this or any other rule is now found to be unworkable, amend it. But whatever rules are agreed to by the general body of members, the minority should at least fall in with them, and every member and society should loyally observe them. This has not been done. Then again, if it is considered the members of the Executive have not been capable men, why are they not changed? They are elected annually. An opportunity of changing them should arise shortly, when the election will take place. The Council for the first year or two were intentionally lenient with offenders against the rules, especially Rule 22. It was, I suppose, intended to enforce this more strongly during the last season, but here unfortunately the delegates have been apathetic and sadly lacking in reporting cases, but have rather winked at the breaking of this rule. This no doubt accounts for the non-publication of disqualifications and votes of censure complained of, as there do not appear to have been any to report during the last twelve months, except the one at Rochdale, which was duly published. Such a rule as No. 22 is good and necessary. Without it the temptation to save the small subscription to the Union would be too great for most societies. Not many would remain members, and with a small membership how would it be possible to do the good the Union is already doing in the way of avoiding clashing and suspending wrong-doers from exhibiting at the bulk of shows? This rule certainly might be dropped in a few years' time, when all societies have come into line, and the original rule debarring non-members of the Union from exhibiting at its shows be brought into force, doing away with the present inconsistency, so much complained of. Then again, members have shown their apathy, as instance their not supporting the compensation scheme of the Union. I doubt if a score of members have entered it. The fee of 1s. covers the whole season, and only amounts to what a railway company would charge for four journeys for the same compensation. After all the time and trouble and money expended in bringing the Union into being, it should not be allowed to lapse, or split up into sections, merely for want of a little energy amongst its members. There is no doubt whatever a Union is needed, and can be of service to the Fancy in many ways. Every other branch has found one necessary, and the Cage Bird Fancy is not so immaculate as not to require one also. Besides, a Union can do so much which cannot be done by individuals or the most influential of societies singly, as the insuring of stock, approaching railway companies, avoiding clashing, and suspending wrong-doers. I strongly protest against your writer's remarks regarding the president and secretary, especially at a time when the voting papers are out for the election to these offices. After all, the delegates who do the nominating and electing are the best judges of their capabilities, and they should be left to give their unbiassed vote to whom they consider the best men for the positions. It is also out of all reason to describe all the general meetings as

"notorious fiascos." At every one but the last the whole of the agenda has been gone through, and considerable business done, and at these meetings Mr. Bladon has shown himself an ideal president, inasmuch as he has not strongly asserted himself. The opponents of the Union gathered there have been such as would have resented any peremptory or assertive action from the chair. They were there generally only to do their best to upset the Union, and it was better to let them talk themselves out. There is a rule (8) that a special meeting of delegates shall be called on a requisition signed by five District Committees. I suggest that such a meeting be held, and that the delegates of the seceding societies attend, and the Yorkshire societies, if they will, to discuss the agenda left over from the Palace meeting, the causes of the secessions, and other business that may be given notice of. According to the report of the Council meeting, the District Committee have been asked to meet to give suggestions with a view to these being brought up at such a meeting. The objects which you name, of removing all existing causes of dissatisfaction with the Union and reforming it where experience has shown reformation desirable, are most laudable, and I believe can be brought about; but when done, do let the members and societies, too, observe the rules, and assist the District Committees and Executive in carrying them out by giving their loyal support and taking a livelier interest in the Union.

A DELEGATE.

[We should be the last to desire to prejudice the result of any election, and our article of last week was published without any knowledge on our part of the said-to-be pending election of C.B.U. officials.—EDITOR.]

SIR,—The Battersea Cage Bird Association has seceded from the Cage Bird Union. It was carried unanimously at the last meeting.

F. EASTERLING,
Hon. Sec.

SIR,—Very many thanks for your article on the above subject. All who have the government of the Fancy at heart will appreciate your endeavour to arouse interest in the management of the Cage Bird Union. That there is good reason for the existence of the Union is evidenced by the loud and almost universal call for a Union at the time of its inception; then why has it been more or less of a failure up to now? For the first year or so not much could be expected, as the Union had to get into working order and feel its way, but now there is no reason why a more vigorous line should not be taken. I have always been against the coercive rules, 22 (formerly 17 and 10), but whenever this rule has been voted on there has been a big majority in its favour; consequently we must assume that the bulk of the members favour it. Such being the case, the officers must see that it is carried out without fear or favour. At our delegates' meeting last Saturday, it was unanimously decided to carry out this rule without prejudice, no matter who the guilty party might be, I would ask the Northern and Southern clubs who have seceded, if it would not have been better to have devoted their energies to mending the Union instead of hoping to end it. They were very loud in their favour at first, but now otherwise; why?

S. HADWIN.

SIR,—After reading your admirable leader on the Cage Bird Union, I think every society, whether affiliated or not to the Union, is indebted to you for your straightforward speaking. The officials whom you mention cannot blame you for showing them their faults, which have, no doubt, been the stop-gap to the success of the C.B.U. The members have a right to know what is being done every month, and if all proceedings were published in the Fancy Press regularly it would encourage the outsiders to join the Union. There is one important item I should like to draw the Council's attention to (it will also answer "Straight Un's" query in "Under the White Rose") anent the remarks concerning the Green Canary Association's patronage. The C.B.U. should not interfere with members of specialist clubs who are following the club's patronage at a non-Union show. A fancier may belong to a specialist club which is not affiliated to the C.B.U.; at the same time he may be a member of a local society affiliated to the Union. Naturally he is interested in any cups or specials given for the season's competition, but being a C.B.U. member, he is debarred from exhibiting at a non-Union show where his club is giving their patronage. This is very hard on him if he is well up in points. This is partly the reason why the G.C.A. have not given their patronage to Yorkshire shows—because the majority of the G.C.A. exhibitors are members of the C.B.U. It is very hard for the G.C.A. not to be able to support the Yorkshire shows, because we in Liverpool have had such good support from Yorkshire. Personally I think a Specialist Club member, though he may also belong to the C.B.U., should be allowed to follow his club's patronage, but to exhibit only in his club's classes at non-Union shows.

J. W. METCALFE.

SIR,—Your editorial re the above Union in the issue of CAGE BIRDS dated April 9th is most opportune. The thanks of the fanciers throughout the country are due to you for your trenchant and fair review of the position in which the Union stands at the present moment. In view of the probability of a change in the personnel of the management, it is best to be charitable. No one, I am sure, would wish to add to the tension of the situation. We want friendly helpers, not hostile critics—builders, not demolishers. So I trust the entirely moderate note you strike in your article will influence the whole of the correspondence which the seriousness of the case is certain to occasion. Apart from all other considerations, stronger management is urgently required. Secretarial work should only be undertaken by a man with the necessary qualifications. Mere popularity or eminence in the Fancy should not count alone. Square men in round holes are out of place. A really first-class secretary, with the help of a representative and hard-working committee, under the chairmanship of a man experienced in handling meetings, would pull the Union together and put it in its proper position in a short time. A lot of spade work has already been done and some experience gained. Let us profit by our partial failure while there is yet time, and I am hopeful that the first estimate of the usefulness and influence of the Cage Bird Union will blossom into an assumed fact.

WARRINGTON.

Warrington Linnet S.A. open contest, held at Mersey Hotel, Mersey Street, on April 9th, when 21 birds competed for four prizes. Result: 1 J. Mather, 125; 2, G. Molyneaux, 78; 3, McFarlane, 72; 4, J. Wych, 64. Judges, Messrs. W. Peet, W. Mather. Timekeeper, Mr. G. Molyneaux. Next club meeting April 17th, from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. Intending members invited.—C. CORBETT, sec.

Under the White Rose.

O.N.P.C. ballot papers for the election of the committee are now in the hands of the members, and must be returned to the scrutineer not later than Monday, the 18th; so please don't forget. "Do it now," must be your motto. Also take heed that the member receiving most votes will be vice-chairman, and it is specially requested that the votes be given to make the committee as representative as possible of the various districts already covered by the members.

THE Y.C.C. are to hold a committee meeting to-day, Saturday, at 6 p.m., to prepare business and receive suggestions for the annual general meeting, which takes place on Saturday, April 30th, at headquarters, Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford. Will members kindly acquaint the secretary of any item they think will be beneficial to the society's working? They can rest assured it will be received very cordially.

C.M.Y.C.C. are also holding a committee meeting on the 16th, to follow the Y.C.C. meeting, probably at 7.30, for the same purpose. Their annual general meeting takes place on the 23rd and they expect to have a "bumper." As the membership is now so very large it is expected a far greater and wider interest will be taken in the society.

SHIPLEY O.S. have now fully regained their old reputation. They began their last financial year with a debit balance, but now (thanks to their energetic secretary, Mr. Martin, and the other officials), they are again in a sound position, both numerically and financially, finishing up the year with a balance of £9 in hand. And great credit is due to all who have worked so hard during the last 12 months to put the society on a sound basis.

HULL Cage Bird Society are making great headway. Since the beginning of January they have made no less than 13 new members (it is said 13 is an unlucky number, so look out for another or two to spoil it), and the members' shows are coming up well, 181 entries having been received at the three members' shows up to date. The Mule and Hybrid section of this society must be very strong. At their members' show on April 4th two classes only were provided—"Pairs for Canary Mule breeding," and "Pairs for Hybrid breeding"—and a grand total of 31 pairs were staged in the two classes, some real clinkers being amongst them. It is hoped that at the end of the season there will be something to show worthy of their labour of love. This society has two cups up for competition, one for champions and one for novices, to be shown for at the various shows during the year; but so far the British bird and Mule fanciers hold sway. The last two shows they have had to themselves, but when the next comes on, the Canary men will be running up strong. Then at the Boxing-day show, which is the final, both sections are well catered for, and a large show is hoped for, and if classification counts it should be.

YORKSHIRE Union of C.B.S. have gathered in still another society, the Morley and Dis. C.B.S. having decided to join its ranks. This brings the Y.U. total strength up to 30 societies, and will make a record in the annals of the Union. The Morley fanciers have had this point under consideration for some time, and I was pleased to hear they had decided to throw in their lot with their brother fanciers.

BRITISH bird fanciers will be glad to know that a pair of Kingfishers have taken up their abode on a little stream within a very few miles of Bradford, and if undisturbed are likely to settle for the season.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

GLASSHOUGHTON.

Glasshoughton and Dis. Linnet S.A. usual sing, held at the Rock Inn, April 10th, when we had 11 entries. S. Scott was 1st, 47 seconds; R. Taylor, 2nd, 37 seconds; A. Longfield, 3rd, 35 seconds.—R. TAYLOR, sec.

YORK.

Usual weekly Linnet singing contest, held at Crown Inn, North Street, when upwards of 20 birds competed. Result: 1, 3, Morris Smith; 2, J. Lee. Judge, Mr. W. Perry. Timekeeper, Mr. J. Smith.—J. W. SMITH, sec.

LEIGH.

Linnet singing contest, held at Manchester Road Inn on April 9th, when Mr. J. Eckersley gave 15s., which was split up into six prizes for quality and time. Result for quality: P. O'Niel (Leigh) 1st, W. Milligan (Wigan) 2, J. W. Jones (Leigh) 3. For time: 1, T. Statham (Leigh), 127 sec.; 2, W. Holmes (Firs Lane), 59 sec.; 3, J. Mawsley (Appley Bridge), 38 sec. Judge, Mr. F. Gibbins. Timers, Messrs. J. Ellison and J. Fearnley. Minute man, Mr. W. Milligan. We hope to see a lot of Linnet fanciers at the Grapes Inn, Leigh, April 16th. After the contest we had some very good songs from some of the fanciers. 25 birds were entered at the contest.—J. W. JONES.

Wild Bird Life.

April Notes.

The month of April is one of the most interesting to the lover of wild bird life. Some time during the month the majority of our summer migrants are due to return to their English homes, and our hedgerows and woodlands will receive additional attractions in the numbers of graceful songsters to be found in them by those who are keen enough and patient enough to find them. We shall soon hear the cry of the Wryneck, the bird with beautifully mottled plumage, who loves to roam among the old trees in park-like country, seldom seeking the sheltered hedgerows or thick plantations. The handsome Redstart, Tree Pipit, and Whitethroat are all due, and will no doubt soon be located.

The last-named species is possibly one of our most common warblers. Here in the south we can find him along every hedgerow or copse. The cock bird's gushing song rendered under considerable excitement commands attention, and very unobservant would be the person who failed to note some half dozen or so during an hour's stroll along a Surrey lane. Seeking a prominent spray of bramble or hawthorn, the Whitethroat sings a few sweet, oft-repeated notes with swelling throat and quivering wings. Another incessant performer is the little Willow Wren, a graceful bird in an olive green and yellow dress, so near akin to the Chiff Chaff and Wood Wren that few can distinguish them.

Somewhere near the middle of the month the Cuckoo should be with us—"bird of mystery," whose coming delights both old and young, whose song consisting as it does of two simple notes has impressed its presence upon the minds of all. Spring is not with us until the Cuckoo "has told his name to all the hills." If the weather is not too severe, and we are fortunate enough to get the April showers that conduce to the bursting of the buds that make cover for our feathered visitors, all these and many other equally interesting will soon be among us, for the arrival of many is determined to a great extent by the amount of cover there is. Nor is the food supply sufficient for a great influx of feathered life until the showers and sunshine have brought to life many species of insect now lying dormant. The Nightingale, rightly called the "King of Songsters," was rather less plentiful last summer than usual. We shall watch with interest his coming, and hope to hear his glorious melody after sundown in his old accustomed haunts.

COVENTRY ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

An Egg-food Making Competition.

An egg-food making competition was held at our last meeting on April 6th at the Sydenham palace. Members turned up in good numbers. The first prize was awarded to Mr. J. Corrall who took 3 minutes 5 seconds.

The ingredients used were bread crust baked and crushed. Mr. Corrall remarked that he finds bread crust will keep fresh for a very long time—one egg, one biscuit, ½ teaspoon of sugar, pinch of salt. Four teaspoonfuls of the ground bread crust were put in a basin and slightly damped with water, the egg was shelled and pushed through a sieve with a knife; the biscuit was put through to clean seive. The egg and biscuit were now put in basin with bread crust, sugar, and salt added, and well mixed together.

The second prize was awarded to Mr. G. Peters, whose time was 1 min. 31 secs. The ingredients used were two or two and a half Osborne or Marie biscuits, one egg, ½ teaspoon of ground bone, ½ teaspoon of maw seed. Mr. Peters first crushed the biscuits with a rolling pin, next shelled the egg, and pushed egg through a sieve with a knife, the crushed biscuit was then pushed through to clean sieve; all ingredients mixed on a board or paper with the fingers. This food was a very good rich food, the ground bone being used to prevent looseness of bowels in the young birds. Mr. Peters stated that none of this food is wasted by his birds.

The third prize was awarded to Mr. T. Judd, whose time was 1 min. 50 secs. Mr. Judd crumbled 2½ozs. of bread with his hands, shelled one egg, and pushed it through a sieve with a knife, the bread crumbs following to clean sieve. Mixed this in a basin. His was a very nice looking food, not so rich as the others, but much cheaper.

All three gentlemen believe in giving a little food at a time and often; also unlimited supplies of green food. Useful hints and ideas were also given by Messrs. J. Symonds, G. Lawrence, Davies, and W. Lucas. Next meeting will be held April 20th, when members will give papers, and there will be a discussion on "How to get Young Birds on Seed." Our entrance fee and subscription are quite nominal ones, and we shall be pleased to receive nomination for membership. Anyone who joins will find our meetings entertaining and instructive.—J. SHADDOCK.

Goldfinch and Linnet Mule Breeding for Exhibition Purposes.

By ADAM WHILLIS.

No doubt the beautiful and lifelike coloured plates in CAGE BIRDS of Canary Mules and Hybrids between Britishers have been and will continue to be the means of starting a few new hands at trying to produce their like. But such aspirants must prepare themselves for disappointments, and not be down-hearted in consequence, but keep pegging away and pressing towards the goal, whatever the Hybrid wanted may be.

The Hybrids I am trying to produce are perfect specimens of the Goldfinch and Canary, and the Linnet and Canary crosses. I must say I have been very successful in producing numbers of them, and also in getting a few fairly good ones, but I can still see a lot of room for improvement. One Finch which I lost at the end of last breeding season gave me in seven seasons 118 young, and I think that is very creditable. The others have been very good breeders also. So I think that if others who are going in for these Hybrids will give the birds the same treatment they should be just as successful as I have been up to the present, and I am hopeful of producing some rare specimens yet.

Feeding the Finches.

The Goldfinch I feed on hemp and Canary seed as a staple food. The tit-bits I give him in a small jar, which I place at the side of the cage, as I think the passing the hand in through the door of the cage helps to steady the Goldfinch down. I give him in this manner teazle, niger and thistle seeds. Sunflower I give him, but I first take the shells off; then I place the kernel on the cross-bar of the cage between the wires. I find this does a lot to steady him, as Goldfinches are very fond of sunflower. In a very short time he will take it from the fingers with a swing and a tweet that only a Goldfinch can give. I also give him a piece of ripe apple, and I find that he enjoys it.

That is how I feed him in the winter months. Then as soon as the young herbs begin to shoot in the spring, I get my Finches on to them. Don't give them too much at first; wait till they have had them two or three times before being liberal, as they are sure to eat more than will be good for them, and that will put your chances of success considerably behind, if it does not do away with them altogether for that season, as when Finches go wrong (especially with a new beginner) it is generally a hard case.

The green foods I give are: first, dandelion leaves, which are to be got quite early in the spring; you will always find the best ones underneath trees or hedgerows, and if you pull the decayed grass to one side you will find them underneath nice and green. Then there is the groundsel; you will find this in nearly any sheltered corner. Keep giving this whenever it can be got free from frost, as any green-food with the frost in it would not be of any advantage to the birds, which should be singing away nicely by this time. Then come the dandelion seed-heads, or "white top," as they are called; they are the "conditioner" for the Goldie. Give them to him in abundance, and then you will soon have him "as fit as a fiddle."

The Linnet I give Canary and rape seeds as a staple food, and treat the same as the Goldie. But I don't give him hemp in any quantity—just a few seeds along with his other tit-bits, which are made up of teazle and flax, or linseed, as it is better known; also a few shelled sunflower seeds (in the same manner I give them to the Goldie), and a little rape seedlings that have been growing in a flower-pot. I find that the Linnet is very fond of the latter, but the Goldfinch does not care for them. Give the Linnet also in the early spring dandelion leaves and chickweed; he prefers these to groundsel. "White tops" he is very fond of, also shepherd's purse, whenever you can find it.

If fed in that manner, and a bath is given on fine days, both Finches and Linnets should be ready to breed with by the end of April.

What about the Hens?

Now what about the hens? They are Canaries. And what sort of Canaries are best for Mule breeding? I have bred my own hens this last six years. I had to begin with some yellow Yorkshire and some Norwich hens. I had been buying hens for several years, but had never obtained anything like what was in my mind's eye; so I thought I would breed my own for a change. I got a buff Lancashire cock and paired him to the Yorkshire hens, and a buff Norwich cock I paired to the Norwich hens. Before I had had three season's breeding from their offspring I could see a great improvement in the Mules. Of course, you must select your largest birds every year for the following year's breeding, and clears if possible. Yellow hens are to be preferred, and be sure you keep note of how they are bred, so that you will not over-do the Sib.-breeding. I always take a round of Canaries from the hens first, as the Finches are later breeders, but if you pair up your Canaries in the latter part of March or the beginning of April, by the time the hen has hatched and reared her young Canaries, the Finch ought to be in good form for breeding.

Treatment of Hens During the Winter.

Of course, you must not think you are going to breed without some preparation, or without looking after the hens when they are not breeding. There are some so-called fanciers who, when the fever of bird breeding is not at its height, just give their birds seed and water when they are compelled to do so; and then when the breeding season approaches they commence by over-feeding their birds with egg and other stimulating foods, notwithstanding the pairs have been half starved through the winter; the result is, that it is too much for the birds, and they are properly upset.

During the winter I convert my breeding cages into flights. They are all double breeders I use, so that when the season is finished I give them a good washing and take out the slide, when they make very good flights, as they are from 3ft. to 3ft. 6ins. long. I run four hens into each until the first week of the year. I feed them on plain Canary seed as their staple food, and as tit-bits I give rape (and on days I do not give the rape a little linseed), and as the weather gets cold a little hemp or oats; I think the last-named a benefit to them, as I use no heating stove in my room, though I always cover the cages over at night during the winter months.

After New Year's Day I put the hens by twos in a cage, and put a Finch beside them, with the wire slide down; that helps them to get on to friendly terms with each other. I then take the linseed from the hens and give in its place niger. I keep on the floor of the sand-tray a good supply of hens' egg-shells crushed small; you can always get them for the asking from your baker, and if you put them in your kitchen oven when it is not in use, it makes them so that they may be easily broken to grit size. Be sure to give them a bath on fine days about the end of February. I give a little egg-food (about half teaspoonful to each bird) twice a week, and by about the middle of March I give it every second day.

When to Start Breeding.

The time for starting is approaching now, as I generally commence by the last week in March if the wind is any other direction than the east; so that the fancier should have been as busy as his birds getting cages cleaned and other things ready. Remember, it is a bad thing to do to start before you are ready. Everything should work like clockwork; all sand-trays and other pieces should be properly looked to, as a stiff sand-tray, for instance, might be the cause of frightening a hen and so undo all that has been done. The hens themselves require a trim-up, such as the taking of the sharp ends off their claws, and taking about one inch off their tails; also any bird that is feathery about the vent should be trimmed up in this quarter a little, as you would be surprised to know what that does towards ensuring fertile eggs.

I now make three double breeders do for four hen Canaries and two cock Goldfinches, so that the Goldfinch is in the centre of the two hens that he is going to be first paired to. I say "first paired to," as I run each Finch with the hens which his stable companion is put to next for the second round. That gives me a better idea as to whether there is any difference in the Finches for giving me quality in the Mule, and I find that as much depends upon the Finch as upon the hen. Of course, if I strike anything nice in the first nest, I run no risks, but let the fortunate pair run together again.

We must, when getting a brood of Canaries in the first instance from the hens, introduce the cock Canary to that hen which is most rank, and after she has laid her third egg, give her the eggs in the evening of the same day. I always take the eggs away as they are laid and give dummies instead. But before you give her the eggs, run the cock out into a single cage and place him against the other hen at the opposite side of the Finch, still keeping the Finch in his place in sight of the hens. Run the cock Canary to number two hen the next day if she is in form, and you will then have no trouble.

Exit the Cock Canaries.

When you have got all your hens put to nest, remove all the cock Canaries from the room for the season, and leave the Finches to finish with the hens. While the hens are sitting I give nothing but plain Canary seed until the day before they are due to hatch; I then give them a little hemp and rape seed, and the night before they hatch the eggs I put the egg-food in readiness for the hen in the morning. I don't give too much at a time, as I believe in the "little and often" principle, and as some hens are not over-fond of egg-food, you have a better chance of knowing whether that is so by seeing if the jar is cleared of the food. Watch what the hens are feeding mostly with, and whatever that is, don't let them be without it. At the same time don't give them any to waste.

Returning the Finch.

Now for the Finch; when is he to be introduced? Some fanciers say, let the young be three weeks old; but I do not agree. Watch your hens' movements, and that will give you a good idea, as some hens are not so quick at going to nest as others are. But I prefer to let the Finch go in before the young leave the nest—say, the tenth or twelfth day, as if you wait longer, and the young get on to the sticks, the Finch gets excited and frightened, flying from one end of the cage to the other, and when he does settle on the sticks it is to show fight to the first thing that comes near him. On the other hand, if the young are in the nest when he is introduced, the hen will perhaps sit down and call, and you will then have an idea, probably, of how your Finch is going to act; or if she does not call at once, she will not be very long doing so, for as sure as she goes to the nest and feeds, I know that to call will be her first act after she has fed the young.

The Stock Book.
Our Invaluable "Breeding Room Register." By C. E. Weston.
Post free, 7d.
A well-known fancier has said of it:—"It makes bird breeding easy." This book no breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room, and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred—keep account of their strong and weak points. It contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By C. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/1.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/1.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet, all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

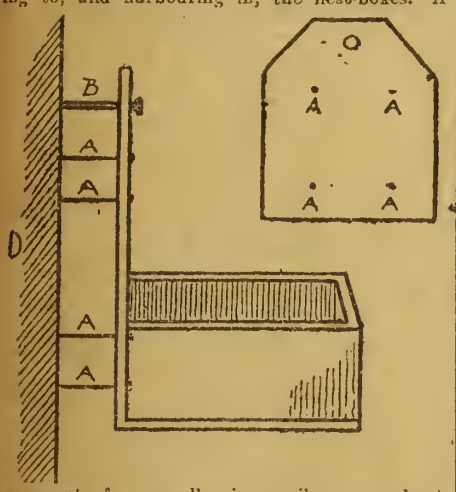
No. 400.
An Improved Sliding Door.
Sent by Mr. J. Burns, 30, Hammond Street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne.



The following improvement in the construction of the sliding door for breeding cages may be of interest to some of the readers of CAGE BIRDS. Make a square bend in the bottom wire ¼in. in depth for egg drawer: this lets the door down flush with the cage front. Having two wires bent for catches screw same on front to keep the door in position (see sketch). I might say that I have altered all my breeding cage doors to this.—J. BURNS.

No. 401.
Red-mite and Nest-boxes.
Sent by Mr. W. Haddon, 5, Oakley Street, Kettering, Northants.

I enclose a sketch of an idea which I think will be very useful to breeders who use wood nest-boxes; I found same very useful last season. It is for preventing red-mite from spreading to, and harbouring in, the nest-boxes. A represents four small wire nails, say, about ¾in. long, which drive through from the inside of the nest-box as shown. The points should stick out from the back. B is a nail or hook which may be used in the breeding cage; then slightly press it to the back (D) of the cage, and it will hang firm and steady as shown.—W. HADDON.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

A Tell-tale Parrot.

I know some people who keep a sweet shop, and have a Parrot which is very sensible. Their youngest boy is very fond of sweets, and often unknown to his mother helps himself. But one day to his astonishment, when he was taking some, Polly called out as loudly as possible, "Toby is at the sweets again," which soon brought the mother, and put an end to Toby's sweets.—Sent by Doris Lycett (age 12), Apedale View, Chesterton, Staffs.

*Tending a Sparrow.

Once while I was taking a walk along the country road I found a little Sparrow which could not fly and had evidently fallen out of a nest. So I packed it up and carried it home. I put it into a cage. The next time I went to look at it I found the old Sparrow hanging on to the side of the cage, and feeding the young one through the wires, so I never required to feed it afterwards.—Sent by W. Macpherson (age 13), 1, Canal Street, Grangemouth.

*Silent but Studious.

A gentleman tried to teach his Parrot to say "A merry Christmas and a happy New Year to you!" But the bird, although wonderfully intelligent as a rule, was upon this occasion obstinately silent, and his master gave up the task. But on Christmas eve some friends called at the house, and as they entered the parlour the bird, to their delight, but to his master's astonishment, saluted them with, "A merry Christmas and a happy New Year to you!" The guests were quite ready to declare that this was the most sagacious of all recorded Parrot utterances.—Sent by Frank Gardner, 38, Derby Street West, Ormskirk.

Experiences of the Management of Canaries.

By N. LOUIS WATSON.

When I first started breeding Canaries I had no idea I should go in for it strongly as I do now. Like most people, I began with one pair in my bird-room—a Roller cock (who startled me considerably by his first piercing song, as I had never heard a Roller before) and a Border hen. This pair went in so thoroughly for "doing their best," that, having nine birds by the end of the season, I settled upon it that I would go in for Borders, and so procured a few pairs through CAGE BIRDS' advertisement columns. I had a fairly successful season with these. Next year I changed my mind, and admiring the Yorkshire bird more than the little Borders, sold nearly all the latter, buying Yorkshires in their place. I kept only a few pairs of Borders, which I set up with the intention of giving them the good Yorkshires to rear; and chancing the young Borders with some of the Yorkshire hens. Contrary to my well-laid plans, the Borders this yearly flatly refused to feed at all, and I was obliged to mix their own offspring with Yorkshire youngsters under Yorkshire hens to save their lives. So the Yorkshires brought up the Borders instead.

So much for laying plans in Canarydom. Never trust a hen Canary. A severe rule? Well, I never trust them now, and what is more, I would never give a "character" with a hen Canary, for she would be sure to blacken it when she had left my door. Well, I continued for a few seasons rearing and disposing of surplus stock, keeping always those birds which were nearest my ideal. Now I am set up with 18 pairs of Yorkshires and Cresta only, and keep to that number of stock birds, replacing each year with better if possible.

The Bird-room Described.

Now to describe my bird-room—a room set entirely aside for the birds and their possessions. At first I was greatly troubled with mice, which ate up half the seed, besides causing annoyance to the birds. However, I am glad to say I soon got rid of these pests. I cleared the room and found out every mouse-hole; I filled each one up with fresh putty and glass mixed, the latter preventing them eating away the putty while it was soft. The only drawback to my room in the winter is that it faces north, and very little sun comes in all the year round. However, to balance this, I have made the room absolutely draught and damp proof by distempering (Hall's) the walls (using the outside quality) a pretty palo green, to keep the room as light as possible, considering the aspect.

The cages I enamel green, a shade lighter than the room. They are so easy to keep clean compared with those that are white-washed, and look nice all the year round. They are of the usual box pattern, 18 by 16 by 11 in., all of the same size, and stand on the top of each other in sets of three round the room. At the far end of the room there are two large flight cages, into which I turn the young birds when reared, and in which I keep the hens in the winter.

On the floor there is a strip of oilcloth, which is easily washed, and the window is left uncurtained to admit plenty of light. I always keep the window open just two inches at the top all the year round, but to prevent a current of air on the top birds I have inserted a board to fit the window at the top, so that the air comes in instead between the two sashes. I have a sand bag to place on this on really severe nights, as there is no fireplace in the room, so that I cannot have a fire, and am afraid of leaving lamps alight at night. The birds are, however, accustomed to a cold-room, and seem very healthy all the year round.

Management of Cocks and Hens.

The old songsters I keep in separate breeding cages, and I find out the young cocks of the year as soon as possible—say, about November, and cage them up separately. I find this is the best way, especially with the former birds, as if the food supply should for any reason run short, and fighting commences, it often happens that it is fatal, and one may discover one's best bird with his "toes turned up" for no apparent reason.

The hens, however, not being of such pugilistic, though perhaps of more bickering, natures, are left in the largest flights right on up to March, and I place them by about March, or even February, in a position so that they are not in sight of the cocks, thus preventing undesirable love-matches. These I feed on sound Canary seed all the winter, giving inga twice a week and a little hemp on severe days. I always keep a large lump of suet hung up for them to pick at; this seems to keep them in good health. A carrot (boiled) or raw apple occasionally is a great treat. These I put in a pot in the cage where four or more birds can peck at them at once, and it is not pulled out of the bars and dragged about the cage bottom.

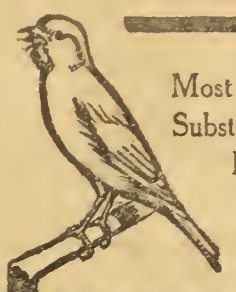
All my birds have plenty of grit (egg-shells, etc.) always provided for them in tins, and clean rain-water every day, with a lump of sugar to prevent the beaks from over-growing; and I am sure a healthier set of birds does not exist anywhere.

The cages are thoroughly cleaned out once a week, perches scraped when necessary, and grit tins filled up. For the cage bottoms I use clean pitch pine sawdust, which has a pleasant smell and acts as a disinfectant, together with the small bowl of Condy's Fluid which is kept under one of the tables supporting the cages. I have utilised these tables, too, in another way, placing shelves between the legs. On these are kept all bird-room requisites, such as nests, medicines, spare cages, water bottles, etc., not in use, egg-box (which I made myself out of an enameline box with wooden divisions, affixing hinges at the back, and lock in front). This prevents the room being littered over, as everything fits on these shelves nicely. It takes me two hours to clean the birds up every week, but a quarter of an hour every other day is quite sufficient in the winter to feed the birds and brush up the husks, etc. In the season one must expect to give more time in looking after young birds—making egg-food etc.

Putting Up the Pairs.

Generally speaking, I try to put up my pairs on March 17th, providing the weather is not too cold. Before placing the pairs in the breeding cages I overhaul all birds, cutting their beaks and claws where necessary; and I see that their feet are quite clean, also that their rings are loose, as often a hen's leg will swell a little during sitting, and if the ring were tight and caused pain this might lose you a sitting of eggs. The pairs are separated for some days by a wire slide, which I withdraw. From my peep-hole outside the window I can observe feeding going on through the slide.

After two or three days I give a white earthenware nest, lined with felt (obtainable at any furniture dealers for about 8d. per ½ yard, which is sufficient for 20 nests; this is a good deal cheaper than linings for 1d. each); also a few feathers and dried moss.



The eggs I remove as they are laid, replacing them on the third night or fourth morning. If I know that a particular hen lays many eggs, I find this best, as the late-hatched birds have a poor chance of life. The night before the young are due to hatch out, I give a little egg-food (yolk only for two days is used), so that if any birds are hatched the hen gets a good start while the house is quiet and she is unobserved. I leave the hen entirely to herself and give her a chance, just keeping an eye on her, though not pretending to; I manage to look at the nest when the hen is off, and never push her off.

I give plenty of hemp seed, egg-food, and dandelion in small quantities, after three days—about four small leaves a day to a hen with three young birds. "Sweating" hens I have absolutely cured by putting Epsom Salts in the water; this keeps them nice and cool, and I find that a little glycerine in the water during incubation once or twice is very good. I make a point of cleaning out the cages of sitting hens in the dark, while the hen is asleep—I mean with an almost extinguished light. I find some hens will not stand their cages being meddled with, and get upset if it is ever so quickly done. I also continue this when there are young in the nest, as a hen may be dazed with light and forsake the young. I have an egg-mill into which I put the eggs whole, together with the bread, as I find that the shell of the egg is appreciated when mixed with the food, and the young birds grow stronger.

Keeping a Register.

As to the register; at first I made an up-to-date register with a place for every bird hatched, and what became of it, but I found that if I forgot to enter any that died, it caused more confusion to me than the method was worth, so now I just affix a card to each cage with particulars of the cock and hen, and dates of laying, setting, hatching; then I ring the young birds after a few days, and make a note of their parentage before ushering them into the flight. In this way I have a clean record of all living birds, and no useless memoranda of poor wretches who have been starved and deserted, or whom I have had to take pity on and drown to end their troubles. Well, it has been said that if Canaries could be reared like Sparrows the pleasure might cease. It is the uncertainty of the thing that keeps one's interest up.

When the season and its pleasures and troubles are over, I take away the hens and examine their records, and if I find their names spell "disgrace," I despatch those ladies for what I can get, as it is useless keeping and feeding such. Those which have done well and appear fit to stand the winter I keep either for myself or to sell towards the spring for another season. At any rate, I reserve good hens until I find out how my young hens turn out; then I can decide which to keep and which I can do without. I must say that I never experience many losses during the moulting season. Plenty of room, air, light, clean food and water, are all I give together with colour food, and I generally find all goes well. I am thankful to say that each year I find Canary breeding is a most interesting amusement, besides giving one a little surplus cash which is sure to come in useful.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bonâ-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insistedupon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

6.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

These are not "Flights of Fancy," but merely a few examples out of many hundreds received during this month.

22, Chapelgate, Retford, April 16th, 1910.—Thanks for bird, which I received all right. It is just what I required. C. Dennie to W. Rudd.

Just Beauties for the Money.

74, Pill Street, Bonnington, Leith, April 5th, 1910.—Birds arrived all safe. Highly satisfied with them. Just beauties for the money. G. Allan to W. Rudd.

Off to Jamaica.

Ringrove, Woking, April 15th, 1910.—The Canaries arrived safely, in splendid condition, and they are now going off to Jamaica by "Port Royal." M. Cocks to W. Rudd.

What Does This Spell?

106, Balham Grove, London, April 16th, 1910.—Birds arrived safe, and I am very pleased with them. I should not have got the cock for the money about here for which I paid you for the pair and cage, etc. A. G. Watson to W. Rudd.

Thoroughly Satisfied.

Park Street, Southend, April 7th, 1910.—Received bird quite safely, and am thoroughly satisfied with it. T. Stribling to W. Rudd.

Such Valua for money Never Before, etc., etc.

15, Robin Hood Street, Castleford, April 13th, 1910.—You must excuse me not writing sooner. The two ticked Norwich hens to hand. Such value for money I never had before, and I must thank you for serving me so well. It might interest you to know that one is sitting on five eggs, and the other has laid two, and I am expecting another in the morning. J. W. Shepherd to W. Rudd.

Have any of the following on approval, if you desire the best value money can buy in Norwich Plainheads. These are not mixed up job lots of all kinds of crosses, and sold as Norwich, but pure, of good strains, and rare value for the Prices named.

IT'S A TALE

It's a tale some night expect you to believe, but just you have my birds on approval and judge the quality yourself; you will then be convinced that for style, quality, and cheapness combined they are unsurpassable. When you are purchasing birds it is to your advantage to get the best quality at the lowest possible price, and I am the right person in the right place, with the right knowledge to gratify your every desire with high-class birds at reasonable prices. I have no cheap foreign rubbish or wasters, therefore cannot supply such. I only have pure-bred, healthy, typical birds, full of quality, birds that will be a great credit to you and give satisfaction to the most cautious buyer. Every bird bred from the best stocks in the world by experienced breeders, cold room reared and kept, and now ready for immediate breeding. The cock birds are in full song, and the best of condition. I only ask for your trial order of one or two birds, for I am assured your order, however small, will secure your further patronage and that of your friends. I could fill all this paper with genuine unsolicited testimonials would time permit, but the following samples will prove what all my customers say: 7, Union-st., Rhondda, 1/4/'10.—Received bird safe; am very pleased with it, and thank you for your honest dealing, and sending me such a good bird at the price.—J. Twigg. Tacrefair, Kivahon, 1/4/'10.—Received Roller; it gives the best of satisfaction; when I require more birds I shall most certainly send to you.—B. Bamford. What a few say only.

These just taken from several Hundreds.

YOU will say the same if I am only given the opportunity to send on approval.

More than pleased.

The Limes, Hornyold Road, Malvern, April 15, 1910.—Hen, Yorkshire, arrived safely, and I am more than pleased with same, and must thank you for your prompt attention. C. G. Shaw to W. Rudd.

Just the Type Wanted.

Hartforth Grange, Richmond, April 14, 1910.—Yorkshire Cock arrived safe this morning. I must say I am more than satisfied, as it is just the type I wanted, and had I chosen it myself I could not have done better. E. Jeffries to W. Rudd.

What is in a Reputation?

196, Ecclesall Road, Sheffield, April 16, 1910—Yorkshire Cock arrived safely and in good condition, and is now singing. He is a very nice bird and the exchange quite justifies your reputation for straightforward dealing. H. J. Wolsteuholme to W. Rudd.

Very pleased with Hen.

8, Bridge Street, Haken, Milford Haven, April 15, 1910—I received the Yorkshire Hen quite safe, I am very pleased with it. R. P. Palmer to W. Rudd.

HAVE YOU COMPARED THESE PRICES FOR

FACTS v. FICTION!!

Sceptics, and all others, will do me a great favour by reading carefully the few following unsolicited and ungarnished facts. Not picked from three or four, but from many hundreds, which can be seen at any time, bearing official post marks. I will make no comment; such would be superfluous on my part.

A Good Advertisement, etc.

55, Charlbert Street, St. John's Wood Terrace, London, N.W. April 13th, 1910,—I received Crested cock safe. Very pleased with it. I hope it will be a good advertisement for you, as they are going on well, and singing splendidly in my shop. E. A. Lowe to W. Rudd.

A Real Pleasure.

13, Vennine Road, Chorley. April 1st, 1910,—Cage and birds arrived safely. I am very pleased with my bargain, and the careful way in which they were packed. It is a real pleasure to deal with you. F. Sanderson to W. Rudd.

Another Flattering Appreciation.

Park Road, Radlett, Herts. April 5th, 1910,—The pair of Yorkshires and Crests arrived safe. Grand pairs of birds they are, and show high quality for the money. I can with the greatest confidence recommend your name to all bird lovers. You are a very honest man. Very prompt to business; within forty-eight hours from ordering, I have them in first rate order. G. Hussey to W. Rudd.

42, Queen's Road, Lavender Hill, London, S.W. April 6th, 1910,—The Parrot arrived quite safe. I am very pleased with it. He is trying to talk today. I also received the other things. W. Standing to W. Rudd.

Best Bargain Ever Had.

Highly Satisfied.

Jarrow. April 14th, 1910,—Birds and cage arrived safe, and am highly satisfied. J. Barrett to W. Rudd.

Modesty Forbids a Headline to This.

52, Watford Street, Redditch. April 14th, 1910,—Received bird safe, thanking you for prompt despatch. You are the most straightforward man I've dealt with in the bird trade. T. Mills to W. Rudd.

The Beginner's Pairs and Outfit.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two huffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only

5/- (Five Shillings).
